CORRUPTION OF THE SUFFRAGE.

Popular Elections Peculiar Not Only Farcial but Criminal.

One of the strongest reasons advanced for the adoption of the constitutional amendment, and the consequent disfranchisement of the negro, was that it would avoid the necessity of "cheating the rigger," which was openly admitted and defended as a necessity; and the hope and promise were held out that thereafter the ballot would be conducted on the high plane of principle.

Have our expectations been met? Is the ballot pure? Are capacity and character the supreme tests which intelligent and incorruptible manhood suffrage applies to those who would hold our offices? Possibly there is little or no corruption in the general elections, but can this be said of our primaries? And is not the man who would purchase a nomination which with us generally means election, a much greater criminal than the election officer who stood at the polls and refused to count the ballots of ignorant negroes? The election official had nothing purely personal to gain. He believed, and had good reason to believe, that our racial integrity, our very civilization was at stake, while the ballot buyer, the vote boggler, is for self and self alone, and for the accomplishment of his selfish purposes he appeals to one of the lowest passions of frail humanity, avarice, cupidity. To the extent that he is successful, he renders the settlement of public questions on their merits absolutely impossible, he debauches every voter who listens too long to the seductive clinking of his coin, and such an one, having obtained office in a manner so reprehensible, criminal, may be expected to be foul it, an expectation which is generally realized.

We will not call names, or give places, counties, cities, towns—we could do so, if necessary, and could name a place or two, where, according to the testimony of lifelong Democrats of the highest personal and political standing, at least one-half of the vote is unblushingly bought and sold, but without going into this we pass on to say, generally, that the evil is widespread, and so far away from the standards of the fathers have we gotten, which is another way of saying so far have we fallen, that the candidate who has no money to spend is a negligible quantity, or in the vernacular, he is "not in it."

In earlier days, it was how much will he give to the office in character, ability, fitness, devotion to duty? Now how much will be give for the office in dirty dollars.

We all know these things to be true, and we know, too, that many good men who would well and worthily fill any office in the gift of the people are shut out, because they are not able financially to stand the heavy drain that would be made on them, and because, further, they are unwilling to resort to the practices which are necessary to win.

We should know also, that unless action is taken, and that speedily, to change this deplorable condition, the control of our State will pass into and remain in the hands of a corrupt and corrupting moneyed oligarchy.

The remedy is simple. It might be said of the Populist party, as of a certain English public man, that nothing it ever did became it so well as dying,

IT IS A SHAME.

People Have Cause to Kick at Paving on Dickinson Avenue.

One only has to look out Dickinson avenue now as the paving progresses out that street, to see that a great mistake has been made by somebody. Whether this is the fault of the people living along that street not getting together and opening the street a proper width and straightening it, or whether the fault lies with the city fathers, we will not say, but a blunder, a bad one, has been made. There is a little strip of paving about 25 feet wide, the street is crooked and in some places there is no sidewalk at all, while at some other places the sidewalks on the two sides cover more space than the paved portion. Passengers looking down the street from A. C. L. trains can easily wonder if the town has paved a cart path to the depot. It would have been better to have waited and made a decent street of it than to put it in such shape as it now is. We hear complaining and criticism of the way the street is fixed, and think there is plenty of justification for it.

Small Fire.

A building owned by T. L. Bland and occupied by Mr. Cash, west of the A. C. L. railroad was struck by lightning during the storm Saturday evening and set on fire. The lightning was carried to the building by the electric light wire and caught where the wire passed through the wall. The damage to the building is estimated at about $50. The nearest transformer was completely wrecked.

The Seaboard Special.

The special Seaboard Air Line State convention special will leave Raleigh at 11:30 Tuesday morning, and reach Charlotte at 5:30 in the afternoon. The people from this section will take the Norfolk & Southern morning train to Raleigh and connect there with the Seaboard special. This N. & S. train will start from Washington.

but it gave us one law which should not have been repealed, which should at the earliest moment be re-enacted, and made severer and more certain: Every candidate immediately after the election, should be required to file a sworn, itemized statement of all campaign expenditures made by him, or his friends to his knowledge, giving names of persons to whom paid, and purposes thereof, applying this both to contests for nomination and to election; and to offer an elector any money or thing of value for his vote, whether in primary or general election, should be made a felony, with not less than five years in State's prison for every conviction, with like punishment on him who accepts the bribe.

The writer is not, and does not expect to be, a candidate for any office, nor has he ever been "hoodled" out of a nomination. He writes simply as one standing on the bank, who, with regret and deep concern, sees so much of the wreckage of our political fabric passing by, and his only purpose is to sound the alarm. It is time to call a halt. The Democratic party must quit some of its "cussedness," or go to overwhelming defeat.

HAD TO WALK SOME.

And Will Sue the Railroad For It—Trouble Over a Ticket.

Mr. W. F. Evans has a grievance against the Atlantic Coast Line that will likely result in a suit against the company. The trouble seems to have been over a ticket he bought at Whitakers Saturday on which to return to his home in Greenville. Through a mistake the agent at Whitakers gave him a half ticket, though the full fare was paid for it. Mr. Evans and the conductor on the Plymouth division of the Coast Line had a disagreement over the ticket that resulted in Mr. Evans being put off the train about half way between Bethel and Parmele and had to walk to the latter place in a storm. Reaching Parmele after all trains coming this way had left, he hired a team to bring him on home, getting here about 11 o'clock at night.

Editorial Reparto.

A western weekly prints the following: "Paterfamilias asks, 'How can I get an article into your esteemed paper?' It all depends on the article you want to get into our paper, Pater. If it is small in bulk, like a hairbrush or a tea caddy, spread the paper out upon the floor and, placing the article carefully in the center, neatly fold the edges over it and tie with a string. This will keep the article from slipping out. If, on the other hand, the article is an English bathtub or a clothes-horse you will find it more suited to one of the New York Sunday papers."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Pyramids.

Two principal theories have been advanced for the erection of the pyramids of Egypt. One is that each king on ascending the throne began to build a pyramid as a tomb and monument to himself. This was usually laid out upon a comparatively small scale, so that if the builder had but a short reign his tomb might be complete. As time passed successive layers were added, and the size of the monument was thus proportioned to the length of the builder's reign. This theory is combated by Petrie, who believed that each pyramid was begun and carried out upon a definite design of size and arrangement.

Placing the Blame.

Counsel (a giant in the world of cross examiners)—You are continually bringing actions, aren't you? Plaintiff—I have brought a few. Counsel—You didn't succeed in the last, did you? Plaintiff—I came out of it all right.

Counsel—Do you mean to say you didn't lose it? Plaintiff—I did not. Counsel—You didn't? Remember, sir, you are on your oath. Plaintiff—I know that. Counsel—And yet you swear you didn't lose that action? Plaintiff—I did not. You threw it away for me.—London Scraps.

MONDAY, JUNE 22, 1908.

All roads lead to Charlotte.

If you have a disposition to bet, it is best to be careful who you stake your money on.

The name of Dickinson avenue had better be changed to Dickinson alley. It is not wide enough for anything else.

Sunday's issue of the Raleigh News and Observer was a State convention and Charlotte number right.

There is somebody in Greenville afflicted with a tremendous case of big head. Don't all try to name him at once, please.

This week will end the agony so far as the nomination is concerned. Then will follow the pouring on of oil to heal the wounds caused in the contest.

Whoever is nominated at Charlotte, there should be a putting aside of differences and preferences and all go to work for the nominee.

The press dispatches say that Harry Skinner, of North Carolina, made a ringing speech in the Chicago convention in seconding the nomination of Sherman for vice president.

The president says he has been having "a corking time." No doubt about his "corking" the convention all right, and when the cork was pulled it came out just to his liking.

We have lately received the catalogue of the A. and M. College at Raleigh. The issue of this year includes, in addition to the various courses in Agriculture and in engineering, a full list of the alumni of the college. Since the opening of the A. and M. in 1880, 425 young men have received diplomas. Persons desiring copies of the catalogue may address Registrar's office, West Raleigh, N. C.

It is remarkable that a man of Mr. Taft's career in public life has never been elected to an office, every position he has ever held being one of appointment. The presidential nomination came to him practically the same way, by appointment, for had it not been that he was selected by Mr. Roosevelt and the latter's influence being exerted in driving the delegates to him, he would have never come anywhere near the nomination. There were others whom the party really preferred to Taft, but the president's "big stick" carried him through. It remains to be seen if the same influence can elect him.

HIT THE WRONG BANK

Story of the Man Who Wanted to Open a Small Account.

A WALL STREET EXPERIENCE.

The Would Be Depositor of Modest Means Found Himself in a Place For Millionaires—An Official's Courteous Explanation and Advice.

"When," said the man who writes pieces for magazines and things, "by some strange and unprecedented chance, I had got hold of a matter of $350 all at one and the same time it looked big to me. By an even more curious chance there wasn't anything that I really needed to do with the money, so I decided that I'd bank it.

"Now, I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable, and all that, and I hated to approach a bank without any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

"Simplest thing in the world," said he. "I'll give you a note to our bank."

"That sounded fine to me. He wrote me the note, and I started for the bank a good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been made.

"The bank to which I had the note is in Wall street. I asked the uniformed man who was standing around where I'd find the receiving teller's window, and he pointed that window out to me. I got into line and watched the teller take in money.

"I must own that I was a bit stilled to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a decidedly civil young man, opened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which he read the note again, this time with a sort of puzzled expression on his countenance. I didn't see why the receiving teller should be puzzled over such a simple matter, but puzzled he seemed. He rang a bell and the uniformed man who'd directed me to that window appeared.

"Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier," said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile, and the uniformed man led me down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a handsome gray haired gentleman sitting at a desk.

"The handsome gray haired gentleman received me cordially and invited me to be seated. I handed him my note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after he'd read the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles.

"Ahem!" said the handsome gray haired gentleman, not disagreeably, but in a nice, banker-like way. "Might I enquire, Mr. Penphist, without seeming to be unduly inquisitive, as to how—er—large a—er—balance you would usually be carrying?"

"Well, that was a civil enough question, nothing inquisitive about it.

"Why, sir, I said to the handsome gray haired gentleman, "I am opening an account with a matter of some $350, but I shall no doubt make some additions to that within the next two months, and probably I shall carry a balance of—well, say, $500 or $600 right along."

"The kindly cashier with the gray hair fairly beamed upon me.

"Er—just so, just so," said he, twiddling his thumbs. "We feel complimented, Mr. Penphist, we really do, that you should have come to us. And it is unfortunate—er—really unfortunate, that we are so utterly lacking in facilities for taking care of accounts of such a character."

"You see, Mr. Penphist, our institution is of—er—a sort of special character. It is used as a depository by—well, perhaps I should put it in a clearer manner. I say it to you quite in confidence, you understand, Mr. Penphist, but we have only 1,000 depositors on our books, and these 1,000 depositors' aggregate balances amount all the time to a matter of $110,000,000."

"Well, that was about enough. I saw the light then. I'd drifted into a millionaires' bank on the careless credentials of a business manager who'd written me that note no doubt in a thoughtless mood.

"The gray haired cashier acted bully about it. He recommended a fine bank to me—one that combines perfect responsibility with the necessary facilities for handling accounts like—er—yours, Mr. Penphist," he added.

"For all of the cashier's niceness I walked out of there into the cold gray light of Wall street feeling like a good deal of a human caterpillar.

"I didn't go to the bank recommended to me by the cashier; didn't have the nerve to visit any more banks. I've got $62 left now of the $350, but I'm going to use that as a nest egg, and maybe some day even yet I'll have a bank account."—New York Sun.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Trees and Lightning.

There is a popular belief that certain trees are less likely than others to be struck by lightning and that during a thunderstorm it is quite safe to stand under a beech, for example, while the danger under a resinous tree or an oak is respectively fifteen or twenty times greater. This is disputed by Dr. A. W. Borthwick in "Notes of the Royal Botanical Garden of Edinburgh." The doctor says that no tree is immune, since lightning will select one species quite as readily as another and the beech as readily, quite as frequently as any other species. Apparently the taller trees in a neighborhood are the ones most likely to be struck. Contrary to what is believed by some people, the cells are not "ruptured or torn by the formation of steam, as might happen if the heating by the electric current was very great. The cells collapse and shrink up, but are never torn." The root system does not seem to be over damaged by lightning.

The Long Lived Parrs.

Thomas Parr, who died in London in 1635 at the age of 152 is notable not only for his longevity, but also for that of his descendants. Parr lies buried in Westminster abbey. He worked his farm at the age of 130 and married for the second time at the age of 122. Robert Parr, a great-grandson, died in Shropshire in 1757 at the age of 124. His father lived to be 109 and his grandfather 143. John Newell died in 1761, aged 127, and John Michaelson, aged 127 also, died in 1763. Both were grandsons of Thomas Parr.

Solid Backing.

Little Ethel is the young daughter of a contractor in Philadelphia. One of her sisters has recently entered into an international marriage.

Ethel was asked the other day by one of the teachers, "Whom did the ancients say supported the world on his shoulders?"

"Atlas," answered Ethel.

"Quite right," said the teacher. "And who supported Atlas?"

"Oh," answered Ethel, "I suppose he had an American wife."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Bark of the Dog.

Gardiner in his "Music of Nature" tells us that in a state of nature dogs do not bark, but simply whine, howl or growl, the explosive sound known as "barking" being found only in dogs that are domesticated. The barking of a dog, he says, is an acquired faculty, an effort on the dog's part to speak, derived from his association with man.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class. This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'. It's the law.

We must obey the law or take the consequences. If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma?

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living. Let's all think it over.

ARTIFICIAL EYES.

They Were Made by the Ancient Romans and Egyptians.

It is not exactly known when and where artificial eyes first came into use. But this much is certain, that in ancient times Egyptian and Roman priests, who practiced medicine and surgery, could make artificial eyes as well as artificial hands, arms and legs. In Egypt they knew this art as early as 500 B. C.

The method of these eye manufacturers was very simple. In the midst of a flesh colored piece of cloth, one and one-half to two and one-quarter inches in size, a piece of clay of the natural size of the human eye was attached and so painted over as to represent the eye and its lid. This piece of cloth was fixed over the socket of the closed eye by means of an adhesive substance. However primitive these eyes, they were highly valued and were worn by the Egyptians and Romans. An eye of this kind was found in the ruins of Pompeii.

The first known mention of modern artificial eyes—i. e., eyes worn within the socket—is contained in a rare illustrated work published by the French surgeon Pare in 1561. Pare invented three kinds of artificial eyes. The first consisted of a thin metal band placed around the head of the wearer. One end was provided with a small oval plate covering the socket, the other end being fastened to the back of the head. The plate was covered with soft, smooth leather, on which an eye was painted. Pare's second invention consisted of an enameled hollow golden ball in the shape of an eye worn within the socket. The third was an eye in shape like that worn today, but made of gold and enamel. These eyes were, of course, very costly, and only the wealthy could afford to avail themselves of them.

Later eyes were made of porcelain, which, on account of their cheapness, soon became very popular. Glass eyes were invented in 1579. Already in Shakespeare's time they were the finest products of primitive manual skill. Still, compared to them, the glass eyes of today, though manufactured by mechanical means, are veritable works of art.—New York Tribune.

Baby Goes A-shopping.

"Did you ever see anything like that?" exclaimed a woman standing by the lace counter in a department store when she watched a mother pick up a young, wide awake baby, which was done up like a bundle and which lay with purchases upon the counter. Only its little head stuck out, and no one would have imagined the roll was alive until one beheld the funny little face, puckered up and framed in woolen wrappings. As the mother walked away she carried her spoils thus: Baby on the left arm; shopping bag, filled, in the left hand; several bundles in the crook of her right elbow; a long but thin pocketbook in two fingers of the right hand. And such is woman. She seemed happy.—New York Press.

Must Be Consistent.

In one of the police courts the other day there appeared before the magistrate a certain old Irishman who has been a continual offender for years, her besetting sin being the flowing bowl. The court failed to treat her as an old acquaintance until she calmly announced her age at thirty; then he stopped her.

"See here, Mary," he said, "you've been coming here for ten years, and all that time you have given your age as thirty years. I won't stand it any longer. Why do you do it?"

"Sure, your honor," was the quick reply, "I wouldn't be after telling you one story at one time and another next time. 'Twouldn't sound right."—New York Globe.

Origin of the Doily.

From the name of Robert D'Oyley originated the word doily. A grant of land was given to him in the reign of William of Normandy on condition that he should give yearly a tablecloth of at least 2 shillings value at the feast of St. Michael. According to the custom of the times, the women of his family were skillful with the needle and felt great pride in embroidering their "quit rent tablecloths." In time these cloths came to be valuable and were used as napkins at the royal table. They were called "D'Oyleys."

All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Rodrig, Ga. August 27, 1906.
Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co.,
Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:— In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1903 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life saver. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.

May you live long and prosper,
Yours very truly,
G. N. CORNELL.

TIME TO ACT

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness Profit Greenville People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swelling below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Greenville prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. J. S. Stokes, cor. Twelfth and Evans Sts., Greenville, N. C., says: "For some time I suffered severely from kidney complaint. The kidneys were very irregular in action and at times caused me great annoyance. I had bearing down pains through my abdomen and sharp shooting twinges through my loins causing me untold misery. There was a tender spot across my kidney regions and at times my limbs pained intensely. I finally read of Doan's Kidney Pills and was so much impressed that I procured them at Wooten's drug store. They soon relieved the pains in my sides and limbs, restored the secretions to a regular and normal condition and at present I am feeling a great deal better in every way. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for the great improvement in my condition."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Risky Revenge.
Gaganini, the wonderful violinist, had a narrow escape at Ferrara from a violent death. Enraged by some hissing from the pit, he resolved to avenge the insult, and at the close of his programme informed the audience that he would imitate the language of various animals. After having rendered the notes of different birds, the mewling of a cat, and the barking of a dog, he advanced to the footlights, and, saying, "This is for those who hissed!" imitated the braying of an ass. At this the occupants of the pit rose, rushed on to the stage and would probably have killed their calumniator had he not hastily retreated.

The prevailing rage now, in domestic life, is Spring Cleaning. While you are at that, get out your spring dresses, suits, etc., and have them cleaned up-to-date and ready to wear. Also have your winter clothes cleaned and treated with my special chemical solution to prevent moth eating, and pack them away until winter. RIGHT NOW IS THE TIME.
