AN EARNEST PLEA TO MOTHERS.

WHAT THEY SHOULD TEACH THEIR DAUGHTERS.

Paper Read by Mrs. J. L. Butt Before the Mothers' Association of Winterville.

St. Paul in his epistle to Timothy prescribed the manner in which women professing godliness should adorn themselves, these are his words: "In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array, but which becometh women professing godliness with good works."

Again in 1st Peter, 3rd chapter, 3rd verse, St. Paul says how the husbands may be won by the chaste manner of their wives; whose adorning let it not be the outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing gold, or of putting on of apparel, but let it be the hidden man of the heart, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which in the sight of God is of great price. For after this manner in the old time, the holy women also who trusted in God adorned themselves.

We have resolved in this our "Mothers' Meeting" to adopt a systematic plan of teaching our children God's word; one that will be more in accord with what has been quoted. Have we found the time? I dare say not. As one season follows another with its varying styles, our minds are so absorbed in getting the body in time for certain occasions, that the spiritual side of life is sadly neglected.

We are in love with the things about which we busy ourselves, and we generally busy ourselves about the things we love. These are true words, and when we suffer our loved ones to so misuse their time and talents storing up earthly treasures, they may in the end become like King Midas, when the fairy allowed everything he touched to become gold. By a touch his little child turned to gold; he begged to have the power removed, and his child restored; he never cared for riches again. So in the end, when life's fretful fever is almost over, we may look back and wish to have spent a sweeter and more simple life, and to have had our hearts more in touch with the Master's keeping.

Now, mothers, we must adopt a systematic plan of training our children to be more in love with the spiritual life. We cannot afford any longer to go adrift with no more than a Sunday school lesson and often that poorly prepared. We are not half so much in earnest about these soul inspiring lessons as we are about the week-day work of spelling and reading. Let us have it part of our home work each week, to have the children memorize a hymn, or part of a hymn, something of a life-giving spiritual force, something that will keep them in the line of duty.

Let us recall two lines of a beautiful hymn: "Thou canst bid the sinner live. Guide the wanderer day by day. In the straight and narrow way." This narrow way is the one we wish our children to walk in; we must first tread the path, we must learn these sweet messages ourselves, and plan for the children to follow.

Sometime during the week, there is work to be done that does not engage heart and hands at the same time. While mending sewing or resting, a book may be opened nearby; it is surprising how quickly several verses may be learned. This practice several times during the week would keep us wide awake as to our leaning upon Him who sustains us, and will be putting on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

St. Paul in his letter to the Ephesians, bids them to put on the breastplate of righteousness to have their feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace, the shield of faith, the helmet of Salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, wherewith ye shall be able to quench the fiery darts of the wicked.

I do not mean by this regular committing of verses that there should be no other Bible reading. What I have suggested is a good plan to get the children interested.

If we would fortify ourselves with such weapons as we have been enjoined in the above, we might exclaim with the poet "Peace, perfect peace!"

It has been said by some good man, that we cannot live every day in perfect fellowship with God, without giving up time to it. Hours and days and weeks and months and years are gladly given up by men and women to perfect themselves in some profession or accomplishment.

Do we expect that these things of God are so cheap that we can obtain them without time. So do let us make ourselves use more of our time for God, to obtain that pearl of great price, fellowship with Him who gives us all we have.

Let us start in this weekly work with the hymn:

"O for a closer walk with God,
A calm and heavenly frame,
A light to shine upon the road,
That leads me to the Lamb.

Return O holy Dove, return,
Sweet messenger of rest,
I hate the sins that made Thee mourn,
And drove Thee from my breast.

The dearest idol I have known,
Whate'er that idol be,
Help me to tear it from Thy throne,
And worship only Thee

So shall my walk be close with God,
Calm and serene my frame,
So purer light shall mark the road,
That leads me to the Lamb"

After reading the above composition to the Mothers' of Winterville, it was suggested to send it out to all the mothers in the county.

Since the writing of these scattered thoughts we have enjoyed the grand and glorious day of victory in favor of prohibition.

Now, we feel that our boys are safe from the temptations of drink.

I plead for the girls and trust before another decade is passed, they will be turning from folly and fashion, to bend their energies towards higher and nobler things.

Before the next round of commencements are upon us, if just one daughter of Pitt county would write me that she is planning a less elaborate wardrobe than usual, I should feel fully repaid for the midnight hour used in penning these pages.

As to Personal Notes.

With twelve passenger trains a day at Greenville it is impossible for us to meet them to get personal notes, as it would keep one person occupied all day going to trains. It would be very easy, however, for those who are going away or return from a trip, or who have guests to arrive or depart, to phone the names to The Reflector office. We always appreciate such items and are glad to have them for the paper.

"THE TWO VAGABONDS"

To be Presented In This City at an Early Date.

The King's Daughters and the ladies of the End of Century Book Club have made arrangement with Mr Harry Foote, of New York to present in this city his gigantic children's operatic extravaganza, "The Two Vagabonds," for the benefit of the Stonewall Jackson Manual Training and Industrial school. Mr. Foote will arrive Sunday evening and will begin immediately to prepare for the presentation, and rehearsal will begin at once.

This opera promises to be a great success here as it has been in other cities and nothing will be left undone to make it a grand success.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

News Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., June 13, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Carroll from the county, were in town awhile Friday.

J. E. Greene, our efficient railroad agent, spent Thursday night with relatives in Grifton.

New Rule For Checking Baggage.

The Atlantic Coast Line railroad has recently inaugurated a new rule in regard to the checking of baggage. All trunks, satchels, suit cases, boxes etc. received by the company that are not locked, no matter how securely fastened, are checked with a green check labelled "Bad Order" and before this check is given to a passenger he is required to sign a statement, on the receipt kept by the railroad saying this baggage was received in bad order. These checks are easily designated from the others by the fact they are printed on green card board instead of the ordinary white card check. In time of a rush this constant necessity for inspection by the official and the signing by the passenger makes a hardship on those who are waiting to be served, hence it will be well to have baggage locked.—Ex.

Godwin Renominated.

The sixth district congressional convention was held at Wrightsville, Friday, and H. L. Godwin, of Harnett, was unanimously renominated for congress. H. L. Cook, of Cumberland, was nominated for presidential elector, and George H. Bellamy, of New Hanover, was endorsed for lieutenant governor.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

The death angel has again visited the home of Mr and Mrs G. W. Baker and taken from them their only child, little Elizabeth. On the afternoon of June 2, only three days before she would have been a year old, our Heavenly Father called her to spend her first birthday in heaven with Estelle, her sister, who passed away eighteen months before.

Again the Cradle Roll of the Memorial Baptist Sunday school has lost one of its fairest treasures, and her home its brightest ray of sunshine. Realizing the deep sorrow of her loving parents, and our loss in her death,

Resolved, that we, the Memorial Baptist Sunday school, offer this humble tribute of love and sympathy to the sorrowing ones, and pray the Father to comfort their lonely hearts and guide and sustain them until all shall be reunited in heaven.

Resolved further, that a copy of these expressions be spread upon the records of the Sunday school, a copy be sent to The Reflector for publication, and a copy be sent to the bereaved parents.

How to Advertise.

Advertising is telling people what you have for sale and why they should buy. It sounds as easy as going to sleep in a feather bed on a cold night. Every merchant advertises in some form or another. He may use nothing but his voice and a few signs, but he advertises just the same. The merchant should consider advertising from the standpoint of utility. He advertises in some form or other. always. What is the best way? How can he reach the most people? That means, what medium should be used? The newspaper is a good vehicle for advertising for it is read by a great number of people. The local paper is best, for it reaches the people living near at hand. The store sign, the window, other means for conveying advertisements are useful in varying degrees. There is another thing to be considered—how to do the advertising, what to say and how to say it. Appeal to interest, be succinct, say something about the goods, make a specialty of something in advertisement or series of advertisements.—Ex.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

C. M. Jones came in today from Norfolk.

Miss Bessie Haskett went to Washington today.

Miss Sadie Exum went to Kinston Friday evening.

Charles Haskett returned Friday evening from Greensboro.

Miss Mary Shelburn and Estelle Greene went to Washington today.

A. T. Harper, of Goldsboro, spent Friday here and went to Grifton on the evening train.

J. W. Mayo, of Edgecombe, is visiting his daughters, Mrs. J. S. Mooring and Mrs. F. J. Forbes.

Mrs. F. L. Joyner and son Hubert, of Farmville, who had been spending the day here, left Friday evening for Kinston.

Dr. L. C. Skinner has returned from New York City where he has been taking a post graduate course in diseases of women and children.

Chamber of Commerce Should Meet.

Do you think Greenville could now forget politics long enough for the Chamber of Commerce to come together and attend to a little needed business? What say the directors to having a meeting in the mayor's office at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night? If this suggestion meets with approval announcement can be made Monday, and in the event such announcement is made every business man in town should be present.

"THE VANISHED DAYS."

Ly the jest about the julp in the camp-hor balls at last,
For the miracle has happened and the olden days are past;
That which makes Milwaukee thirsty does not foam in Tennessee,
And the flid on old Missouri is as tight lipped as can be;
Oh! the comic paper Colonel and his cronies well may sigh,
For the mint is waiving gaily, but the South is going dry.

By the stillside on the hillside in Kentucky all is still,
For the only damp refreshments must be dipped up from the rill,
North Carolina's stately ruler gives his soda glass a shove,
And discusse local option with the South Carolina Gov.,
It is useless at the fountain to be winkful of the eye,
For the cocktail glass is dusty and the South is going dry.

It is water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink;
We no longer hear the music of the mellow crystal clink,
When the Colonel and the Major and the Gen'l and the Judge;
Meet to have a little nip to give their appetites an edge;
For the eggnog it is nogless and the rye has gone awry,
And the punch bowl holds carnations and the South is going dry.

All the night caps now have tassels and are worn upon the head;
Not the nightcaps that were taken when nobody went to bed;
And the breeze above the blue grass is as solemn as is death,
For it bears no pungent clove tang on its odorific breath;
And each man can walk a chalk line when the stars are in the sky,
For the fizz glass is fizzless and the South is going dry.

Lay the jest about the julp 'neath the chestnut tree at last,
For there's but one kind of moonshine and the olden days are past,
For the wagon rumbles through the Southland on its trip,
And it help, no one to drop off to pick up the driver's whip;
For the mint bed makes a pasture and corkscrew length high,
All is still along the stillside and the South is going dry.

The man who used to tip he beer the corn juice and the rye,
Was often sad and never glad because he knew he soon must die;
And leave behind the little ones with home and bread denied,
Because of drink he could not think for them he should provide;
But now he gets insurance safe for self his babies and his wife;
No better contract can be found than "Old Reliable," The Mutual Life.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1908.

The campaign for the gubernatorial nomination will make a warm finish in Mecklenburg.

Wonder what the Democratic speakers will be able to say when the Republicans bring up all of those charges to face them.

If people were believing what Democrats are saying about each other they might conclude that we had a sorry set of office seekers.

The fellow who does not express a choice before the convention stands the best chance of not having to eat any crow afterward.

The Durham Herald refers to the coming State convention as the next circus. Wonder if it is going to have three rings and three clowns.

If Governor Hughes' anti-race track gambling bill did have only one vote to the good, it was enough to come out ahead under the wire in New York senate.

We hope Greenville will profit by the experience of some neighboring towns and not delay our public building several years by charging several prices for a site.

We are willing to risk the assertion that the speech Governor Glenn will make in seconding the nomination of Mr. Bryan at the Denver convention will be as good as any of them.

That Salisbury distiller who owns several buildings in his town, and has started out to show his spite for the State going dry by a big raise on all his tenants, may discover that he killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

The Durham man who has invented an iceless soda fountain is going to freeze out the ice man so far as the cold drink business is concerned. Now if some other fellow will invent a coalless stove to do the heating act, the world can be happy both seasons of the year.

Well, we thought it was Miss Charlotte all the time, but behold the News brings her, or him, out dressed up in pants spooning with one of the teachers under a merry widow hat. Maybe in another week he, or she, will be back in dresses again and flirting with some of the convention delegates.

Next time you want to criticize an editor for having an opinion of his own, just ponder this expression from the Waycross, Ga., Herald:

Don't get mad at the editor because he is for Brown and you are for Smith. It may be that after the full moon in June you will want some of our fish bait, and it may be that we will want to borrow your fishing pole, and then we'll give you the bait and you'll lend us your pole "alle samee."

MINING FINDS.

How Bayley and Ford Discovered the Coolgardie Mine.

In the history of gold digging and gold finding many a romantic and tragic story is to be found. Few of these stories, however, possess more interest than that of how the famous Coolgardie mines, in Western Australia, were discovered in 1892—mines which have since yielded millions of pounds' worth of gold. Luck played a great part in the discovery, but it was the reward of perseverance.

In April, 1892, two Victorian miners named Bayley and Ford struck out for the northeast of Australia, but after traversing 250 miles they lost their horses and had to turn back. Equipped with fresh horses, they started again on what proved to be a long, tedious and futile journey, for once more they were forced to turn back, this time for want of water. The third attempt won them fame and fortune.

First they found that which to them was more precious than gold—namely, water. They found a natural well, known to the scattered tribes of that faraway country as Coolgardie. Pitching their camp beside the well, they turned their horses out to feed and started prospecting the country around. Ford picked up a half ounce nugget, and before night they had gathered in over twenty ounces of gold. Two or three weeks more surface prospecting was rewarded with over 200 ounces. By this time food supplies had given out; so, keeping their own counsel concerning their discoveries, they returned to civilization, laid in a fresh stock of provisions and hastened back to their Eldorado.

Within a few days of their return they happened upon the reef that made Coolgardie. Beginning with a "slug" weighing fifty ounces, they picked out from a cap of that reef in a few hours upward of 500 ounces of gold. Bayley, carrying 554 ounces of gold, journeyed back to the nearest mining town, exhibited his find to the mining warden, put in a claim for a lease of the land on which this marvelous discovery had been made and hurried off to the field again with a party that numbered 150 men, besides coaches and horses and all the paraphernalia of prospecting and camping. In their wake in course of time went gold seekers in hundreds and thousands. From Bailey and Ford's mine there were taken in the first nine years of its history 134,000 ounces of gold, valued at £530,000.

Almost as sensational as Coolgardie were the Londonderry and Wealth of Nations "finds." The Londonderry was discovered by a party of unsuccessful prospectors on their way back to Coolgardie. Two of them picked up some rich gold bearing specimens. After a brief search the outcrop of a reef was exposed, from which in the course of a few days they took out from 4,000 to 5,000 ounces of gold. From the cap of the Wealth of Nations reef gold to the value of £20,000 was secured in a few days.—London Tit-Bits.

Origin of Cloth Names.

Velvet takes its name from the Italian "velluto," shaggy, offering in this respect a parallel with "satin," which comes from the Latin "seta," a bristle. As a rule, it is safe to guess that the name of a dress material comes from some place. Besides such obvious cases as "astrakhan," "cashmere" and "tweed" there are "fustian" from Fustat (Kairo); "muslin," from Mosul, in Mesopotamia; "damask," from Damascus, and "cambric," from Cambrai, while "millinery" itself is from Milan. The case of "silk" is a curious one. It is "sericum," the stuff obtained from the Seres or Chinese, but these people seem to have been named in ancient Greek after the Chinese word for a silkworm.

He Was Very Cool.

A congressman who was on board a train which was wrecked says that when the shock came one of the passengers was pitched over several seats just in time to receive the contents of the water cooler, which tipped over and soaked his clothing with ice water. A highly excited passenger rushed up to him and told him to keep cool. "Go away," said the wet man, "I am the coolest man in the car. I have just had two buckets of ice water emptied down my back."

Its Origin.

"I wonder who first said 'It's better to be born lucky than rich?'" queried the young widow.
"Some old fool whose young wife married him for his money, I imagine," rejoined the wise bachelor.—Chicago News.

As powerful as man thinks he is, he has not yet been able to tell what makes a cat black and white.—Manchester Union.

CHUMMY ANIMALS.

Certain Beasts and Other Beasts They Do Not Fear.

If man's ancestor had been the majestic mastodon instead of a malicious and destructive ape the fear of him which has become a hereditary instinct in nearly all animals would no doubt be absent. Whenever man comes in contact with birds and beasts which have never been molested, as in the arctic, these display no emotions but those of curiosity and disdain.

The classic example of alliance between animals of different species is, of course, the friendship between man and dog. When to the strength and cunning of man's monkey ancestor was added the speed of the dog an irresistible combination was secured which ended in the perfidious enslavement of the lower creature by man.

Birds are nothing but snakes which have evolved feathers and wings during countless millenniums. The ineradicable hatred between monkeys and snakes has been beautifully changed into the friendly tolerance between birds and men. Owls, which are instantly mobbed by all birds should they appear in public, find friendly shelter in barns by reason of their rat catching proclivities. The long legged birds, such as storks, pelicans and cranes, have also procured immunity in most parts of the world.

Among the fishes sharks extend a peculiar protection toward a fish of the remora family, which, too lazy to propel itself through the water, attaches itself to the larger fish by means of suction ridges upon the head.

In South Africa, where insect life is perhaps more abundant than in any other part of the world, sheep may often be seen placidly grazing while birds of a certain species hop busily about their backs engaged in the destruction of insect parasites.

The lion, which will kill and eat nearly all species of wild game, never molests the jackal, who, slinking behind him, finishes the half eaten prey. Hunters will hear his long drawn howl succeed the musical roar of the big cat when he comes to devour his master's leavings. But the lion has an inveterate enemy in the honeybird, which will fly toward the hunter and lead him through the thick bush till he has pointed out the lion's lair or sometimes a store of honey.—Harper's Weekly.

Imperialistic Notions.

Some of the "excuses" which schoolteachers receive from late or absent pupils are weird and wonderful. Here are a few:

"Sir Frederick can't come today, as he ain't got any nickers, and if the bord man fetches him he'll have to come naked. Yours respectful."

"Sir, I must strictly forbid you to punish Thomas again for anything he does, as we never do so except in self defense."

"Dear Sir—I strongly object to my boy learning Algebra. In my humble opinion the only letters to put with money are £ s. d. Perhaps you'll be kind enough to inform me how much this is, Abd—wqxs—yds pounds. I'm plain by name and plain by nature and won't have any newfangled imperialist notions put into his head. Yours without offense, James Plain."—London Scraps.

Merely a Question of Spelling.

He was the engineer of an ocean liner and prided himself on his knowledge of electricity. On one of his brief stays at home he accompanied his wife to a party. The subject of electricity coming up, he indignantly combated the idea that it was possible for two people to produce an electrical current through the body of a third by simple physical contact. His wife and a friend said they would prove it and, leading him to a window, told him to pull up his sleeves and place both hands flat on the glass. They then, on the other side, took a firm grip on his wrists. At the end of a few moments his wife said:

"Don't you feel a pain, Willy?"

"No," he replied, and returned a like negative to a second and a third inquiry.

At his third response most of the company began to laugh, and it suddenly flashed into his mind that the pronunciation of pain and pane was the same.—New York Tribune.

SERPENT OF AESCULAPIUS.

Worship of Snakes Led to Adoption of the Mystical Symbol.

It has been pointed out by Dr. Boudin that the worship of the serpent was so universal in antiquity that all temples came to be known as "draconia" (serpent houses).

However that may be, serpents were kept in many of the temples of antiquity, notably in those of Apollo, whose son, Aesculapius, is represented in ancient statuary carrying a serpent entwined round a staff or round his arm. The serpent, indeed, came in time to be the special mystical emblem or symbol of the Aesculapian art.

The serpents of the ancient Greek temples were in all probability relics of that primitive serpent worship which was at one time universal among prehistoric peoples and has not died out among many savage races at the present day.

And "voodoo," or "obl," serpent worship is still said to linger in the West Indies among the descendants of slaves.

In Haiti especially, where negroes were dumped down from Africa by the old slave traders and were kept in reserve before being sold to masters in the surrounding islands, voodoo has defied Roman Catholic missionaries and priests for ages. A French naval officer who visited the court of the Haitian potentate Soulongue in 1849 described a voodoo ceremony where cannibalistic and other orgies were indulged in.

It is noticeable that the cock and black goat which were solemnly eaten on this occasion were both of them sacred to Aesculapius. Hence we may infer that the Aesculapian cultus was originally an innocent form of voodoo and at the same a primordial religion.

The extreme antiquity of serpent worship seems, indeed, to be hinted at in Genesis, where the devil appears in the guise of the snake god intent on the ruin of man. In the story of the brazen serpent healing qualities are attributed to the image.—Lancet.

Notice Land Sale.
