SOME VICE PRESIDENTIAL TALK SECOND PLACE ON BOTH TICKETS MUST BE FILLED.

Fairbanks Likely to be Republican Candidate—Southern Man Probable on Democratic Ticket.

Washington, May 22.—Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, vice president of the United States, is a gentleman of discretion. If there is anything at the present moment which Mr. Fairbanks does not want it is four more years of the vice presidency. Of course there may come a time in the not distant future when the vice presidency will seem attractive to Mr. Fairbanks, but not so now. Just at present he has his eye fixed firmly and unwaveringly upon the job Theodore Roosevelt is holding down and he doesn't propose any one shall hand him anything in the shape of a consolation prize until the main issue is decided.

But you haven't heard Charles Warren Fairbanks cracking his heels together and shouting in loud, stentorian tones that he would thrust back the vice presidency even were it thrust upon him. He has been too keen an observer of the trend of politics to be led into such an error. If there is one thing more than another which Mr. Fairbanks has copiously about his attenuated person it is dignity, and it is far from dignified to be caught bluffing and be able to show down a bob-tailed flush.

Until very recently the Republicans have had a corner on vice presidential talk, but at last Democrats are waking up to the fact that a candidate for president is not the only nomination that will be made at Denver. Whether the man to be named for second place is to be the running-mate of Bryan or of some other Democrat, the fact remains that second place on the ticket has got to be filled.

Just now the talk is of a Southern man for vice president. There was a time when, had the South asserted itself, a Southerner might have been a serious contender for first honors, but that time has now passed so far as concern this year's election. Being out of it for first place on the ticket, there is a very widespread desire that the South should be recognized when the second place is filled.

Strangely enough, this demand for recognition of the South does not come from Southern Democrats but from residents of Northern states. It is true, though, that the movement appears to be headed by former Southerners who have removed to Yankeeeland. Allen S. Towson, a New York broker but a native of Virginia, is in Washington to sound sentiment among Democrats in congress on the subject. Up to date the sounding has been most encouraging. There isn't a Democratic senator or representative who isn't willing, even anxious, that second place should go to a Southern man, provided a Northerner is to head the ticket.

Right here it is entirely fitting that we should go back to the case of Charles Warren Fairbanks, the man who doesn't want to be vice president but who is too wise to make any vain glorious announcements in advance of the convention's decree. Culberson, Daniel and Carmack may not want to be vice president but it is a safe bet at heavy odds on that if the convention nominates any one of them that one will bow in submission with what grace he may; just as Roosevelt bowed to the will of the convention at Philadelphia, and just as Fairbanks knows he will have to bow should he be drafted by the convention to meet in Chicago next month.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. May 24, 1908.

F. C. Nye and G. E. Lineberry returned from the Wake Forest commencement yesterday afternoon, and report a most delightful trip.

Miss Vivian Roberson, of Gold Point, came in last night to see the play.

Miss Laura Cox and Ethel Carroll are attending the Wake Forest and Baptist University commencement this week.

The play "Ten Nights in a Barroom" was given here last night at the academy to a large audience. The play is spoken of in high terms. We wish all the people in the county could see this play.

We are pained to hear of the sudden death of Grover Roberson who was killed by lightning a few days ago. He was an old pupil of W. H. S. and was held in high esteem both by the teachers and schoolmates. His relatives have our deepest sympathy.

Rev. T. H. King is away this week making temperance speeches and commencement addresses.

Prof. Lineberry has just been honored by being appointed by Governor Glenn as a trustee of the blind institution at Raleigh. He was also elected a trustee of Wake Forest College Thursday and as president of the Alumni association of Wake Forest College. He stands out as one of the leading school men of the State. These honors are all well deserved.

B. F. Manning has just returned from a business trip to Norfolk.

A car load of lime and hay just received A. W. Ange & Co.

Prof. Lineberry left for Stokes he will speak on prohibition this afternoon.

MUSICAL FRIDAY NIGHT.

Miss Gaston's Class Entertains Large Audience.

A musical in the chapel of the graded school building, Friday night, brought to a close the commencement exercises of the session. This recital was by the music pupils of the school under the direction of Miss Olive Gaston, the efficient music teacher. The programme embraced vocal and instrumental selections, solos, duets and trios, and every performer acquitted herself with much credit. The audience was very large, overcrowding the chapel.

The interest our people have shown in the graded school by turning out so largely to attend the commencement exercises, brings out the fact that Greenville had as well be thinking over the matter of an auditorium large enough to meet the requirements.

Rev. D. W. Arnold.

Will preach on prohibition at Parkers chapel on Sunday May 24th, 1908 at 3:30 o'clock p. m. A cordial invitation is given to the public to attend this service and hear this plea for prohibition.

MR. KITCHIN AS A LEADER.

Republicans at Thomasville Applaud His Flings at the "Big Four."

The following dispatch is taken from the Thomasville correspondence of the Charlotte Observer, in Sunday's paper:

Mr. Kitchin, candidate for governor, addressed about one hundred and fifty people at Thomasville tonight. About one-third of the audience was Republican. His speech was on the defensive and rather bitter. Among other things, in answer to the argument as to the "Big Four," he stated that if offices were given as a reward for winning votes for the Democratic party in recent great campaigns, ten congressmen and two United States senators would have to step down and out in favor of twelve pollholders in Halifax county. When the Republicans in the house applauded this statement, he added that we must have had some good pollholders up here, too.

Democrats who read that could scarcely believe their eyes, rubbed them and looked again. Even Kitchin supporters were astounded at such an utterance from a man who aspires to be the head of the Democratic party in North Carolina. The humblest private in the ranks is too loyal to make such a statement publicly, to be followed by rounds of Republican applause. It certainly comes with exceedingly poor taste from a man who has styled himself the standard of Democracy in North Carolina. This slap in the face for Democratic election officials is about the purest Republicanism we have noticed. Mr. Kitchin has put the stamp of his approval on all the outworn claims of the Republicans. And coupling this with his sincere attachment for the populists of the State already shown in The Dispatch, there is sufficient reason for every loyal Democrat to pause before he votes to make Mr. Kitchin the head of the Democratic party.

It was no doubt this same lack of political sense, so painfully exemplified in his sneer at Democratic pollholders, that has lost to his party his own county of Person, where formerly a man's politics was indicated by the color of his skin, where every white man was a Democrat, but where now the party has dwindled and dwindled until the Republicans have gained a foothold, town of Roxboro, even, being in the hands of Republican aldermen. A Republican was sent to the last legislature but having secured the postoffice to Roxboro, he stepped out of office and the county was not represented in the special session. Beginning with his defeat by 1,700 votes when he ran for the State senate, Mr. Kitchin has gradually lost out in his county. His vote has dropped from 1,700 to 900, and the Republican candidate for congress actually beat him in his home township. If we are to judge the future by the past and if a candidate's showing in his own community is to be considered as significant, what may the Democrats of North Carolina expect if Mr. Kitchin is made governor. Under his leadership, do you think the party will grow stronger? He has already estranged many good men by declaring that they are not Democrats unless they vote for him. It strikes us that every Democrat who has at heart the welfare of the party has ample reason for pondering over these facts.

From the Lexington Dispatch, May 6th.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

E. H. Thomas went to Ayden today.

H. A. White is in Norfolk on business.

Mayor F. M. Wooten went to Norfolk Friday.

P. T. Anthony went to Winterville today.

Jesse Speight returned Friday evening from Norfolk.

E. W. Harvey left this morning for Danville, Va.

Solicitor C. L. Abernethy, of Beaufort, was in town Friday.

Miss Lillie Bennett, one of the graded school teachers, left this morning for her home in Reidsville.

G. W. Woodward, of Durham, who has been visiting his son, G. J. Woodward, returned home today.

Miss Nellie Pender has returned from school at Greensboro Female College.

Miss Elizabeth Wade, one of the graded school teachers, left Friday for her home in Farmville, Va.

Misses Lizzie and Etta Gay, of Farmville, who have been visiting Misses Lula and Daisy Taylor, left Friday.

