FUSION IN 1896 AND 1898.

Mr. Allsbrook Answers the Statements Made by New Bern Sun That Hon. W. W. Kitchin Fused

To the Editor: The gravamen of this charge by the New Bern Sun is that Hon. W. W. Kitchin fused with Buller and the Populists in the Fifth District in 1896, and insisted upon Fusion in the State with them in 1898.

Every man in North Carolina who has paid any attention to the facts knows that both statements are absolutely false. These who have seen the manly letter of Hon. W. W. Kitchin of May 26th, 1908, to the editor of the New Bern Sun nailing these falsehoods and stating the facts need no further evidence on the subject. But read, if you will, the following from the pen of Marion Butler, editor of the Caucasian, in its issue of October 29th, 1896:

"We declare it will be a burning shame if the Peoples Party permits even the shadow of success to attend the efforts of the Democrats to over-turn and disintegrate the Populist organization in the fifth District. Rally to the standard of our honored nominee, Hon. A. J. Dalby. Do this if you are an honest Populist, and if you cannot do it, then stop calling yourself a Populist. No man is wanted in the ranks of the Populists who will not support our policy."

See also the letter of Hal W. Ayer, Populist chairman, published in the Caucasian October 29th, 1896, in which he says among other things:

"In State and Congressional matters I have with the approval and assistance of your State committee, effected an arrangement with the Republican party"

Again, in 1898, quoting from the Caucasian of October, 1898:

"The People's Party Congressional committee met on the 11th day of May in Durham and endorsed the nomination of Judge Spencer B. Adams for congress in the Fifth District."

(Signed) W. O. Stratford, Ch'm. P. P. Congressional Com.

As to State Fusion in 1898, it is well known that the platform committee of the Democratic State convention, of which Mr. Kitchin was a member, considered the proposition from the Populists and unanimously rejected it, and declined to entertain any further proposition from them unless the same should be submitted to and be unanimously approved by the convention. For the purpose of placing the responsibility for continued negro domination in North Carolina, upon the Populists, who were white men, three members of this committee, Hon. R. A. Doughton, Hon. Josephus Daniels, and Hon. W. W. Kitchin did suggest to the committee that a counter-proposition be sent back to the Populists, based upon the relative strength of the two parties at the last election. (The Populists having only 30,000 votes and the Democrats 140,000 votes.)

Governor Jarvis, also a member of this committee—see News and Observer May 27, 1898—in his report to the convention, said:

"As to some matters that came before this committee, the committee was divided. Three members of the committee suggesting that in reply to certain propositions sent to the committee by this convention, we should make a counter-proposition. These men were rs good Democrats as we are, and had at heart the welfare of the party as much as the other members of the committee, and as evidence of their loyalty to their party, and their unalterable allegiance to its interests, they have consented to present no minority report."

The author of this reckless or wilful editorial in the New Bern Sun is none other than Robert M. Phillips recently editor of the Morning Post at Raleigh during its short and in-glorious career as organ of the Southern Railway Company and the trusts subsidized for the purpose of destroying The News and Observer.

And yet, the Craig forces have adopted it, embraced it, circularized it, and made it their slogan and chief campaign document. Note the following clipping from the Asheville Citizen, one of Mr. Craig's leading organs:

"Mr. Kitchin has so persistently tried to escape the odium of his fusion with Butler in 1896, that the New Bern Sun recently went to get the exact data concerning the illustrious Willie, and the result of its researches are so interesting that the Citizen has been requested by several of Mr. Craig's friends to publish the editorial."

Assaults upon W. W. Kitchin from such sources are harmless. They merely disclose who and where the enemy is. Unable to control him, they now seek to destroy the man who stands with a record that none, in an open honorable debate, dare dispute. Kitchin's strength lies in the love and loyalty of the people, and to them and to them alone he appeals. And they are answering in the primaries, and they will answer at Charlotte in a voice that all can hear.

RICHARD C. ALLSBROOK, Tarboro, N. C., June 1, 1908.

Ashley Horne's success has enabled him to invest his money in enterprises and this has given work to people and placed money in circulation. Business is suffering today because money has been withdrawn from circulation and thereby the wheels of industry have stopped. We need more Ashley Horne's who are not afraid to turn loose their money and thereby help their fellow man.

