ACKNOWLEDGES A LIE.

R. F. Rowan Signs Statement for Newspaper Saying He Told Lies on Governor Glenn

Wilmington, April 25.—Something of a sensation was caused by the publication in the afternoon paper here today of a signed card from R. F. Rowan, a clothing salesman in one of the smaller establishments of the city, admitting that he had lied "pure and simple and circulated the same for the avowed purpose of injuring the prohibition cause in New Hanover," when in the Fifth ward Thursday night he said in the presence of several that Governor Glenn had drunk nine bottles of beer at an oyster roast given by W. H. Sprunt, W. M. Cummings, L. B. Rigers and other prominent prohibitionists recently; that the governor was intoxicated while delivering his prohibition speech in the First Baptist church here Wednesday night and had to be helped in and out of the carriage by Chairman Fennell, of the anti-saloon league, and that the governor was drunk and had to be helped to the train by negro help at the hotel when he went to Clarkton from Wilmington the next morning.

It is understood that Rowan was threatened with criminal prosecution unless he signed the card in the presence of witnesses, directed to the citizens of Wilmington and to be used for the widest publicity.

GARDNERVILLE ITEMS.

Gardner's X Roads, April 27. Several people around Gardnerville went up to hear Governor Glenn speak on prohibition at Ayden.

We had a fine rain Thursday and it was much needed down this way.

People are now rebreaking their ground and planing cotton. J. A. Gardner made a business trip over to Grifton Friday.

We people down this way are living high now, we are catching all grades of fish.

M. O. Gardner was frightened by a large moccasin snake Friday while fishing his nets. He threw the net, fish and snake all away.

We are glad to see Gardner's bridge being repaired. J. A. Gardner has the contract to fix it. He says he will have it done by the 28th, we all appreciate its being fixed as the bridge was getting in very bad shape.

P. S. Moore had business over at Shelmerdine Friday.

G. L. Moore and A. M. Batchelor took in the close of Quinerly school Thursday night. They said it was something fine.

A good many of us went over to hear Rev. D. H. Petree lecture on prohibition Sunday at Riverside. There was a house full, and we were glad to see when he asked all those in favor of prohibition to rise, that everybody stood.

G. T. Stokes, of Stokestown, spent Saturday night at Israel Moore's.

G. L. Moore, a young man working for J. A. Gardner, spent Saturday night at his home near Coxville.

D. Fanning, of Shelmerdine, was in the neighborhood Sunday. Miss Annie Dixon, of Ayden, is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. O. Gardner.

Miss Viola Stokes was visiting Miss Ada Moore Sunday.

To the Voters of Pitt County.

Some doubt and confusion having arisen in the minds of some persons as to what registration books shall be used as the legal registration books for the registration of voters for the election to take place on the 26th of May 1908, I beg to say that the registrars should use the book used at the election on the 14th day of May 1907 and no other.

Whenever a new registration is ordered and taken all previous registration and registration books become useless and cannot be used at subsequent elections. The registration for the election on 14th, of May 1907 was a new registration and not a special registration. It is therefore certain that the registration books in use at the election on the 14th of May, 1907, must be used in the coming election. Any voter whose name is on the registration books used at the election on the 14th of May, 1907, need not register again. All whose names are not on these books will have to register for the coming election or they cannot vote.

The registration books were opened on the 24th inst and the law requires them to be closed at sundown on Saturday the 16th day of May, 1908. The law also requires the registrars to be at the polling places in their respective precincts on each Saturday during the period of registration, but the registrars can register the voters at other times and places. So it is clear that every voter whose name is not on the registration books used at the election in May 1907 has ample time and opportunity to have it put there if he so desires and I make this publication for the purpose of urging the voters to register and vote. A great moral question is to be decided upon which will seriously affect the habit, the homes and lives of the people and especially the boys and girls who are soon to become the men and women of the near future. You cannot vote in that great question on the 26th of May unless you are registered. I therefore urge you to register. This great question will be presented to you in the form of two ballots. One of these ballots will read "For the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors." The other ballot will read "Against the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors."

