NUMBER 1243

CALLED MEETING OF ALDERMEN

TO CONSIDER PETITION CONCERNING STREET PAVING.

No City Pride Shown in the Paving of Dickinson Ave.—Outrage on Tax Payers—Matter Referred to Committee and Sluven Work Goes On.

"Are you going over to the meeting?" asked Alderman Higgs of The Reflector man Monday afternoon.

"What meeting? Didn't know there was any."

"Didn't know of an important meeting as that? Why, the aldermen are going to hold a special meeting in regard to widening the paving on Dickinson avenue."

Armed with this information and a note book the reporter took himself to the mayor's office to see what was doing. After some delay, frequent using of the 'phone and some field work by Chief Smith, the board was called to order with seven members present, Alderman Johnson, the only absentee, being too busy running the rolling machine on the avenue to be present.

In the meantime the brick layers were hustling along on the narrow strip of paving on the avenue toward the two depots.

Clerk Tyson was directed to read a petition that had been presented. This was signed by quite a number of interested citizens and read as follows:

We the undersigned citizens of the town of Greenville petition to the honorable Board of Aldermen that they have the paving of Dickinson avenue done agreeable to the original survey. The stakes showing this survey are still to be seen thus showing the line of this survey.

As the curbing is now laid on Dickinson avenue it is difficult to turn round a two horse wagon if indeed it can be done at all, on Dickinson avenue. From the N. & S. R. R. to the A. C. L. at least the street ought to be wide enough to turn around a wagon on.

In front of the Center Brick warehouse at the intersection of the street that leads out through tobacco town, by reason of the contraction of Dickinson avenue there is likely to be congestion in the fall when traffic is heavy and especially when there is big tobacco breaks.

Some discussion followed this, engaged in by two or three citizens, the mayor and several aldermen, that seemed to throw but little light on the situation. Some argued finances, some wanted to know why there should be a 26-foot paved roadway, hardly wide enough to turn a wagon around in, abutted by a 16-foot side walk with trees and telephone poles about midway the latter.

Finally Alderman Flanagan brought the matter to a head by moving the appointment of a committee of three to go out and "view the remains" and report at a subsequent meeting. The committee was appointed, the meeting adjourned and the paving goes right on between two strings of curbing 24 to 26 feet apart.

The committee work might properly have been done to better effect before the paving progressed so far out Dickinson avenue. It seems but nonsense for such permanent work as street paving to be done on the scale that is being followed on Dickinson avenue. If the idea was merely to spread out the money and reach the A. C. L.

AYDEN ITEMS.

News Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., June 23, 1908.

Miss Marguerite Meredith formerly head nurse in the sanitarium at Washington, N. C., arrived yesterday on the noon train for the purpose of having headquarters here for the practice of her profession. Miss Meredith attended us in a long recent illness and we have cause to know she is not only proficient in her noble calling, but is a lady of many excellent qualities, both of head and heart. We take great pleasure in recommending her to any who may need the service of a thoroughly competent and well trained nurse, realizing the fact that those securing her services will be most fortunate indeed.

During the past week there have been something like 100 bales of cotton on this market. Mr. Rick Sumrell, living just two miles from town, sold 20 bales, for which he received $1250. When a farmer can do this right here in the middle of summer one may well know he is just in it. The same can be said of many other of our surrounding farmer friends. This is a good country, full of good men who know how to till the soil and raise hog and hominy at home.

Mrs. Barnhill, of Greenville, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Sumrell, returned to her home Friday.

Miss Ruth Farwick, after a pleasant visit at the home of her uncle, J. F. Barwick, returned to Kinston Saturday.

Mr. Martin, of Greenville, was here Sunday behind a beautiful pair of bays with one of Ayden's fairest, as a companion, the cynosure of all eyes and the envy of others less fortunate than he.

John S. Hart gave us the first cotton blossom that we have seen this season. Uncle John like Dick Wingate is one of the best.

A gentleman just from a business trip to Tyrrell county tells us that while there he was informed on good authority that for the past twenty years there has not been in the court house a bill of indictment for any violation of the law. How's that?

