GREENVILLE WATER SUPPLY.

Explanation as to its Purity
Editor Reflector:
Many of our citizens have erroneous ideas of the processes of purification and filtration employed in the city water works, they believe that chemicals are used to destroy objectionable substances and that these chemicals remain in the water and may themselves be injurious.

Now, Mr. Editor, I believe a short clear explanation of the system, without entering into tiresome details, would interest the readers of The Reflector and that means practically all the people in Greenville.

The objectionable impurities may be divided into two general classes: First: Impurities in suspension. Second: Those in solution.

Objectionable impurities in suspension comprise: First: clay, sand, vegetable matter and all other similar insoluble matter. Second: micro-organisms. Third: Bacteria.

Matters in solution are rendered insoluble and are removed with the first class. Many of the impurities are so minute that they would pass through the interstices between the grains of sand which form the filter bed and still be present in the filtrate, were they not first coagulated, and for this purpose sulphate of alumina is used and the reaction is as follows:

When the alumina salt is introduced the mineral properties in the water react with the salt, decomposing it into an insoluble hydrate which takes the form of flakes and these catch and hold all the clay, silt, bacteria and other impurities and on account of the heavier specific gravity of the hydrate are precipitated, except small percentage which reaches the filter and are caught in the coating of schmuttdecke which forms a sheet like heavy felt on the surface of the filter bed.

The filter is thoroughly cleansed every few hours by forcing steam and pure water back through and thence to the sewer.

The work is carefully watched and each analysis from the State laboratory of Hygiene shows Greenville has good water.

R. M. ZAHNISER, Engineer.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., July 8.—Bradstreets' Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

Trade, as a whole, shows slight improvement over a comparative period of last month. Wholesalers of dry goods are receiving fair orders for shipment and they anticipate increased sales as the season advances. Stocks of merchandise generally are depleted and consumption has necessarily caused an increased demand; however, conservative buying continues a feature. Dealers in oils, paints, hardware and building material report increased sales. A stronger demand for leather is noted. Produce is dull except in carload shipments to resorts and northern markets. The fruit crop throughout Virginia is reported good. Wheat is being threshed and the yield and quality are reported good. Cotton, corn and tobacco crops continue in excellent condition throughout Virginia and North Carolina. In some sections, however, storms have been disastrous to cotton. Retail trade is at its end season dullness. Owing partly to many bills becoming due the first of this month collections show improvement.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Business Transacted at the Last Meeting of the Board.

The board of county commissioners met in regular session on the 6th, all the members present.

Orders were drawn on the treasurer amounting as follows: Paupers $167.75; county home $241.36; attorneys $275; superintendent health $25; bridges and ferries $2,900.36; tax lists $340; conveying prisoners and insane $42.35; elections $22.69; bonds $14.76; books and stationary $39.25; jail $73.80; court house $1.50; register of deeds $17.75; commissioners $53.25; indigent deaf, dumb and blind $33.45; jury tickets $12.60; sundries $14.20; general roads $54.35; Falkland township roads $557.45; Farmville township roads $31.54; Belvoir stock law $5; Winterville stock law $5; county stock law $39.28.

Some correspondence and reports relative to the bonds sold by the county for the aid of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School and for building bridges, were read and passed upon, necessary order being made in regard to these transactions.

The road petitioned for in Bethel township at June meeting, across the lands of D. H. Williamson and others, was ordered laid out.

Heber Tripp at $2 per month, Ary Jones at $1 per month and Levi House at $3.50 per month, were added to the pauper list.

The committee appointed to assist in settlement between the sheriff and treasurer for taxes collected for the year 1907, reported that the sheriff had made full settlement with the treasurer.

Ten applications for license to retail liquor for six months were granted.

Congressman John H. Small appeared before the board in regard to having a government expert to come to Pitt county and give instruction as to road building; also in regard to having a map of the county published, both of which matters were approved by the board.

The following were drawn to serve as jurors for August term Superior court:

First week—J. T. Turner, R. S. James, W. B. Wingate, I. E. Jenkins, C. J. Tucker, Jesse Gay, B. F. Forest, B. F. Tugwell, Frank Moye (col), W. P. Edwards, W. B. Brown, Eps Tell, C. D. Tunstall, Paul Harrington, Israel Moore, D. M. Johnson, T. E. Hardee, J. A. Moore.