While some colored boys were wrestling at the base ball ground, Friday afternoon, one of them named James Tucker, came out with a broken leg.

Charlie Davis, of Beaufort, on his return home from attending Wake Forest college, stopped here to visit his sister, Mrs. R. L. Humber.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry

Will speak on prohibition at the following times and places: Stokes, Saturday, May 23, 1908 at 3 o'clock p. m.

Black Jack, Sunday May 24th, at 11 o'clock a. m.

Grimesland, Sunday May 24th, at 3:30 o'clock p. m.

The public cordially invited to attend and hear this question which means so much for the homes and happiness of the people presented by a man who has given his life to teaching those things which tend to make noble men and women.

Thos. J. Jarvis, Ch'm.

Election Day Parade.

All children above the age of five years, who will take part in a parade on next Tuesday, election day, are requested to meet at the graded school building at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, when arrangements for the parade will be made.

Take up the Goats.

Goats are enjoying too many privileges around town, and are causing complaint. A lady whose front yard has suffered much from depredations of goats requests that the attention of the authorities be called to this.

Social Meeting.

The Ladies Aid society of the Christian church will hold their social meeting with Mrs. E. G. Flanagan Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Every member of the church is urged to come and bring their friends. Admission 10 cents 5 23 2td

At the Churches Tomorrow.

Regular services will be held in all the churches at the usual hours. The public is cordially invited to attend. Each pastor will discuss temperance in his Sunday night service.

GREAT MUSICAL EVENT.

The Popular Singers of Norfolk The Madrigal Club, to Give a Grand Concert at Greenville.

The people of Greenville are to enjoy a rare musical treat next Wednesday evening, when the popular Madrigal Club, comprising some of Norfolk's best musical talent and sweetest singers, will give a grand concert at the Masonic Temple opera house.

This concert is to be given for the benefit of the River Lodge No. 93, Knights of Pythias. The music will be of a high class and well rendered by accomplished vocalists. There will be both operatic and simple selections and such sweet old ballads as "My Old Kentucky Home" will be sung on this occasion.

The soprano of the Madrigal Club is Mrs. Frank Eberle, whose singing made a great hit at many of the musicales and receptions at the Jamestown Exposition. The contralto is Mrs. George Bethell, formerly of Charlotte, N. C. now a popular singer in Norfolk. The tenor is Mr. Edgar Meeks, who is well known in many of the North Carolina cities and towns, and the baritone and musical director is Mr. Homer Moore, late of New York but now of Norfolk, one of the best known vocal instructors and singers in America. These constitute a quartette that is hard to beat and all of them are popular soloists.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the people of Greenville and of Reedy Branch community for the many favors and kind deeds rendered to my family in behalf of my husband during his illness and death.

Mrs. J. C. Tripp.

He Forgot Himself.

The physician was commanding one of Uncle Sam's ships. "Doctor," called the mate, politely saluting, "we are about to take the enemy's ship." "All right," came the reply, "and don't forget to shake well before taking."—Exchange.

Prayer Meetings Election Day.

On Tuesday, 26th, the Christian people of Greenville will meet together in the churches to pray for a victory for prohibition. A prayer meeting will be held in the Baptist church at 7 o'clock, a. m.; in the Presbyterian church at 11 a. m.; in the Christian church at 3 p. m.; in the Methodist church at 6 p. m.

The merchants in the town of Lenoir will close their stores on next Tuesday, and go out to work for prohibition. That is a good example for election day that all the towns might follow.

The biggest thing in prospect just now is the prohibition election on Tuesday. Let every man do his duty that day, and North Carolina will soon be rid of a great evil, the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors. With this settled the State will push forward in the march of progress as never before.

Judgment of the Hour Against the Newspaper.

"The man who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after due experience not to expect even briefly expressed thanks from a column of pleasant things, but he knoweth, as surely as cometh the winter that a single line in which there is an unintentional representation will cause some one to be heard from as if from a house top. And we may add that when he has made pleasant mention 999 times of some person, place or thing, but on the thousandth time fails to do so, he must not expect to be forgotten. The omission may have been from accident, inadvertence or even an entire lack of knowledge. It matters not. The simple fact remains and he will be judged by that."

The above from an exchange in Virginia is so applicable to every newspaper, that it could be reprinted without quoting, and not be held as anything beyond a local condition.

And very much in the same line, comes the Winston-Salem, N. C. Journal, of the 20th inst., with a double column editorial in eleven point type, in explanation of a recent editorial in its columns, that provoked some politician to remark that the Journal would cost the Democratic party Forsyth county.

The esteemed contemporary of Winston-Salem, seems to have previously defended itself from an attack, because it had expressed opinions regarding dirty politics, and the danger therefrom that might result to Democratic success in this State. It is not necessary to come to the rescue of our namesake. But the case of the Winston-Salem Journal is offered with the previously quoted local, as showing how easy it is for the passing judgment of the hour to be against local or editorial comment in a newspaper. No editor can afford or will attempt to temporize on any subject that he holds as honestly expressed and sincerely declared, after consideration, and very few editorial comments are written, except after deliberation.

Fortunately, the judgment against the newspaper is ephemeral. If it was not so, there would be few newspapers surviving local, State and national conditions that so constantly arise, and against which the newspaper is most often the only barrier that prevents outbreaks. The curse of the noonday hour against the newspaper passes away, and in the cool of the evening the calmer judgment will generally vindicate the position of the newspaper.—New Bern Journal.

CIGARETTES AND TEA.

A Part of the Routine of Every Russian Business House.

"You forget," I observed, "that Russia is the original home and habitat of the cigarette," says the Odessa correspondent of the London Standard. "The little paper tube of tobacco was, so to say, a national institution among the Russians, gentle and simple, long before it was seen between the lips of the Englishman and Frenchman."

My friend, a British merchant, on his first visit to Russia, was being introduced to a local banking house. As the cashier momentarily laid aside his cigarette in a convenient ash tray to attend to us my visitor looked amazedly around the spacious room, where here and there among the staff of sixty clerks he saw the curling blue smoke of many cigarettes. The cashier proffered his cigarette case.

"Well, do you know," said my friend, "it is not by any means our notion of business, and yet somehow it looks homely and agreeable, and none of these fellows appears to be lazing or shirking."

Then came a further surprise for my companion. A neatly dressed waitress emerging from some lower region was passing behind the chief counter bearing a large tray on which were some ten or twelve glasses of tea, with the usual small dish of sliced lemon and silver fork. The tea was first distributed to the senior clerks in the various departments, and the waitress returned for further supplies for the rest of the staff.

"Also a Russian institution?" smilingly queried the London merchant.

"Exactly," I replied, "and the tea is of the finest quality." From the bank we drove to the postoffice and telegraph station. In these places it is forbidden to the public to smoke, but behind the counters in every department the cigarette and tea were just as much in evidence as they were at the bank. The tea is always supplied by the establishment, whatever it may be. The cigarettes the officials and clerks find themselves.

OUR FIRST PATENT.

Granted at Boston in 1848 and Was Called a Monopoly.

To the general court of Massachusetts belongs the honor of granting the first American patent. This was in 1848 and was then designated as a monopoly. It was confined to the region controlled by Massachusetts, and the one issue apparently included all the invention of the inventor connected with engines that depended upon water for their motive power. The limit of the monopoly was fourteen years, and the court not only retained power to forbid exportation, but to prevent exorbitant charges upon the public for their use. The patent was issued in this form:

"Jeakes Monopoly.—At a general Court at Boston the 21st of the 3th Mo 1848. The court considering ye necessity of raising such manufactures of engines of mills to go by water for speedy dispatch of much work with few hands, and being sufficiently informed of ye ability of ye petition to performe such workes grant his petition (yet no Othr per sen shall set up or use any such new invention, or trade for fourteen yeares without ye license of him the said Joseph Jenkes) so far as concerns any such new invention, & so it shall be always in ye power of this corte to restrain ye exportation of such manufactures & ye prizes of them to moderation if occasion so require."

This inventor, Joseph Jenkes, or Jenks, as it would now be spelled, came from Hammersmith, England, settled in Lynn in 1848 and died in 1882-3, aged eighty-one. He was a blacksmith and machinist, made the dies for the coining of the "Pine Tree" money and built the first fire engine in this country, altogether a man of great inventive genius and the ancestor of a large number of descendants. One of his sons removed to Rhode Island, where he built several mills.

Origin of Myths.

The human mind, whether that of the savage or the civilized man, is naturally a thinking machine. In early times, before science was born, the phenomena of nature required an explanation, and the savage beholder shaped the myth, which satisfied his untutored mind. It is out of man's natural craving to know the "reason why" that all myths are born. As the distinguished anthropologist, Taylor, puts it, "When the attention of a man in the myth making stage of intellect is drawn to any phenomenon which has to him an obvious reason, he invents and tells a story to account for it." In such way all mythology originated.

Roding, Ga. August 27, 1908.
Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor consolation. Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life saver. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. A STORY OF NELSON.

The Presence of Mind of the Great English Admiral.

Captain Mahan relates the following anecdote concerning Lord Nelson's letter proposing a truce to the crown prince of Denmark, dispatched in the midst of hostilities:

The decks being cleared of all partitions fore and aft and all ordinary conveniences removed, Nelson wrote in full view of all on the deck where he was, at the casing of the rudder head, standing, and as he wrote an officer standing by took a copy. The original, in his own hand, was put into an envelope and sealed, with his arms. The officer was about to use a wafer, but Nelson said:

"No; send for sealing wax and candle."

Some delay followed owing to the man's having had his head taken off by a ball. "Send another messenger for the wax," said the admiral when informed of this, and when the wafers were again suggested he simply reiterated the order.

A large quantity of wax was used and extreme care taken that the impression of the seal should be perfect.

Colonel Stewart asked:

"Why under no bet a fire and after so lamentable an accident have you attached so much importance to a circumstance apparently trifling?"

"Had I made use of a wafer," replied Nelson, "the wafer would have been still wet when the letter was presented to the crown prince. He would have inferred that the letter was sent off in a hurry and that we had some pressing reasons for being in a hurry. The wax told no tales."

Spoiled the Prayer.

A west end man who had been out with a party of friends slipping from the bowl of joy more than usual staggered home, at a loss to know how to conduct himself to prevent his wife knowing he was intoxicated. After turning the question over in his mind several times he decided that it would be well for him to kneel in prayer just before retiring, as he sometimes did.

"What in the world are you doing there, John?" asked his wife.

"Praying."

"Well, your prayer might have more effect if you took off that silk hat."—St. Louis Republic.

A TALE OF THE SEA.

The Upside Down Cruise of the Captain of the Erndte.

An almost incredible instance of the perils attending those who go to sea was the basis of a story told in a maritime court of Dantzic some years ago by the captain of the sailing ship Erndte. Nothing that Jules Verne, Clark Russell and H. G. Wells ever fancied in their wonderful tales surpassed the story told by Captain Lu-rellandt.

He had sailed from Memel with a cargo of planks for Oldenburg. The captain remained at the wheel during a gale which overtook the vessel next night and at 4 in the morning went to his cabin to change his wet clothes.

He had just got into dry underclothing when his vessel capsized, and he found himself standing on the roof of the cabin, the door of which the sea had hermetically closed.

By loosening the boards of what was now the roof he got into the hold, which contained only loose sails. Fortunately some shelves of a high cupboard remained intact, and from them he collected some cans of condensed milk, some prunes, rice, sugar and sausage. He also found a hammer.

For twelve days the master of the ship lived in his prison, eating as sparingly as possible and drinking sea water, which appeared to have no ill effect on him. He employed his free time in hammering on the steel bottom of the ship to attract the attention of passing vessels. He knew when it was day, for a dim light penetrated the water.

On the twelfth day the Norwegian steamer Aurora sighted the wreck and sent a boat to take it in tow. Engellandt had fallen asleep; but hearing footsteps over his head, he began knocking with his hammer and shouting for help. The Aurora's men returned to their ship for tools, with which they bored a hole through the bottom of the Erndte where they had heard the shouting. When they drew out their drill, a man's finger followed, and they soon learned that Engellandt had food for four days more and wished to be towed to land, for it was impossible to release him in the open sea.

The Aurora towed the wreck safely to Neufahrwasser, where with considerable difficulty it was attached to a huge crane, a pile was unloosed, and the imprisoned master was freed. He was perfectly conscious and even able to walk alone. The three men who had constituted his crew were of course drowned when the vessel capsized.—New York Tribune.

A PARIS CAFE.

The Winning Ways of a Smooth and Wily Extortionist.

At Paillard's and the Cafe de la Paix, which latter is now owned by Ledoyer, who began life as a bottle washer and is today worth 2,000,000 francs, you will be fairly certain of a carte with the prices affixed, but at the Cafe de Paris, unless you are known, you will meet the carte with no price stated, which means that you will be charged whatever the maitre d'hotel thinks you are able or willing to pay. It may be that you will suggest that the usual carte would be a greater compliment to your common sense, but if you do that you are a brave man. The cowards may console themselves with the reflection that in the eyes of the management they are either princes, rich Americans or fools. I have seen half a hundred princes, a few rich Americans and a great many fools, for unless one is born to the purple the maitre d'hotel of such a place as the Cafe de Paris is apt to tower above one, a greater man than Saul of Tarsus. I recall the incident of an American who did object, not to the carte, but to the bill as rendered, and what do you think happened to him?

"If monsieur pleases," suavely said the maitre d'hotel, "it will afford us the greatest pleasure to extend to monsieur the hospitality of the house, in which case monsieur will of course pay nothing, but unless monsieur wishes to accept we must ask him to pay the full amount of the bill as rendered. We cannot permit that our tariff should be questioned."

Oh, there are ways!—"Famous Cafes and Restaurants Abroad," by Aubrey Lanston, in Bohemian Magazine.

Shrewd Advice.

The virtues of a keen business man are often negative rather than positive. It is said that a great broker once told his son that only two things were necessary to make a great financier.

"And what are those, papa?" the son asked.

"Honesty and sagacity."

"But what do you consider the mark of honesty to be?"

"Always to keep your word."

"And the mark of sagacity?"

"Never to give your word."

Not at His Best.

"I was surprised," said the Rev. Mr. Goodman sternly, "to see you playing golf last Sabbath. I should think you'd do better."

"Oh," replied Harjman, "I usually do. I was in wretched form last Sunday."—Philadelphia Press.

Polyglot Surely.

A KING'S CARRIAGE.

Old Fashioned and Elaborate Vehicle Used in England.

England's state carriage is one of the most costly and splendid in the world. It was built in 1761 at a cost of $30,000 on the occasion of the marriage of George III, and has ever since carried the English kings and queens on all high state occasions. Sir William Chambers designed the vehicle, which weighs four tons.

Despite its many years' service its great wheels, gear and body are said to be as sound as when built, and it looks as if it would go on forever. Steel springs were unknown when the coach was built, and its ponderous yet dainty, luxurious body is suspended on leather braces, not unlike those of the old Concord stagecoaches of America. Its balance is so perfect that a touch of the finger is enough to set the body swinging on the big creaking straps which brace the carved and gilded tritons supporting the driver's seat and hammer cloth. The length of the vehicle is twenty-four feet, and it is twelve feet high.

The elaborate carvings cost more than the carriage proper, the coach builder's bill having been less than $9,000, while that of the carver was more than $10,000. Something of the character of the ornamentation may be guessed from the fact that the artist Cipriani received $1,500 for painting the panels and that the late maker's charge was about $4,000, the crimson satin interior of the carriage being most elaborately upholstered.

The preparation of the royal equipage for state occasions is a real sight. Six pairs of milk white horses from the royal stud are always used, and all wear false tails. The coachman, in powder and curls, mounts his seat with the aid of a ladder, but does not really drive, postilions on the horses and state grooms who walk beside them being in command of the team.—Philadelphia Press.

YOUNG COCOANUTS.

The Trick of Opening Them as Practiced by the Tahitians.

"Thinking a cocoanut is one of the simplest looking operations in the world, but I have not seen the white man who could do it effectively," writes Beatrice Grimshaw in her book, "In the Strange South Seas." Every native of Tahiti is apparently born with the trick.

A stick is sharply pointed at both ends, and one end is firmly set in the ground. The nut is then taken in the hands and struck with a hitting and tearing movement combined on the point of the stick, so as to split the thick, intensely tough covering of dense color fiber that protects the nut.

The nut comes forth white as ivory, about the same shape and size as the brown old nuts that go by ship to England and America, but much younger and more tender, for only the smallest of the old nuts, which are not wanted in the islands for copra making, are generally exported.

A large knife is used to crack the top of the nut all around, like an egg-shell, and the drink is ready, a draft of pure water, slightly sweet and just a little aerated, if the nut has been plucked at the right stage.

There is no pleasanter or more refreshing draft in the world, and it has not the least likeness to the "milk" contained in the cocoanuts of commerce. No native would drink from old nuts for fear of illness, as they are considered both unpleasant and unwholesome. Only the milk of half grown nuts is used for drinking, and even these will sometimes hold a couple of pinpoints of liquid.

The water of the young cocoanut is food and drink in one, having much nourishing matter held in solution. On many a long day of hot and weary travel I had cause to bless the refreshing and restoring powers of heaven's best gift to man in the tropics, the never failing cocoanut.

Settled the Ownership.

"There was a quaint old judge who used to live in the Pine Tree State," said a lawyer. "One of his decisions gained him the title of the 'Maitre Solomon.' Two women came before this magistrate with a fine, fat pullet, each declaring that it belonged to herself. The magistrate from his high seat frowned heavily at the first woman. 'Does this pullet belong to Mrs. Jones?' he asked her. 'No, indeed, it don't, sir,' she replied. Then he turned to the other woman. 'Does this pullet belong to Mrs. Smith?' 'It certainly does not,' the second woman replied.

"The pullet," the magistrate then decreed, 'does not belong to Mrs. Jones, nor does it belong to Mrs. Smith. The pullet is mine. Janitor, take it round to the house and give it to my cook.'"

A Great Change.

First Gentleman (entering the apartment of second gentleman)—About a year ago you challenged me to fight a duel. Second Gentleman (sternly)—I did, sir. First Gentleman—And I told you that I had just got married and I did not care to risk my life at any hazard. Second Gentleman (haughtily)—I remember, sir. First Gentleman (bitterly)—Well, my feelings have changed. Any time you want to fight let me know.—Human Life.

Beneficial Exercise.

"Are you taking any exercise for your health?" asked the wolf of the fox.

"Oh, yes," responded the latter, "and I am improving rapidly! I am taking part in an amateur country club fox hunt."—Baltimore American.

It is called strong drink because it can throw any man who tackles it.—Dallas News.

A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of G. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

He said, "If you attempt to adapt yourself to their condition, they will instantly discover it, and they will hate you."

A Queer Wedding Gift.
The daughter of a well known sporting baronet was recently given a prize pig by a relative as a wedding present. She was somewhat indignant at receiving such a present, for the relative in question was very well off, and she considered he could have afforded to send her something more valuable than a little pig with a bit of pink ribbon tied around its neck. Anyway, she gave the animal away to a farmer on her husband's estate, who six months later sold it at a show for 80 guineas.—Walter T. Roberts in London Lady's Realm.

What Makes a Bank Strong

In judging a Bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Few banks in the State have a larger margin of safety than THE BANK OF GREENVILLE which, with the watchful interest of a very capable and conservative board of directors and the constant inspection of the Corporation Commission, has built up here one of the best financial institutions in the county, one whose:

Capital, Surplus and PROFITS

now amounts to over

Sixty - Eight - Thousand Dollars.

Business respectfully solicited.
