Of Interest To Democrats.

The National Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has begun active operations at its headquarters at Washington, D. C. In addition to its regular work, it is now preparing a campaign hand-book which it hopes to have ready for distribution by July 1—two or three months earlier than heretofore.

The committee is charged with the duty of assisting, in every way possible, the election of a Democratic congress. We wish the active co operation of every voter in the United States who believes, with us, that the election of a Democratic congress would greatly benefit the country. We must rely upon the people to sustain our work by giving information as to local conditions, and suggestions for our guidance.

Each individual can at least aid us by making a contribution. Will he not do so and interest others in helping us too?

We wish our campaign hand-book distributed as generally as possible, and we will furnish a copy as soon as published, to every one who contributes to our committee.

Send remittances to me at Washington, D. C.

JAMES T. LLOYD, Chairman.

Locke Craig's First Vote.

The advocates of Locke Craig have little to say about his voting for Jim Blaine, in 1884, and he or they have permitted the public to believe that he cast his first vote in 1884 and was only partially a scallawag. According to the information that reaches the Southerner from Bertie, where in the eighties he resided, his first vote was cast in 1882, and not for Ridsen T. Bennett, who headed the Democratic State ticket that year as Congressman at large, but for the straight Republican ticket headed by "My son Oliver," O. H. Dockery. Is Craig one of the "dodgerests of dodgers?" —Tarboro Southern.

Beginning Monday there will be a charge for crossing the ferry between 9 o'clock at night and sunrise.

THE SUN REPLIES.

The following is the reply of the New Bern Sun to the letter of Mr. Kitchin which appeared in the issue of this paper Thursday:

In regard to the statement that "Mr. Butler fused with Mr. Kitchin in 1896," he says is untrue. He says the populists agreed to give his district to Mr. Settle in 1896. True, they did enter into that agreement; but they didn't stick to it any better than Butler stuck to his declared conviction when Elias Carr was nominated for governor in 1892. Butler then advised the embryonic "third party" folks—Populists—to support Mr. Carr adding that if they did not do so, in any action they might take independent of the democratic party, they would be at the "sufferance of the republican party, both now and hereafter." He wrote that—or words to that effect, we are quoting from memory—in the Caucasian, then published at Clinton. Sixteen days after Butler was chairman of the populist convention in Raleigh which nominated Pat Exum for governor!

Yes, the agreement was made to give the district to Mr. Settle, but Settle would not knuckle to the populist demands, and Dr. Dalby was put up as a dummy. Mr. Kitchin got the votes, as the result showed, and without them he could not have been elected. If Mr. Kitchin had not represented populist views he could not have received their votes for congress. The facts do not support Mr. Kitchin's denial. Every intelligent man, who has watched the course of political events in North Carolina, knows that if Dr. Dalby had received the populist vote in the fifth district Mr. Settle would have remained in congress.

Mr. Kitchin touches lightly on the 1898 proposition. The editor of The Sun was one of Mr. Kitchin's constituents in that year, and knows personally that Mr. Kitchin was "earnest, urgent and insistent" for fusion with Butler and his forces, and it does not excuse him because there were others in favor of the same scheme. More's the pity. But by trying to dodge this charge Mr. Kitchin knows the record is against him, and he is compelled to admit that he favored fusion "in accordance with the relative strength of the two parties," adding that "in the committee our views were out voted." By his own language Mr. Kitchin admits that our charge is true.

Mr. Kitchin says that we, "with striking inconsistency," do not mention "that Hon. Locke Craig was the head of the only fusion ticket that Butler's party ever effected with our State executive committee or that he once was a Republican." We have never thought that fusion on the electoral ticket was wise in 1896, and have never defended it. We will not do so now. Mr. Craig simply obeyed the expressed mandate of his party. Neither do we think any more of Mr. Craig for having, in his early life, voted one Republican ticket, but in justice and fairness it should be said that the striking point of difference here is that Mr. Craig has repented of his sins, and made full atonement; Mr. Kitchin has not, and is trusting to evasive denials and the short memory of the people to let him out.

And in saying this we wish to make it plain to Mr. Kitchin that we are not supporting Mr. Craig in this contest. We are unreservedly and avowedly for Hon. Ashley Horne. He is "our favorite," and if he has made any attack on Mr. Kitchin or anybody else, the proof has not yet appeared.

Repent of your sins, Mr. Kitchin, and come before the people with clean hands. Don't try to atone for political errors by stating that you had company and that Mr. Doughton, Mr. Daniels or anybody else, was in favor of the unholy, undesirable and revolting trade with the populists which you admit you favored in 1898.

One word more. Accusing the poll holders of your party of stealing elections is entirely too serious a matter for a dignified candidate for the highest office in the state to joke about.

THE WARD PRIMARIES.

Nominate Candidates for Aldermen For the Town of Greenville.

Notwithstanding the rain that came just about the time of meeting, there was a good attendance of voters at the primaries in the different wards, Friday night, to nominate candidates for aldermen. In each of the wards except the fifth (and that was through oversight) the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, it is the sense of the voters of the — ward that the paving now under construction should be continued to the Atlantic Coast Line depot, be it therefore resolved that our representatives on the board of aldermen are hereby directed to use every reasonable means to accomplish the completion of the paving on Dickinson avenue as set out above."

If the convention in Charlotte on June 24th wants to do the State and the Democratic party a good service, let it put aside the men who are making such a scramble for governor and put the nomination in the hands of ex-Gov. Assistant Attorney General Clement is receiving letters of inquiry regarding the construction of the Supreme Court's decision on the poll tax question. He replies that the court holds that the State and county poll tax cannot exceed $2 and no city or town can levy a larger sum.

He cites the court's opinion in the Mecklenburg county case so the county commissioners can understand it fully when they meet. He says: "No other or further capitation or poll tax than $2 can be levied for any purpose. Thus all statutes levying property tax and poll tax combined in excess of $2 are invalid. This decision does not affect the poll tax levied in connection with the pension tax, that being a State tax and combined with the other tax does not exceed $2. The county commissioners in levying taxes for the present year will therefore eliminate all special tax on polls and levy the usual $2 as construed by the Supreme Court in the case. This decision in no manner affects the poll tax levied by the State but only requires that all special poll taxes levied by county commissioners in excess of $2 are void."—Raleigh cor Charlotte Observer.

SOCIAL CALLS IN CHINA.

Start by Telling Names and Ages and End With Tea Drinking.

In our ordinary social life acquaintanceship commences through personal introduction by friends or by letters of introduction, in official life almost always in the latter way. With you a fresh comer arriving in your neighborhood to dwell is called upon by the older residents if the newcomer be considered entitled to that courtesy and you think the friendship is worth cultivating.

This is not the custom with us. With us the newcomer makes the first call on the old residents. The gentleman calls alone, and after the acquaintanceship has been formed the newly arrived lady will send her maid with the message that she proposes to call on the neighboring lady, and the latter names the day and hour at which she will receive her visitor. Leaving cards, with us, is an act of courtesy which also occupies a very prominent part in the daily routine of a gentleman's life, especially when he is moving in official circles.

When the visitor is ushered into the presence of the visited the visitor bows to his host or on more formal occasions makes courtesy to him. Handshaking, not being the custom, is dispensed with. The making of a courtesy is called "ching nyan" in China. If any one does that to you, you must return it, although you can return it in a more or less formal way. This having been done, the host will assign his visitor to the place of honor, which may be on the right or left, according to circumstances.

When both the visitor and his host are seated the conversation is generally opened, if meeting for the first time, by asking each other's surname, then their other names, age, district whence they come and all sorts of such meaningless generalities as you are accustomed to hear in high society. But it is always customary with us to prefix the word "honorable"—e. g., instead of saying, as you do, "Whom have I the pleasure of addressing?" we say, "What is your honorable name?" Other questions are asked by us in the same complimentary strain. With you your custom is quite different, as for you to ask the age of any of your visitors would be considered very rude, especially if meeting for the first time. But in China you may have no misgivings as to shocking any one's tender susceptibilities by so doing.

The official calls are principally business ones, and as soon as the business is terminated the host raises his teacup to his lips, which cup is always there, whether wanted or not, for in China there is no such custom as 5 o'clock tea. As soon as the visitor sees that his attendant will cry out in a very loud voice, "Ngan chiao"—that is, "Get the sedan chair in readiness"—or "Tao chuan"—that is, "Put the horse to the carriage"—as the case may be. When either of these conveyances is ready, which is shown by the return of the servant and by his collecting his master's appurtenances, such as his smoking pipe, etc., he will rise and give his host a deep bow, at the same time folding his two hands, which bow his host returns in a similar way.—Shanghai Times.

Byron's Proposal.

Lord Byron in 1830 seriously turned his thoughts to matrimony. He confided to a friend his intention of proposing to Miss Milbanke, the daughter of Sir Ralph Milbanke. The friend thought some other lady more suitable and agreed with Byron to write a proposal for him. One day as the two were sitting together Byron received a refusal from the lady. "You see," said he, "that after all Miss Milbanke is to be the person. I will write to her." Accordingly he did so, and the friend, who was still opposed to his choice, on reading over the letter remarked: "It really is a very pretty letter. It is a pity it should not go." "Then it shall go," said Byron. It went, and the result was the miserable marriage which is now a matter of history.

Troubles of Her Own.

"I am so troubled about my husband," said Mrs. Badman, seeking sympathy from the pastor's wife. "He goes from bad to worse. He is an infidel and an atheist, and now he says he is an agnostic and doesn't know anything and doesn't believe anything and doesn't think anything." "My dear sister," replied the pastor's wife, "you don't know what trouble is. My husband thinks he knows how to cook."

A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of G. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Spent up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

PROGRESS OF DEATH.

Sensations of One Overtaken by the "Sleep of Snow."

Pastor Bertrand was climbing a mountain with a party of students. Feeling tired, he lay down to rest while the others proceeded and was overtaken by the "sleep of snow." He felt himself as if struck by apoplexy. His head was perfectly clear, but his body was powerless. He tells his story thus:

"A kind of prayer was sent up, and then I resolved to study quietly the progress of death. The sensation was not painful, but at last my head became unbearably cold, and it seemed to me that convulsive pinches squeezed my heart so as to extract my life. I never felt such pain, but it lasted only for a minute, and my life went out. 'Well,' thought I, 'I am what they call a dead-man, and here I am, a captive balloon attached to the earth by a kind of elastic spring and going up and always up! When my companions return they will say, 'The professor's dead.' They do not know I never was so alive as I am! The proof is I see them now—the guide is stealing a leg of my chicken. 'Go on, old fellow! Eat the whole if you choose, for I hope my corpse will never eat again.' Hello! There is my wife going to Lucerne. 'Well, wife, goodbye!' I confess I did not call dear the one that has always been very dear to me. I felt neither regret nor joy at leaving her. My only regret was that I could not cut the string. Suddenly a shock stopped my ascension. I felt that somebody was pulling the balloon down. My grief was measureless. When I reached my body I had a last hope. The balloon seemed much too big for the month. Suddenly I uttered the awful roar of a wild beast. The corpse swallowed the balloon—and Bertrand was Bertrand again!"

In other words, the exertions of his friends were successful in resuscitating him.—Leon Landsberg in Boston Post.

AN ISLAND OF MASSACRES.

Over Five Million People Have Been Assassinated in Haiti.

Haiti has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rabble rout that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 gentle, brown skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines, to which they were utterly unsuited. In all history is no tragedy more colossal and more pitiful than this one.

Next the buccanniers seized the unhappy island and wreaked vengeance on the Spaniards in such a manner that even the old chroniclers tell of the worst of the atrocities only in the Latin tongue.

Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites, the scenes enacted resembling those that took place at Cawnpore and elsewhere during the Indian mutiny, but magnified a thousandfold.

On account of these atrocities frightful reprisals took place when France in due course reconquered the island. But the negroes bided their time and presently rose again, under a ruffian named Dessalines.

This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate. Many of the victims were burned alive after having been first tortured.

In all it is computed that over 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm fringed strand.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sleep Talkers.

It is a curious fact that people when talking in their sleep are always truthful and never evasive, but if their feelings are played upon by their questioner they will betray great anger. Their eyes are always tightly closed, and the intonation of the voice is very different from the tones used when the person is fully awake. Sleep talkers may by conversation be brought to remember a dream within a dream, and they will recollect what happened in preceding dreams. Very often mental anxiety will make people talk in their sleep when under other conditions they would never do it.

The Lancer Snake.

There is a snake called the lancer, which lives in South America and is very ready with its fangs. It is a small, brown, insignificant beast, but its bite induces a sort of imaginary swelling all over the victim's body. He feels as if every inch of him were being strained to breaking point, and the agony which results is too awful for words. Generally, however, the excess of pain drives the bitten man mad before very long, and in four hours he dies—a senseless imbecile.

Her Objection.

Mrs. Binks—Would you like to come to church with me this morning? You may sit in my pew if you like. Mrs. Jinks—Sorry, my dear, but my hat isn't trimmed for that side of the church.—Judge.

Something Gained.

Mrs. Gramercy—I hear the customs authorities seized all the finery you brought over from Paris. Will it be a total loss? Mrs. Park—Why, no, dear; I got my name in the papers.—Puck.

Silence and blushing are the eloquence of women.—Chluse.

To all knowing sufferers of the mistm whether n-u-cular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagoes, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these troubles. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. Simple discovery banishes ur acid from the blood; loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood and brachens the eye, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for pr of address Mrs. M. Summers, Box R. Notre Dame, Ind.

Wanted His Tip.

"In Astoria," said a Washington state official, "there used to be an old fisherman who brought me the first of every month a present of a splendid salmon from his master. I always gave the old fisherman a tip."

"But one morning I was very busy, and when the old boy brought the fish I thanked him hurriedly and, forgetting his tip, bent over my desk again. He hesitated a moment, then cleared his throat and said:

"Senator, would ye be so kind as to put it in writin' that ye didn't give me no tip this time, or my wife'll think I've went and spent it on rum."—Los Angeles Times.

Fresh Water Fish in Germany.

German law does not permit of fresh water fish being sold except when alive. Therefore it is common to see tanks of such fish in the restaurant windows, and they are hauled in this way considerable distances over Prussian railways, and shipments are made to Berlin from Lyons, in France, and from as far south as Roumania.

We had a nice rain yesterday evening.

The election passed off very quietly Tuesday.

Well, I'll tell you about a Sunday school that I consider a model one. I received a letter from one of my grand daughters at Scotland Neck, the other day, and she told me that there were sixty young ladies in her class and it required three teachers for it. She said that there were more than three hundred attendants. I think it must be one of the best Sunday schools in the State. It is a Missionary Baptist school.

House Blown Down on Colored Man.

During the rain storm early Friday night Henry Fleming, a colored man took shelter in the old shack of a building on Ninth street, near the Norfolk & Southern railroad track, that was once used as a hogshead factory. A hard gust of wind that came along with the storm blew the building down and caught Henry under it. Some gentlemen going by a little later on their way to the ward meeting heard Henry's call for help and rescued him. He was considerably bruised but not seriously hurt.

Sunday Train to Morehead.

Beginning on June 7th and on every other Sunday during the season, the Norfolk & Southern railway will run trains from Raleigh to Morehead City and Beaufort. These trains will leave Raleigh at 6 a. m., Greenville at 9.17 a. m., running through direct to Beaufort, returning leave Beaufort at 5.10 p. m. This will give an opportunity of spending half a day at the seaside. The round trip fare from Greenville to Morehead City is $1.50 and to Beaufort $1.70.

THE SINUOUS EEL.

It Will Bite Long After It Has Been Decapitated.

Eels are peculiar even among fishes. A strange and mysterious race, the difficulty of killing them is not the least of their peculiarities. Very many of us have been annoyed by the ordinary eel that has seized our worm and then tangled up our line in its slimy coils. You may cut off the head of an eel in the manner recommended by the S. P. C. A.—and leave his body full of squirms and wriggles, for the eel is a hateful and mean creature. I have been told that the true method is first to cut off the eel's tail and that after this the severance of the head brings all life and movement to an end. As to this I cannot say, for I only heard this recently and have not since had to deal with a sinuous eel. A correspondent has cited an instance of a conger left apparently dead for twenty-four hours on the beach, which then bit three fingers from the hand of a small boy who came to handle it. I can well believe this. I shall not easily forget the eerie shock which I had on a certain occasion in Wales. I had caught a large eel on a night line set for pike. We had severed his head and left him for some hours on the bank, leaving a good hook in his gullet. In the evening he was presented to a small boy, who bore him off in triumph as a supper dish. Half an hour later the boy's mother appeared, with some concern and indignation, to relate that the head had bitten the boy severely when he tried to remove the excellent hook. And this was no conger! The occurrence seemed to me like the horror in one of Kipling's most weird stories of untanny horror. Whether these posthumous wounds by eels betoken the remnants of life in their severed portions or a mere mechanical flicker of the nervous system only the biologist could say. And perhaps he would be only making a guess.—St. James' Gazette.

LOST THE CASE.

A Simple Test to Which the Defendant Objected.

An English solicitor was defending a fruit broker in an action brought in a London court for the recovery of $100, the price paid for a consignment of figs which the plaintiff declared to be unfit for human food. The defense alleged that, although moderately discolored by salt water, as the plaintiff knew when he bought them, the figs were perfectly wholesome. The figs were in court.

The plaintiff, a coster, who conducted his own case, was skillfully cross-examined. The trial was obviously going against him, and once or twice he retorted so hotly that the judge threatened to commit him for contempt.

At length the coster grew desperate and, turning to the opposing counsel, hoarse and perspiring, he said:

"Look here, gu'nor, you say them figs are good to eat, and I say they ain't. That's all there is between us, ain't it? Now, s'elp me, if you'll eat two of them figs and you ain't sick immediately afterward I'll lose my case."

The judge at once saw the propriety of this suggestion and asked the lawyer what he proposed to do.

"Your honor is trying this case, not I," was the reply.

"No, no! The offer is made to you," said the judge.

A hurried consultation took place. Counsel suggested that it was the solicitor's duty to submit to the experiment. The solicitor refused. The broker himself was then asked if he would risk it.

"What will happen to me if I don't?" said he.

"You'll lose the case," replied both his legal advisers.

"Then," said he hurriedly, "lose the case, lose the case!" And so he did.