The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Knowing it to be the advantage of the tobacco farmers, we, as a body, suggest to and advise them to prime off what is known as plant led leaves before they plow their tobacco the last time and let them go on the ground. None of the manufacturers, and no tobacco dealers want that sort of stuff, and we know where the plant led leaves are taken off before they get ready to be cured it causes the rest of the plant to have more body and weight.

We hope the farmers in Pitt and other counties around will take our advice and let the plant led leaves go on the ground. In doing so we are sure they would make a better and more desirable crop of tobacco.

E. B. Ficklen, Vice Pres. C. W. Harvey, Sec and Treas. 64 2td 1tw

Now is the opportunity to make a successful farmer a successful governor of North Carolina.

Major Langdon's Attitude to Business Men.

To the Editor: You will please allow me space to answer the letter of Mr. L. M. Michaux, of Goldsboro, published in a recent issue, in which he tries to make it appear that I am opposed to the business men of this State, which of course needs no answer among those who know me, and this is written only for the information of those who do not know me.

Although he says in his card that "it is not my intention to do injustice to Major Langdon," yet while he states that on my motion the Senate in 1903 tabled a bill to appoint a commissioner to investigate discriminations in freight rates, he fails to state also on my motion, made at the same morning session, the bill was taken from the table and resumed its former position on the Senate calendar just the same as if no motion had been made by me. And yet the Senate Journal shows this fact and the further fact that on the motion of Senator Travis (one of the most patriotic and intelligent members of the Senate) the bill was then amended by striking out the objectional section (which created a new office at the expense of $200 a month) and substituting in lieu thereof another section directing the Corporation Commission (without any additional expense) to do the very thing called for in this bill. If this was opposing the business men of the State, then the large majority of the Senate were responsible.

And if the Senate theory did so grievous a wrong (as would be inferred from Mr. Michaux's card) in thus requiring the Corporation Commission to do, without any additional expense whatever, that which this bill sought to have done by a new officer at an additional expense of $200 a month, then surely it would seem that such a grievous outrage (?) would have been remedied at the next or some subsequent Legislature; but strange to say, no attempt whatever has ever been made by anybody to do this!

In the concluding paragraph of his card Mr. Michaux asks what can be expected of me if I get to be commissioner? I will answer by simply saying that I will join my fellow commissioners in doing all that can be done to remove the unjust freight discrimination existing against our North Carolina cities, and which removal can be effected only by the United States Interstate Commerce Commission. On this very day our Corporation Commissioners are at Winston prosecuting before a United States Interstate Commerce Commissioner this very charge of unjust freight discrimination, and I earnestly hope that their efforts may be successful. H. A. LONDON, Pittsboro, N. C., June 2, 1908.

—Raleigh News and Observer.

Abraham Lincoln was a rail-splitter. John Wanamaker began life at $1.25 a week. Thomas Edison began life as a telegraph operator. Mr. Horne began life cutting cord wood and by thrift and industry has accumulated something for himself and at the same time assisted in the development of his State. Mr. Horne has therefore demonstrated that he is a builder, not an agitator and a destructionist. We need more builders in this old State and fewer agitators.

FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1908.

Won't you be glad when its over?

Some of the letters they print are certainly amusing.

To the New Bern, Sun: We have not seen a crab yet.

We would not bet a fig on either Mr. Craig or Mr. Kitchin going to Charlotte in the lead.

A candidate's over-zealous friends sometime do him more harm than his strongest opponents.

The Observer says Charlotte will dress up for the convention. Some of the delegates will go dressed up, too.

If there are no fights before the primaries and county convention are over there will be cause for gladness.

The way some of them are working for their candidate indicates that they are expecting something out of it.

Deaths from lightning and drowning are numerous during the summer, and this season is already making a large record.

The country paid the biggest price for it and got less out of the last session of congress than any session in our history.

The Rocky Mount Record has begun the publication of a daily edition. It is a six column sheet, four pages, and very newsy.

One thing that can be said of the last congress is that the members drew their pay all right, whether they were present or absent.

What the new board of aldermen will do when they take hold the first of July may be troubling some folks, but others are not losing much sleep over it.

They are all showing a disposition to do plenty of claiming, but it will be time enough to hurrah after there has been a showing of hands at Charlotte.

There must be big honor or something else in being governor when it costs about as much to get the nomination as the salary for the whole term amounts to. The game of politics is a queer one.

Dr. G. T. Winston has resigned the presidency of the A. & M. College at Raleigh, he having been allowed a retiring pension of $2,500 a year from the Carnegie fund. Dr. Winston has done much in the educational advancement of North Carolina. He is now on a tour in Europe, his letter of resignation being written from London.

THE HINDOO FAKIR.

His Patience and Skill in the Bag and Spear Trick.

The feat known as the bag and spear trick has been considered one of the greatest of the Hindoo magician's art. In this trick, says a writer, the Hindoo fakir has his assistant get into a sack the mouth of which he firmly secures, and then unceremoniously hurls his helpless victim to the ground. With out a sign of warning the fakir thrusts his spear through the center of the bag.

After withdrawing his weapon, upon the point of which up to 1000 straws appear, the fakir greets his victim with a friendly smile and gazes dreamily over the heads of the spectators. The body within the bag flounders about as if in mortal agony. At last, when the occupant is apparently dead, the fakir again plunges his spear into the motionless body. The same antics are repeated. Then the fakir releases his attendant from the bag, and he steps out without a scratch upon his body.

Although the trick is performed with all the carelessness imaginable, it calls for more patience, skill and exactness than any of the so called black art achievements. From the time the attendant enters the bag both fakir and assistant count every breath they take. When a stated number of breaths have been taken the fakir makes his thrust, and the occupant in the bag is prepared to avoid it. Then the count begins again, and at the proper time the spear is driven through the bag a second time. In order to evade the spear and make it appear to pass through his body the assistant doubles up in as small a form as possible. His legs are drawn up close, with the chin resting upon the knees and the arms folded round the lower limbs across the shins. When in this position, at the fiftieth breath, the spear passes under the attendant's arms between the abdomen and the thighs.

The slightest miscalculation by either the fakir or his assistant would mean a serious if not a mortal wound for one and an unheard of disgrace for the other.

That fakir and attendant are able so to train themselves to breathe in perfect unison while trying one of these performances, when the slightest variation in time by either would be fatal, is certainly wonderful.

SOUVENIR FANATICS.

Nothing is Safe From Those Afflicted With the Craze.

In these enlightened days anything from the limb of a tree to a false napkin is liable to be carried away as a souvenir.

A western girl with a well defined case of the souvenir habit, sojourning in New York, was dining at a fashionable cafe and, being prepossessed in favor of the glistening pewter cream pots with which the tables were supplied, calmly carried one away in her muff. Can you imagine her self valuation when upon examining her prize later on she discovered carved across the bottom, "Stolen from M. S.?"

A Pittsburg bachelor, wandering into a restaurant, came upon a friend just seating himself with two ladies. The bachelor was invited to join the party, did so, and at the end of the luncheon insisted upon paying the costs. The bill being wrong, he went to the cashier's desk to personally adjust the discrepancy, where he was informed that the extra charges were for spoons which the ladies had put in their hand bags. And that was the first time he had ever met them!

Upon the occasion of the presentation of a handsome silver service by one of the United States to a battleship which was being christened in her honor an elaborate banquet was served aboard ship, at which the service was used. Society came on masse from the town near which they were anchored, and after the function was over there were not enough forks and spoons with which to lay the tables. And yet these souvenir fanatics would draw their moral skirts aside for fear of contamination with a real thief.—Bertha Reynolds MacDonald in Bohemian Magazine.

He Didn't Care.

A Georgia man tells of the meeting of a negro "literary society" in that state. During the consideration of the business part of the club's programme some one had proposed that the regular time of meeting be changed from Tuesday to Friday, and this proposition provoked much disputation. Finally, the president of the society being appealed to for his opinion, that official declared with much gravity: "Members of de society, personally, now, pisonally, I don' care which night de society meets, but fo' mysef I prefers Tuesday."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Fish Food and National Greatness.

There is not the smallest reason to suppose that a meat eating nation would be superior either in intellect or physique to a fish eating one. We as a race were never stronger than when we fed on fish to such an extent that the careful guardian of the newly entered apprentice commonly inserted a clause in his indentures stipulating that he was not to be required to eat salmon more than three days a week.—London Globe.

Beating a Retreat.

"What is necessary when you wish to beat a retreat?" asked an old military man at Fort Washington. "I suppose you'd have to retreat faster than the other fellows," was the reply that came after some deliberation.—Philadelphia Press.

Evils that are passed should not be mourned.—Italian Proverb.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one. Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building In the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled. Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many? Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few hods of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a nice, hefty hod of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store. And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

TO RESCUE NAPOLEON

A Bold Plan That Was Matured In This Country.

IT WAS A DARING SCHEME.

The Enterprise Was Known to the Exile of St. Helena, but Just as the Preparations Were About Complete the Fallen Emperor Died.

Even in "the last phase" our country sustained a certain association with the captive of St. Helena, says a writer in the Magazine of History.

The English felt that any danger of rescue would originate upon the western shore of the Atlantic.

Admiral Cockburn occupied the neighboring island of Ascension, avowedly to prevent it falling into the hands of Yankee raiders. The feeling in the United States against England was at that time quite bitter. Napoleon's landing at St. Helena followed the battle of New Orleans only about seven months, and the downfall of the revolutionary monarch aroused deep sympathy throughout the country.

But the actual grounds for believing in the existence of a rescue party and rescue plans in the United States rest upon the movements of General Lallemand and his associates. This officer's military record, from the revolutionary days to Waterloo, had been distinguished by notable feats of daring.

His devotion to the emperor was loyal and persistent; he had followed him until his embarkation from the shores of France and had tried in vain to accompany him to St. Helena. He was condemned to death by the reactionary tribunals of 1816, but had succeeded in escaping and joining his brother at Philadelphia.

At this time our country was literally swarming with French military refugees, many of whom, like Lallemand, were under capital sentence for their conduct toward the Bourbons during the hundred days.

The Lallemands proceeded ostensibly to unite a number of these veterans into a military colony which they called the Field of Asylum.

Our government granted them 100,000 acres on the banks of the Tombigbee, but as their own project required their establishment near the sea they sold the lands and with the proceeds settled on the Trinity river, in Texas, about fifteen miles from its mouth.

The second in command was Baron Rigaud, whose kindly feelings toward the ancient regime had been illustrated by publicly stamping the cross of St. Louis under his feet. Needless to say, he was also under sentence of death by Louis XVIII's court martial.

But the best known of all this devoted band was the famous pirate Lafitte, who had begun life as a Bordeaux blacksmith, had killed his love rival in a duel, had become a noted corsair, the terror of the Antillean seas, had been the effective ally of General Jackson in repulsing the British at New Orleans and at the time of the French settlement of old guardsmen in his vicinity was established at Galveston.

This narrative does not require a detailed statement of the affairs of the 400 grenadiers, of the attacks of the Mexicans on their camp, of their final removal to New Orleans.

All the circumstances indicate that it was not the intention of the Lallemands to found an agricultural colony, but to unite about 1,000 old soldiers for the deliverance of the great prisoner.

The location of their camp was most favorable for the scheme, being near the sea in an unsettled country where their movements would not be watched and, above all, being in proximity to Lafitte, who commanded the required ships. Besides these desirable vessels, one, a model of swiftness, was constructed at Charleston and equipped for its purpose in the most complete manner.

An intrepid captain named Boissiere who navigated for pleasure, had accepted its command, and this was the ship destined to carry away Napoleon Bonaparte, while Lafitte would land the guardsmen and engage the attention of the English cruisers.

The enterprise was known to the captives, as shown by Bertrand's disclosures. But when the preparations were about complete the news arrived of the emperor's death.

One on Ma.

They talked during dinner of the anarchists.

"But, papa, what is an anarchist?" little Willie asked.

"Well, my son," replied the father, "he's a person who is always blowing somebody up."

The child turned to his mother. "Then are you an anarchist, ma?" he said.—Argonaut.

Thankful.

"I hope your constituents are grateful to you for what you have done for them."

"I hope so," answered Senator Sorghum, "but I must confess I am thankful for the arrangement which makes compensation for my services independent of the gratitude of my constituents."—Washington Star.

A Case For Hurry.

Clevertown (who has hired a taximeter cab to propose to)—Say "yes," darling. Miss Calumet—Give me time to think. "Heavens! But not in here! Consider the expense!"—Life.

There is a good deal of cheer on life's journey if it be made with a contented heart.—Vandyck.

A PECULIAR SPIDER.

He Catches Birds as Big as Larks in His Mammoth Web.

Far up in the mountains of Ceylon there is a spider that spins a web like bright yellowish silk, the central net of which is five feet in diameter, while the supporting lines, or guys, as they are called, measure sometimes ten or twelve feet, and, rising quickly in the early morning, you may dash right into it, the stout threads twining round your face like a lace veil, while, as the creature that has woven it takes up his position in the middle, he generally catches you right in the nose, and, though he seldom bites or stings, the contact of his large body and long legs is anything but pleasant. If you forget yourself and try to catch him, bite he will, and, though not venomous, his jaws are as powerful as a bird's beak, and you are not likely to forget the encounter.

The bodies of these spiders are very handsomely decorated, being bright gold or scarlet underneath, while the upper part is covered with the most delicate slate colored fur. So strong are the webs that birds the size of larks are frequently caught therein, and even the small but powerful scaly lizard falls a victim. A writer says that he has often sat and watched the yellow monster—measuring, when waiting for his prey, with his legs stretched out, fully six inches—striding across the middle of the net and noted the rapid manner in which he winds his stout threads round the unfortunate captive.

He usually throws the coils about the head until the wretched victim is first blinded and then choked. In many unfrequented dark nooks of the jungle you come across most perfect skeletons of small birds caught in these terrible snares.

Violet Ink the Cheapest.

"Look here, you, a literary man can't afford the extravagance of violet ink."

The literary man tore thoughtfully a pendent piece of leather from the sole of his shoe.

"I know," he admitted, "that violet ink costs thrice as much as black, but black corrodes a pen in a week, whereas violet is noncorrosive, and with its use it is possible to make one pen last six or seven months. The late Russell Sarg, who used violet ink exclusively in his office, revealed this great truth to me during my brief clerical career in his office."—Exchange.

Didn't Want to Be Singular.

It was in the drawing room after dinner that they discussed an absent maiden friend's bad points with the usual grim and scathing glee. Having thoroughly dissected her personal appearance, they next paid attention to her mental shortcomings.

"She is a very singular girl," spoke the one.

"Yes, indeed," responded her companion. "But, then, that is not her fault, for I never saw a girl so anxious to be plural."—Argonaut.

Where Pat Made a Mistake.

"Oh," sobbed Mrs. Casey, "some man told me husband, Pat, that he'd have his pants pressed be lettin' th' steam roller run over them, an' Pat troid th' scheme!"

"Well, why do ye cry?" asked the friend, Mrs. Garrity.

"Oh," wailed the wife, "Pat forgot to take th' pants off first!"—Judge.

SERPENT OF AESCULAPIUS.

Worship of Snakes Led to Adoption of the Mystical Symbol.

It has been pointed out by Dr. Bouldin that the worship of the serpent was so universal in antiquity that all temples came to be known as "draconia" (serpent houses).

However that may be, serpents were kept in many of the temples of antiquity, notably in those of Apollo, whose son, Aesculapius, is represented in ancient statuary carrying a serpent entwined round a staff or round his arm. The serpent, indeed, came in time to be the special mystical emblem or symbol of the Aesculapian art.

The serpents of the ancient Greek temples were in all probability relics of that primitive serpent worship which was at one time universal among prehistoric peoples and has not died out among many savage races at the present day.

And "voodoo," or "obi," serpent worship is still said to linger in the West Indies among the descendants of slaves.

In Haiti especially, where negroes were dumped down from Africa by the old slave traders and were kept in reserve before being sold to masters in the surrounding islands, voodoo has defied Roman Catholic missionaries and priests for ages. A French naval officer who visited the court of the Haitian potentate Souleouge in 1849 described a voodoo ceremony where cannibalistic and other orgies were indulged in.

It is noticeable that the cock and black goat which were solemnly eaten on this occasion were both of them sacred to Aesculapius. Hence we may infer that the Aesculapian cultus was originally an innocent form of voodoo and at the same a primordial religion.

The extreme antiquity of serpent worship seems, indeed, to be hinted at in Genesis, where the devil appears in the guise of the snake god intent on the ruin of man. In the story of the brazen serpent healing qualities are attributed to the image.—Lancet.

He Was Very Cool.

A congressman who was on board a train which was wrecked says that when the shock came one of the passengers was pitched over several seats just in time to receive the contents of the water cooler, which tipped over and soaked his clothing with ice water. A highly excited passenger rushed up to him and told him to keep cool. "Go away," said the wet man, "I am the coolest man in the car. I have just had two buckets of ice water emptied down my back."

Its Origin.

"I wonder who first said 'It's better to be born lucky than rich?'" queried the young widow. "Some old fool whose young wife married him for his money, I imagine," rejoined the wise bachelor.—Chicago News.