Second week—T. F. Proctor, H. W. Martin, J. L. Cox, J. J. Dixon, R. J. Dixon, R. D. Edwards, J. M. Edwards, J. J. Buck, G. R. Buck, C. G. Barrow, N. H. Beddard, A. F. Cox, W. B. Nobles, D. F. Owens, P. J. Bynum, J. A. Forbes, Mahone Tucker, E. A. Johnson.

More Convenient to Meet Early.

There being doubt in the minds of some as to the reason for calling the congressional convention together at the early hour of 9 a. m., the chairman deems it proper to announce that the executive committee decided upon this hour in order that the delegates from the north side of the sound could leave for their homes on the same day after the convention adjourned.

A. L. Pendleton, Chairman,
Dem. Con. Ex. Com.

[It is also equally convenient for delegates from this section, as they can leave Plymouth after the convention and get home the same evening.—Ed.]

SUGGESTION ABOUT PRIMARY.

To the Democratic Committee and Balance of Voters of Pitt County.

Pactolus, N. C., July 9, 1908. I have heard that some of the candidates in the county favor a permanent primary and that all the candidates names running for the same office should be put on the same ballot and voted, and the voters preference should be checked on the ballot. It seems to me that the voting primary should meet the approval of all the voters, but I am confident that to vote all of the candidates names running for the same office on the same ballot will not. As you all know that voting is done very hurriedly at our primaries, some little excitement, always confusion, and some parties might make a mistake in checking the party voting for. I think that every candidate will be glad to have his own tickets printed and place them at every precinct in the county.

Yours very truly,
J. R. Davenport.

Pitt Boys Again.

Among the successful applicants for license before the State board of pharmacists in session at Morehead City this week, we notice the names of B. S. Warren, of Greenville and C. L. Ross, of Ayden. You can always count on Pitt county boys.

WON ON A BLUFF.

The Way One Prosperous Merchant Got His Start in Business.

There is a prosperous merchant in Chicago today who owes his success to his donation of a $5,000 organ to a church at a time when he didn't have money enough to buy a hand organ. This donation was a case of bluff pure and simple, but the bluff worked and resulted in the subsequent wealth of the lucky bluffer.

John Smith was seeking capital to start in business for himself, but as he had no security worth speaking of he could not borrow the money he needed.

When he had tried every person he could think of who would be likely to have the necessary cash and the inclination to lend it and had been turned down, he conceived the idea of presenting his church with an organ.

Young Napoleon John Smith therefore ordered his organ and allowed the future to look out for itself. The manufacturers of the organ never thought of questioning the financial standing of the philanthropist who was handing out $5,000 organs and agreed to have the instrument set up in the church on time.

Of course J. Smith was not a bud that was born to blush unseen, nor did he hide his beneficence under a bushel. He managed to bring in at least the flute stops no matter what the subject of conversation. Not only did the young Napoleon advertise himself by means of the church organ, but the pleased minister and the equally pleased congregation spread the news of his gift.

During this time John did not allow any alfalfa to grow under his feet. On the pretense of consulting some wealthy member of the congregation about some minor details of the organ he would drop into an office and before he left casually would mention the subject of the company that he was forming. Most of the men that he thus saw thought that it would be a good thing to be associated with a man who was making so much money that he was able to hand out $5,000 without missing it, so that all were anxious to take stock in J. Smith's company.

Long before the time came for the first payment on the organ Smith had gathered enough money to start his business and was doing so well he had no difficulty in borrowing the amount needed to make the payment. From that time he has made money so fast that now he could give away several $5,000 organs and pay for them as well.—Chicago Tribune.

Nautical Information.

"By the way, captain," said the sweet young thing on the second day out, with a smiling attempt to be chummy, "where does Mother Carey feed her chickens?"

"In the trough of the sea, young woman," replied the captain of the ocean liner, with solemn dignity.—Chicago Tribune.

A good head and industrious hand are worth gold in any land.—Dutch Proverb.

HE STOPPED HIS PAPER

Because Something That Was in it Didn't Please Him.

Some time ago a cranky sort of an old man came into this office and stopped his paper because something in it did not just suit his fancy. We have met him several times since on the street and it is interesting to see the surprised look on the old fellow's face that we are still in existence regardless of the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day—that old gentleman will turn up his toes. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay it among the flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was, which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake, and in a short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold ground, wrapped in the silent slumber of death, he will never know the last kind word spoken of him by the editor of the paper which in life he so spitefully "stopped."

Did you ever pause, reader, just for a moment and think that the editor of your paper, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day? If the writing of the obituaries, of that class who never have a kind word to say, nor the price of a subscription for their home paper, was all, many editors would feel that the burdens of life were light.—Snow Hill Laconic-Standard.

SUSPENDED.

Another News Paper Gives up the Fight

The Tarboro Leader a bright newsy paper has suspended. While sympathizing with the management in their misfortune, it should be clear to the people of the majority of the towns in North Carolina that one newspaper finds it difficult to measure up to exaction required of it and make both ends meet. Therefore instead of trying to cripple the papers that have labored unceasingly year in and year out, and remained faithful at their post, the people should throw more business to them and thus place their newspaper in a position to give them better service.

It is true as gospel that many people require more from their newspapers than they are willing to pay for, and until they are willing to sustain their newspapers more than they do, they will continue to have sorry ones.—Wilson Times.

This makes the third daily paper in Eastern North Carolina that has recently suspended because two papers could not live in a town that was not large enough to give one a good support. The Times in the forgoing very truly points out the duty of the citizens of a town toward their town paper. One good paper is better than half a dozen poor ones.

Ice Cream Sale.

Owing to the rain the lawn party, which the ladies of the Baptist church were to hold on the court house square tonight had to be abandoned, but they will have ice cream on sale at Hines' old cafe. Give them your patronage.

Bryan is the man.
If Perry gets there first he should holler back to Wellman.

Here's hoping Lieutenant Peary will not freeze while hunting for the North Pole.

Anna Gould it used to be has got her another husband, and is welcome to him.

And Durham, too, says the druggists shall not sell it. Let the good work go on.

The fleet has taken to open water again and will next be heard from Honolulu.

Colonel Guffey might be more appropriately called Cuffey from the way he can raise a row.

If all those men on the Socialist State ticket vote for themselves it will be that many.

Up jumps Marion Butler and says he wouldn't have it. Better wait until it is offered him.

The report of demonstrations in Denver is a strong reminder of recent doings in Charlotte.

We are certainly living now. Canteloupes and fried apples are soon enough for any breakfast.

The next president will be named William, but it is too soon yet to give the other part of his name.

Having their names printed on the ticket is about all the honor those Socialist candidates may expect to get out of it.

It is a pity that the North Carolina delegations to Denver had to have a fuss among themselves.

The best thing that Charlotte is getting out of it is the advertising. There is no doubt of its being the most widely known town in the State.

With corn readily selling at a dollar a bushel the farmer who has a surplus of it is strictly in the boat. But the one who has to buy corn at that price is all overboard.

When a guard shoots a prisoner somebody comes forward to try to raise a fuss about it. What is the use to have a guard if his business is not to keep the prisoners from escaping?

The Missouri fisherman who claims to have found a lady's gold watch in the stomach of a 40-pound catfish which he caught, failed to state what went with the lady or if the watch was still at work.

Of course it was known from the start that it would be Bryan, but the convention had to fill out the time agreed upon so as to give the hotels a chance. You know Denver gave $100,000 just to get the convention.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctored, pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Just another case of thinking some spot around the house is a safer receptacle for money than a bank. A Greensboro young woman had managed to save up $2,100. She took a notion to draw the money out of the bank and have it hid away at the home of her father in the country. The story has the usual conclusion: While the family was absent from home a thief found the money and made way with it. It looks like enough items of this kind have been printed to induce every person who has surplus money to deposit it in the bank.

THE FISH IN HIS BED.

Funny Climax to an Angling Experience of General Gallifet.

Long ago, in the days of the second empire, General Gallifet was the aide-camp of Napoleon III. At St. Cloud his quarters were just over the imperial bedroom. Everything around him was very grand and very gloomy. The window of his room looked upon the pond that washed the walls of the chateau. The water was clear and the surrounding scenery was beautiful, but the young lieutenant felt like a prisoner. Early one morning, while seated at his window trying to drive away the blues with a cigar, he espied below in the crystal water an enormous carp. The instinct of the angler, strong in Gallifet, made the young man's eyes snap and set his heart throbbing.

The big fish was the private property of the emperor. Consequently for Gallifet it was forbidden fish. But it was such a fine fellow. The resistance of the soldier's conscience was useless. It surrendered unconditionally. The remaining part of the campaign against the carp was simple enough. Gallifet went to his trunk, brought out his trusty line, to which he fastened a hook and an artificial bait. With his accustomed skill he cast his line. The carp was hooked and hauled in through the window.

Here the lieutenant's fun ended and his trouble began. The fish, landed upon a table, overturned a large globe filled with water and caromed from that to a magnificent vase, which it also upset and smashed to pieces upon the floor. Then it began to execute a genuine pas de carpe among the smithereens.

The emperor, hearing the strange racket overhead and seeing the water trickling through the ceiling, was astonished. He rushed upstairs to find out what was the matter. Gallifet heard him coming and endeavored to grab the carp and throw it out of the window and thus destroy the evidence of his poaching in the imperial pond. But the slippery thing was hard to hold, so he tossed it into a bed and covered it up with the bedclothes. When the emperor entered the room, he noticed immediately the quivering bedclothes. He pulled them down and uncovered the floundering fish. His majesty's face assumed an almost diabolic expression, which gradually faded into a faint smile. He took in the entire situation, saluted and left the future war minister to meditate upon the mysteries of a fisherman's luck.

Perplexed.

A Frenchman in conversation with a friend said: "I am going to leave my hotel. I paid my bill yesterday and asked the landlord, 'Do I owe you anything?' He said, 'You are square.' 'That's strange,' said I; 'I have lived long and never knew I was square before.' Then, as I was going away, he shook my hand, saying, 'I hope you'll be round again soon.' I said, 'I thought you said I was square.' He laughed and replied, 'When I said I hoped you'd be round again soon I meant I hoped you wouldn't be long.' English is a difficult language."

Always Tired.

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You! Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean. You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demnition bowwows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a hodcarrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gourmandizing upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey! Didn't we!

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey!

Didn't that ever occur to you?

N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

IDOLS OF THE HINDOOS

There Are Hundreds of Millions of Them in India.

THE FAME OF JUGGERNAUT.

This Idol Has Been Worshipped About Two Thousand Years, and His National Temple Is on the Sands of Puri—The Three Monster Cars.

If I were asked to describe India the first remark that would spring from my lips would be, "It is a land of idols." It would be impossible to compute the number of idols that there must be at the present time in India. The Hindoos pretend to have 333,000,000 gods, and these are represented by innumerable idols, so that we are quite bewildered with the thought of taking the census of the idols of India. The population of the whole Indian empire is now about 300,000,000, and possibly the country contains ten times as many idols as people.

Benares is the great center of the idol making business, though in all parts of India the trade flourishes. Potters the day through may be seen in the sacred city melting lumps of clay for temporary use. Sculptors also may be found producing representatives of the gods in stone or marble. Carpenters, moreover, make great wooden idols for the temples, and workers in metal—goldsmiths, copper-smiths and brass workers—turn out more or less highly finished specimens in their respective metals.

When speaking of idols it should be borne in mind that the images turned out by the potter, sculptor, carver, or manufacturer are not considered sacred or fit to be worshipped until certain mystic words have been uttered over them by a priest. The ceremony of "the giving of life," as it is called, to the image is a very solemn affair, and when it is done the idol is regarded as holy and must ever afterward be approached and treated with the utmost reverence.

Out of the many millions of so called gods in India, all of whom are counted worthy of worship, three are regarded as specially sacred and form the Hindoo triad or trinity. They are respectively Brahma, Vishnu and Siva. Of those it is stated the second person of the trinity only has been represented on this earth by human incarnations. Through one or all of these gods the Hindoos believe they may obtain salvation. Brahma represents the way of salvation by wisdom, Vishnu by faith and Siva by works. It is immaterial which method is adopted, as they all lead to the same goal.

Juggernaut is perhaps the most famous name among all the Hindoo idols, inasmuch as his fame has gone forth into every land. His temple is situated on the sandy shores of Orissa, washed by the wild waves of the bay of Bengal. The worship of Juggernaut dates back nearly 2,000 years, and Orissa has been the holy land of the Hindoos from that time till the present day.

Sir William Hunter, who was one of the greatest authorities on things East Indian, says in a wonderfully graphic description of the temple of Juggernaut: "On the inhospitable sands of Puri, a place of swamps and inundations, the Hindoo religion and Hindoo superstition have stood at bay for eighteen centuries against the world. Here is the national temple whither the people flock to worship from every province of India. There is the gate of heaven whither thousands of pilgrims come to die, lulled to this last sleep by the roar of the eternal ocean."

Well, I saw on one occasion that marvelous sight, the dragging of Juggernaut's car and the cars of his brother and sister. The three idols are inseparable, and ugly things they are, being nothing but huge logs of wood coarsely fashioned into human shape, but without arms or legs.

Juggernaut's car stands forty-one feet high and has fourteen enormous wheels. The other two cars are just a little smaller. The great cars have to be dragged a certain distance—half a mile or more from the temple—and the god will not allow horses or elephants to undertake the work, but calls upon his faithful worshippers to do it themselves. Immense ropes, or rather, cables, are attached to the cars, and at the word of command from the priests thousands of men and even women and children rush forward and seize the ropes and range themselves in order and the next moment are straining and pulling at the cumbersome conveyances, which at length move with a heavy, creaking noise.

Never shall I forget the sight. The road was filled with tens of thousands of lookers-on, all wild with excitement, and the fanatics who held the ropes were dragging the cars along with frenzied zeal. Every now and then there would be a stop that the men might rest, I supposed, but instead of resting they took to jumping in the air and to whirling themselves around like dancing dervishes and shouting at the top of their breath: "Victory! Victory to Juggernaut!"

Once on a time infatuated worshippers would throw themselves under the wheels of the mighty car that they might be crushed to death, counting it a privilege and a joy thus to perish. Some might do it today if the paternal British government did not provide against such catastrophes by taking all due precaution.—John J. Pool, B. D., P. R. G. S., in Los Angeles Times.

Yellow Fever.

The first appearance of yellow fever is said to have been among the soldiers of Columbus in 1495.

HE SOUGHT DEATH.

The Unfortunate Napoleon III. at the Battle of Sedan.

Sarah Bernhardt mentions in her memoirs that Napoleon III. had two horses shot under him at Sedan. Some having thrown doubt on her statement and denied that the emperor was ever in personal danger at the time, Baron Verly, son of the late colonel of the Cent Gardes, gives what he affirms to be the authentic account of the unhappy sovereign's persistent attempts to court death when he saw that defeat was unavoidable. On Sept. 1, 1870, at 6 o'clock in the morning, Marshal MacMahon, returning wounded to Sedan, met the emperor riding out to Bazailles. Napoleon III. realized that the situation was desperate. He rode slowly out, depressed and thoughtful, under a hail of shot. During an hour he inspected the positions. Bullets rained on his escort. Captain d'Hende-court was killed a few feet away from the emperor. The latter, deliberately seeking death, alighted, ordered his escort to remain behind an embankment and walked up to a cemetery on a height, where he stayed for another hour, exposed to fire. He mounted again and rode to another part of the field. General de Courson and Captain de Trecesson were dangerously wounded by his side, but not a bullet hit him. The emperor at last seemed to despair of meeting his death as he sought it and rode back to Sedan at noon. In the town itself shells fell thick, and while the emperor was riding with his escort up the Grand Rue one burst just in front of him, wounded one of the Cent Gardes and killed the horses of two aides-de-camp. Napoleon III. looked on stolidly, understanding, perhaps, that it was not his fate to die in action. The story that he had two horses killed under him is, therefore, not correct. But there is no doubt that the unfortunate emperor, beaten and in a pathetic and tragic figure, did deliberately seek death on the field to escape the disgrace of Sedan which he foresaw.—Paris Letter.

A SERPENT STORY.

Terrifying Experience With a Deadly Lancehead.

The Paris Belair tells a blood curdling serpent story, the scene of which was the island of Martinique and the dramatic personae Sergeant Legrand and Private Durand and the snake a deadly lancehead.

The soldier had been punished with a night in the cells for some trivial offense, but as the night was very hot the sergeant had left the door open. In the morning at 5 o'clock Legrand went to wake his prisoner and, to his horror, beheld a lancehead snake coiled up and fast asleep on the man's breast.

The sergeant did not lose his presence of mind. He stole noiselessly away ran to the guard room and, followed by all the men on duty, returned to the cell with a bowl of milk and a tin whistle. Placing the bowl of milk at the entrance to the cell, the sergeant began to play the "Blue Danube." It is needless to remark that the weakness of the lancehead is milk and music. The serpent, which was a six foot specimen, awoke, glided from the soldier's body toward the bowl, but it had no sooner buried its head in its beloved drink than ten cudgels descended on it with terrific force, killing it outright.

The soldier Durand, who was in a swoon, was taken to hospital, where he lay for many days on the verge of madness. He finally recovered and related his horrible experience—how he had awoke in the middle of the night as the serpent was coiling itself on his bare breast and how he had lain there in an agony for hours, not daring to move a muscle.

Durand was sent back to France as soon as he had sufficiently recovered. The only trace of his terrible experience, adds the Belair, is that his hair is now snow white.

Love's Young Dream.

Another case of the bad boy rudely interrupting love's young dream. A Malate girl and her Romeo sat in close proximity on the couch in the drawing room lost to the world. They were brought back from Eden by her little brother, who, like many of his kind, makes it a practice to butt in at the wrong time. He walked into the room, planted himself in front of the young man and asked:

"Was you ever tied to a fish line?" "I certainly was not," was the reply. "Well," responded the boy, "I heard pa tell ma last night that you'd make a good sinker."—Mailla Gossip.

As to Quotations.

How many persons can unhesitatingly name the source of the familiar quotations? Many a man goes through life without reading a single play of Shakespeare, but probably no English speaking man goes through life without quoting him. If he sneers at "a woman's reason," he quotes Shakespeare; if he refers to "a trick worth two of that," he quotes Shakespeare again.

Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" is not a popular work, but one line of it—"Ask me no questions, and I will tell you no lies"—is known and used by everybody.

Made Him a Songster.

Mr. Stubb (in astonishment)—Gracious, Maria! That tramp has been singing in the back yard for the last hour. Mrs. Stubb—Yes, John, it is all my fault. Mr. Stubb—Your fault? Mrs. Stubb—Indeed it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I boiled up the bird seed by mistake.—Chicago News.

Solenodons.
Only two species of that singular insectivorous mammal, the solenodon, are known, one inhabiting Haiti and the other Cuba. They differ chiefly in the color and quality of their fur. Solenodons are quaint looking animals, rather larger than rats, with long flexible snouts and naked tails. They are nocturnal and obtain their food by digging in the soft ground for insects, etc., with their snouts. Their brain capacity is small, and they are said to have the curious habit when hunted by dogs of hiding their heads in the nearest holes and leaving their bodies exposed.

Maria happened to be awake, and—well, that is how it was.—Liverpool Mercury.

No Operation

Mrs. Malinda Akers, of Basham, Va., writes: "I had what doctors call 'prolapse,' and couldn't stand straight. I had pain in my back and shoulders, and was very irregular and profuse. Doctors said an operation was needed, but I couldn't bear the thought of the knife. After taking three bottles of Wine of Cardui, I could walk around. Can now do my housework and am in splendid health."

Cardui is a pure, vegetable, medicinal essence, especially adapted to cure women's diseases. It relieves excessive periodical pains, regulates irregularities, and is a safe, pleasant and reliable remedy for all sick women. In successful use for over 70 years. Try it.