Miss Mamie Dawson, of Grifton, is here on a visit to friends. Mrs. Willie Prince, of Pinners Point, is here visiting her mother, Mrs. Sack Smith.

The Tenth District International Sunday school convention will be held at Ayden Friday, June 26, 1908. Following is the program:

Morning session, 9 o'clock a. m.—Devotional, Rev. M. T. Plyler; Address of welcome in behalf of Dis. S. S., Rev. C. W. Howard; Address of welcome in behalf of Ayden, Rev. E. T. Phillips; Response, Rev. P. B. Hall; enrollment; reports; Address, Dr. H. W. Battle.

Afternoon, 2:00 p. m.—Devotional, Rev. J. E. Ayscue; miscellaneous business; Address, Rev. J. M. Culbreth; open discussion on S. S. problems.

Music furnished by Vanderbilt University quartette.

railroad by the 1st of July, with something that could be called paving, they might have laid a wheelbarrow track for the present and left the real street paving to be done at another time.

THE COLLEGE BACKS THE GIRL.

Any Student Who Wants to Work Her Way, Can Always Count on Faculty Aid.

No girl, nowadays, need stay away from college because of lack of funds. There are many ways in which she can earn the money, even while attending college, in fact, outsiders must wonder at the variety of tasks the college girl finds to do—from sewing on luttons to being dieticians in large hospitals in summer vacation. Back of the girl workers stand the college faculties to advise and help secure employment, says Laura A. Smith, in the July Delineator. Former students help greatly by founding Students' Aid Funds. A girl may borrow from these funds paying back after she leaves college. Patrons help by giving scholarships ranging from fifty dollars to many thousands. All colleges supply information about these scholarships. All colleges will help the girls sincere in their determination to secure a college education and are willing to work.

Here is an unusually interesting experience, told by a Western girl with grit and business acumen. All girls should read and remember her first statement. She says:

"In all my work my policy has been to find something that pecuhly done and then to do it for them as well as possible; rather than to sell something to some one who does not wish it, and to be, all the time I am selling, heartily ashamed of it. The thing of which I am proudest, because it is my own invention, is my trunk business. At Christmas and in June I get orders for the girls' trunks, acting as expressman, seeing that the trunks are at the proper railway stations on time. I make my contracts with reliable express companies. If the trunks are not at the right stations on time, the express company forfeits a certain sum. I see that each trunk is tagged, loaded and I settle with the company, receiving from it twenty per cent. of the express charges. I make eight or ten dollars each time the trunks are sent out."

A SEVERE HEAT WAVE.

Over Score of Persons Prostrated in New York, No Relief Promised for Three Days.

New York, June 22.—A severe heat wave which has enveloped the Eastern States for three days prostrated over a score of persons in and about New York today. No relief is promised for two days by the weather bureau, and hospitals are preparing to handle any number of heat cases tomorrow. All New York and its environs sweltered today and tonight. There was little reduction in the temperature, which reached a maximum of 86 degree at the weather bureau at one o'clock today. Should the heat continue the public parks will be thrown open to all who wish to sleep on the lawns.—News and Observer.

"Slumberland."

A Mammoth musical extravaganza will be presented in Greenville next Tuesday night, June 30th, by Greenville's best talent. This opera is known throughout the country to be one of the best that has ever been given. It has been presented in New York and other cities with great success. Don't fail to come out next Tuesday night. Seats will be sold for 50 and 75 cents.

CHARLOTTE OBSERVER WINS.

Suit of Rev. C. M. Billings Ends in Favor of the Paper.

Greenville people will be interested in the outcome of a suit tried last week in Rockingham county, because the plaintiff in the action was once pastor of the Baptist church in Greenville.

In June of last year the Charlotte Observer printed a news story sent by a correspondent at Blacksville, S. C., telling of immoral conduct of Rev. C. M. Billings, then a pastor in that town, the result of his conduct leading to dismissal by the church and his suddenly leaving the town. Rev. Billings turned up in North Carolina and in Rockingham county brought suit against The Observer for $30,000 damages.

The suit occupied nearly all of last week in the court the jury returning a verdict about midnight Saturday night that the Blacksville story published by The Observer was true.

A peculiar feature about the verdict was that while the jury said the Blacksville story against the preacher was true, it said that a published report of his being guilty of similar charges at at Waynesville, N. C., was not true, and on this gave the plaintiff a verdict of $5,000 Judge Ward, before whom the case was tried, very promptly set the verdict as to Waynesville aside and gave the paper a new trial on it.

STATE NEWS.

Near Kinston Sunday afternoon a 10-year-old son of Mrs. C. Alphin was drowned while in swimming in the river.

The North Carolina state building at the Jamestown Exposition has been purchased by Mr. C. A. Woodard, of Norfolk, for $5,000 exclusive of the site which will be transferred to him for another consideration by the exposition company. All of the state buildings are passing into the hands of private owners who will make them a colony of fashionable summer residents.

Farmville vs. Greenville.

The heavy hitting Farmville team will cross bats with the "all stars" 2nd nine, of Greenville, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in Mr. Sam Whites' field. The game is expected to be a lively one from start to finish and the boys here expect to do them up in fine style. This being the first game of the season on home grounds a good crowd is expected out to help win the game. Come out and root for Greenville. Admission 10 and 15 cents. Ladies free.

A CURIOUS FIGHT.

Between a Garter Snake and Shiny Ground Puppy in State of Wikes.

Mr. P. G. Church tells us of an interesting and lively fight he witnessed the other day between a garter snake and spotted, slimy "ground puppy." The snake would bite the puppy, and the puppy would give a series of flirts and twists and keep the snake turning over till it let loose. All this time the slimy puppy was rubbing itself over the eyes of the snake, mixing with its slime dust and earth, till finally the snake's eyes were completely glued shut. Then the puppy got loose and slipped away leaving the snake snapping harmlessly in every direction for several minutes. The "puppy" out-generated the snake.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1908.

We hope no one will get lost on the way to the convention.

The gentlemen who got left can pass consolations to each other.

Taft was shocked at the suddenness with which it was thrust upon him.

It will not be many days more before they are moving on to Denver.

Charlotte will not have time to forget the teachers before the delegates are with her.

Enough people ought to see Mecklenburg this week to create a State wide good roads interest.

We doubt if there were ever more North Carolinians on cars in one day than are moving today.

Mr. Bryan says the anti-union plank in the Republican national platform is a "transparent fraud." Sure enough it is thin enough to see through.

The Reflector has gone to the convention looking for no disappointment over the result, and will come back hurrahing for the man who gets nominated.

So many drownings occurring in various sections of the State is a strong argument for boys to be kept away from rivers and mill ponds unless attended by grown people.

The Republican party's proposed revision of the tariff is about on a par with the brewers' idea of reforming the saloons. One might be expected as soon as the other.

The Charlotte Chronicle says "the growth of hospitals as one of the essential factors in the organization of a progressive city or town is very notable." This is one point that Greenville is sadly behind in, yet we predict that at no very distant day the hospital spirit will take hold in earnest here. It must come.

Enough mistakes have been made hereabouts not to keep adding to them. It was a big mistake not to build the new steel bridge across the river at the foot of Evans street and let the old bridge be open for traffic while the new one is being built, and thus save the expense and indefinite worry of the ferry. But it is too late to remedy that now. It is equally as great a mistake to pave Dickinson avenue so narrow that it will be an eyesore to this and future generations. That should be remedied before it is too late.

Kodol is the best known preparation that is offered to the people today for dyspepsia or indigestion or any stomach trouble. It is pleasant to take. It is sold here by Jno. L. Wooten.

A STORY OF HEROISM

Showing How Brave Men Can Calmly Meet Death.

WRECK OF THE BIRKENHEAD.

The Way This British Vessel Went Down Off the Cape of Good Hope. Most of the Crew Were Lost and All the Women and Children Saved.

Visitors to the hospital of the old pensioners at Chelsea will perhaps have noticed in the colonnade a simple memorial tablet, placed there by order of the late Queen Victoria to record the heroic constancy and discipline of the officers and soldiers who lost their lives in the wreck of the transport Birkenhead, off the Cape of Good Hope on Feb. 26, 1852. On Jan. 7 in that year, after embarking re-enforcements amounting to fifteen officers and 476 men for the troops engaged in the Kaffir war, the Birkenhead left Ireland for the cape. On board were also 166 women and children, the wives and families of soldiers. All went well till the transport reached Simon's Town, where ten officers and eighteen men were landed. The ship continued her course on the evening of Feb. 25. But the captain in his anxiety for a quick passage unfortunately kept so close to the shore that during the night the ship got among the rocks which line the coast. About three miles off Danger point at 2 o'clock in the morning of the 26th, while all except those on watch were sleeping peacefully in their hammocks, the ship struck with a violent shock. The bulk of the men on board were young soldiers.

The rush of water on the Birkenhead striking was so great that most of the soldiers on the lower troop deck were drowned in their hammocks. The remainder, with all the officers, appeared on deck, many only partly dressed, and fell in as orderly and as quietly as on the barrack square. Calling the officers round him, Lieutenant Colonel Seton of the Seventy-fourth highlanders, the senior officer on board, impressed on them the necessity for preserving order and silence among the men. The services of the best senior, Captain Wright, Ninety-first highlanders, were placed at the disposal of the commander of the ship to carry out whatever orders he might consider essential. Sixty men were put on the chain pumps on the lower after deck and told off in three reliefs. Sixty more were put on to the tackles of the paddle box boats, and the remainder were brought on to the poop to ease the fore part of the ship, as she was rolling heavily. The commander next ordered the officers' chargers to be pitched out of the gangway. The plunging and terrified horses were got up and cast over, five of them managing to swim ashore. The cutter was then got ready for the women and children, who had been collected under the poop awning, and they were passed in one by one. There being room in the boat for one or two more, the order was given for any trumpeter or bugler boys to be taken. A young drummer standing near was told by an officer to get into the boat, but, drawing himself up, exclaimed that he drew man's pay and would stick by his comrades. The cutter then shoved off in charge of one of the ship's officers, and the women and children were safe.

No sooner was she clear than the entire bow of the vessel broke off at the foremast, the bowsprit going up in the air toward the foretopmast. The funnel also went over the side, carrying away the starboard paddle box and boat and crushing the men on the tackles. The paddle box boat capsized on being lowered, and the large boat in the center of the ship could not be got up.

The men were then ordered on to the poop, where they stood calmly awaiting their fate. Within a few minutes the vessel broke in two, crosswise, just abaft the engine room, and the stern began rapidly to fill. In this extremity the commander yelled out, "Those who can swim jump overboard and make for the boats!" but the officers begged the soldiers not to, as the boat with the women and children would be swamped. They were young men in the prime of life, with all before them, yet no one moved, nor did any sign of terror or fear escape them. Lower and lower sank the vessel into the deadly sea. The old transport shivered, gave a final plunge and disappeared, carrying with her the band of heroes on deck and those working below at the pumps.

Men of all ages and ranks they were—the colonel and the drummer boy, officers of gentle birth and men from the workshop, the plow and the mine, but all animated with the same heroic resolution, fortitude and chivalry—as cool as though they had been on their parade ground, with as much courage as in action in the field. A few managed to cling to the rigging of the malmast, part of which remained out of water, while others got hold of floating pieces of wood and were eventually rescued, but of fourteen officers and 453 men no fewer than nine officers and 349 men perished, many falling prey to the attacks of the sharks, which surrounded the ship in shoals, waiting for their victims. Every woman and child was saved.

Perhaps the greatest compliment ever paid to the memory of the brave was the order of the king of Prussia for the account of the wreck of the Birkenhead to be read on three successive parades at the head of every regiment in his army, and it was spoken of in every school in Prussia and Germany—London Globe.

AN ISLAND OF MASSACRES.

Over Five Million People Have Been Assassinated In Haiti.

Haiti has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rabble rout that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 gentle, brown skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines, to which they were utterly unsuited. In all history is no tragedy more colossal and more pitiful than this one.

Next the buccaneers seized the unhappy island and wreaked vengeance on the Spaniards in such a manner that even the old chroniclers tell of the worst of the atrocities only in the Latin tongue.

Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites, the scenes enacted resembling those that took place at Cawnpore and elsewhere during the Indian mutiny, but magnified a thousandfold.

On account of these atrocities freightful reprisals took place when France in due course reconquered the island. But the negroes bided their time and presently rose again under a ruffian named Dessalines.

This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate. Many of the victims were burned alive after having been first tortured.

In all it is computed that over 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm fringed strand.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sleep Talkers.

It is a curious fact that people when talking in their sleep are always truthful and never evasive, but if their feelings are played upon by their questioner they will betray great anger. Their eyes are always tightly closed, and the intonation of the voice is very different from the tones used when the person is fully awake. Sleep talkers may by conversation be brought to remember a dream within a dream, and they will recollect what happened in preceding dreams. Very often mental anxiety will make people talk in their sleep when under other conditions they would never do it.

The Lancer Snake.

There is a snake called the lancer, which lives in South America and is very ready with its fangs. It is a small, brown, insignificant beast, but its bite induces a sort of imaginary swelling all over the victim's body. He feels as if every inch of him were being strained to breaking point, and the agony which results is too awful for words. Generally, however, the excess of pain drives the bitten man mad before very long, and in four hours he dies—a senseless imbecile.

How Many Bricks Have You Sent Away?

That sounds like a funny question, addressed to every citizen of this town and community, but it's really a serious one.

Listen: There is now just completed a magnificent building of red brick exterior and concrete interior right in the business heart of one of the biggest of American cities. It occupies a whole block and calls itself in a large lettered sign "The Largest Monolithic Building in the World." It has many floors, with about a hundred acres of floor space. The entrances are of solid marble. The floors are beautifully tiled. Altogether it is a credit to the big city in which it stands. Oh, it's a Jim Dandy!

Now, how many bricks have you sent to the city to go into this big building? Honest, how many?

Of the hundreds of thousands of bricks put into the walls of this building the city where it stands has contributed not a single red brick. Country people, the people of small towns and cities far away from the big metropolis, have sent in the bricks for the construction of this splendid edifice.

You may have sent in a few hods of bricks yourself without knowing it.

Listen: This magnificent structure, which ornaments a city you probably never will see yourself, is built of bricks bought with the dollars of people living in towns just like ours—towns that would like to have some new brick buildings themselves now and then. Every dollar contributed to the city building fund means a nice, hefty hod of bricks for this big, beautiful skyscraper, "largest in the world" of its kind. This building was put up, through the kind donations of their unknown country cousins, by a firm that ran a small store in that city a few years ago.

But this firm conceived the cute idea of having thousands of strangers contribute bricks to build its fine, large, new store.

And the building is a Mail Order Store. See?

MRS. VIXENHEAD.

The Story of a Berlin Shrew and Her Likeness in Stone.

This quaint equivalent of the German term neidkopf is applied by travelers to an effigy carved in stone and fixed in a niche in the second story of a house in the Helligengeiststrasse in Berlin not far from the emperor's palace. The neidkopf represents a hideous, harpy faced woman with snakelike curls and tongue protruding in mocking derision.

One day some 200 years ago, the legend runs, Frederick William of Prussia, more familiarly known as Old Fritz, was walking about the streets of the city in the unconventional way he affected when he chanced to look through a window and observed a hunchbacked goldsmith hard at work. The king entered the little shop for a chat.

The result of his interview was an order for a gold table service for the royal household, an order that made the fortune of the hunchback. Later his majesty made other visits to the shop to see how the work was advancing, and on one of these occasions he observed a woman in the window of the opposite house contorting her face in the most hideous grimaces and pointing with derisive finger at the crippled workman.

To the king's query as to what all the old woman the goldsmith replied: "It is envy, sire. She is the wife of a rival goldsmith, and ever since your majesty so graciously gave me this order she and her daughter have reviled me."

Frederick William, paternal in punishment as well as in reward, at once investigated as to the ownership of the house in which the shrew lived. He found that it belonged to her husband and therefore reasoned that there was little likelihood of the family moving, an idea that seemed greatly to please his majesty. His next move was to consult a sculptor, whom he commanded to make the bust of a woman with the most shrewish, Xantippe-like face he could imagine. The king then bought and renovated the house in which the hunchback had his workshop, presented it to him and caused the bust to be placed conspicuously above the workroom window. Thus whenever the odious woman across the street looked forth from her casement the first object on which her eyes fell was this intended portrait of her amiable self.

For more than a hundred years the neidkopf—spiteful vixen head, as one would say in English—stood in proud prominence, a reproach to the envious woman and her descendants. It afterward mysteriously disappeared, but in 1840 or thereabouts it was found in a forgotten collection of bric-a-brac. Frederick William IV. bought the bust for a large price and had it replaced in its original niche, where it stands today.—New York Tribune.

The Senate Band.

The press gallery of the senate does not look unlike a band stand, with its elaborately decorated front, and it is never occupied by the scribblers prior to the opening of the proceedings. A young lady seated in the gallery opposite the press gallery had been looking intently at the empty seats for quite awhile. Her curiosity got the better of her, and, going to the doorkeeper, she said, "Mister, will you please tell me when the band begins to play?" The doorkeeper was amazed. "No band will play, miss," said that gentleman. "There is no band. Why do you ask?" The young lady looked disappointed and embarrassed when she said, with hesitation, "Isn't that the band stand?" pointing to the press gallery.—Washington Herald.

Bray's Mythical Vicar.

It is curious to reflect that there are scattered about the world many scores of places whose chief claim to distinction consists in their association with some famous ditty or other. Take, for example, the village of Bray, in Berkshire, always associated with the world famous "Vicar of Bray." The most curious part of the business is that, though Fuller, in his "Worthless of England," asserts that the cleric who is the hero of the song was one Simon Alleyne, careful search of the parish registers has failed to substantiate the story.—London Musical Home Journal.

A Strenuous Task.

"Your honor," said the witness, "can't you order a recess?"
"A recess?"
"Yes, sir. I've stood on this stand and told the whole truth two hours on a stretch, and I'm teetotally wore out! I never told the truth that long before—not in all my life!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Shattered Hopes.

He (anxiously)—I understand your father speaks very highly of me? She—Yes, but he doesn't mean a word of it. He—Are you sure of that? She—Certainly. He does it just to torment mother.—Chicago News.

An Eyewitness.

"Have you any witnesses of the accident?" asked the Brentford county court judge recently.
"Yes," was the reply, "my uncle. He is not here because he is blind."—London Telegraph.

Take Care of the Pennies, Etc.

"Make anything on that deal?" Gobbins Golde inquired.
"Only a million," Myduss gloomily replied.
"Well, every million counts."—New York Press.

Grief should be like joy—majestic, equable, sedate.—Aubrey de Vere.

THE CHEERFUL TURTLE.
This Queer Creature Enjoys Many Peculiar Advantages.
"To be or not to be—a turtle? To be certainly, if I could not be a man," declares one who speaks with knowledge of his subject. "Basking in tropical suns or cruising leisurely in cool depths, the turtle has an exceedingly good time. As soon as the baby turtle emerges from the egg he scuttles down to the sea. He has no one to teach him, no one to guide. In his little brain there is implanted a streak of caution, based on the fact that until a certain period his projecting armor is soft and no defense against hungry fish, and he immediately seeks shelter in the tropical profusion of the gulf weed, which holds within its branching fronds an astonishing abundance of marine life.
"Here the young turtle feeds unmolested and knows that his armor is hardening apace. Once he has attained the weight of twenty-five pounds he may 'cheek' freely any monster of the deep. After that no fish or mammal ever interferes with him. Intending devourers may struggle all day to break through his iron shell. They always fail.
"The turtle, like the sperm whale, has but one enemy—man. Now, even that sperm whale must come pretty frequently to the surface to breathe, and if it got beached high and dry on land what would become of it? But the cheerful turtle can stay below the surface for a week if he wants to, and he often does, while if he had to spend an equal time on land he would enjoy the change and be none the worse for it. He is neither fish, flesh nor fowl, yet his flesh partakes of the characteristics of all three.
"Eating seems a mere superfluity with him, since for weeks at a time he may be placed in a barrel, with the bung out, and emerge after his long fast apparently none the worse for his enforced abstinence from food, from light and almost from air. Of all the warm blooded organisms there is none so tenacious of life as the turtle. Injuries that would be instantly fatal even to fish leave the turtle apparently undisturbed, and his power of keeping death at bay is nothing short of marvelous."
AN EFFECTIVE SERMON.
Trumpet Blast That Drove the People to Repentance.
Old Peter Cartwright was a famous preacher and circuit rider many years ago.
The exhorter was holding a camp meeting in Ohio. There was a great number of campers on the field, and the eccentric speaker addressed vast concourses at every service. but he thought too few were being converted. He felt that something should be done to stir the sinners to repentance, so he prepared a strong sermon on the second coming of Christ. He told how the world would go on in its sin and wickedness and at last Gabriel would sound his trumpet and time would come to an end. He described the horrors of the lost and the joys of those who were saved. The sermon grew in intensity, and he brought his people up to a grand climax, when suddenly the sound of a trumpet smote the ears of the anxious throng.
There was a great sensation, and many fell upon their knees in terror and began to repent and pray. Women screamed and strong men groaned. Pardonment was let loose for a few minutes. After the terror had somewhat ceased the preacher called to a man up a tree, and he descended with a long tin horn in his hand. The speaker then turned in fierce wrath and upbraided the people. He cried out in stentorian tones that, if a man with a tin horn up a tree could frighten them so, how would it be in the last great end when Gabriel's trumpet sounded the knell of the world! The sermon had a great effect upon the vast audience, and many hundreds flocked to the front and were converted.

Risky Revenge.
Gaganini, the wonderful violinist, had a narrow escape at Ferrara from a violent death. Enraged by some hissing from the pit, he resolved to avenge the insult, and at the close of his programme informed the audience that he would imitate the language of various animals. After having rendered the notes of different birds, the mewling of a cat, and the barking of a dog, he advanced to the footlights, and saying, "This is for those who hissed!" imitated the baying of an ass. At this the occupants of the pit rose, rushed on to the stage and would probably have killed their calumniator had he not hastily retreated.

What a Blessing!
Smith—What a blessing children are! Jones (enthusiastically)—Aren't they! Now that my wife has two to look after she has no time to play the piano.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Disagreeable Woman is to be Pitied.
There is a world of helpful thought in the following, taken from the July issue of The Designer:
The woman who goes out into a world full of wonderful sights and of many people, and, not knowing how to look, comes back with just as little knowledge as when she first started out.

The one who complains of being awkward, and yet has never looked out for the graceful people, that she may imitate them.
The one who talks of seeing disagreeable faces, rude people and unhappiness, because she has not looked out for the pleasant people, the goodness and kindness of the world.

If she would only learn to look, not only with the eyes of her head, but with the eyes of her heart, at the world, she would find that there is a blue sky over her head; that the sun is shining. Then with the eyes of her heart look at the worries and troubles of other people, and, by comparison with them, she would find her own burden so light, and her own back so well suited to carry it, that satisfaction would come.

The prevailing rage now, in domestic life, is Spring Cleaning. While you are at that, get out your spring dresses, suits, etc., and have them cleaned up to-date and ready to wear. Also have your winter clothes cleaned and treated with my special chemical solution to prevent moth eating, and pack the way until winter. RIGHT NOW!