If any man is in doubt as to which of these ballots he ought to deposit in the box let him ask his wife or that darling little girl for whose safety he would give his life or that bright eyed boy whose future may be determined by the result of this election. They will tell him and tell him right. But I put it to every father and grandfather in the county of Pitt can you look that mother, that darling girl and that dear boy in the face and then turn away and vote "For the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors." I am expecting, hoping and praying that the men of Pitt will roll up a great big majority "Against the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors."

FORBES' SCHOOL CLOSING.

Interesting Exercises by Pupils—Flag and Bible Presented to School.

The closing exercises of the school at Forbes' school house, three miles west of Greenville, taught by Misses Theresa Cook and Melville Gibson, took place Monday night and today. Monday night there was a most interesting concert by the pupils, embracing vocal and instrumental music, dialogues, recitations, drills and plays that reflected highest credit upon the school and was much enjoyed by the audience.

This morning there were some musical selections and presentation of prizes, followed with the annual address by Prof. E. C. Brooks, of Trinity college. Then during an intermission a picnic dinner was served on the school grounds.

In the afternoon, under the auspices of Winterville Council Jr. O. U. A. M., a flag and Bible were presented to the school and the flag was raised over the building.

The people of the community take much interest in their school and have every reason to be proud of it.

ROSE HILL ITEMS.

Rose Hill, N. C., April 27, 1908.

The farmers are very busy setting out tobacco this week.

Dee Moore and wife, of Greene county, were visitors at F. A. Haddock Sunday.

Louis McGowan, of Beaufort county, was in the neighborhood Sunday.

Mrs. Susan Cox, after spending sometime in Beaufort county, returned home Saturday.

We were pleased to see so many at Sunday school Sunday evening. Come again and lets make our Sunday school a success.

Eddie Moore and Griffin Rouse were visitors at J. A. Moore's Sunday night.

Our public school taught by Miss Lillie Corey will close Friday May 1st. That night Rev. T. H. King, of Winterville, will speak on temperance in Rose Hill church. Everybody is cordially invited to come.

Inmates of Home Entertained.

The Sunbeams Society of Winterville went to the county home last Sunday afternoon, and in the chapel there gave a program, songs and recitations that gave much pleasure to the inmates of the home. Superintendent at Tucker says the inmates always appreciate visits of this kind, that he hopes the Winterville Sunbeams will repeat their visit and that others will follow the example.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., April 28, 1908.

The directors will hold a meeting to-night and let out the contract for building a tobacco warehouse and a prize house. The warehouse is to be 120x80 feet and the prize house of satisfactory dimensions. The land on which to build has already been purchased and work will begin at once so as to be in readiness for the coming season.

The Oxford orphans were here last night and had a crowded house. The receipts amounted to $72. There is a nice class and they are smaller children than usual. All of them are neat and nice and one can readily discern from their deportment the refining influences by which they are surrounded.

John Randolph, of Greenville, was here yesterday.

The man Smith, hailing from Washington, N. C., who was around here some few weeks ago selling the Atlanta Constitution and afterward accepted an agency with Hart & Fleming, agents for the enlargement of pictures, and who swindled them out of something over $40, has been apprehended and is now in our lock-up awaiting trial. Being a cripple and a right pitiful object, Hart & Fleming may not prosecute him but withdraw the warrant and let him go.

Saturday our police arrested a negro whom they thought was wanted by Sheriff Tucker for murder. It was learned later he was the wrong man and Sunday he was released.

Jesse Cannon will keep open the registration books for prohibition every Saturday from now out in the office of J. M. Blow.

John Quinerly, of Grifton, was here yesterday.

Mrs. N. A. Barwick, of Kinston is here on a visit to the family of her son, Major J. F. Barwick.

There were services in the Episcopal and Disciple churches Sunday.

To be a witness in the Superior court of Pitt county a man has to pay 85c for the privilege and receives 5c for making a fool of himself.

Calvin Tucker and wife, of Grifton, spent Sunday with the family of W. B. Quinerly.

To the Voters of Pitt County.

We the undersigned constituting a majority of the county board of elections for the county of Pitt hereby give notice that an election will be held on 26th day of May, 1908, at which all who favor the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina will vote a ticket with the words thereon "For the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors" and those who are opposed to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina will vote a ticket with the words thereon "Against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors."

In order to vote in that election, as in all other elections, it is necessary to be properly registered. It is our opinion that the registration books used at the election on the 14th of May, 1907, are the ones to be used in the coming election. We therefore advise every voter who did not register in that election to see that his name is put on the registration books before the close of the 16th day of May when the registration books will be closed by law.

TUESDAY, APRIL 28, 1908

Bob Phillips has thrown away his grip and is again playing "short step" on the New Bern Sun.

Mr. Craig and Mr. Horne should come around and give the people an opportunity to hear all sides of the gubernatorial campaign.

The business manager of the New Bern Sun comes forward to prove that women are not as good stenographers and clerks as men. He gives as a reason for this that during the past year he has had six lady employees to get married and leave. May be the Sun is working a matrimonial bureau on the quiet.

When anti-prohibitionists adopt such methods to attempt to defame the character of men speaking for prohibition as they did in Wilmington, it is entirely in keeping with the principles of the whiskey dealer. A business that wrecks homes, makes widows and orphans, fills jails and insane asylums, would not hesitate to try to ruin character, even of the governor of the State.

North Carolina is indeed a favored section. In winter it is free from blizzards, and in summer the visits of the tornado are practically unknown. Just think of the disaster from storms and tornadoes occurring in the States southwest of us in the last few days. In Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas nearly half a thousand people perished and the property loss was enormous. How thankful we should be to escape such disasters.

Some North Carolina Facts.

As exemplifying that wonderful Southern development "which has not been exceeded in any other quarter of this country." The Wall Street Journal notes that between 1900 and 1905, the State of North Carolina's gross income from property values increased from $926,144 to $2,798,895, or a little over three-fold. "The growth of the public wealth," remarks this philosophical economist, continuing its review, "is dependent on the increase of private welfare. Private welfare is usually exhibited in two classes of property under modern conditions. In the one class is real estate and personal property not represented in securities, and in the other class is the standard investment security such as bank stock, railway stock and bonds, and similar corporate issues. Taking all these together, the valuation in this period increased from $300,709,300 to $461,520,668 or 54 per cent. Real estate increased at the rate of 35 per cent., personal property 52 per cent., bank stock 200 per cent., and railroad values 100 per cent."

This delineation of facts relating to North Carolina's industrial onrush looks good to us, and The Wall Street Journal has our cordial thanks for making it.—Charlotte Observer.

BORN WITHOUT FEAR.

Yet Minds of Children Are Made Bogy Houses by Parents.

"My little boy is naturally so timid." "My little girl is so easily frightened. We are trying to cure her of it, but she was born with that sensitive nature, and we have to be very careful." So fond parents are sometimes heard to say when a child shows some special form of fear.

Yet, according to Clara Louise Burnham, who writes in Appleton's Monthly on "How to Keep Your Child from Fear," almost all children are born without fear, and fear is carefully instilled into them by parents and nurses.

Nature, she says, generally hands the child to the parents physically perfect, and still more often she hands him over full of optimism and faith. "Nothing is too good for me," is his natural attitude. Then comes perhaps his first fall. Straightway the anxious mother rushes to him with a cry and picks him up "with such manner and words that he screams with terror," and so the instilling of fear goes on.

"The affair," begins too many of the remarks parents make to their children, says the author. Christian parents constantly disobey the Bible, which is full of commands to "Fear not," "Rejoice always," and while professing to believe the Bible undermine the child's native confidence by teaching it that the world is beset with "snares and pitfalls to health and happiness." So the child becomes, as it were, mentally slouching and stoop shouldered instead of facing life, as he was born to do, with an upright, joyous carriage.

Fear, disaster, sickness should not be talked of in the presence of children. Even though they may not seem to understand it at the time, it sinks into their little minds. It is a disturbing, a distracting influence. Even worse in its influence is the mistake of the anxious mother who is always imagining that her child is ill. "Are you sure you feel all right, dear? Haven't you a pain anywhere?" It need not take much of such insistence to make the healthiest child, if not physically ill, at least nervously upset. The unwisest nurse does no end of harm. "She may be kind and loving," says Mrs. Burnham, "and yet consider the mysterious bogey man and the obvious policeman her legitimate allies in enforcing a paralyzed obedience." And so fresh elements of fear are introduced into the child's horizon.

Another thing this writer strongly denounces is the "strange tradition" that into every pantomime or play for the entertainment of children monstrosities must be introduced—cardboard giants, weird figures with goggle eyes and awful grins—which strike terror into the baby hearts. She makes a special remonstrance concerning Captain Hook and his pirate band in "that otherwise charming play, Peter Pan." No child under twelve should have his nervous system shocked by these gentlemen and their awful captain," she says, and she describes how at one performance she saw a child with its head buried in its mother's lap, begging piteously to know if "the pirates had gone."

WOODEN COLLAR BUTTONS.

Produced in Enormous Numbers For Special Uses.

Collar buttons are made not only of various metals, but also and in great numbers of wood.

Round sticks of wood are fed into machines which turn the buttons and cut them off automatically. Taken from the turning machines, the collar buttons thus made are placed in thousands of them at once, in a barrel-shaped receptacle containing japan varnish, in which they are rolled and tumbled until each is completely coated.

To be dried they are placed, thousands at a time, in a similar drying apparatus, in which they are rolled and tumbled again to keep them from sticking together until they are thoroughly dry, and then they are the finished buttons, which have never been touched by hand.

Wooden collar buttons are sold to the trade by the great gross, but they are not counted out in such numbers, for even machine counting would take some time and cost money, so the weight of a great gross being known, discovered by actual counting and weighing, they weigh out the buttons for packing, such and such a weight of them making a great gross. In this way they practically count out 1,728 buttons at a time, that number being in the trade the wooden collar button unit.

These collar buttons of wood are sold to dealers in laundry supplies and to manufacturers of shirt waists. Altogether the number used for these purposes is enormous, amounting to many millions annually.

Wooden collar buttons are one of the minor products of factories making a specialty of turned wood goods.—New York Sun.

Appearances Deceitful.

It was high noon when he entered the crowded restaurant. He stood fully six feet three inches in height, was built in proportion and must have weighed at least 250 pounds. As he strode down between the rows of tables he looked as if he could eat up the house. He took a seat beside a diminutive, fussy little man with a bald head and chop whiskers, who was bravely and successfully polishing off a sirloin steak, with onions. The little fellow, with his napkin tightly wedged under his chin and his mouth full of dinner, looked up in wonder at his gigantic side partner and then down at the frail case bottomed chair, which creaked and groaned piteously under its immense weight. But the big fellow took no notice of the little one. When the waitress approached him he gave his order in businesslike fashion. "Bring me," he said in a falsetto voice, "a cup of weak tea and a couple of doughnuts."—New York Times.

Highest Lake in the World.

On the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains is a lake known to tourists as Lake Tahoe. It is the highest body of fresh water in considerable volume known to this or any other country, for the geodetic survey reports its level as nearly 8,000 feet above the level of the sea. Its temperature never rises higher than 40 degrees F., and it runs off into the Truckee river, which discharges itself into the lakes of Nevada, that have no outlet, but whose waters are drunk up by the thirsty alkali soils of the Great American desert. While it is a favorite resort for fishermen, its waters offer but one kind of fish, the lake trout, as locally known, but in fact the Salmo fontinalis of eastern streams, only larger, stronger and more prolific in their development.—Exchange.

Not Only Could, but Did.

Sometimes there is a drop of regret in the cup of joy served by fate to the husband of a brilliant talker. "I should think it would be a privilege to sit at the table with your wife three times a day," said one of Mrs. Grandon's ardent feminine admirers. "Only twice a day," said Mr. Grandon, with a bow. "I do not go home at noon." "Too bad!" said the admirer. "We could not get on without her at the club, I am sure. Why, I believe she could talk intelligently on a thousand topics!" "She can—and does," said Mr. Grandon, and with another bow he slipped out just as his wife appeared.—Youth's Companion.

If You Doubt It, Try It.

A man once backed himself for a large amount, which he subsequently lost, to move an ordinary brick attached to two miles of cord along a level road outside Chichester. He failed to move the brick, and it may roughly be estimated that the friction of the cord on the road increased the weight of the brick (about seven pounds) and cord to a dead weight of not far short of a ton.—Fry's Magazine.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they can't reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound and imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Kodol for Dyspepsia has helped thousands of people who have had stomach trouble. This is what one man says of it: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. I could not digest anything I ate and in the spring of 1902 I bought a bottle of Kodol and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper. Yours very truly, C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906. Many a poor man has nothing but money.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup—the cough syrup that tastes as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it allays inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

People insist on morality unless it's for themselves.

To have perfect health we must have perfect digestion, and it is very important not to permit of any delay the moment the stomach feels out of order. Take something at once that you know will promptly and unfailingly assist digestion. There is nothing better than Kodol for dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas and nervous headache. Kodol is a natural digestant and will digest what you eat. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

And now Ella says the grandest verse is the universe.

WHITMAN'S WILD RIDE

It Was Worth Three Stars to the American Flag.

SAVED US VAST TERRITORY.

The Perilous Journey of Four Thousand Miles From Oregon to Washington Made by a Drave Man and the Results Which Followed in Its Wake.

The ride of Marcus Whitman was over snow capped mountains and along dark ravines, traveled only by savage men. It was a plunge through icy rivers and across trackless prairies, a ride of 4,000 miles across a continent in the dead of winter to save a mighty territory to the Union.

Compared with this what was the feat of Paul Revere, who rode eighteen miles on a calm night in April to arouse a handful of sleeping patriots and thereby save the powder at Concord?

Whitman's ride saved three stars to the American flag. It was made in 1842.

In 1792, during the first administration of Washington, Captain Robert Gray, who had already carried the American flag around the globe, discovered the mouth of the Columbia river. He sailed several miles up the great stream and landed and took possession in the name of the United States.

In 1805, under Jefferson's administration, this vast territory was explored by Captains Lewis and Clark, whose reports were popular reading for our grandfathers, but the extent and value of this distant possession were very slightly understood, and no attempt at colonization was made save the establishment of the fur trading station of Astoria in 1811.

Strangely enough, England, too, claimed this same territory by virtue of rights ceded to it by Russia and also by the Vancouver surveys of 1792. The Hudson's Bay company established a number of trading posts and filled the country with adventurous fur traders. So here was a vast territory, as large as New England and the state of Indiana combined, which seemed to be without any positive ownership. But for Marcus Whitman it would have been lost to the Union.

It was in 1836 that Dr. Whitman and a man of the name of Spaulding, with their young wives, the first white women that ever crossed the Rocky mountains, entered the valley of the Columbia and founded a mission of the American board. They had been sent out to Christianize the Indians, but Whitman was also to build a state.

He was at this time thirty-five years old. In his journeys to and fro for the mission he soon saw the vast possibilities of the country, and he saw, too, that the English were already apprised of this and were rapidly pouring into the territory. Under the terms of the treaties of 1818 and 1825 it was the tacit belief that whichever nationality settled and organized the splendid territory would hold it. If England and the English fur traders had been successful in their plans, the three great states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho would now constitute a part of British Columbia. But it was not destined to be.

In the fall of 1842 it looked as if there would be a great impouring of English into the territory, and Dr. Whitman took the alarm. There was no time to lose. The authorities at Washington must be warned. Hastily bidding his wife adieu, Dr. Whitman started on his hazardous journey. The perils, hardships and delays he encountered on the way we can but faintly conceive. His feet were frozen, he nearly starved, and once he came very near to losing his life. He kept pushing right on, and at the end of five terrible months he reached Washington.

He arrived there a worn, bearded, strangely picturesque figure, clad entirely in buckskin and fur, a typical man of the prairies. He asked audience of President Tyler and Secretary of State Webster, and it was accorded him. All clad as he was, with his frozen limbs, just in from his 4,000 mile ride, Whitman appeared before the two great men to plead for Oregon.

His statement was a revelation to the administration. Previous to Whitman's visit it was the general idea in congress that Oregon was a barren, worthless country, fit only for wild beasts and wild men. He opened the eyes of the government to the limitless wealth and splendid resources of that western territory. He told them of its great rivers and fertile valleys, its mountains covered with forests and its mines filled with precious treasures. He showed them that it was a country worth keeping and that it must not fall into the hands of the English. He spoke as a man inspired, and his words were heeded.

What followed—the organization of companies of emigrants, the rapid settlement of the territory and the treaty made with Great Britain in 1846 by which the forty-ninth parallel was made the boundary line west of the Rocky mountains—are matters of history.

The foresight and the heroism of one man and his gallant ride had saved three great states to the Union.—Omaha World-Herald.

Two Ways.

Jack—In the oriental world a girl never sees her intended husband until she is married. Floss—How odd! In this part of the world she seldom sees him afterward.—New York Globe.

A REALISTIC PICTURE.

It Proved Too Absorbing For Old Uncle Samper.

The Mississippi courtroom was packed with negroes, and it was fairly evident, says a contributor to the Taylor-Trotwood Magazine, that something of unusual interest was about to transpire. Within the bar on the prisoner's seat an old negro leaned eagerly forward as his attorney argued his plea of not guilty before the jury.

"Who, gentlemen of the jury, has sworn that he saw this man commit this theft?" demanded the attorney. "We have broken every link in the weak chain of circumstantial evidence with which the state has tried to entangle him. Why, his neighbor, Tom Jones, swore that he sold him the meat that was found in the defendant's house and that he shot the hog because it was wild.

"It is true that Colonel Smith swore that one of his hogs disappeared about Dec. 23 and that about fifty yards from a certain stump he found blood and then followed a trail of blood from that spot to this defendant's cabin. But what of that?"

"This defendant told you—and his wife and brother swore the same—that that was the blood of a coon which he had shot and carried home the day before Smith lost his hog. Give him justice as you would do if he were a white man. He cannot help being black. The leopard cannot change his spots nor the Ethiopian his skin. For twenty years he has been a leader in the church. Let him remain free to enjoy the bread of life with others of the faithful."

As the lawyer sat down the women, who had been "weaving" back and forth for some minutes, commenced to shout:

"Bress de Lawd!"
"Dar, now!"
"We knows yo's innocent, Br'er Juniper!"

The sheriff had to threaten to clear the courtroom before order was restored. When at last there was silence the district attorney rose.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he began in closing the case for the state, "I desire only to bring a picture to your minds."

Here the prisoner adjusted his big brass rimmed spectacles as if to see the picture, and his manner showed that he was determined to let no detail escape him.

"The 23d of last December," continued the district attorney, "found Juniper Bradley without meat. His son was coming to spend Christmas with him. But Juniper did not worry, for only half a mile away in Marse Smith's woods were some fat hogs.

"An hour before sunset Juniper was kneeling behind a large stump in these woods, with his rifle pointing toward a hog that at some distance away was rooting among the leaves."

The district attorney paused. Taking a cane to represent a rifle, he knelt behind a chair. After some minutes of moving to right and left, now raising, now lowering his rifle, he took careful aim and then fired, imitating the noise of a report very successfully.

At the sound Juniper, who had been smiling, apparently oblivious to everything save the district attorney's movements, exclaimed:

"Yas, sah, dat's des de way I done hit, boss!"

The laugh that followed brought Juniper to a realization of what he had done, and he shuffled round in the prisoner's seat, muttering, "Nigger got no show nohow!"

The Last Move.

Bobby is the son of a Methodist minister and has had the experience of "moving" four times in the space of his eight years' life. He disapproves strongly of the itinerant system which is the bane of the Methodist clergy. Some time ago an elderly minister was visiting Bobby's father and directed his attention to the small boy, asking him many questions of a semi-theological nature. Finally the course of the conversation turned to heaven, and Bobby was asked concerning the abode of the blest. "Yes," said the youngster, with a sigh of deep weariness, "I know. It's the last place we're going to move to."—Argonaut.

Out of the Ordinary.

"Say," queried the high browed man as he entered the drug emporium, "have you Bighead's balm for baldness?"

"No," replied the druggist, "but"—
"Oh, yes," interrupted the prospective customer, "of course you have something just as good, but I want what I want. See!"

"You are mistaken, my friend," said the pill dispenser. "I haven't anything just as good, but I have something that is far better."—Chicago News.

Soothing the Author.

Actor—In the first act last night, when Rodrigo is to shoot me, his gun didn't go off. This sort of thing spoils my play. Manager—It doesn't make any difference whether he shoots you or not. The audience appreciate the situation. They know you are not worth the powder it would take to shoot you and find it very appropriate that the gun misses fire.—Liverpool Mercury.

Unkind Deduction.

Mrs. Benham—I'm going to give a big party on my birthday. Benham—Who will be invited? Mrs. Benham—Just my friends. Benham—I thought you said that you were going to give a big party.—New York Press.

Philosophy when superficially studied excites doubt; when thoroughly explored, it dispels it.—Bacon.

"Boost the Booster!"

That's the official slogan of a certain town in Arkansas which through boosting itself and boosting its boosters has doubled its population since the 1900 census.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

The Arkansas town had been quarreling among itself for years, and standing still. It had boosters, but it had others who refused to boost the boosters, refused to stand by them and yell, "Good boy—keep it up!"

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Finally the town got together with itself, organized a "Boost the Booster Club" and began to boom. Now its principal thoroughfare, which was a streak of mud, is a stretch of asphalt, and it has new buildings to match. Now everybody boosts the booster and booms the boom.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

This town might take a hint from that one. We have our town boosters—every town has some. But sometimes they get discouraged because of opposition right here in our midst.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Cut out the criticism! Quit the queering! Boom the Boom!

Then watch the old town perk up and plunge forward. You can see it move.

WHEN YOU BOOST THE BOOSTER YOU BOOM THE BOOM.

SWISS SHARPSHOOTERS.

Why Every Man in the Republic is a Good Marksman.

At a time when the question of military training for civilians is being much discussed a short account of the Swiss system from the Manchester Guardian may be of interest. Every man in the peaceful and democratic country of Switzerland is a soldier in a modest way, befitting a small nation.

The able-bodied Swiss enters the army at twenty years of age and serves sixty-five days in his first year. For the next twelve years he trains for three weeks every alternate year. At thirty-two he enters the landwehr and has eight to ten days under arms every fourth year until at fifty he retires and is required to furnish no further service except in case of war.

What the Swiss militiaman lacks in military orthodoxy he far more than makes up by skill with the rifle. It is not too much to call the Swiss a nation of marksmen. The training periods are occupied only with drill and tactics. The all important matter of shooting is left to the individual soldier to carry out at other times, and he does it under the auspices of the shooting societies which are such a feature of Swiss life.

These societies, under government control, are called Schutzen-gesellschaften in the German and Societes de Tir in the French cantons. They are voluntary associations, varying in size and importance with the town or village they serve. Those in the larger towns possess completely fitted ranges and clubhouses. The small villages do their shooting in any field backed by a suitable hill. Every peasant and townsman has easy facilities for shooting, and each man has his service rifle always in his possession.

Every man between the ages of twenty and thirty-two must fire thirty-two shots in four compulsory exercises every year, and the societies receive a grant of 2 francs for every soldier shooting this course on their ranges. The income derived from the grants generally suffices for the current expenses of the society, supply of targets and pay of marker. There is no entrance fee nor subscription, as a rule, and heavy expenditure, such as that incurred by the construction of new ranges, is met by a special grant from the government.

As to spectators, methods of leading and conduct on the ranges are stringent. Loss of grant is incurred by any breach or neglect of regulations.

In addition to these exercises many competitions are held between different villages, towns and cantons. In summer the trains and streams are crowded with jovial bands of marksmen going to and from their shooting festivals. The whole system of Swiss shooting is a good example of co-operation between government and individual. Every Switzer has his army rifle. He can use it when and where he will, provided he does not endanger other lives. He is insured by government against all accidents on the ranges, and through his society he can secure the services of qualified military officers to organize and control his shooting.

By treating rifle shooting as a sport, and it is as popular as football is with us and far more generally practiced, the Swiss have removed it from its usual warlike associations. But should occasion arise that which has been learned in sport would be used in earnest.

It is strange what tricks even tutored nerves will play. The strongest man will wilt into an unconscious heap under the vaccination lancet or be reduced to abject faintness by the sight of dentists' implements. The Earl of Malmesbury in his memoirs tells a little incident illustrative of this fact:

A sad accident happened this afternoon to one of the keepers, who blew off two fingers of his right hand in loading a gun. The fingers had to be immediately amputated. All the gentlemen stood around to witness the operation and to encourage the man, who showed great pluck. It was curious that every one bore the sight calmly but Lord Raglan, who had seen 100 battles He fainted and had to retire. In action he is known to be remarkable for his unmoved sang froid.

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose
