ABOUT TO REFORM CONGRESS.

PLAN TO REDUCE POWER OF SPEAKER OF HOUSE.

Proposition Has Some Good Features—Cortelyou May be Candidate for Vice-President on Republican Ticket.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—There is serious belief at the capital that when the house of representatives comes to organize for the 61st congress, no matter whether the majority be Republican or Democratic, there will be some radical changes in the rules under which that body is governed. A great many members of both parties believe too much power is lodged with the speaker and his committees on rules, the members of which the speaker appoints.

The plan of reform most generally approved is to enlarge the membership of the rules committee and have them elected by the house instead of appointed by the speaker. Some members favor going farther and having a committee on committees the duties of which would be to make all committee places. This is the plan which prevails in the senate. Should this latter plan be adopted it practically would take all power out of the hands of the speaker and make him merely the presiding officer with no more means of directly influencing legislation than has the vice president in his constitutional relations to the senate, or the speaker of the British House of Commons.

This plan would be an ideal one were it not for the fact that under it there would be little chance of congress ever discharging the business before it. Even the senate, with its vastly smaller membership, has found it necessary to have a steering committee to map out of legislation. The house probably would gain little by taking power from the speaker and his "cabinet" and lodging it with a steering committee. It very likely would be a case of jumping from the frying pan into the fire. It is regarded as entirely feasible, however, to make the rules committee answerable to the house instead of to the speaker and there is very strong probability that reform will go this far when the next congress meets.

The story coming from New York that friends of George B. Cortelyou are quietly booming him for second place on the Republican ticket was of more than ordinary interest to politicians in Washington. The New York story had it that Cortelyou was willing to be considered in connection with the vice presidency. If the treasury chief has expressed such a willingness to his New York friends he has been more loquacious with them than with his friends at the capital. No one here has been able to get Cortelyou to express an opinion on any phase of the political situation.

Bad Conduct.

There was the worst behavior on the part of some boys in the gallery of the opera house, Wednesday night, that we have ever noticed at any gathering there. The boys actually fought in their seats, reaching over people sitting near to strike each other, and were so noisy as to disturb people in the audience and distract the speakers on the stage. No arrests were made, but there ought to have been some. Such boys should be barred from going in public assemblies.

UGLY CASE FROM BEAVER DAM.

Two Committed to Jail for Bigamy—Woman's First Husband Indifferent.

Justice of the Peace C. D. Rountree had a case before him a few days ago that was out of the ordinary and attracted considerable interest, especially in the neighborhood in which it originated. J. H. Moore, of Beaver Dam township, married a wife and to them four children were born. Some weeks ago a single man named John Lacy got Mrs. Moore to run away with him and they went to Richmond, where they were married. After staying in Kinston about a month they returned to this county and to the neighborhood from which they had gone, where they continued living together, much to the disgust of the people of the community. As the first husband of the woman took no notice of or action in the matter, other people became so indignant that they procured a warrant for Lacy and the woman. The case was heard before Justice Rountree, who found sufficient evidence to bind the parties over to Superior court. They could not give bond and were both placed in jail.

UNION MISSIONARY MEETING.

An Interesting and Helpful Service.
Reported for Reflector.

The Union Missionary meeting held in the Christian church Wednesday afternoon was voted a splendid success. Mrs. H. L. Carr represented the Methodist Missionary society in a charming and helpful way, and made every woman present feel a deeper interest in missions. Mrs. Higgs, of the Baptist society, gave a most glowing account of the works of her church and with ease and grace delighted her hearers with the earnest way of presenting her subject.

The members present in the audience showed the Presbyterian church much interested in the subject of missions and the church body is to the front in all of its work.

Mrs. Travis Hooker sang most sweetly and feelingly "My Father Knows," and with Miss Tesh's happy and enthusiastic remarks and the work of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and the placing in the hands of every member present a souvenir with a golden star and the quotation from Daniel 12-3, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever."

The meeting closed with the rendering of the touching solo by Miss Tesh "I would not have Thee come, Dear Lord" after which Mrs. King, president of auxiliary was asked to pronounce the benediction. Three members were gained to the Christian church auxiliary.

County Convention Called.

GREENVILLE IN APPROPRIATION.

TEN THOUSAND FOR A BUILDING SITE.

Senator Overman Gets in Amendment Including Greenville—Congressman Small Active for the Waterway.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—North Carolina gets nearly a million dollars in the public building bill as amended by the Senate committee on public buildings and grounds, of which Senator Overman is a member. It is by far the biggest amount ever given the State before for public buildings, and in proportion to population is greater than that received by any other State in the Union. Senator Overman had to fight to keep in some of the North Carolina items that were put on in the House, and in addition he succeeded in increasing the amounts of the following items: Wilmington from $280,000 to $350,000; Salisbury from $115,000 to $140,000; Washington from $110,000 to $120,000.

Appropriations were secured by Senator Overman for sites in the following towns: Greenville, $10,000; Monroe, $10,000; Hickory, $10,000; Oxford, $7,500.

Another item added by the Senate committee was $60,000 for a public building at Wilson.

In all, North Carolina gets $957,500 in the public building bill, which is nearly three times as much as was obtained by the State in a similar bill two years ago. The liberal additions given North Carolina is a tribute to Senator Overman's high standing as a Senator and it is believed as a courtesy to him these items will be held in conference.

Representative John H. Small and a delegation of Congressmen from Atlantic Coast district called on the President today to congratulate him on the Governor's Conference and on the vote of the House in favor of continuing the inland waterways commission. All of the visitors are deeply interested in the proposed inland waterways from Boston to Wilmington. In the course of the interview the visitor declared that the agitation of the Atlantic Coast inland waterways project would be continued throughout the summer and until after the election, when a conference of representatives of all the coast states will be held in Baltimore. It was also explained that the national rivers and harbors congress will renew its campaign throughout the country, preparatory to holding a convention in Washington in the first week of the next session of Congress. All those interested in the waterways proposition will keep up the fight for improved rivers and harbors.—T. J. Pence in Raleigh News and Observer.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Bolt Strikes While Family are Near Cook Stove.

During the storm about 7 o'clock, Wednesday evening, Mr. Grover C. Robinson, of Stokes, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. At the time the family were standing about the cook stove in the kitchen, when the bolt of lightning struck the stove, killing the one mentioned and also shocking a younger brother. The young man killed was about 23 years old and a son of Mr. J. L. Robinson. He was the registrar for Carolina township, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was a member of the Red Men and was buried today with the honors of that fraternity.

Grand Opening.

GRADED SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

LARGE CROWD OUT ON THE OPENING NIGHT.

Beautiful Operetta and Interesting Debate in Which Negative Wins—Medal Awarded to Bruce Hooker.

There was a heavy downpour of rain, early Wednesday evening, that for a time threatened to mar the first of the commencement exercises of the graded school in the opera house that night. Fortunately there was a break in the storm at an opportune time, and the house was filled with admiring friends of the pupils when the exercises began. They had been assured there was something interesting in store and none wanted to miss it.

After a musical selection by Misses Mattie Moye King and Margaret Elow on two pianos, the intermediate pupils gave a twenty minute operetta, "A Day in Flowerdom" that was really charming, the young people rendering their parts excellently.

The event of the opening night around which most interest centered was the debate by the young men of the Grady Literary Society. The query for debate was: "Resolved, That the next legislature of North Carolina should enact a law requiring all able bodied children between the ages of seven and fourteen to attend school at least four months in the year." The affirmative speakers were Conrad Lanier, Charles Hasket and Bruce Hooker, and for the negative Frank Brown, Bennie Taylor and Wiley J. Brown.

Superintendent Smith announced that a gold medal would be awarded to the best individual debater in the contest, and he requested Mayor F. M. Wooten, J. Burt James and D. J. Whichard to act as judges to decide which side won the debate and to which individual speaker the medal should be awarded.

A contest followed that was worth listening to and would have done credit to any college. Every speaker as he arose was greeted with applause, and the approval of the audience was shown as each good point was brought out in the argument.

The young men went down after the argument like veterans in debate, and their speeches showed that they had made careful and close study of the subject in hand. Every one acquitted himself finely, both in leading speech and rejoinder.

At the conclusion of the debate Miss Lillian Burch rendered a beautiful instrumental solo while the judges were making up their decision. And the judges had no easy task before them, both sides coming so near together, but after going over the different points the balance was found in favor of the negative and the decision that side. As to the individual speaker the matter of decision was even more difficult, the contest between Frank Brown and Bruce Hooker being almost a tie, but finally the decision was for the latter on only a single point. Mayor Wooten in making the report for the committee referred to this and complimented both young men, as both were most deserving. He then presented the medal to Mr. Hooker. Had it been in the power of the committee both young men would have been rewarded alike.

Tonight will be read the theses of the graduating class and the address of Dr. C. Alphonso Smith.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., May 20, 1908. Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

Trade conditions this week are variable, some lines showing improvement while others continue dull or about as reported for the past several weeks. Some increase in demand for lumber for light construction work is noted, the price of lumber has been well maintained by curtailment of production. Manufacturers of harness, saddlery and leather goods report improvement in trade. Produce and vegetables are plentiful, and good prices are being maintained for whatever is offered in this line. Dry goods and notions are dull. Dealers in and manufacturers of paints and oils report fair sales. Weather conditions throughout Virginia and North Carolina have been more favorable for crop growing this week than the week previous. Winter wheat continues in first class condition. Cotton planting in North Carolina is about completed, a slightly increased average is reported. Retail trade during the first half of the week showed improvement, while rainy weather has retarded it in the last half. Collections are slow.

Meet Friday Afternoon.

The women's temperance union will meet at 4 o'clock, Friday afternoon, in the Methodist church. A large attendance is desired.

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1908.

Because the flying machine got smashed does not remove the fact that it could fly.

Pitt county must sustain her good name for progress in the election next Tuesday, and show a good majority for prohibition.

The debate by the graded school boys in the opera house, Wednesday night, clearly shows that Greenville has some orators for the future.

The Wilmington Star must have a big mote in its eye, or lets its zeal for the whiskey crowd make it do some rash claiming. That paper says 23 counties in the State are going to give majorities against prohibition, but the Star is going to discover that this is about the worse guess it ever made.

On first page today in a letter from Washington proposing a plan for reformation in congress by which will be taken from the speaker of the house the autocratic power he now possesses. We believe the proposition will meet with favor, as the present method of one man having control of the deliberations of congress ought to be changed.

The whiskey crowd is flooding the mails with literature in the effort to turn people against prohibition in the election next Tuesday. They waited until close to the election to do this thinking it would be too late for the prohibitionists to counteract the work of this literature. In their desperation they are ready to do anything to keep whiskey in the State. They will find out next Tuesday that the people of North Carolina will not be influenced by this misleading literature.

Greenville and Pitt county certainly feel grateful to Senator Lee S. Overman for his getting an amendment in the senate to the appropriations bill that included Greenville for $10,000 to purchase a site for a public building. Senator Overman has all along shown his interest in this section and has stood shoulder to shoulder with Congressman John H. Small in securing measures for the advancement of Eastern North Carolina. Both of these gentlemen have worked faithfully on the matter looking to a public building for Greenville, and our people appreciate what they have done.

AN AUDACIOUS PLAN.

How Captain Haraden Bluffed the Britisher Into Surrender.

A fight is a fight for a flat, and just as an example of early American "nerve" a story unearthed by Ralph D. Paine in the old sea logs at Essex Institute, in Salem, is of much interest. It is told by Mr. Paine as follows in Outing Magazine:

The king's packet was a foe to test Captain Haraden's mettle, and he found he had a tough antagonist. They fought four full hours, "or four glasses," as the log records it, after which Captain Haraden found that he must haul out of the action and repair damages to rigging and hull. He discovered also that he had used all the powder on board except one charge. It would have been a creditable conclusion of the matter if he had called the action a drawn battle and gone on his way.

It was in his mind, however, to try an immensely audacious plan which could succeed only by means of the most cold blooded courage on his part. Ramming home his last charge of powder and double shooting the gun, he ranged alongside his plucky enemy, who was terribly cut up, but still unconquered, and hailed her:

"I will give you five minutes to haul down your colors. If they are not down at the end of that time, I will fire into and sink you, so help me God!"

It was a test of mind, not of metal. The British commander was a brave man who had fought his ship like a hero. But the sight of this infernally indomitable figure on the quarter deck of the shot rent Pickering, the thought of being exposed to another broadside at pistol range, the aspect of the blood stained, half naked privateersmen grouped at their guns with matches lighted, was too much for him. Captain Haraden stood, watch in hand, calling off the minutes so that his voice could be heard aboard the packet:

"One."

"Two."

"Three."

But he had not said "Four" when the British colors fluttered down from the yard, and the packet ship was his.

WONDERS OF WATER.

Extent to Which Fluid Mingles With Bodies Apparently Solid.

The extent to which water mingles with bodies apparently solid is wonderful. The glittering opal which beauty wears as an ornament is only flint and water. In every plaster of paris statue which an Italian carries through our streets for sale there is one pound of water to every four pounds of chalk. The air we breathe contains five grains of water to each cubic foot of its bulk. The potatoes and turnips which are boiled for our dinner have in their raw state the one 75 per cent and the other 90 per cent of water.

If a man weighing ten stone were squeezed flat in a hydraulic press seven and one-half stone of water would run out and only two and one-half stone of dry residue remain. A man is, chemically speaking, fifty-five pounds of carbon and nitrogen fused through five and a half gallons of water. In plants we find water thus mingling in no less wonderful a manner.

A sunflower evaporates ten and a quarter pints of water a day and a cabbage about the same quantity. A wheat plant exhales in 24 hours about 100,000 grains of water. An acre of growing wheat, on this calculation, draws and passes out about ten tons of water per day.

The sap of plants is the medium through which this mass of fluid is conveyed. It forms a delicate pump by which the watery particles run with the rapidity of a swift stream. By the action of the sap various properties may be communicated to the growing plant. Timber in France is, for instance, dyed by various colors being mixed with water and poured over the root of the tree. Dahlias are also colored by a similar process.—London Tit-Bits.

Making It Clear.

A very young child was saying his prayers at the bedside in his grandfather's house. The grandfather, anxious to hear the boy, stood at the room door, which was sufficiently open for him to see and hear the child. After the usual asking God to bless his parents the child reached "God, bless grandma and grandpa." At the mention of the last named, the boy's eye catching sight of his grandfather, he stopped and, pointing his little finger, said, "There he is!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

An Easy Job.

A schoolmaster set as an essay subject to a class of his young hopefuls "What I would like to be," and one pronouncement, delivered in a bold half text, was as follows: "I would like to be a horse driver. When you are driving a horse you sit and do nothing. You do that all day and feed the horse at night and your work is done for that day. Then when Saturday comes you get your pay, and then you get all Sunday to yourself."—Kansas City Newsbook.

Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co.,
Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lung, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, seeds biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1905 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life savor. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. ## WARNED BY DESERTS

What These Sandy Wastes Mean to Mother Earth.

A DEATH GRIP ON THE WORLD

They indicate the beginning of the end of our beautiful planet, which is doomed to roll through space a parched and lifeless orb.

Deserts already exist on the earth, and the nameless horror that attaches to the word in the thoughts of all who have had experience of them or are gifted with imagination to conceive is in truth greater than we commonly suppose, for the cosmic circumstance about them which is most terrible is not that deserts are, but that deserts have begun to be. Not as local evil, but as the general inescapable death grip on our world, for it is the beginning of the end. What desolates the forests to grass lands and thence to wastes must in turn attack the sea bottoms when they shall have parted with their seas.

Last of the fertile spots upon the planet because of the salts the streams have for ages washed down and of the remnant of moisture that would still drain into them, eventually they must share the fortune of their predecessors and the planet roll a parched orb through space. The picture is forbidding, but the fact seems one to which we are constructively pledged and into which we are in some sort already adventured.

Girdling the earth with what it takes but little personification to liken to the life extinguishing serpent's coils run two desert belts of country. The one follows, roughly speaking, the tropic of Cancer, extending northward from it; the other, the tropic of Capricorn, Arizona, in the northern band, as are the Sahara, Arabia and the deserts of central Asia.

Now, these desert belts are growing. In the great desert of northern Arizona the traveler, threading his way across a sagebrush and cacti plain shut in by abrupt sided shelves of land rising here and there some hundreds of feet higher, suddenly comes upon a petrified forest.

Trunks of trees in all stages of fracture strew the ground over a space some miles in extent. So perfect are their forms he is almost minded to think the usual wasteful woodchopper has been by and left the scattered products of his art in littered confusion upon the scene of his exploit. Only their beautiful color conveys a sense of strangeness to the eye, and, leaning down and touching them, he finds that they are—stone; chalcidony, not carbon! Form has outlived substance and kept the resemblance, while the particles of the original matter have all been spirited away. Yet so perfect is the presentment one can hardly believe the fact, and where one fallen giant spans a little canyon one almost thinks to hear the sound of water rushing down the creek.

But it is some millions of years and more since this catastrophe befell, and the torrent, uprooting it, left it prone, with limbs outstretched in futile grasp upon the other side. A conifer it was, cousin only to such as grow today, and flourished probably in the cretaceous era, for the land has not been under water here since the advent of tertiary times.

Nowhere near it, except for the rare cottonwoods along the bank of the Little Colorado, grows anything today. The land which once supported these forests is incompetent to do so now. Yet nothing has changed there since except the decreasing water supply. During tertiary and quaternary time the rainfall has been growing less and less. Proof of this is offered by the great pine oasis that caps the plateau of which these petrified forests form a part and is keeled by the San Francisco peaks. The height above sea level of the spot where the chalcidony trunks are strewn is about 4,500 feet. The lower present limit of the pine in its full development is 6,500 feet. Two thousand feet upward the verdure line has retreated since the former forests were. And this is no local alteration, for upon the other side of the plateau-petrified remains of trees are similarly found.

The line of perpetual green has risen because in desert regions the moisture is found most plentiful nearest to the clouds from which it falls upon a parching earth. Streams, instead of gathering volume as they go, are largest near their source and grow less and less with each fresh mile of flow. The brooks descending from the Anti-Lebanon, in Syria, water the gardens of Damascus and, thence issuing upon the plain, lose themselves just beyond the threshold of its gates. So in the Arizona desert, though in a less degree, and those who live there know it but too well.—From Percival Lowell's "Mars and the Future of the Earth" in Century.

Breaking Wire.

Anybody who has tried to break a piece of wire without the aid of a pair of pliers will probably agree that the operation is both a difficult and painful one. There is a method, however, by which it may be easily accomplished. By bending the wire into a loop and pulling both ends as tight as possible an injury will be caused to the wire, which on being straightened will immediately break. By this means wire up to No. 12 gauge may be successfully dealt with.

Fire and sword are but slow engines of destruction in comparison with the babbar.—Steele.

A GREAT GOLD SCARE

When the Yellow Metal Was First Found in Australia.

AFRAID OF THE CONVICTS.

The English Government tried to and did for a time suppress the news because it feared a general uprising in the colony of criminals.

Gold in Australia was discovered—one might almost be pardoned for saying first discovered—many times. But the news of the earliest discoveries was jealously kept from spreading. The secret of this reticence lay in the presence of the army of convicts which then composed the balance of the population. Had a gold panic broken out it was feared that a general uprising of the prisoners would take place.

Nevertheless the first gold found in Australia was by convicts, in 1814, near Bathurst, New South Wales. The discoverers gathered together a quantity quite sufficient to lead them to believe that they had found a gold mine, but when they reported what they considered their good fortune to the keeper he, instead of undertaking to recommend them for pardon or easing their hard labors in any way, threatened to give them all a sound flogging if they ventured again to say a word about the matter or to spend any more time picking up gold. The next find was made on the Fish River in 1823, not far from the spot where the convicts had come across it nine years before. This news, being reported to the authorities, was also ordered suppressed. Within the course of the next two years finds were so frequent that the London government began to take great interest in the affair. But the fact that another region of the yellow metal might be at the disposal of such as might seek was kept rigidly secret until in 1825 a dramatic incident precluded all possibility of further secrecy.

A convict was discovered with a nugget of gold in his possession. When asked how he had come by the metal, he said that he had picked it up in the bush. He was cautioned and told that the authorities had no doubt that he had stolen the gold, but the prisoner stoutly held to his original tale. At length he was taken out and severely flogged in public as a thief. There is now no doubt that the man told the truth. After this, although the public was every now and then keyed up to great expectations by some reported find, no further veins were discovered until 1839, when a Russian nobleman found a rich deposit in the Blue mountains. The British government again became fearful of the consequence of such news upon a colony of convicts and ordered the matter suppressed. Yet sufficient people had heard of it to keep the story alive and give credence to such rumors as arose from time to time. So matters drifted on. Time and time again bushmen, shepherds, convicts and surveyors picked up small nuggets and brought them to the centers of population, but at that day people were nothing like so keen on gold mining as they subsequently became, and the subject of gold in Australia was not pursued as one would expect it to be.

The discovery of gold in California changed all that. Those rich fields, panning out their golden store and filling the coffers of lucky individuals and governments at a rate never dreamed of, awakened a thirst for prospecting all the world over. In every part of the earth men went out with pick and pan, hoping to come across the precious metal.

When the news of California's fortune reached Australia, many took ship to America's shores, and among these was Hammond Hargreaves, an Englishman, native of Gosport, who had emigrated to New South Wales in 1832. In Australia he engaged in farming without much profit and was among the first to rush for California.

On reaching the auriferous region the first thing that struck him was the similarity of the geological formation in California and Bathurst, Australia, and there and then he made up his mind to inquire into the subject should he ever return to Australia. He worked for something like a couple of years in California and then set sail for New South Wales. Returning, he of course carried in his mind the thought that perhaps there might be gold in Bathurst, and when he landed he set to work to make a thorough search.

Before this, however, he had made the acquaintance of William and James Toms and J. H. O. Lister, who were anxious to prospect for gold. Hargreaves taught them how to use pick and pan, the dish and the cradle—in fact, gave them a practical if rough education into the mysteries of gold and gold bearing rocks and gravel. These men struck out, and in April, 1851, the three pupils returned to their old master, and, lo, in their pockets they carried gold to the amount of four ounces! Hargreaves, knowing the ropes, took this gold and full directions to the proper quarter. The news went forth, the rush began, rich finds were made, and Hargreaves was hailed as the discoverer of gold in Australia. In reality he had won the title, for it was his knowledge that first educated the Tomses and Lister, and it was his knowledge again that sent them in the right direction.

Duty is what goes most against the grain, because in doing that we do only what we are strictly obliged to and are seldom much praised for it.—In Bruyere.

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You! Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean.

You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demnition bowwows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a headcarrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gourmandizing upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey? Didn't we?

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and silently and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey! Didn't that ever occur to you?

N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY.

Its Varied Beauties Described in a Burst of Rhetoric.

I have read of the wonder of the ancient world, the hanging gardens of Babylon, which Nebuchadnezzar reared in graceful terraces high above the brazen gates of the city to remind his Median wife of her mountain home, and I have read in the "Odyssey" of that land of delight, the island of the lotus eaters, of which Tennyson draws this beautiful picture:

How sweet it were, hearing the downward stream, with half shut eyes, to ever seem falling asleep in a half-dream!

But certainly the garden spot of the modern world is in the Mississippi valley, with its sun kissed mountains and broad, rolling prairies; the paradise of the twentieth century civilization there in our magnificent, fertile and majestic Missouri, with her blue sky, her pellucid streams, her balmy air, her gorgeous sunsets and her everlasting hills. We may visit the famed galleries of the world and feast our aesthetic tastes upon the masterpieces of Raphael, Rembrandt and Angelo, Reynolds and Van Dyck, but no painter's brush ever has or ever can produce on canvas half the glory and majesty and sublimity of an autumn sunset in the Ozark hills, with the golden sunlight gilding the treetops and throwing over and about the variegated foliage its soft and mellow radiance.

Beethoven and Mozart, Mendelssohn and Handel and Wagner have poured forth a flood of melody and harmony which will delight the ears of mankind while civilization lasts, but it can never inspire that feeling of buoyancy and exhilaration, that bubbling joy and gladness, which is felt by the barefoot boy as he listens to the morning song of the mocking bird, the robin and the lark as they fit from limb to limb, while the sunlight glistens on the dew and the very air he breathes is full of life and gladness.—From Speech of Robert La Follette of Missouri in House of Representatives.

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose
