PLATE GLASS WINDOW BROKEN.

Marble Thrown by Small Boys Does Considerable Damage.

The large plate glass window in front of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company was broken Saturday evening in a peculiar manner. Mr. D. D. Gardner and his little son were on the east side of Evans street. The little boy had a good size marble, and when along in front of the Proctor block told his father he was going to throw the marble away. He threw the marble out in the street where it struck the new paving and glanced, going with considerable force against the bank window on the opposite side of the street. The blow did not break a hole through the glass, but made a shiver about the size of a half dollar. A few moments later the large glass cracked in two directions from the shiver, the crack extending to the edge of the glass and ruining the beauty of the window. When the boy saw the damage he had done he was badly frightened.

The Case in a Nutshell.

You can't have general whiskey selling without making drunkards. You will admit that, won't you?

If a man votes May 26th "For the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors," therefore he votes to make drunkards—that is the effect and meaning and you can't help it. You will admit that, won't you? Well then—

If you vote to make drunkards some home must furnish boys to be these drunkards. And the point is—

Are you willing for that home to be yours?

If you are, then you can consistently vote against prohibition; if not, we do not see how you can.

Certain it is that when King Alcohol comes for new victims it would be a fairer thing and more natural thing for him to turn to homes where votes were cast to welcome him to the State; and most of his victims this next generation will come from such homes.

A vote to make drunkards—and then not to be able to add a provision or amendment saying, "Provided, however, that this curse shall not fall on my own son!"

Isn't it a serious responsibility? We think it is, and we want you to think about it seriously.—Progressive Farmer.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry

MUSIC RECITAL POSTPONED.

Graded School Exercises Wednesday and Thursday Evening.

Owing to the examination at the graded school today and tomorrow, we find it well-nigh impossible to have our music recital tonight. It will therefore be postponed until Friday night. Due notice of it will be given Wednesday and Thursday evenings in the opera house.

The exercises on Wednesday and Thursday evenings begin at 8 o'clock I wish to remind the people that the seating capacity of the opera house is limited. People who come in late may have trouble in securing a seat.

The debate on Wednesday evening, and the address and graduating exercises on Thursday will both be interesting, I think. I hope we may have a large and representative audiences both evenings.

Losing Watches.

Young ladies should be more careful to fasten on their watches securely and avoid losing them. We know of three that were lost in the past week, two of which were soon recovered. A few days ago Miss Hennie Whichard lost hers, but fortunately recovered it about an hour later, it having been picked up by a boy on the street. Miss Nina Harris lost hers while out walking Sunday afternoon, but it was found by two ladies and she is the happy possessor of it again. In the short local column of The Reflector is advertised another lady's watch that was found along the road in the country.

The State's Advance in Educational Matters.

A statement by the State superintendent of public instruction shows that the past five years 1,891 new public school houses have been erected conforming to modern principles of school architecture, an average of more than one school house every day during the five years. The value of school property has increased to $4,250,429, nearly quadrupled. Special tax districts increased from 30 to 623. During the past year alone more than 100 local tax districts were established and funds increased 107 per cent.

B. B. WINBOURNE FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Murfreesboro, N. C., May. 2. To the Democrats of North Carolina:

I am a candidate for the nomination for office of Attorney General. I am gratified to learn from letters from all parts of the state, that my candidacy is so favorably considered by so many of the leading people of the state. Should I be nominated and elected to this high and responsible office, the people of my state will never have any cause to regret their action, if straight forward, upright and sober conduct, coupled with what ability I have, will prevent it. Should you deem it proper to nominate some one else, your nominee will have the same loyal support from me as I have given the nominee of the party for the last thirty odd years. B. B. WINBOURNE, 18 2d Itw Hertford County.

Civil Court.

A one week term of court, for the trial of civil actions, began today with Judge W. R. Allen presiding. The suit of R. Williams, administrator of David B. Jarvis vs The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad company was the first case taken up. This suit is for $25,000, damages for the killing of young Jarvis in December, 1905, at Lakeland, Florida.

Making Slow Progress

Maybe we are not able to see it, but it looks like very little progress is being made on the construction of the steel bridge across the river here. At the rate shown so far it is going to take a long time to get the bridge completed.

Fresh tomatoes raised in Florida have for several days recently been on sale in some of the stores here, and on Saturday evening Mr. S. M. Schultz received a crate of green corn from that State. There was much demand for the corn and it was not long selling out.

Our Embassies and Their Needs

If congress is to provide for a lot of public buildings in the near future, it ought to begin with an appropriation for the permanent and suitable housing of our ambassadors in the capitals to which they are accredited. There has been ample reason for a long time past to make this demand, and it has been urged upon congress. But recent occurrences and conditions have strikingly illustrated the need. Until congress is willing to make such provision, no bill for miscellaneous public buildings here at home should be approved by the executive. At present there is no standard, whether public or private, upon which an American ambassador or minister in a foreign capital may base his expenditures. Each American representative must rent such quarters as he can find or can afford. If he is to live as the representatives of other great nations do in the same capital, he must adopt a standard beyond the possibilities of the salary congress allows him. If he happens to be a wealthy man, he is likely to accept the view that he must pay out his own money freely for the honor and credit of his country. He finds the salary so inadequate that it affords no criterion whatsoever; and he is in danger of going too far in the expenditure of his own money, in view of the fact that a poor man may be appointed to succeed him. Nobody ever has the slightest occasion to ask whether the British ambassador at Washington, or Paris, or Berlin has large private means or small. There is an appropriate permanent British embassy, with suitable emoluments and allowances for its maintenance. When Mr. Bryce is made ambassador at Washington he does not have to hunt the town over to find a house, but follows his predecessor into the well-appointed British embassy, without annoyances or embarrassment of any kind. From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for May.

Sunday Crowds at Ferry.

The ferry across the river is quite a resort, especially on Sunday, and the crowds keep the ferrymen busy. The fellow who conducts the cold drink and ice cream stand on the opposite side of the river from town, does a big business and escapes both taxes and ordinances.

Sidewalks, Too.

The middle of Evans street is so much better than the sidewalks that people prefer to walk out on the paving. But just wait awhile, the sidewalks will be paved after the street is finished.

A Business Proposition.

"The feminine mind entertains some curious notions of business," a high official of a certain insurance company remarked. "As a case in point I may cite the experience of one of our agents, who succeeded in getting a German woman to insure a house she owned. 'You'll pay the first premium now, please,' said the clerk, who was about to hand over the policy. 'How much?' asked the woman warily. 'Three pounds five shillings,' replied the clerk. 'Look here, young man,' exclaimed the woman, 'I'm in much hurry this morning, and I can't wait. Just you tell your company to let it stand und deduct it ven the place burns down!' — London Family Herald.

There is any amount of noise, but we are all willing to endure that for the sake of seeing the street paving going on.

On the fourth Sunday afternoon in this month Rev. D. W. Arnold will speak at Parker's Chapel on prohibition.

The paved street will awaken bicycle interest.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1908.

Congress is going to "skidoo" May 23.

The Southern Railway has perfected a plan for raising $15,000,000 and will resume its work of double tracking and push forward other contemplated improvements.

Andrew Carnegie has raised the alarm that the world's supply of coal will be exhausted in 200 years. No need of getting excited over that. None of you will be concerned much about it by then, and besides it will be hot enough where some are for coal to be entirely needless.

Recently the Raleigh News and Observer printed an honor roll of the men who have been speaking over the State for prohibition in this campaign. A list of the newspapers that are working in this cause and talking to more people than the speakers, would make an honor roll equally as long, if not longer.

We heard a man say "I am against prohibition because I love whiskey." There are but few who are honest enough to express themselves so frankly, but it is about the only real reason a man can have for being on that side. "Personal liberty" "it won't prohibit" and all such excuses are merely make shifts to hide behind when the real reason is "love for whiskey".

This last week of the prohibition campaign should be a vigorous one. The election is next Tuesday, and everything should be done between now and the closing of the polls to make the majority for prohibition as large as possible. No election has ever been held in North Carolina that means so much for the future of the State. Do your duty men, and vote for prohibition.

On last Saturday nine more counties held primaries or conventions to select delegates to the State convention. This makes a total of fifty-two counties which have thus far taken action, having a total of 455 votes in the State convention. "Well, Scattergood," he said, bending forward to light his cigar at one of the shaded candles, "your course in life will be far easier, I can see, than mine was."

From now until the 26th the whiskey crowd will make every effort to turn the tide of prohibition sentiment. Their paid hirelings are rushing over the State distributing misleading literature and making speeches in the hope of carrying the State wet. The friends of prohibition should be more active than ever and every man and woman should work earnestly to carry the State for prohibition by a large majority.

THE DOGWATCH.

No One Seems to Know For Certain How It Got That Name.

The simplest facts, quite unchallenged and taken for granted, are often the hardest subjects for investigation. "Did you ever ask a sailor or a know-it-all why the dogwatch is so called?" queries a writer in the New York Sun who has himself made the experiment.

The chances are that the answer will be, "Why, the dogwatch is two short spells from 4 to 6 and from 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening to break the regular four hour watches, so that the same men will not have to stand watch during the same hours every day."

Simple and lucid. But why "dog?" In a hunt after an explanation the first question was put to the officers' mess of a big battleship. Not one, from the executive officer of a quarter of a century's service to the ensign with his first stripe, could answer.

A boat's crew from the same ship failed to throw any light on the subject, although a gunner's mate allowed that "it might be they once had dogs on ship and they was let loose when this watch was on."

An officer of an Atlantic liner said he never had heard so silly a question.

"Why, the dogwatch is the dogwatch," he explained. "There's no why or wherefore about it. It's always been the dogwatch, and it always will be."

Having had the matter so airily disposed of by this officer, inquiry was pushed to the East river, where may be found men who have been going down to the sea in real ships for many years. The pursuit of the "dog" was useless.

"Say," said a Harlem boatman, "what's the matter with trying 'Fighting Bob'?" If he can't tell you the great American navy will lose caste."

So up to Rear Admiral Evans went the query. And from Fort Monroe came the answer:

U. S. S. Connecticut, Sept. 2.
Dear Sir—I am unable to give you the information you ask about the dogwatch. Of course we all know why the watch is made two hours, but no one seems to know why the name dog was applied. Yours very truly,
R. D. EVANS.

At last a public library was resorted to. The dictionaries were merely provoking. "Five Thousand Facts and Fancies" was the only book found that threw light on the matter. Its explanation reads:

"Dogwatch, a corruption of dodge watch. The dogwatches were introduced to prevent the same men from always keeping watch the same hours of the day; hence on these occasions the sailors are said to dodge the routine, or to be doing dodge watch."

It may be added that Murray's great English dictionary gives a quotation introducing the term dogwatch from a book published in 1700, but gives no theory of the origin of the term.

Now She Feels Safer.

A certain Bronx housewife has been terribly worried of late. She has been in the midst of a palm reading fest, and all her palmist friends have told her of dire things that are going to happen to her in the future. She finally got a book on the subject and began to study it carefully. She was really unhappy about the situation until the other day. Now she declares everything is all right.

"You see, I employed a new cook," she said, "and there's a lot about cooking she didn't know. I looked into her palm and found her head line beautifully developed. When I discovered her cooking turnips with the jackets on I knew there was nothing in palmistry or she would have had no head line at all."—New York Globe.

Conditions Reversed.

Old Gobso Golde looked thoughtfully across the centerpiece of mauve orchids at his son.

"Well, Scattergood," he said, bending forward to light his cigar at one of the shaded candles, "your course in life will be far easier, I can see, than mine was."

Young Scattergood Golde smiled with good humored condescension.

"How so, governor?" he patronizingly inquired.

"I," said the old man, "began at the bottom and worked up. You have begun at the top and will slide down."—Kansas City News-book.

The Sublime Porte.

Sublime porte is the French for porta sublima, the "lofty gate." Constantinople had twelve gates, and near one of these was a building with a lofty gateway called "Bab-i-humajun." In this building resided the vizier. In it were the offices of the chief ministers of state, and thence all the imperial edicts were issued. The French phrase was adopted because at the time French was the language of European diplomacy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore require constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ATE HIS FILL.

The Sharp Traveler Had His Money's Worth and Caught the Coach.

There was a coach that used to run between Nola Chucky and Paint Rock, a matter of some forty miles. For lunch the coach stopped at a halfway house in Tin Can, and here a good fifty-cent meal was put out—cake and pie, coffee and tea and all the cold meats you could mention.

But the landlord of the halfway house had a mean little secret dicker with the driver, whereby as soon as the travelers had paid for their lunch and got fairly settled to it a call would come for an immediate start. So off they'd all go, grumbling. They'd have paid for 50 cents' worth of food and only eaten, you see, about 5 cents' worth.

But along came one day a traveler with a sharp, bright eye. The landlord found this chap some ten minutes after the coach had started on again still tucking in pie and ham at a terrible rate.

"Why, man," he said, "you've let the coach go without you."

"I know it," said the traveler calmly. "I was too blessed hungry to stop eating."

Suddenly the landlord's face paled. "Good gracious," he said, "all my silver's gone!"

It was too. Not a knife, fork or spoon was left except the sharp eyed man's.

He said as he kept on eating that he had noticed a suspicious looking character among the passengers, a man with a red beard, a hump and a limp—oh, very suspicious!

The landlord sent a hostler off to overtake the coach and bring it back.

In about forty minutes the coach returned. Then the sharp eyed man came forth, wiping his mouth. But he made no effort to identify the suspicious looking passenger. Instead he got aboard the coach, took his seat and said coolly:

"Thanks, landlord, for the good food. You'll find the spoons and things in the coffee-pot. Now, driver, off we go ag'in."—Washington Star.

PAYING BY CHECK.

References Required to Open a Bank Account in England.

"I like the American custom of carrying money loose in the pocket," said D. H. Lieban, a retired banker of London. "In England gentlemen and business men carry very little money with them. Nearly everything is paid for by check, except, of course, money enough to pay the small incidental expenses of a day.

"If a man goes into a store to buy a hat, he does not pay money for it, but gives a check. If he is dining at a public place, he very likely pays for his meal with a check. The system of credit in England is different from that in this country, and the mere fact that a man has an account in a bank serves to give him standing.

"One cannot open an account with a bank in England merely by carrying money to the bank and depositing it. He must have two first class references before a bank will accept his account, and when reference is given it means that the person giving it would endorse or stand for the person to whom it is given.

"A reference in England means more than a mere phrase. Checks on banks in England cannot be obtained for the mere asking, and a man must have an account in order to get checks from any bank. They cannot be picked up on bank counters or in public places.

"Private accounts in English banks are not accepted unless they are paid for, the general charge being $50 a year. There are one or two banks in England which discriminate so carefully in the accounts they accept that when a person is fortunate enough to be permitted to open an account with them he can get credit in any city in England or the continent of Europe."—Washington Post.

Disease Has Freaks.

No medical man needs to be told that even disease has its freaks and that recovery has occasionally been brought about by means inexplicably trivial. One of the most remarkable of these unaccountable eccentricities of disease took place at Halver, in Westphalia. The case was that of a boy who, as the result of a very heavy fall backward on his head while skating, had for a year and a half been deaf and dumb. One morning his brother went to awake him and, finding him sleeping heavily, tapped him lightly on the forehead. To his amazement the deaf and dumb boy awoke with a loud cry. Both speech and hearing had been restored.—Kansas City Journal.

Between Fifty and Sixty.

The sixth decade of life has been most prolific in human achievement and may well be designated as the age of the master work. In action alone its accomplishments have revolutionized history, and it would be most difficult to conceive what would be the present status of the world's affairs had these ten years of individual life never existed.—W. A. N. Dorland in Century.

Brought the Tears.

"Have you seen De Murky's latest battle piece? It's the most pathetic thing he's ever done."
"No, but I've seen Von Dawber's 'Horseshoe Gruder.' Nobody can look at it without crying."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Arranging Matters.

"Here is a map of the route we shall take."
"Did you make two of them?"
"No. What for?"
"So papa will be able to overtake us and forgive us."—Houston Post.

PHOTOGRAPHING ANIMALS.

Some Dangers the Man Behind the Camera Encounters.

Today the camera penetrates everywhere, and sometimes its use is attended with considerable danger and difficulty. Nowhere is this more pronounced than when the camera is brought into use in taking lifelike pictures of wild animals in captivity.

How hazardous this may be is shown by the following incident, which happened not long ago at a big zoological garden abroad: A fine white leopard had been added to the collection, and as soon as it appeared to have settled down the authorities decided to have it photographed. It seemed to be a fairly quiet creature—nervous and timid, to be sure, but without any sign of temper.

When the keeper entered its cage it had taken little notice of him beyond the usual spitting and hissing natural to its kind. The photographer therefore followed the keeper into its cage without apprehension of trouble.

He set up his apparatus, adjusted it, took several pictures of the leopard, and all seemed satisfactory. As he shut up his camera, however, the operator chanced to shuffle his feet once or twice on the floor of the cage.

Like a streak of lightning the leopard, with an ominous snarl, leaped at him, and before he could move the animal was gripping his ankle with his forepaws and furiously biting at his foot. Luckily the keeper and some assistants succeeded in beating off the beast in time to save the photographer's life, but it was a narrow squeak.

At the same zoo some time after when an attempt was made to photograph one of the llamas—an animal generally considered to be a fairly docile creature, with nothing particularly objectionable about it beyond its habit of spitting—the photographer's "subject" revealed its true nature by suddenly making a dash for camera and operator, and before the latter could be rescued he was the recipient of innumerable scratches, cuts and bruises which took some weeks to heal.

It is an open question whether seals and sea lions are vicious or not. They are certainly extremely curious and anxious to find out things for themselves, and a photographer who tried to take a picture of a troupe of performing sea lions had an experience worth recording.

He erected his tripod and camera and was about to make the exposure when one of the sea lions wriggled off his pedestal and made straight for the camera. It was all done so quickly that before the photographer realized it the camera was upset and the sea lion was biting the man's legs and feet pretty sharply.

The trainer got him away, and no serious harm was done, but he explained to the camera man that sea lions often did a little biting just to find out what an object was made of.—Pearson's Weekly.

Clancy's Employer.

Benjamin F. Butler of Massachusetts was a tireless worker when he started on anything. He and his secretary, Clancy, says the Baltimore Sun, oftentimes sat in the library until almost daylight when the general wanted to finish up anything.

During the night sessions of the senate toward a close of congress a senator called on General Butler one morning at 3 o'clock. The same senator called again when the senate adjourned the following morning at daybreak and found the general and Clancy still at work.

"Don't you ever stop?" the senator asked.

"No," General Butler said. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

"General, I never knew before just who my employer was," Clancy said, bowing.

Agreed With Him.

Father (calling from head of stairs at 11:30 p. m.)—Jennie, don't you think it's about time to go to bed?
Yes, papa dear. What on earth keeps you up so late?
—Pathfinder.

Not Unusual.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "I ketches mysef lambastin' a mule foh doin' purty much de same as I would do if I was in de mule's place!"—Washington Star.

Nature creates merit; fortune brings it into play.—Rochefoucauld.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class. This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'. It's the law.

We must obey the law or take the consequences. If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma?

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living.

Let's all think it over.

Need and Needs.

Perhaps many persons have wondered why we are taught to say "He need not do that" instead of "He needs not do that," as the singular pronoun, he, requires under ordinary conditions the singular form of the verb. The reason is that in a sentence of that kind, a negative sentence, expressing requirement or obligation, "need" becomes an auxiliary and takes no change of termination in the third person singular. This exception is laid down in the grammars.—Chicago News.

The Iron Crown.

The iron crown of Lombardy, so called from the narrow iron band within it supposed to have been beaten out of one of the nails used at the crucifixion, was probably first worn by Agilolph at his coronation in 501. The historic crown after gracing the brows of such sovereigns as Charlemagne, Henry of Luxemburg, Frederick IV, Charles V, and the great Napoleon was in 1866 given up to Victor Emmanuel and is now preserved with great care at Monza, near Milan.

Extravagance.

"This is your little sister, Tommy," said the father, showing him the baby. "You will love her dearly, will you not?" "Yes, of course," replied Tommy, inspecting the latest arrival, "but it'll cost a great deal to keep her, won't it?" "I presume so." "Yes," said Tommy, with a long drawn breath, "and when I asked you the other day to buy me a white rabbit you said you couldn't afford it."

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose now amounts to over Sixty - Eight Thousand Dollars.
