WINTERVILLE COMMENCEMENT.

Dr. Dixon's Address—Society Debate and Closing Concert.

Winterville, N. C., May 16.

Friday morning at 11 o'clock, after a piano solo well rendered by Miss Janie Kittrell, the audience was led in prayer by Rev. R. B. Lineberry, of Pittsboro. This was followed by a beautiful chorus. Next came the introduction of the speaker by Rev. T. H. King in his own happy style. Dr. Dixon said that he was not feeling at all well, but he gave us a magnificent address. He captivated the vast audience at the very beginning and held them almost spellbound to the last. He laid down some general principles in the formation of character. 1. True manhood and womanhood are the aims and ends of life. Youth is the plastic period of life and is the time in which character must be shaped. 2. Everyone should crawl before he walks. The baby reaches the period in its life when the mother teaches it to walk. Even so there comes a time in every one of our lives when we must launch out alone in the world. 3. Be just what you are and not be ashamed of it. One of the great tendencies of youth is to appear greater than they are. Even though one be poor, let him not be ashamed of it. 4. Secure your own education. This is the only process, for to a certain extent, we are both pupil and teacher. The finest teacher in the world can't stuff knowledge into one's head, but it must come through close application. 5. Let the girls learn to be accomplished house keepers. Living in a house means not a house keeper. Let girls learn to be clerks and stenographers and the many other things, but let the first great aim be to have beautiful, well kept homes. 6. Read the master-pieces of literature. Those who read nothing but novels become idiots. 7. Education does not all come from schools. The school is the beginning point. The boy or girl who finishes school and sits down will amount to nothing in the world. 8. Respect womanhood; though she be ever so humble in life. This is a mark of the true gentleman. 9. Seek the welfare of others. These are the things that stand out in life and make it happy.

We feel that this address accomplished much good for almost every sentiment was a gem. Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, of Greenville, in a very appropriate address delivered the certificates of proficiency to the college preparatory course to Misses Venetia Cox, Janie Kittrell, Magdalene Cox, Miriam Johnson, Norma McGlohon, Annie Carroll, Nina Dixon and Messrs. W. A. McGlohon and R. T. Cox. Certificates in music were given to Misses Janie Kittrell and Venetia Cox.

In the afternoon the Vance Literary Society gave its annual debate. The query was, Resolved, "That North Carolina Should Have a Reformatory for Her Youthful Criminals." The affirmative was ably supported by Paul Strother, D. R. Jackson, and G. G. Dixon, the negative by W. P. Taylor, C. F. Perry and J. D. Rogers. The judges were Dr. B. F. Dixon, of Raleigh; R. H. Salsbury, of Hassell; and Rev. R. B. Lineberry, of Pittsboro. After careful consideration the judges decided that the negative had won by a close margin. Dr. Dixon said that he had heard debates in colleges that did not come up to this one.

WINTERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL.

Sets Forward Pace in Pitt County—Commencement Exercises Great Success

Pitt county has several splendid schools and in the last three weeks many of these have held their closing exercises. The excellence of these exercises and the large number of people attending them bears testimony to the progress Pitt county schools have made.

It is no disparagement to any other school to say that Winterville High School sets the pace in this county. For nine years this fine school has been doing a great work, not only for Pitt county but also for some twenty of the Eastern counties from which it draws patronage. Those going out from this school to the various colleges make high rank, and those who go from the high school course direct to some business calling are well equipped.

GREENVILLE LEFT OUT.

Congressman Small Criticizes Public Building Bill—Chairman Bartholdt's Reply.

Representative Small made a speech in the House today in which he directed criticism at the public building bill. Mr. Small objected to the secrecy displayed in keeping the contents of the measure from the members of the House and the hurried manner in which it was passed immediately following its introduction. He also cited the case of Greenville, which was denied an appropriation for a site for a public building on the grounds that postal revenues were less than ten thousand dollars a year. Mr. Small said if all towns were treated alike he would have no complaint, but he maintained that towns with postal revenues less than ten thousand dollars had received public buildings appropriation. Chairman Bartholdt said a North Carolina congressman should be the last to protest against the bill. He said the committee had especially favored the Tar Heel State and that in proportion to population North Carolina received a larger appropriation for public buildings than any other State in the Union.—Washington cor. Raleigh News and Observer.

CHILD GETS BAD FALL.

Cart Rolls Off Sidewalk and Turns Over in Street.

Friday afternoon a Mrs. Oliver was rolling her child up Evans street in a go cart. She stopped in front of the postoffice and left the cart on the sidewalk while she went in to make some inquiry about mail. The cart rolled off the sidewalk and turned over in the street on the brick paving, giving the child a severe blow nearly over the left eye. The child was carried to Dr. William Fountain who found the injury to be very painful though not serious. It was an exceedingly dangerous fall for the child, and but for the cart breaking the force the result might have been worse. In front of the postoffice the sidewalk is quite high above the street.

SHORT SLEEVES ARE NO MORE.

They Will be Entirely out of Favor by Autumn.

As usual, sleeves are of prime importance in the warm weather wardrobe, says Mrs. Osborn in the June Delineator. More than any other detail of the toilet they betray the exact date of its creation. "A gown is as old as its sleeve" is an axiom of the dressmaking profession.

In Paris the short sleeve is already passe. The American woman, however, will not drop it abruptly for the long sleeve. She will be inclined to temporize on account of the heat of our long summer, but by Autumn it is a certainty that the short sleeve will have been laid to rest.

One of the best examples of the typical small sleeve is used in the tailleur. It is full length, of course, close fitting and with no perceptible fullness at the armhole. An excellent phase of it is illustrated in the costume of shantung in the shade called "ashes of violets." The little coat has a square seamed postilion back and a V-shaped closing in the front that is caught to one side with a darker tone choux of silk, plaited and ruffled into a clever semblance of a double violet.

The sleeve is most interesting and unusual for it has but one seam, and that on the outside of the arm. The sleeve buttons from the elbow to the wrist with a bias line of great buttonholes bound in cloth, and small round cloth-covered buttons. The armhole of the coat is turned under and piped so that the seam is as flat as possible.

Rev. D. W. Arnold.

Will preach on prohibition at Parkers chapel on Sunday, May 24th, 1908 at 3:30 o'clock p. m. A cordial invitation is given to the public to attend this service and hear this plea for prohibition.

You can count on the fingers of your two hands the number of counties in North Carolina that will give a majority against prohibition on the 28th.

The balance of them had about as well pull out an let Taft have it without opposition when the convention meets, as it looks like it is going that way.

One block of the paving on Evans street, from Third to Fourth streets, has been laid and it gives a good idea of how the street is going to look.

The Charlotte Chronicle is taking up for the merry widow hats and says they make the women look pretty. Mistake; it is the women that make the hats look pretty.

North Carolina's governor is making his presence felt in the conference of governors in Washington City. It is said that Governor Glenn made the best speech of any governor there.

The roar of the explosion of that New York fire works factory the other day was said to have been heard twenty miles. That's nothing to the distance the roar will be heard that follows the convention in Charlotte when some of them get left in the nomination for governor.

The appendicitis fad that struck a Texas town and set the people running to be operated on and keep in the fashion, led to the discovery that some folks do not have an appendix. We expect that if it should become fashionable to operate for "brain storm" there would likewise be some found who have no brain.

A new fad now in taking a young lady out for a drive is to get a horse that harmonizes in color with her costume. If the liverymen cannot find horses of enough varieties of color to meet the demand, they might keep on hand an assortment of paint, and after finding out what color scheme the young lady will wear touch up a horse with a little paint of corresponding color.

Says the Greenville Reflector: "The New Bern Sun takes such rapid steps from spring sallet to strawberry shortcake, or rhubarb pie, raspberry roll, et cetera, that it keeps a fellow's mouth watering. Say, Bob, send us a soft crab or a watermelon to fill the vacancy." All right, they're coming up. But say, Whichard, you want more than is good for you, we are afraid. You'll have to get your doctor to give you a prescription!—New Bern Sun.

Can't do that. Prescriptions come too high. You might just send the requisition along in installments.

CARLOTTA AND NAPOLEON.

How the Crazy Empress' Curse Came to a Fulfillment.

General Henrique d'Almonte was from 1863 to 1866 the ambassador of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico to the court of Napoleon III. The most interesting and most pathetic episode to which D'Almonte was a witness and which is vividly described in his memoirs is the meeting between the scheming French emperor and Maximilian's wife, the beautiful and ambitious Carlotta, who shortly before the catastrophe at Queretaro had come to Paris to invoke Napoleon's aid for the tottering throne of her husband. But Napoleon III, who for his own perfidious purposes had by promises and allurement induced Maximilian, then archduke of Austria, to accept the "restored" throne of Montezuma, faithlessly abandoned the unfortunate prince to his cruel fate as soon as he realized his schemes to be impracticable.

Even at her arrival in Paris Carlotta's mind was already in such a high state of irritation that it was deemed advisable to have General d'Almonte at her side during the meeting with Napoleon, which took place in the emperor's apartments at the Grand Hotel de Paris.

What lends special interest to that interview is the fact that the empress, crazed by desperation and fear for her husband's safety and by Napoleon's unsympathetic attitude, hurled a curse at the latter which in time was indeed fulfilled to the very letter.

"The empress," says General d'Almonte, "pleaded, partly on her knees and in the most beseeching terms, with the stony Frenchman to no avail. Then it was that I witnessed the most harrowing and dramatic scene of my life, Frantic with grief and excitement, the empress, with drawn mouth and flashing eyes, sprang to her feet, extending both her hands toward the retreating emperor.

"Leave me," she yelled in a voice which cut through me like a sword—leave me, but go laden with my curse—the same curse that God hurled at the first murderer. May your own house and throne perish amid flames and blood, and when you are huddled in the dust, powerless and disgraced, then shall the angel of revenge trumpet into your ears the names of Maximilian and Carlotta!"

At Sedan and by the revolution in Paris Sept. 4, 1870, the unhappy Carlotta's curse was fulfilled to the letter. —Captain Charles Kiener in Los Angeles Times.

Strength of Rings.

Some elaborate calculations, backed by experiments, have been made in England to determine the breaking strength of rings. It appears that a ring of ductile metal, like malleable iron, will be pulled out into the form of a long link before it breaks and that the ultimate strength of the ring is virtually independent of its diameter. Fracture finally occurs as the result of almost pure tension, and the resistance to breaking is a little less than twice that of a rod of the same cross section subjected to a straight pull. As the ring increases in diameter there appears to be a slight approach toward equality, with double the strength of a bar. Thus a three inch ring, made of three-quarter inch iron, broke at nineteen and one-half tons, a four inch ring at nineteen and nine-tenths tons and a six inch ring at twenty tons, the strength of a bar of the same metal being ten and one-half tons.

Worse Than Too Bad.

The suburbanite stood on the back platform of the car smoking his morning cigar. He struck up a conversation with the conductor when that brass buttoned gent was not busy.

"Whatever became of that basket of eggs that was left on your car?" he inquired.

"I took them home," gloomily replied the conductor.

At the astonished look from the passenger the conductor explained:

"You see, any article left in my car is mine if no one puts in a claim for it within six weeks. The six weeks were up, yesterday, and the company told me to take the eggs away."

"Too bad," said the passenger.

"Rotten," said the conductor.—Kansas City Newsbook.

Shakespeare's Descendants.

Besides his first child, Susanna, Shakespeare's only other children were a boy and a girl, twins, born in 1585. Susanna married a Dr. Hall, a Stratford physician, in 1607, was left a widow in 1635 and died in 1640. She had only one child, a daughter, who, though twice married, left no children. Of the twins, the boy, named Hamnet, died at the age of eleven, and the girl, Judith, married Thomas Quincey and had three sons, who all died childless. —New York American.

Men's Dress.

Men are dressed as they are chiefly because fewer of them look ridiculous so clothed than they would in any other costume. Modern dress is merciful to men. It gives no undue advantage to the well built and handsome. Indeed, it detracts from their appearance and modifies the figures of those not blessed with a fine physique.—Court Journal.

Out of His Mouth.

His youngest grandchild had managed to get possession of a primer and was trying to eat it.

"Pardon me for faking the words out of your mouth, little one," said the professor, hastily interposing.—Chicago Tribune.

A good countenance is a letter of recommendation.—Fielding.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore require constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 7c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

CHURCH TOWERS.

They Are a Distinctive Feature of the Mexican View.

There is no country better worth visiting than Mexico. It is very striking in crossing the border from the United States to note how completely everything changes. Here there hardly seems anything man has constructed which harmonizes with its surroundings; there everything seems to be entirely a part of the country. It is more foreign than Europe is now and constantly reminds one of the east. Riding in some of the little traveled districts, I could hardly believe that I was not in India. The dust in the road, the thorn scrub on both sides, with that pungent smell of the blossoms, all reminded me of the country about Ahmedabad. The plateau in winter, the dry season, is very much like the desert—long stretches of country, with purple mountains in the distance, without a tree in sight except where there is a town or where irrigation has kept a little green and a few trees have been planted. Often the horizon is so distant that the mountains melt into the sky, and perhaps one catches a glimpse of the snow on one of the volcanoes. The color is that of its own Mexican opal—greens, blues and reds.

Everywhere the distinctive features are the church towers and tiled domes rising above the towns. The exteriors of these churches are always picturesque and interesting, but the interiors are usually disappointing, for they have suffered much during many revolutions and perhaps even more from senseless renovations. There are a few still untouched, where one can see them as nearly all were once, entirely covered with richly carved wood heavily gilded. Gold was used thickly everywhere till the carving looked like solid metal. I have seen much gold in churches, but none to equal that in Mexico. —Lockwood de Forest in Century.

NO ALTERNATIVE.

The Jury Had to Teach the Pompous Judge a Lesson.

A certain trial judge in a certain state became so unpopular that the only way he could get a verdict for the state was to make his charge in favor of the prisoner. When matters had reached this stage a famous feud fighter was arrested on a charge of murder and brought to trial. The case, which was the judge's first murder trial, attracted much attention, and the judge, whose unpopularity arose from his vanity and pomposity, greatly enjoyed his role as umpire of the law. The case was a clear one against the defendant, and his guilt was so conclusively proved that the judge even presumed to charge accordingly. The jury retired, and when they filed back into court it was noticed that they avoided the prisoner's eye and looked unusually solemn.

"Gentlemen," said the judge, waving the clerk into silence, "have you reached a verdict?"

"We have," said the foreman. The judge opened a paper bag and drew out a black cap. With an important look around the courtroom he placed this on his head and pulled it down until it met his ears.

"Prisoner," he said, "arise and look at the jury. Jury, arise and look at the prisoner. Gentlemen, what is your verdict?"

The jurymen, who had been whispering to each other, nodded cheerfully at the prisoner.

"Not guilty," said the foreman. "Of course," he said later, when every one had shaken the innocent man's hand, "he was guilty all right, and that was going to be our verdict, but when the little judge put that black cap on his head and pulled it down over his ears like that there was only one thing for us to do, and we did it." —New York Sun.

Graveyard Neighbors.

The agent for a cemetery company was expatiating on the good points of a certain lot. Presently the prospective purchaser interrupted with the enumeration of several prominent families owning property there.

"Is this lot near theirs?" she asked. The agent admitted that it was quite a distance off.

"Then," said the woman, "I don't want it. I'd rather pay more and get in a good neighborhood."

The agent collapsed. "Has it come to the point," he said, "where people consider their next door neighbors even in a graveyard?" —New York Sun.

Business Sense.

In new lines of goods is where the profits lie. The old standbys that every dealer keeps have the prices all cut to pieces on them. Get the new things ahead of the other fellows and make money on them. Frequent change of the arrangement of your show cases gives the effect of new goods received. The same old arrangement month in and month out, no matter how many new goods, looks like the same old stock. —Printers' Ink.

Persuasive.

"Your wife is somewhat strong minded, isn't she, Littlejohn?" "Strong minded? A furniture polish peddler came here yesterday and in five minutes she sold him some polish she had made herself." —London Telegraph.

An Easy Way.

One of the easiest and most effective ways of escaping the hardships of prison abuses is found in the simple old process of keeping out of prison. —Chicago Record-Herald.

UNWILLING GUESTS.

A Turtle Feast With Indians on the Amazon River.

"One of the strangest situations I was ever in," said a man who has traveled much, "was down on an island in the Amazon river. I was looking up timber for an English syndicate. I had another white man with me, and we went up the river 800 miles in a launch. The crew of the launch were half Indian and half negro. We had been caught by a swarm of Indians who swept us along with them up the river until we reached this island I speak of. There was nothing to do but go with them, as they were several hundred to one of us. They landed on the island, which was quite sizable and sloped to the river's edge, the shores being sandy. There we camped for the night. Next morning when we wanted to leave the natives would not let us go, insisting on our remaining. I did not like this, but there was nothing else to do, so we stayed. Well, that night we saw something moving all about the island, and presently turtles began to crawl out of the water on to the shore. There were hundreds of them. They came there to lay their eggs. It was an annual visit, and the Indians knew and kept track of it. They were there to have a feast. As soon as the turtles were well on the island the fun began. With a big pole we would get after a turtle and upset him on his back, where he was helpless. Scores were caught in this manner. For those they did not want to eat at once the Indians scooped a hole in the sand and dropped the turtle down on his back, and there he remained until dragged out to be killed. The weird and fantastic performances we saw there beat anything I ever saw before or since. The Indians would eat and dance and dance and eat until they fell down, unable to move. As soon as they had rested they would get up and go at it again. They kept that up for nearly a week. Then we got away. How much longer they remained I cannot say, but suppose they remained as long as there was anything to eat." —Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Earth's Rotundity.

When the earth comes between the sun and the moon it always casts a round shadow. A place chosen for an experiment to prove the roundness of the earth was near Bedford, England, where there is a straight six mile stretch of water. At both ends and in the middle of this stretch of water posts were erected, each of the same definite height above the water level. Upon looking with a telescope along the tops of these three posts it was clearly seen that the center one overtopped the others by about six feet, thus marking the curvature of the earth's surface. This experiment has been repeated and with every latest appliance brought to bear to effect absolute accuracy. The statement as to how a ship at sea shows the tops of her masts first and then gradually parts below them, but above the water, is a familiar one and satisfies most minds.

A Conundrum.

Jones—I say, Smith, you are a good hand at arithmetic.

Smith—Yes, I am considered very good. Why?

Jones—Well, here is a little problem for you. There was a man named Little living in Dublin who had a daughter. Now, she was in love with a chap she knew her pater did not approve of, so one day she eloped with him. When the old man found out he was very angry and at once followed them. Now, then, what time was it?

Smith (angrily)—What time was it? How on earth do you suppose I can tell you? I give it up.

Jones (triumphantly)—Why, a Little after 2, of course.—London Express.

A Distinction.

"John, dear," said the wife of his bosom as she was about to start downtown, "can you let me have a little pin money this week?"

"About how much?" queried her hubby.

"Oh, I guess $500 will do," she replied rather nonchalantly.

"Great guns!" he exclaimed.

"Five hundred dollars for pin money! Why, I can buy a cart load of pins for $5."

"But not diamond pins, dear," calmly rejoined the alleged better half of the matrimonial combine.—Exchange.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class.

This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'. It's the law.

We must obey the law or take the consequences. If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma!

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living.

Let's all think it over.

The Preservation of Caste.

It is well known how carefully, apparently at least, the Hindoos are to preserve their caste from contamination with anything of a lower order. In towns where Hindoos and Mussulmans, followers of Mohammed, live side by side the sellers of drinking water supply the liquid through little portholes, one for each religion. The drinker is thus supposed to be ignorant of the caste of the man who supplies the water and his own caste is consequently unbroken.

From Hand to Mouth.

"I'll never speak to him again!" exclaimed the dark young woman. "He called me his queen and asked if he might kiss my hand. I said yes, and—after that he kissed me on the lips without asking."
"I suppose," said the light young woman, "he followed along the line of least resistance."

Melancholy Milk.

"Haven't you any milk that is more cheerful than this?" queried the new boarder as he poured some of the liquid into his coffee.
"Why, what do you mean by that?" queried the landlady.
"Oh, nothing," rejoined the new boarder; "only this milk seems to have the blues."

Mean of Her.

"Everybody says baby is very like me," said young Mrs. Papley fondly.
"Yes, the cute little thing," remarked Miss Diggs. "What fat ankles she has!"—Philadelphia Press.

Evading the Issue.

"Did you break this dish, Mary?"
"No'm; I only dropped it.—St. Louis Times.

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose
