MR. KITCHIN REFUTES CHARGES.

Editor of The Sun,
New Bern, N. C.

Your hostile course against me has doubtless taught your readers that it is not your purpose to give them any fair understanding of my record or my character.

You state in a double column article in your issue of May 23rd, "The Truth is that Mr. Futler fused with Mr. Kitchin in 1896" and thereby helped elect me. Your statement is untrue.

The populists in their fusion with the Republicans agreed to give my District to Mr. Settle. The Populist Chairman wrote a "confidential letter" throughout the district to the leading Populists, setting out the agreement. We got copies of that letter, and published the story all over the District. After the agreement was made and it became known the Populists would not vote directly for Mr. Settle, the Populists put out Dr. A. J. Dalby for Congress against me.

I would, and I think every honest reader of your paper would, like to know the motive which prompted you to mislead them, if, indeed, you had any other than a reckless desire to injure me. While your editorial untruly charges me with having a fusion with Butler for my election in 1896, yet, with striking inconsistency, it does not mention that Hon. Locke Craig was the head of the only fusion ticket that Butler's party ever effected with our State Executive Committee, or that he once was a Republican.

Why did you not publish your unjust editorial before I was in your city to speak, so that I could answer it to your people? Has your hostility been intensified since then?

You also say that I was "most earnest, urgent and insistent" upon acceptance of the Populist proposition for fusion in 1898. This is likewise untrue. I was a member of the Platform Committee, and every member of it, myself included, voted to reject that proposition, it being the only one the Populists would have, according to their statement. Then three members of the Committee, Governor R. A. Doughton, Hon. Josephus Daniels and myself, as I recall, favored offering a counter proposition in accordance with the relative strength of the two parties, desiring to place the responsibility on the Populists if we failed to get together. In Committee our views were out voted and that ended the matter.

As to your comment on my jocular reference to the votes which our pollholders assured for the amendment, which you distort and misconstrue, I make no comment, as I made my reference in your city and elsewhere to large crowds, and you can probably not mislead them.

I will be glad to meet your favorite anywhere to repel any attacks he may make on me.

Yours truly,
W. W. KITCHIN.
Roxboro, N. C., May 26th, 1908.

Inspecting Test Farmers.

Mr. T. B. Parker, secretary of the State board of agriculture, and Mr. C. R. Hudson, of the agricultural department, spent Wednesday inspecting the farms in this section where seed tests and demonstration work is being carried on. Several farmers in Pitt are carrying on these tests and demonstrations and so far are making satisfactory progress.

THE MADRIGAL CLUB.

Greenville Thoroughly Delighted with Their Concert.

Greenville people, at least those who were fortunate enough to be in the opera house Wednesday night, were never more thoroughly delighted by an entertainment than the concert given by the Madrigal Club, of Norfolk. The audience was so exultant that applause was almost constant to express appreciation.

The Madrigal Club is not a travelling organization giving concerts, but is the quartette choir and organist of Freemason Street Baptist church in Norfolk, and were induced to come here through the close friendship of some of our people and members of the club. And the town is certainly indebted to those whose influence brought them here to give us this rare musical feast.

The club is composed of Mr. Homer Moore, director and baritone; Mr. Edgar Meeks, tenor; Mrs. Frank Eberle, soprano; Mrs. George Bethell, contralto; Miss Emily LaBlanc, pianist. Every one of these is a musical artist of rare ability. Every voice has its own distinct qualities and they blend most harmoniously in quartette selections. Every number on the program was so heartily applauded as to call forth an encore.

Each member of the club gave solos that were equally as enjoyable as the quartettes. In fact there was not an indifferent selection in the entire program. Mr. Meeks, being already well known here, was a favorite, yet hardly more so than Mr. Moore, Mrs. Eberle, Mrs. Bethell and Miss LaBlanc, for each was generously applauded at every appearance.

It was a superb concert, and those who were not present have no idea what they missed. We hope the club can be induced to come here again. Our people are certainly under obligations to the Knights of Pythias for getting them this time.

WARD PRIMARIES.

Will Be Held Friday Night, 29th.

The primaries of the Democratic voters of the several wards of the town of Greenville will be held on Friday night, May 29th, at 8.30 o'clock, at the places stated below, for the purpose of nominating candidates for aldermen to be voted for in the election to be held on Monday, June 1st, 1908:

First ward, in the mayor's office.

Second ward, in the court house.

Third ward, in the Centre Brick warehouse.

Fourth ward, in Parham's warehouse.

Fifth ward, in Star warehouse.

J. G. Moye,
C. D. Rountree,
T. E. Hooker,
D. C. Moore,

They Go So Late.

Greenville people may be much like those of other towns in going late to places of public entertainment, but it is a habit that might well be reformed. It is hard to understand why people wait half an hour after the time stated for a program to begin before they come, yet that seems to be the custom.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

Oakley, N. C., May 29, 1908. J. K. Barnhill and family, of Winterville, spent a part of last week here.

H. A. Gray and Eli Rogers made business calls in Washington last week.

Preaching here last Sunday by Rev. Winfield.

We are glad to note Ben Jenkins has recovered from his recent sickness.

Gordon Hines went to Parmelee Sunday.

Crops are looking fine in this section.

J. E. Hines, of Washington, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his family here.

Miss Emma Roberson and little sisters, Nolie and Josephine, are visiting in town this week.

Mrs. Minnie Brown and daughters, Sybil and Gladys, of Wilson, are visiting relatives near here.

W. M. Hawley and family returned to their home in Goldsboro last week after spending several days here with relatives.

Mrs. Ann Page and daughter, Mrs. Claud House, left Sunday for Williamston where they have gone to visit relatives.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., May 28, 1908.

Bradstreet's (New York) Saturday will say for Richmond, Va. and vicinity:

Trade conditions generally slow, little change from reports of last week, however, a more optimistic feeling generally exists in those engaged in most lines.

Lumber conditions continue to improve. Dry Goods are dull. Produce and provisions are in fair demand. Manufacturers of trunks and bags report slightly increased sales. Railroads report slightly increased sales. Railroads report decreased business and many cars are idle. Considerable activity is noted in residential and small construction work. A small percentage of labor is re-employed. Banks are fully able to care for legitimate demands. Retail shows improvement.

Weather conditions favorable to crop growing and planting is about completed in North Carolina. Tobacco is being planted in Virginia and North Carolina and Virginia plants are reported plentiful, an increased acreage being expected. Winter wheat is in excellent condition. Collections are slow.

The Drum Corps.

Among the good features of election day in Greenville, the Bryan Grimes Drum Corps should not be forgotten. They added much to the day. The children will not forget for may a long day their marching behind the drums. It gave the whole procession a martial air. The boys had been out once before, on old soldiers' day. They take great interest in their corps and should have the encouragement of the town for they add no little to these civil and patriotic occasions. Hurrah, for the boys of the Bryan Grimes Drum Corps! All honor to the boys on May 26, 1908.

Much Enjoyed.

Just before the children's parade in the afternoon of election day Mrs. T. J. Jarvis served lemonade to all who took part, including the drum corps. It was enjoyed very much and the paraders were loud in their praise of Mrs. Jarvis.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

B. E. Patrick is quite sick with fever.

J. C. Cherry, of Cincinnati, is visiting here.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis is attending court in Snow Hill.

S. T. White returned Wednesday evening from Norfolk.

Miss Ethel Rowling returned this morning from Ayden.

Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Moore returned to New Bern today.

Miss Effie Grime, of Bethel, is visiting Mrs. F. J. Forbes.

Ames Brown came home Wednesday from the University.

Miss Nan Taylor, of Leaksville, is visiting Miss Vernessa Smith.

Miss Vernessa Smith came home Wednesday evening from school at Winston-Salem.

For sale—Splendid drive horse, safe for family use. Apply to J. B. Cherry or F. M. Wooten.

The members of the Madrigal Club, with the exception of Mr. Meeks who remained over to spend the day with H. A. White, returned to Norfolk on the morning train.

Mrs. Nannie William, one of the field workers of The North Carolina Children's Home Society, was here today in the interest of the society. This institution is doing a great work in caring for and finding homes for children.

"Insincere," Says Evelyn.

New York, May 27.—That the relations between Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and her husband's family are greatly strained was made apparent today when she issued a statement vigorously assailing "the insincere attitude assumed toward her by Mr. Thaw's relatives since the beginning of his trouble."

The statement followed an exchange of formal statements between Mrs. Thaw and Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Harry K. Thaw's mother, which were furnished after the discontinuance, yesterday, of the proceedings which young Mrs. Thaw began for an annulment of her marriage. She declared at that time that she had practically been forced to begin the action by pressure exerted by her husband's relatives and that she withdrew her suit because she believed her husband, in his present predicament, merited her loyalty.

Warning to all Boys.

New Bern, N. C., May 27.—Willie Boyette, a white boy, 14 years old, met a distressing death today. He had been in the habit of catching on trains moving in and out of the yards. While indulging in this pastime he was hanging on the iron steps of a box car and fell or jumped and was knocked down by the box of a wheel, causing injury which produced internal hemorrhages from which he died in a few minutes. No blame is attached to the railroad company.

Store Broken Into.

Wilson, N. C., May 27.—Last Sunday night the store of Mr. Geo. W. Whitehead, about one mile from Elm City, was broken into and goods to the amount of a hundred dollars or more were carried away. Entrance was effected through a window in the rear of the store.—News and Observer.

GREAT VICTORY PLEASES GLENN.

Governor is Tired and Worn but Happy Over Result.

Tired and worn from a campaign of nearly two months, during which time he spoke nearly every day, Governor Glenn returned to Raleigh today from Winston-Salem, where yesterday he cast his vote for prohibition. He delivered an address there Sunday.

"You may say," said the governor, "that I am broken down, but am in splendid spirits. I am happier over the result of the election than I have been over anything in a long time."

Governor Glenn is considerably tanned from constant exposure to wind and weather and is hardly able to be up. He was at his office early today, however.—Evening Times.

A SMART ENGLISHMAN.

The Story He Told of His Experience in "the States."

A tall, practical Englishman went over to "the States" the other day from London. He took lodgings at an inn in a small village, which shall be nameless. He had dinner, and among those who sat at the table with him was the waiting maid, whom he designated as "servant," but he received an indignant correction from the landlord.

"We call our servants, sir, 'helps.' They are not oppressed; they are not Russian serfs."

"All right," said the Britisher; "I shall remember."

And he did, for in the morning he awoke the whole house by calling out at the top of his voice, which was like the tearing of a strong rag:

"Help, help! Water, water!"

In an instant every person equal to the task rushed into his room with a pail of water.

"I am much obliged to you, I am sure," he said, "but I don't want so much water, you know. I only want enough to shave with."

"Shave with!" said the landlord. "What did you mean by calling: 'Help! Water?' We thought the house was afire."

"You told me to call the servant 'help,' and I did. Did you think I would cry 'Water!' when I meant fire?"

The explanation, it would seem, was satisfactory, and he can call the servants "servants" as much as he likes at that place now.—London Answers.

THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1908.

The large majority by which prohibition was carried in Tuesday's election, should settle for good and always the whiskey question in North Carolina. It is gratifying that the majority was so large. Had the majority been only a small one, there would have likely followed in each campaign in every close county a fight over the question in the hope of getting enough members of the legislature to repeal it. As it was carried by such a large majority, it should now be the purpose of every one to help make prohibition effective.

A gentleman of Goldsboro in a card to the News and Observer, mentions the name of Editor W. C. Dowd, of Charlotte, as a good man for lieutenant governor. No need of looking any further. There is not a man in North Carolina of finer character than W. C. Dowd, and he would ably fill the lieutenant governor's place.

The man who does not agree with you may have just as good reasons for his views as you have for yours. At any rate he has as much right to his opinions as you have to yours. This is one of the hurtful things in a campaign, that one man will talk about another man just as good as he is for no other reason than a difference of opinion.

Pitt, the home of the Eastern Carolina Teacher's Training School, and the county that is making such rapid progress educationally and industrially, gave largest majority for prohibition of any county east of the Wilmington and Weldon railroad. Pitt is all right.

The friends of any candidate could come nearer winning over recruits by considering the fact that some other people as well as themselves have a right to their own opinion.

The next thing to do, is to fix it so the drug stores cannot sell it, then work for a law that will prohibit the shipment of it into dry territory.

No doubt the Wilmington Star has discovered how the election went and is not yet looking for 29 wet counties.

We wish there could be quiet for a season, but politics will make it anything else.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

Washington will gladly furnish a site for that annual house of governors.

Chicago thinks it has found a second Cassie Chadwick. The country can't stand another one just yet.

J. Ogden Armour sold corn that he didn't own, and it has cost him a million dollars. It's terrible to gamble when you lose.

CIGARETTES AND TEA.

A Part of the Routine of Every Russian Business House.

"You forget," I observed, "that Russia is the original home and habitat of the cigarette," says the Odessa correspondent of the London Standard. "The little paper tube of tobacco was, so to say, a national institution among the Russians, gentle and simple, long before it was seen between the lips of the Englishman and Frenchman."

My friend, a British merchant, on his first visit to Russia, was being introduced to a local banking house. As the cashier momentarily laid aside his cigarette in a convenient ash tray to attend to us my visitor looked amazedly around the spacious room, where here and there among the staff of sixty clerks he saw the curling blue smoke of many cigarettes. The cashier proffered his cigarette case.

"Well, do you know," said my friend, "it is not by any means our notion of business, and yet somehow it looks homely and agreeable, and none of these fellows appears to be lazing or slinking." Then came a further surprise for my companion. A neatly dressed waitress emerging from some lower region was passing behind the chief counter bearing a large tray on which were some ten or twelve glasses of tea, with the usual small dish of sliced lemon and silver fork. The tea was first distributed to the senior clerks in the various departments, and the waitress returned for further supplies for the rest of the staff.

"Also a Russian institution?" smilingly queried the London merchant. "Exactly," I replied, "and the tea is of the finest quality." From the bank we drove to the postoffice and telegraph station. In these places it is forbidden to the public to smoke, but behind the counters in every department the cigarette and tea were just as much in evidence as they were at the bank. The tea is always supplied by the establishment, whatever it may be. The cigarettes the officials and clerks find themselves.

OUR FIRST PATENT.

Granted at Boston in 1648 and Was Called a Monopoly.

To the general court of Massachusetts belongs the honor of granting the first American patent. This was in 1648 and was then designated as a monopoly. It was confined to the region controlled by Massachusetts, and the one issue apparently included all the invention of the inventor connected with engines that depended upon water for their motive power. The limit of the monopoly was fourteen years, and the court not only retained power to forbid exportation, but to prevent exorbitant charges upon the public for their use. The patent was issued in this form:

Whereas Joseph Jenks, a general court of Boston the 27th of the 5th Mo 1648. The court considering ye necessity of raising such manufactures of engines of mills to go by water for speedy dispatch of much worke with few hands, and being sufficiently informed of ye ability of ye petition to performe such worke grant ye petition (yet no Othr per sen shall set up or use any such new invention, or trade for fourteen yeares without ye license of him the said Joseph Jenks) so far as concerns any such new invention, & so it shall be always in ye power of this corte to restrain ye exportation of such manufactures & ye prizes of them to moderation if occasion so require."

This inventor, Joseph Jenks, or Jenks, as it would now be spelled, came from Hammersmith, England, settled in Lynn in 1643 and died in 1682-3, aged eighty-one. He was a blacksmith and machinist, made the dies for the coining of the "Pine Tree" money and built the first fire engine in this country, altogether a man of great inventive genius and the ancestor of a large number of descendants. One of his sons removed to Rhode Island, where he built several mills.

Origin of Myths.

The human mind, whether that of the savage or the civilized man, is naturally a thinking machine. In early times, before science was born, the phenomena of nature required an explanation, and the savage babbler shaped the myth, which satisfied his untutored mind. It is out of man's natural craving to know the "reason why" that all myths are born. As the distinguished anthropologist, Taylor, puts it, "When the attention of a man in the myth making stage of intellect is drawn to any phenomenon which has to him an obvious reason, he invents and tells a story to account for it." In such way all mythology originated.

Fair Visitor—Why, I had no idea that novels were written in this way. Foreman of Six Best Seller Factory—Oh, yes! At these machines they punch in the plots, across the room they stitch in the description, the dialogue is put in by hand, and the whole then goes to the finishing room, where it is saved into chapters.—Puck.

A Bit of Tact.

"Do you say you paid a compliment to that hideous and spiteful baroness? I didn't think you could be so insincere." "I merely told her that her face was as beautiful as her heart."—Pilegende Blatter.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one. Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building In the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled. Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many? Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few hods of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a nice, hefty hod of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store.

And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY.

It is Now Rather Than in the Days of Knights Errant.

When we speak of the age of chivalry we are apt to imagine the existence at an earlier period of a finer sense of honor, of loftier ideals, of sublimer courage and of more devoted unselfishness than are found in the practical workaday world of today. As a matter of fact, "very gentil parfit knights," such as Chaucer describes, who rode about with squires, rescuing distressed damsels and redressing wrongs generally, were very few. The age was comparatively a harsh and cruel one. Oppression and violence prevailed, and human rights and justice were little regarded. Poverty was more general and the condition of the poor more abject than anything we know, and the richest enjoyed little of the comfort which is today well nigh universal.

People were supposed to bear the ills to which they were born, and all the efforts of a dozen knights in mail and plumed helmets did not go as far toward alleviating misery in a month as do the ministrations of a single visiting nurse now. We live in an age of chivalry vastly expanded. Where there was one worker for others in the knights' days, there are a hundred now, and chivalry permeates the spirit of all the good causes which enlist so many willing hands.

Between the tenth and fourteenth centuries it was but in the bud. Now it is in flower, and later on the full harvest of fruitage will come. There never was a time when there was such universal war against oppression of the weak and helpless, when every form of cruelty was so indignantly frowned upon, when womanhood and childhood were more sturdily championed and protected, when the poor and sick were so tenderly regarded and cared for or when the lower animals were made the object of such solicitude and shelter from harm and suffering. There never was a time when, at peace as we are with all the world, there were more constant exhibitions of quiet, modest courage and splendid heroism than are constantly occurring in the records of our daily lives. In all sorts of accidents—by fire and flood, by the forces of nature, by travel and by the operation of great industries—there is always some one ready, generally some, unknown, unheralded person, to risk his life in order to save others. If that isn't chivalry there never was such a thing. We do not yet by any means possess all the virtues, but courage and unselfish devotion in times of stress are very good to build on.—Washington Post.

Obesity and Genius.

The annals of genius are filled to overflowing with the names of men who toiled and achieved fame under a full habit. Nothing can be more unjust than the gibe about "fat and folly" and fatness and indolence. Martin Luther was as fat as Calvin was thin. Ernest Renan's obesity did not obscure his insight and brilliancy. Many writers and speakers have too long spoken indvidiously of fatness, but the best report we have been able to glean in our researches into this weighty subject is that of C. H. Spurgeon, the famous preacher. "People," said Spurgeon, "say I am fat. I am not fat. I am bone and flesh. My limbs, thank God, are amply clothed, and I am in my right mind."—Strand Magazine.

Walking.

Firm, regular steps are said to denote a steady, reliable nature, while jerky, uneven movements indicate the reverse. The energetic person walks quickly and stops suddenly. The dreamer saunters along with slow, abstracted mien. The obstinate man goes straight ahead, refusing to turn aside for anybody. On the other hand, the person who is ready to step out of any one's way is not necessarily weak willed. He may be afflicted with too much courtesy. The long, swinging step usually marks the generous, broad minded person, while the small, petty tread shows the walker to be of a mean and narrow character. This last rule applies, of course, far more to men than to women.

Big Trees.

The tallest tree in the world is the Australian eucalyptus, reaching a total altitude of 480 feet. The biggest are the mammoth trees of California, some of which are 276 to 376 feet in height and 108 feet in circumference at the base. From measurements of the rings it is believed that some of these trees are from 2,000 to 2,500 years old. The oldest tree in the world is said to be on the island of Kos, off the coast of Asia Minor. It is several thousand years old, but just how many no one has dared to say. The tree is carefully preserved by a wall of masonry around it, and the trunk is thirty feet in circumference.—Minneapolis Journal.

WANTED THEIR GOATS.

A Curious Adventure Among the Natives of Africa.

Mrs. Constance Larymore, author of "A Resident's Wife in Nigeria," recounts this curious adventure in Africa: "The sahib, as from inextinguishable Indian habit I still commonly call my husband, had gone out at sunset after deer, and during his absence the entire population of the village came streaming up the hill to the rest house, all talking loudly and at once and evidently under the influence of strong excitement. I was by that time well accustomed to creating a sensation whenever I appeared, no white woman having been seen previously, but these people struck me as having more than salutations in their minds and on their clamoring tongues. I had been six weeks in the country. My knowledge of Hausa was confined to salutations and a few simple words, so I summoned our interpreter to help me to entertain my visitors.

"They chattered, shouted and gesticulated at Paul, who eventually explained to me smilingly that they had never seen a white woman before and were anxious to offer me a personal welcome. I nodded and smiled in high gratification, thanked them cordially and when I had exhausted my small stock of polite salutations told the interpreter to give them leave to go home. This they did, somewhat reluctantly, I thought, but after describing the interview with some amusement to the sahib I dismissed the matter from my mind.

"Six weeks later we passed through Lukpa again on our way back to Lokola and found it deserted—not a man, woman or child, not a goat, not a fowl—all gone, obviously fled into the bush. I felt distinctly hurt at this churlish behavior on the part of my late admirers and learned long afterward that on our first visit our precious interpreter and others of our party had seized and killed every goat and fowl in the village. The wretched owners had rushed up to the rest house to complain, and all they got was 'Thank you!'

"I am not ashamed to confess that I cried when I made that discovery. The lesson, however, went home to us both and drove us to work ceaselessly at the Hausa language, knowing there could be no security for ourselves or justice for the people until we could be independent of dishonest interpretation."

AN INDIAN ATTACK.

One in Which Custer and a New York Broker Were Mixed Up.

Charles Osborn, a New York broker, and General Custer were intimate friends, and Osborn annually visited the general at his camp on the plains. During one of the Indian campaigns he invited Osborn and a party of friends to Kansas and after giving them a buffalo hunt arranged a novel experience in the way of an Indian scare. As Osborn was lying in his tent one night firing was heard at the outposts and the rapid riding of pickets. "Boots and saddles!" was the order in the disturbed atmosphere of the night, and Custer appeared to Osborn loaded with rifle, two revolvers, a saber and a scalping knife.

"Charles," he said in his quick, nervous way, "you must defend yourself. Sitting Bull and Flen In Your Boots, with Wiggle Tail Jim and Scalp Lock Skowheban, are on us in force. I did not want to alarm you before, but the safety of my command is my first duty. Things look serious. If we don't meet again, God bless you!"

The broker fell on his knees. "Custer," he cried, "only get me out of this! I'll carry a million shares of Western Union for you and let you into the firm to get me home! Only save me!"

But Custer was gone, and the camp by shrewd arrangement burst into a blaze, and shots, oaths and warwhoops were intermixed until suddenly a painted object loomed on Osborn's sight and something was flung into his face—a human scalp. He dropped to the ground and said the Lord's prayer backward and sideways until the noise died away and there was exposed a lighted supper table with this explanation on a transparency: "Osborn's Treat!"

A Strong Maid.

A cooking expert tells this story: "Only the other night, dining with some friends of mine, I saw a maid drop and break a superb platter that contained two roast canvasback ducks. Our host did not permit this accident to ruffle him. While we waited for some other course to be substituted for the last one he said: 'You must excuse that maid. These accidents happen almost daily with her. I think it is a disease. She was, I believe, a dairy-maid originally, but she had to abandon that occupation on account of her inability to handle the cows without breaking their horns.'"

Beware the French "Tabac."

A suggestion: If you are a smoker and are going to tour France take your own tobacco or pipe or cigars, for no American can smoke the "tabac" sold in France. Cigars are unobtainable outside the large cities, and the smoking tobacco is of international quality—you smoke it in one country and smell it in another.—Outing Magazine.

Popping the Question.

"Hello!" said the corn. "Was that you whispering?" "Yes," replied the wind. "I've been trying to catch your ear for some time."—Bohemian Magazine.

Discreet.

Lawyer (to applicant for position)—Yes, I need an office boy. Are you truthful? Boy—Yes, sir, but I ain't truthful enough to hurt your business.—Chicago News.

RUNNING AN ENGINE.

Force of a Locomotive Going Sixty Miles an Hour.

At sixty miles an hour the resistance of a train is four times as great as it is at thirty miles—that is, the fuel must be four times as great in the one case as it is in the other. But at sixty miles an hour this fuel must be exerted for a given distance in half the time that it is at thirty miles, so that the amount of power exerted and steam generated in a given period of time must be eight times as great at the faster speed. This means that the capacity of the boiler, cylinders and the other parts must be greater with a corresponding addition to the weight of the machine. Obviously, therefore, if the weight per wheel, on account of the limit of weight that the rails will carry, is limited, we soon reach a point when the driving wheels and other parts cannot be further enlarged, and then we reach the maximum speed. The nice adjustment necessary of the various parts of these immense engines may be indicated by some figures as to the work performed by these parts when the locomotive is working at high speed. Take a passenger engine on any of the big railroads. At sixty miles an hour a driving wheel five and one-half feet in diameter revolves five times every second. Now, the reciprocating parts of each cylinder, including one piston, piston rod, cross head and connecting rod, weighing about 650 pounds, must move back and forth a distance equal to the stroke, usually two feet, every time the wheel revolves, or in a fifth of a second. It starts from a state of rest at the end of each stroke of the piston and must acquire a velocity of thirty-two feet per second in one-twentieth of a second and must be brought to a state of rest in the same period of time.

A piston eighteen inches in diameter has an area of 254 1/2 square inches. Steam of 150 pounds pressure per square inch would therefore exert a force on the piston equal to 38,175 pounds. This force is applied alternately on each side of the piston ten times in a second. —Chicago News.

A WONDERLAND.

New Zealand's Belt of Geysers of Boiling Water.

If one can imagine a furious and active volcano with a crater a thousand miles in extent, sunk level with the earth and thinly covered with a screen of soil, one has some idea of the awe inspiring "wonderland" of New Zealand's north island. You cannot poke a stick into the ground without starting a boiling spring, and wherever you turn the ground is fairly alive with geysers of boiling water—steam jets and blowholes, with quivering volcanoes and gurgling "mud pots," all colored fantastically with rainbow hues, ranging from brilliant sapphires to vivid scarlet. Stranger still, the entire face of this region is constantly changing in shape and color, and there are hot springs here stretching in a continuous chain for 300 miles. The ground throbs and quivers with volcanic activity, and in the midst of it all are native Maori villages of surpassing interest, a strange race of magnificent savages, who, although they have been cannibals within the memory of man, are now a highly intelligent race and actually send representatives to the parliament in Wellington.

The native women, gorgeous in garments of crimson, green and purple, are forever puffing stolidly at big pipes and going hither and thither about their household work with the quaintest of babies slung across their backs. This reminds me that domestic work in this strange region is made light indeed for white housewives as well as the Maori women. Every garden and back yard has its hot water provided by nature.

And when these easy going people grow hungry the mother prepares a meat pudding or a joint and drops it into a convenient pot of natural boiling water in the earth, and in a few minutes it is cooked. The same conveniences are still more in evidence on washing day. Stepping carefully through a tangle of boiling geysers and gurgling mud pots, one suddenly comes upon a great collection of native women and girls doing their washing in a vast smoking lake big enough to have steamers on it.—W. T. Fitz-Gerald in St. Nicholas.

Usually the Way. "A man likes to hear hissef talk so well," said Uncle Eben. "dat mos' conversation looks jes' like two people impatiently waitin' deir turns to say sumpin'."—Washington Star.

ANTS BUILD SKYSCRAPERS.

The white ants, or termites, are great builders. A naturalist exploring in Somaliland came across a cone shaped mud and clay hill which they had constructed which was eighteen feet in height, while many others were from ten to fifteen feet high. When one compares the size of these ants with that of men it becomes apparent that these hills are real skyscrapers from the termite viewpoint, if there is any. While the average man is five and one-half feet high, the ants are only half an inch high. Therefore a ten foot ant hill is 240 times the size of one of its builders, while such a structure as the Eiffel tower, though rising 984 feet, is only about 179 times the height of the average man.

His Accursed Luck.

The intoxicated individual who, after bumping into the same tree thirteen times, bemoaned the fact that he was lost in an impenetrable forest is no greater disgrace to modern civilization than the hero of this story:

A citizen of Seattle who had looked upon the wine when he was no longer sure what color it was in the course of his journey home encountered a tree protected by an iron tree guard. Grasping the bars, he cautiously felt his way around it twice.

"Curse it!" he moaned; sinking to the ground in despair. "Locked in!"—Everybody's Magazine.

The Widow's Devotion.

There was a man hanged for murder in Sydney, Australia. By his widow's consent, his figure was exhibited in a local wax works show. Every Sunday for six months the woman, dressed in deepest mourning, called and put a clean shirt on the unresisting form of the wax man. Then her visits stopped. Some time after, happening to meet the manager of the show, the lady explained, with many blushes, that she had married again and her new husband energetically objected to her wifely attention to the toilet of No. 1's graven image.

Triumphant.

"When you get in a crowd, my dear," said Mr. Winkles to his wife, "always look out for pickpockets." "I'm not afraid of them, dearest," answered Mrs. Winkles. "They can't pick my pocket." "That's just like you women," said Mr. Winkles, "always so sure. Pray tell me why you couldn't have your pockets picked." "Because I haven't got any," answered Mrs. Winkles proudly.

Amiable.

"Daughter, is your husband amiable?" "Well, ma, he's just exactly like pa. When he gets his own way about everything he's just perfectly lovely."—Pathfinder.

No Operation

Mrs. Malinda Akers, of Basham, Va., writes: "I had what doctors call 'prolapse,' and couldn't stand straight. I had pain in my back and shoulders, and was very irregular and profuse. Doctors said an operation was needed, but I couldn't bear the thought of the knife. After taking three bottles of Wine of Cardui, I could walk around. Can now do my housework and am in splendid health."

Cardui is a pure, vegetable, medicinal essence, especially adapted to cure women's diseases. It relieves excessive periodical pains, regulates irregularities, and is a safe, pleasant and reliable remedy for all sick women. In successful use for over 70 years. Try it.

At Every Drug Store in $1.00 Bottles.
