PRIMITIVE BAPTISTS IN LINE. MOST OF THEM IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITION.

Elder Sylvester Hassell Expresses His Views in Strong Article on the Subject.

The whiskey crowd in North Carolina have not come out in the open to make a fight against prohibition, but have been flooding the State with much unfair and misleading literature. One class of people they have been misrepresenting in their claim for strength is the Primitive Baptists, saying that all of these are with them in opposition to prohibition. Several Primitive Baptist elders refuted this claim of the whiskey men and published statements setting forth their position and asserting that they could never vote for the sale and manufacture of whiskey in North Carolina. Some of those declaring themselves were Elders Gold, of Wilson; Hardy and Harris, of Rockingham; Draughan and Ashburn, of Western North Carolina, and others. In the May number of The Gospel Messenger, edited by Elder Sylvester Hassell, of Williamston, one of the ablest ministers of the Primitive Baptists, he writes the following strong article on "Prohibition":

"The prohibition of anything is the forbidding of it. The second law given by God to man was a prohibition of his eating the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; it was a good law, and if Adam and Eve had obeyed it, the fearful curse of sin and death would not, it seems, have befallen the human race. Eight of the ten commandments given by God to Israel at Mount Sinai were prohibitions all of them except the fourth and fifth, to keep the Sabbath and to honor parents. God says that these commandments were for the good of Israel (Deut. 10:13) and, although our sinful nature rebels against the law of God Paul declares that the law is holy, just and good." (Rom. 7:7-14).

"At present the word 'prohibition' is generally used to denote the forbidding of the manufacture or sale of spirituous liquors. Without fear or favor, I shall present the certain facts on both sides of this subject, gathered from the latest and highest authorities, for the information and guidance of the readers of The Gospel Messenger.

"The word rendered 'wine' in the Scriptures means a liquor, either fermented or unfermented, made from the juice of the grape; and the word rendered 'strong drink' means a liquor made from any other fruit except the grape, or made from honey, especially old and powerful wine. Distillation is a product of modern 'civilization,' and was unknown to the ancients and to savages. The excessive use of wine or strong drink is positively and repeatedly forbidden throughout both the Old and the New Testament Scripture; but their moderate use, both as a beverage and a medicine, is allowed except to priests when about to serve in the tabernacle (Levit. 10:0), and to those men or women who had taken the vow of a Nazarite, a Separatist, (Num. 6:1-3); and it was entirely forbidden by Jonadab, the son of Rechab, to all his descendants, who were to be nomads or wanderers, living in tents, and not building houses, sowing seed, or planting vineyards (Jer. 35:6-10). The Rechabites were the descendants of Abraham and Keturah, and intermarried with the Levites, and God blessed them to 'stand before Him' or be His servants. They honored their ancestor Jonadab by obeying him, and they preferred their simple, free, sober, moral, healthful desert life to the unwholesome luxuries and ruinous vices of a corrupt 'civilization,' and they were the steadfast opponents of oppression, idolatry, and sensuality. It is an essential qualification of a gospel minister not to be 'given to wine' (1 Tim. 3:3; Titus 1:7). Wine and strong drink weaken and corrupt people physically, mentally, and morally, and unfit them for the service of God (Isa. 27:7). It has been said that greater calamities have been inflicted on mankind by drunkenness than by wars, pestilence, and famine; that 120,000 persons in England and 100,000 in the United States are killed every year by the drinking of spirituous liquors; that the use of alcoholic stimulants causes one-half of the pauperism and disease, one-third of the insanity and idiocy, and three-fourth of the crime in 'civilized' countries. Alcohol has been well called the 'very genius of degradation,' taken in large quantities, it clogs the blood, overworks the heart, dilates the capillaries, retards digestion, ulcerates the stomach, substitutes an unhealthy fat for healthy tissue, chills the body, soon after being taken, two degrees below the normal temperature, so that its use has had to be discontinued in Arctic expeditions, paralyzes the nerves, crazes the brain, debase the conscience, opens the system to the attacks of disease, and propagates its evils to the third generation. It is a poison, and more than twenty of the rankest poisons are used to adulterate and color and expand it. The Baptists of the seventeenth century (who adopted the old London Confession of Faith) excluded from their churches persons who sold spirituous liquors, and those who drank to excess. Elder William Gadsby, of England (born 1773, died 1840,) author of the "Everlasting Task for Arminians," and of "The Perfect Law of Liberty," totally abstained from the use of spirituous liquors the last ten years of his life, though he never enjoyed an Abstinence Society; and to a young man who waited on him in his last illness, he said, "Shun wine as you would shun the Devil." Elder Thomas Leland, of Massachusetts, (born 1756, died 1841), during the most of his life drank no spirits, but in last years, on account of his advanced age and infirmities, he drank about a gallon a year, never taking more than a spoonful at a time, and that not often. "My father, Elder C. B. Hassell, made, in his eighteenth year, five excellent resolutions, to which he steadfastly adhered through life:—to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, gaming, and profanity, and to be strictly truthful, honest and upright in all his dealings. I myself never go into a saloon for any purpose, and never drink spirituous liquors. O, that all human beings would do the same! It would make them far healthier, saner, calmer, and happier, and enable them to improve their material condition, and to do more to relieve the widow and the fatherless, the destitute and the afflicted and to devote more to education and religion. Societies, oaths and laws are far less effective than the knowledge and proper consideration of these momentous facts.

"It is said that there are 114,000 more saloons than churches in the United States, and that nearly two thousand million of dollars were spent last year in this country for alcoholic liquors—more than enough to pay all the expenses of the Federal government, executive, legislative, judicial, navy, army, postoffice, treasury, and every other department. About fifty years ago a wave of prohibition swept over many of the Northern States, but nearly all of these States after a while abandoned State prohibition, and adopted the license system or local option. A wave of prohibition, in the form of either State action or local option, is now sweeping over the South, so that, of the twenty million people in the fourteen Southern States, seventeen million in the North, or thirty-six million people in the entire Union, occupying two-thirds of the territory of the United States, are under prohibitory liquor laws. Ten million have expiated the saloon by State action, and twenty-six million by local option. It is claimed that conscience, education, economy, and social peace and progress are the motives urging on prohibition in this country. Local option, being aided by public sentiment, is more effective than State prohibition. The Committee of Fifty (eminent sociologists) in New York have thoroughly investigated the matter, and ascertained that rigid efforts to enforce prohibition laws generally lead to 'hypocrisy, bribery, corruption, and law breaking,' and these evil results are likely to continue unless the laws reflect public sentiment, and unless Congress prohibits the importation of liquor from 'wet' into 'dry' territory, which the Judiciary Committee of the Senate thinks to be unconstitutional, as restricting interstate commerce. But all the Southern States seemed determined to try prohibition. If enforced, it may cause a decrease in drunkenness and the poverty, disease, and crime resulting from drunkenness; but only the abounding grace of God in the heart can cure the thirst for strong drink and the love of other sins, perfectly and forever. Temperance is not total abstinence, but is the moderate and lawful use of the gifts of providence. All who can not use spirits temperately should never use them at all.

"A drunkard is not fit to work, to live or to die; and a habitual moderate drinker of alcoholic liquors is on the dangerous down-grade to disease, pauperism, degradation, crime, and death. But let it not be supposed that total abstinence from spirituous liquors, though excellent in itself, will make a man perfect here on earth or prepare him for heaven. The Mohammedans are, according to the laws of their false prophet, total abstainers from alcoholic drinks, and yet are hypocrites, thieves, robbers, debauchers, and murderers. Every kind of virtue is good in its place; but true religion, the religion of God, is in the heart, and blossoms in the speech, and fruits in the life, reverences God, and benefits man, and its possessor will be perfected in heaven.

"An honest man wishes to know 'the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth' on any subject presented for his decision."

BRYAN GRIMES CAMP REUNION. OLD SOLDIERS HAVE GALA DAY IN GREENVILLE.

Large Attendance With Interesting Exercises Followed by Bounteous Feast.

Another reunion day has been observed by Bryan Grimes Camp of Confederate Veterans of Pitt county, and it proved to be one of the most interesting and pleasant in the history of the camp. Everything that could be planned for the pleasure of the old soldiers and visitors was arranged by the committee and the enjoyment of the day shows how well their work was done.

At an early hour old soldiers and visitors began arriving and in a short while the street was filled with them.

The first event of interest to the visitors, and even to the town people, was the marching of the Bryan Grimes Drum Corps up the street to the court square. The corps was recently organized and this was its first appearance in public. The corps consists of following:

Drum Major—W. T. Burton.
Picolos—G. J. Woodward and C. E. Rountree.

Color Bearer—Ben Taylor.
Drummers—Bruce Hooker, Wiley J. Brown, Percy Forbes, Whit Brown, Seth Hooker, Ferrell Burch, Earl Forbes and E. H. Foley.

The drilling and music of the corps was splendid. They beat the assembly at 9 o'clock which called the veterans to the court house where the camp held a short session. Major H. Harding was re-elected commander, H. A. Blow secretary, and Oliver Smith color bearer. The roll call showed that eight members of the camp had passed over the river in the past year.

They then formed in procession and headed by the drum corps marched to the cemetery where the Daughters of the Confederacy decorated the graves with flowers. Returning to the opera house the following exercises were held with R. W. King master of ceremonies:

Overture by Aeolian Band.
Invocation by Rev. M. T. Plyler.

Song by class from graded school.
Patriotic airs by band.

Recitation by Miss Florence Blow.
Recitation by Miss Nina Harris.

Song by Miss Annis Bright.
America by the band.

Recitation by Miss Essie Whichard.
Recitation by Edmond Harding, of Washington.

A. L. Blow read a letter from Senator Lee S. Overman, who had accepted an invitation to address the camp today, stating why he was disappointed in coming.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis made a brief address, in which he especially eulogized the private soldier in the Confederacy, and the private soldier since the war.

Music by band.
The camp then favored the audience with the "Rebel Yell" which the old soldiers gave with a vim.

Commander Harding then in behalf of the camp, returned thanks to all, (especially the ladies, for what they had done in making the exercises a success.

Song "God be with You 'Till we meet Again," by graded school.

Benediction by Rev. D. W. Arnold.

At the conclusion of the exercises the veterans repaired to the court house square where a bounteous dinner was served, and they enjoyed this no less than what had preceded.

COL. I. A. SUGG DEAD.

Passed Away at Washington Hospital.

Col. Isaac A. Sugg, of this town, died at 7 o'clock Monday evening in the hospital at Washington where he had been some months for treatment.

Colonel Sugg was 62 years old and a native of Greene county. After graduating at college and completing a course in law, he moved to Greenville when a young man to engage in the practice of his profession. He won his way rapidly in public esteem and for several years ranked with the best lawyers of the Greenville bar. Some years ago his health began failing and he continued to decline until it was necessary for him to spend much time in hospital.

Col. Sugg is survived by five children; Mrs. Aylmer Brooks, of Elizabeth City; Mrs. W. A. Clark, of Kinston; Messrs. C. R. Sugg, of Washington City; I. A. Sugg, Jr., of Way Cross, Ga.; Bruce Sugg, of Wilmington; and Julius Sugg, of Greenville. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Henry Harding, of Greenville, and one brother, Mr. B. F. Sugg, of Washington.

The remains were brought to Greenville on the midday Coast Line train and were taken from the depot to Cherry Hill cemetery for interment.

WELL PRESENTED.

Audience Pleased With "Meg's Diversion."

The company of home talent under the direction of Mrs. A. L. Blow gave a splendid presentation of "Meg's Diversion" in the opera house Monday night. The audience was not as large as the play deserved, but all present thoroughly enjoyed it. The characters were well selected and the actors were frequently applauded in rendering their parts. The cast was as follows:

Jeremy Crow, a Devonshire farmer . . . . . Ed Foley

Ashley Merton, Esq. of the Hall . . . . . Alex Blow

Jasper Pigeon, a village carpenter . . . . . Roy Managan

Roland Pigeon, his brother . . . . . D. Wade

Eytem, an Exeter lawyer . . . . . John Horne

Cornelia, daughter of Crow, . . . . . Miss Winnie Skinner

Margaret, daughter of Crow, . . . . . Miss Lottie Skinner

Mrs. Netwell, widow of the Grange, Miss Mary Mathews

Between the first and second acts Miss Mary Mathews delightfully sang two solos, the second as an encore. Miss Lillian Carr was pianist for the occasion.

As it belongs to Hetty she has the right to spend it to suit herself.

Being a delegate to the national convention costs a good pile. May be that is why some of them are declining to go, especially as they know how it will come out anyway.

It was too bad that those New Jersey delegates to the peace conference at Wilmington were made to come down a year too soon because the wrong date was given them.

A woman sometimes changes her mind at the last minute, as who shown by the Battle Creek, Mich., young woman who took chloroform with suicidal intent and telephoned for a doctor.

If a man at some public assembly should plant himself in front of a woman as to entirely cut off her view of what was going on, she would think him decidedly rude. Yet that same woman will with great composure sit in an audience with a big hat on her head that keeps a half dozen people behind her from seeing anything—but the hat.

Greenville was glad to have the old soldiers in her midst today and extended them a cordial welcome. Too much honor cannot be shown these heroes of the Confederacy. These annual reunions bring with them both joy and sadness—joy that the comrades meet and greet each other once more and live over in memory the scenes of the past; sadness because it is seen how time is telling on them and each passing year shows a thinning of the ranks. Some with us a ago are not here today; and some here today will not be here a year hence. May we all strive to make their declining years happy, and honor their memory when they have "passed over the river."

SHORT WORDS.

Here Are Some, and They Are Right to the Point.

The following paragraph on "The Use of Short Words" is attributed to Horatio Seymour. It practices what it preaches therein, since there is no word in it with more than two syllables save such as are quoted for purposes of illustration: "We must not only think in words, but we must also try to use the best words and those which in speech will put what is in our minds into the minds of others. This is the great art which those must gain who wish to teach in the school, the church, at the bar or through the press. To do this in the right way they should use the short words which we learn in early life and which have the same sense to all classes of men. The English of our Bible is good. Now and then some long words are found, and they always hurt the verses in which you find them. Take that which says, 'O ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?' There is one long word which ought not to be in it—namely, 'generation.' In the old version the old word 'brood' is used. Read the verse with the term, and you will feel its full force, 'O ye viper's brood, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?' Crime sometimes does not look like crime when it is set before us in the many folds of a long word. When a man steals and we call it a 'defalcation,' we are at a loss to know if it is a plunder or a crime. If he does not tell the truth and we are told that it is a case of 'prevarication,' it takes us some time to know just what we should think of it. No man will ever cheat himself into wrongdoing nor will he be at a loss to judge of others if he thinks and speaks of acts in clear, crisp terms. It is a good rule, if one is at a loss to know if an act is right or wrong, to write it down in short, straight-out English."

Don't Fold Your Arms.

By folding your arms you pull the shoulders forward, flatten the chest and impair deep breathing. Folding the arms across the chest so flattens it down that it requires a conscious effort to keep the chest in what should be its natural position. As soon as you forget yourself down drops the chest. We cannot see ourselves as others see us. If we could, many of us would be ashamed of our shapes. The position you hold your body in most of the time soon becomes its natural position. Continuously folding your arms across the chest will develop a flat chest and a rounded back. Here are four other hints which should be made habits: Keep the back of the neck close to the back of the collar at all possible times. Always carry the chest farther to the front than any other part of the anterior body. Draw the abdomen in and up a hundred times each day. Take a dozen deep, slow breaths a dozen times each day.—Family Doctor.

The Model.

The difficulty of saying a suitable thing about an unprepossessing person was once cleverly surmounted by the great Duke of Wellington. At a Mansion House dinner he was called on to propose the health of the lady mayress, whom he had never seen. The duke got up and proposed the toast, describing the subject as "the model of her sex."

Now, the lady happened to be a very plain wizened little woman, so the then Lord Ellenborough afterward asked the duke how he could describe that ugly little creature as the model of her sex.

"Why," said the duke, "I thought I did very well. I had never seen her before and didn't know what she was like—and some models are blamed ugly!"

Physiognomy.

The science of physiognomy can be traced as far back as the time of Pythagoras, who is said to have examined carefully the faces of his would be pupils before admitting them to his school. Hippocrates, 450 B. C., refers to the science, and Cicero has many references to it. The first systematic treatise on the subject that has come down to us is that attributed to Aristotle. The sixteenth century was particularly rich in literature on physiognomy, and the eighteenth shows a still greater interest in the science. Lavater's book seeming to be the final word on the subject.

Active Girls.

From an early age the girls of Japan are instructed in physical exercise, with the result that at maturity the women are almost as strong as the men. It is not an unusual sight in the mikado's empire to see a company of girls who are strolling along a country road step back a few yards for headway and then, following a leader, all nimbly clear a five foot fence by leaping over it.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore require constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure of the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ### To the Voters of Pitt County.

We the undersigned constituting a majority of the county board of elections for the county of Pitt hereby give notice that an election will be held on 26th day of May, 1908, at which all who favor the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina will vote a ticket with the words thereon "For the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors" and those who are opposed to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina will vote a ticket with the words thereon "Against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors"

In order to vote in that election, as in all other elections, it is necessary to be properly registered. It is our opinion that the registration books used at the election on the 14th of May, 1907, are the ones to be used in the coming election. We therefore advise every voter who did not register in that election to see that his name is put on the registration books before the close of the 16th day of May when the registration books will be closed by law.

All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Roding, Ga. August 27, 1906.
Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life savor. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.
May you live long and prosper.

EDISON THE VICTOR.

He Humbled the Pride of the Fast Telegraph Operator.

Edison made his first record as a telegraph operator in Memphis. A contemporary says he came walking into the office one morning looking like a veritable hayseed. He wanted a job, and, although his appearance was not prepossessing, the office was short handed, and he was assigned a desk at the St. Louis wire, the hardest in the office. "At the end of the line was an operator who was chain lightning and knew it," says Francis Arthur Jones' "Life of Edison."

"Edison had hardly got seated before St. Louis called. The newcomer responded, and St. Louis started on a long report which he pumped in like a house afire. Edison threw his leg over the arm of his chair, leisurely transferred a wad of spruce gum from his pocket to his mouth, took up a pen, examined it critically and started in about fifty words behind. He didn't stay there long, though. St. Louis let out another link of speed, and still another, and the instrument on Edison's table hummed like an old style Singer sewing machine. Every man in the office left his desk and gathered around the jay to see what he was doing with that electric cyclone.

"Well, sir, he was right on the word and taking it down in the prettiest cursive hand you ever saw, even crossing his 't's' and dotting his 'i's' and punctuating with as much care as a man editing telegraph for printers. St. Louis got tired by and by and began to slow down. Then Edison opened the key and said:

"Hello, there! When are you going to get a hustle on? This is no primer class."

"Well, sir," said the gentleman in conclusion, "that broke St. Louis all up. He had been rawbiding Memphis for a long time, and we were terribly sore, and to have a man in our office who could walk all over him made us feel like a man whose horse had won the Derby."

THRILLING SPORT.

Rafting Down the Canyons of an Un-mapped Glacial River.

With provisions for only ten days a party of explorers in Alaska found one September that they must build rafts and take their chances of letting the swift river carry them to settlements where food could be obtained; otherwise ice and snow would shut them in from all hope of rescue. In "The Shameless Diary of an Explorer" Robert Dunn tells of the journey on the roughly made rafts.

"At 11 o'clock today began the most thrilling sport I know, rafting down the snaky canyons of an unmapped glacial river.

"Fred and I captained the Mary Ann II, the other three the Ethel May. We rasped and hauled them over the gravel shadows of our tributary, shot out between the main walls of the stream and seized upon that boiling current.

"We reached silently from cliff to cliff, jammed pike poles into the state shelf overhead, twirled out of eddies. We bumped and grounded. We dashed overboard and on the run eased her across shallows. We tugged half an hour to make an inch at each shove through the gravel, suddenly plunged in to our necks, and she leaped free as we scrambled on.

"Bowlders rose through white ruffs of water in midchannel. We might or might not hang on them for a perpendicular minute.

"You must be very handy with a pole. You must have a hair fine eye for moving angles, the strength of an eddy, the depth of foam ruffling over a stump. You must be surer of the length of your pole than a polo player of the reach of his mallet. You must be quicker than a Siwash dog. You must know the different weight of each log down to ounces, the balance of the duffel piled high like a dais, covered with the tent and the bean pot, the mackinaws and the ax lashed to all the lashings. It's a pretty game."

A Risky Subject.

"Do you think, sweetheart," queried the young man with the evenly divided hair, "that your father will consent to our marriage?"

"Well," replied the fair one, "of course papa will be sorry to lose me, but—"

"But," interrupted the rash youth, "I will remind him that instead of losing a daughter he will gain a son."

"Dearest," rejoined the wise maid, "if you really want me you mustn't say anything of the kind. Papa has three such sons boarding with him now, and he's a little touchy on the subject."

Queer Milk.

Many specimens of unconscious humor are received by the editors of that monumental work, the "Imperial Gazetteer of India." A district was said to be "an extensive rolling plain, consisting of alternate ridges of bare stony hills and narrow fertile valleys." An interesting item of natural history was afforded by the remark, "The buffalo differs from the cow in giving milk which is richer in butter fat, in voice and in having no hump."—London Globe.

Poured.

"I have poured every day this week at some function or other," remarked the vivacious girl.

"Well, well," murmured the old gentleman who overheard her. "Now I know what is meant by the term 'a reigning belle.'"—St. Louis Republic.

No man prospers in this world by luck unless it be the luck of getting up early, working hard and maintaining honor and integrity.—Beecher.

RUNNING AN ENGINE.

Force of a Locomotive Going Sixty Miles an Hour.

At sixty miles an hour the resistance of a train is four times as great as it is at thirty miles—that is, the fuel must be four times as great in the one case as it is in the other. But at sixty miles an hour this fuel must be exerted for a given distance in half the time that it is at thirty miles, so that the amount of power exerted and steam generated in a given period of time must be eight times as great at the faster speed. This means that the capacity of the boiler, cylinders and the other parts must be greater with a corresponding addition to the weight of the machine. Obviously, therefore, if the weight per wheel, on account of the limit of weight that the rails will carry, is limited, we soon reach a point when the driving wheels and other parts cannot be further enlarged, and then we reach the maximum speed. The nice adjustment necessary of the various parts of these immense engines may be indicated by some figures as to the work performed by these parts when the locomotive is working at high speed. Take a passenger engine on any of the big railroads. At sixty miles an hour a driving wheel five and one-half feet in diameter revolves five times every second. Now, the reciprocating parts of each cylinder, including one piston, piston rod, cross head and connecting rod, weighing about 650 pounds, must move back and forth a distance equal to the stroke, usually two feet, every time the wheel revolves, or in a fifth of a second. It starts from a state of rest at the end of each stroke of the piston and must acquire a velocity of thirty-two feet per second in one-twentieth of a second and must be brought to a state of rest in the same period of time.

A piston eighteen inches in diameter has an area of 254½ square inches. Steam of 150 pounds pressure per square inch would therefore exert a force on the piston equal to 38,175 pounds. This force is applied alternately on each side of the piston ten times in a second.—Chicago News.

The Apology.

Willie and Tommy quarreled at school, and unkind words had reached blows when their teacher appeared on the scene.

"I will see you later, boys," she said as she went to ring the bell.

Two little boys looked very much ashamed when they were called up to listen to a serious talk on the sin of fighting. When she had finished, says the Chicago News, they were willing to follow her advice—to express their sorrow and be friends.

"You first, Tommy," she said. And the little fellow turned manfully to his comrade and said in a humble tone:

"I am sorry you struck me, Willie."

"That's all right," responded Willie generously, and both boys felt a weight off their minds, though they could not understand why such a wave of merriment passed over the schoolroom.

Good Horse Sense.

The Mexican burros ascertain where to dig for water by closely observing the surface of the ground. One observer writes:

"We had found water in an arroyo of a sufficient quantity to make coffee when we saw three burros searching for water. They passed several damp places, examining the ground closely, when the leader halted near us and began to paw a hole in the hot, dry sand. Having dug a hole something over a foot in depth, he backed out and watched it intently. To our surprise, it soon began to fill with water. Then he advanced, took a drink and stepped aside for his companions to drink. When they went away we drank from their well and found the water to be much cooler than any we had found for many a day. There is no witchcraft about Mexican burros, but they have good horse sense."

A Valuable Service.

"The traveler in Ireland will do well," recently remarked an attaché to our embassy at London, "when he engages a jaunting car to make sure of the step to which in mounting he must trust his weight. The carman does not help him to mount."

"I am afraid that step is loose," an American once said to the driver he had engaged.

"The man took hold of the step and shook it. 'Ah, shure,' said he. 'It's too strong, it is. What are ye afraid of?'"

"As he was talking the thing came off in his hand."

"This mishap did not, however, embarrass the Irishman, for, with the sunniest of smiles, he turned to his fare, saying:

"Shure, now, I've saved yer honor from a broken leg!"

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You!
Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean.

You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demnition bowwows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a hodcarrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gourmandizing upon it, 'till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey! Didn't we?

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and silently and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey!

Didn't that ever occur to you?

N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Executive Committee of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School until 11 o'clock a. m. of Thursday June 4th 1908, for the erection and completion at Greenville, N. C. of four buildings, viz: The Administration Building, two Dormitories and the Refectory, in accordance with the drawings and specifications, copies of which may be seen after May 23 1908, at the office of the architects, Hook & Rogers, Charlotte, N. C. and H. W. Simpson, New Bern, N. C. and at the offices of T. J. Jarvis, chairman of executive committee, Greenville, N. C. and J. Y. Joyner, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Raleigh, N. C.

A certified check made payable to the undersigned in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000.) must accompany each proposal, said check to be forfeited in the event the successful Contractor fails to furnish the Committee a satisfactory surety bond in the sum of one third the amount of the contract within two weeks after the award has been made.

The right is reserved to reject any and all proposals. Thomas J. Jarvis, Chairman Executive committee, Greenville, N. C., May 1st, 1908.

This makes enough dessert for a large family and is very economical.

W. B. Wilson for County Treasurer.

Editor Reflector:

It is time to look over the field and select men to hold our various county offices. I will name a man for treasurer, one that was born among us, and one that the writer has known for thirty three years. He is a gentleman of high character, is noted for his honesty and punctuality.

His dealing with his fellow man has been such that all have confidence in him and are not in the least afraid to trust him with the purse of old Pitt. Come now, brother Democrats, and nominate and elect Walter Wilson for treasurer.

One Who Knows Him.

At Grifton Tomorrow.

Ex-Gov. C. B. Aycock will speak at the closing of Grifton graded school tomorrow. The speaking will be just after the arrival of the southbound train, which will give those desiring to do so an opportunity of going down to hear him. Dinner will be served on the grounds after the speaking.

Building and Loan Officers.

The directors of The Home Building and Loan Association met Monday afternoon and re-elected the same officers, with the exception of vice-president. They are H. A. White, president; R. C. Flangan, vice-president; N. G. White, secretary and treasurer; H. W. Whedbee, attorney.

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose
