That said election shall be held and conducted in the several townships at the places that are provided by law for holding general elections, and that the same shall be opened and kept open from 9.00 a. m., until 6.00 p. m., in all of the voting precincts of said county, except in Greenville, Contentnea No. 1, and Contentnea No. 2, which shall be opened at 9.00 a. m. and kept open until 7.00 p. m. ## AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town,
Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., July 14, 1908.

Mrs. Jesse Cannon is visiting her son, Dr. C. L. Cannon, of Morehead City.

Water melons are coming in. Jno. Dixon had a load in town Saturday, the first of the season. C. J. Smith & Son had a large boiler to arrive last week. They will combine this with their other improved machinery and double their capacity by the ginning season.

Elias Turnage and J. J. Edwards have gone to spend a few days at Panacea Springs for rest and recreation.

We were at J. H. Smith's near Winterville, a few days ago. He showed us over his beautiful and fertile farm and tells us he has abandoned the cultivation of tobacco. His farm is specially adapted to corn, cotton and potatoes. Mr. Smith is a model farmer, raises plenty of hog and hominy and is a strong Kitchen Democrat.

Whooping cough and the little urchins go hand in hand, but are bad companions.

W. F. Hart and wife have returned from their eastern trip. They are looking much refreshed after spending some time on the water.

Miss Mary May, of Kinston, who made many friends here as teacher in the graded school, spent Sunday in town visiting at Miss Lucie Turnage's.

S. R. Dunn and daughter and Samuel Dunn, of Kinston, spent last week visiting R. C. Cannon.

Miss Delia Smith, of Middlesex, is visiting her brother, J. T. Smith, Jr.

Don't forget the musical in the Winfield park, Tuesday night. Ice cream, fruit cake, and music furnished by the Ayden band.

Our tobacco warehouse will soon be completed and we hope to have a good market, second to none in the tobacco belt.

We never saw brighter prospects for a good crop of tobacco, corn and cotton than we now have in Contentnea township.

Mr. Horace Hodges and wife, of Kinston, spent Sunday in town visiting Miss Jennie Turnage.

Miss Arah Davis is quite sick with acute indigestion.

Stancel Hodges and wife and Mrs. Moon spent Sunday in Washington.

Capt. O. G. Holloman, who once ran a log train here for the Ayden Lumber Co. but now of Charleston S. C. spent Sunday in town.

The little Junior Builders of the Christian church, will picnic at Elm Grove next Wednesday.

Miss Sudie Maye Cannon is president, Misses Mattie Holton and Lydia Gardner will chaparone the little party.

An umbrella found in post-office lobby has been left at Reflector office for owner. Can be had by identifying same and paying for this notice.

selves with such plan for holding said primary elections.

That all other matters and questions arising in respect to the holding of said primary election, are hereby referred to the central executive committee of Pitt county, with full power to act, and their action shall be deemed and held to be the action of this committee.

STATE HAPPENINGS.

Things Occurring Over North Carolina
—Negro Commits Five Crimes.

A Raleigh negro 72 years old has been given a 4-months sentence on the roads for running a blind tiger.

Prof. Harry Howell has resigned as superintendent of the graded school in Washington to accept a similar position in High Point.

Mrs. T. V. Pfaff, of Salem, tried to kill both her husband and herself. She struck him a violent blow on the head with an axe while he slept then started to drown herself in the well but was prevented from carrying out her purpose.

An Asheville citizen, armed with a pistol and a buggy whip, went to a dry goods store accompanied by his daughter, where he made a salesman apologize to the girl for a previous affront. After the salesman had apologized at the point of the pistol, the father proceeded to give him a pounding with the butt end of the whip.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 13.—Ellen Myers, 13 years of age, who was spirited away from this city six years ago by some parties from Reidsville when she was only seven years of age, returned home last night. During all this time, the child's grandparents, with whom she formerly lived, knew absolutely nothing about her whereabouts and had long since given her up for dead.

Lovers of fruit—and that includes about all of us—are now in clover. Apples and peaches are cheap, especially the former. Only this week some first class apples were sold on the local market for ten cents a bushel and in one case, the owner being unable to sell at any price, a wagon load of apples were dumped in the road. Tomatoes have gotten down to five cents a dozen and they are good ones at that.—Gastonia Gazette.

A Davidson county negro committed five crimes in one night, of which three were capital offenses subject to death penalty on conviction. He first broke into a house and stole a gun. Then he went to another house and battered down the door when admission was refused. As the head of the house was fleeing a load of bird shot was fired into his body. The house was then robbed of what money could be found, and the wife of the wounded man was forced at the point of the gun to yield to criminal assault. The perpetrator of all these crimes was captured.

Missing Opportunities.

The number of people, mostly children, who on pleasant evenings are given an outing about the terry and along the river banks, is a good indication of the pleasure that could be derived from a pavilion and bath houses on the river front. Much is being missed by not having these conveniences. We ought to take advantage of the opportunities for pleasure that the river offers.

Tomato Crop Short.

The tomato crop is short and house keepers who intend to can would do well to secure them now. The bottom crop is all gone, and the recent rain has so affected the vines that the top crop will be very short. Two years ago tomatoes in the middle of the season sold for 10 cents a dozen and 25 cents a peck for a short time and then wet back up to the first of the season prices. History will repeat itself this year.

The Socialist nominee for president has declined to run. Guess he saw no prospect of getting out of the penitentiary.

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, says Bryan will carry New York this year. That is the kind of talk we like to hear.

A daughter of Mr. Bryan and a daughter of Mr. Roosevelt met in the Denver convention, and both expressed themselves as de-lighted.

The last issue of The Commoner, Mr. Bryan's paper, was truly a national convention, number containing the entire proceedings in the one issue. Governor Glenn's speech was printed in full.

A Reidsville colored man beat his wife and undertook to escape arrest by trying to jump on a moving freight train. He fell beneath the car wheels and lost both legs. Moral: Don't beat your wife and try to beat a train in the same day.

The Greensboro Record is somewhat in error in saying Governor Glenn had his wings crapped in the Denver convention by a motion to limit the length of seconding speeches just as he was getting ready to say his. That motion was made just at the close of our governor's speech. Whether those in the convention heard it or not, it got in the papers all right and made several columns of mighty good reading.

The congressional convention at Plymouth Thursday is going to do the right thing in renominating Hon. John H. Small to succeed himself. The first district is fortunate in having such a representative. His services have been of incalculable benefit, and the unanimity with which the people ask for his return shows how they appreciate what he has done. He is too useful a man to think of retiring.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Beware of the Talk Wire Girl.
"You know that red headed cashier that had the nerve to complain of me to the boss the other day," said the girl at the telephone desk. "Well, I got even with him, all right. He isn't married, but he's got a best girl. Her father owns a shoe factory over in Jersey and rich—my! Well, she called him up the other afternoon at her usual time. 'Is Mr. Smith there?' she asks in her most romanticist voice, 'Yes,' I answers, just as honeylike as she. 'It's his wife wants him, isn't it?' With that Miss Girl hung up with such a jerk my ear hurt. Smith goes around wondering why she does not call him up. Every time he dares he says to me, 'Has any one called me on the phone, Miss Limit?' And I look as innocent as a kid and shake my head, 'No.' I tell you, us telephone girls can turn 'joy to the bride' into 'nothin' doin'' any time we please. Me for us."—New York Times.

Inkhorn Terms.
Among other lessons this should first be learned—that we never affect any strange inkhorn terms, but to speak as is commonly received, neither seeking to be overfine nor yet living overcareless, using our speech as most men do and ordering our wits as the fewest have done. Some seek so far for outlandish English that they forget altogether their mothers' tongue. And I dare swear this—if some of their mothers were alive they were not able to tell what they say, and yet these fine English clerks will say that they speak in their mother tongue if a man should charge them with counterfeiting the king's English.—Wilson's "System of Rhetoric, 1853."

Royal Golfer.
King James II. was a fine golfer in the sense of fondness for the game, and in other senses too. He it was as Duke of York who, when challenged by two English noblemen at the Scottish court to a match, the duke to take any partner whom he could find, took to his side an Edinburgh shoemaker named John Paterson. The duke and Paterson were on, and the latter, being given half the stake, built for himself a house, which is to be distinguished by the record upon it in Canongate to this day.—Fry's Magazine.

PASTIMES OF MADMEN.
Cunning and Ingenuity Displayed by the Insane.

Some of the inventions of the insane are of scientific value. A patient at Villejuif invented a "panification machine" by combining a bottle, a plank and small metallic tubes, to which he had fitted faucets. Having set up his machine, he produced loaves of bread the size of a man's head. The bread was good—so good that it was decided to make the machine known. One day when it was in action the doctor suggested taking a photograph of it. The inventor watched him as if petrified for a moment; then he fell upon the machine, wrenched it apart and trampled it underfoot. The invention, an exceedingly useful one, was lost, because no one had seen him make it, and no one dares speak of it to him. To allude to it is to bring on a furious attack.

Most lunatics, no matter how contented they may be, generally cherish a furtive longing to escape. They collect wax from the polished floors, take the impressions of locks and make keys from empty sardine boxes, spoon handles or anything to be found. Dr. Marie's museum includes a collection of knives of strange and unheard of shapes. Some of them have blades made from pieces of glass or slate and set in handles of corset steels. Objects harmless in themselves become dangerous weapons through the ingenuity of madmen.

Insane sculptors are as common as insane painters. The insane sculptor hews out coarse statuettes, fantastic animals, ferocious little horned and grinning devils. An ex-mechanic carves all his soap bones. That his old trade is still in his memory is shown by the little screws that he makes out of the smaller pieces of bone. He works all day at his senseless and ridiculous task. Another lunatic, who believes he is the incarnation of the soul of Beelzebub, passes his time carving toy men out of wood. Each pair of his creations are joined together, now at the necks, now at the shoulders.—Helen E. Meyer in Harper's Weekly.

A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of G. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

HE SOUGHT DEATH.

The Unfortunate Napoleon III. at the Battle of Sedan.

Sarah Bernhardt mentions in her memoirs that Napoleon III. had two horses shot under him at Sedan. Some having thrown doubt on her statement and denied that the emperor was ever in personal danger at the time, Baron Verly, son of the late colonel of the Cent Gardes, gives what he affirms to be the authentic account of the unhappy sovereign's persistent attempts to court death when he saw that defeat was unavoidable. On Sept. 1, 1870, at 6 o'clock in the morning, Marshal MacMahon, returning wounded to Sedan, met the emperor riding out to Bazelles. Napoleon III. realized that the situation was desperate. He rode slowly out, depressed and thoughtful, under a hail of shot. During an hour he inspected the positions. Bullets rained on his escort. Captain d'Hendecourt was killed a few feet away from the emperor. The latter, deliberately seeking death, alighted, ordered his escort to remain behind an embankment and walked up to a cemetery on a height, where he stayed for another hour, exposed to fire. He mounted again and rode to another part of the field. General de Courson and Captain de Treceuse were dangerously wounded by his side, but not a bullet hit him. The emperor at last seemed to despair of meeting his death as he sought it and rode back to Sedan at noon. In the town itself shells fell thick, and while the emperor was riding with his escort up the Grand Rue one burst just in front of him, wounded one of the Cent Gardes and killed the horses of two aids-de-camp. Napoleon III. looked on stolidly, understanding, perhaps, that it was not his fate to die in action. The story that he had two horses killed under him is, therefore, not correct. But there is no doubt that the unfortunate emperor, debent and ill, a pathetic and tragic figure, did deliberately seek death on the field to escape the disgrace of Sedan which he foresaw.—Paris Letter.

A SERPENT STORY.

Terrifying Experience With a Deadly Lancehead.

The Paris Eclair tells a blood curdling serpent story, the scene of which was the island of Martinique and the dramatic personae Sergeant Legrand and Private Durand and the snake a deadly lancehead.

The soldier had been punished with a night in the cells for some trivial offense, but as the night was very hot the sergeant had left the door open. In the morning at 5 o'clock Legrand went to wake his prisoner and, to his horror, beheld a lancehead snake coiled up and fast asleep on the man's breast.

The sergeant did not lose his presence of mind. He stole noiselessly away, ran to the guard room and, followed by all the men on duty, returned to the cell with a bowl of milk and a tin whistle. Placing the bowl of milk at the entrance to the cell, the sergeant began to play the "Blue Danube." It is needless to remark that the weakness of the lancehead is milk and music. The serpent, which was a six foot specimen, awoke, glided from the soldier's body toward the bowl, but it had no sooner buried its head in its beloved drink than ten cudgels descended on it with terrific force, killing it outright.

The soldier Durand, who was in a swoon, was taken to hospital, where he lay for many days on the verge of madness. He finally recovered and related his horrible experience—how he had awoke in the middle of the night as the serpent was coiling itself on his bare breast and how he had lain there in an agony for hours, not daring to move a muscle.

Durand was sent back to France as soon as he had sufficiently recovered. The only trace of his terrible experience, adds the Eclair, is that his hair is now snow white.

Love's Young Dream.

Another case of the bad boy rudely interrupting love's young dream. A Malate girl and her Romeo sat in close proximity on the couch in the drawing room lost to the world. They were brought back from Eden by her little brother, who, like many of his kind, makes it a practice to butt in at the wrong time. He walked into the room, planted himself in front of the young man and asked:

"Was you ever tied to a fish line?"
"I certainly was not," was the reply.
"Well," responded the boy, "I heard pa tell me last night that you'd make a good sinker."—Manila Gossip.

As to Quotations.

How many persons can unhesitatingly name the source of the familiar quotations? Many a man goes through life without reading a single play of Shakespeare, but probably no English speaking man goes through life without quoting him. If he sneers at "a woman's reason," he quotes Shakespeare; if he refers to "a trick worth two of that," he quotes Shakespeare again.

Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" is not a popular work, but one line of it—"Ask me no questions, and I will tell you no lies"—is known and used by everybody.

Made Him a Songster.

Mr. Stubb (in astonishment)—Gracious, Maria! That tramp has been singing in the back yard for the last hour. Mrs. Stubb—Yes, John, it is all my fault. Mr. Stubb—Your fault? Mrs. Stubb—Indeed it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I hollered up the bird seed by mistake.—Chicago News.

IDOLS OF THE HINDOOS

There Are Hundreds of Millions of Them in India.

THE FAME OF JUGGERNAUT.

This Idol Has Been Worshipped About Two Thousand Years, and His National Temple Is on the Sands of Puri—The Three Monster Cars.

If I were asked to describe India the first remark that would spring from my lips would be, "It is a land of idols." It would be impossible to compute the number of idols that there must be at the present time in India. The Hindoos pretend to have 333,000,000 gods, and these are represented by innumerable idols, so that we are quite bewildered with the thought of taking the census of the idols of India. The population of the whole Indian empire is now about 300,000,000, and possibly the country contains ten times as many idols as people.

Benares is the great center of the idol making business, though in all parts of India the trade flourishes. Potters the day through may be seen in the sacred city molding images of clay for temporary use. Sculptors also may be found producing representative figures of the gods in stone or marble. Carpenters, moreover, make great wooden idols for the temples, and workers in metal—goldsmiths, copper-smiths and brass workers—turn out more or less highly finished specimens in their respective metals.

When speaking of idols it should be borne in mind that the images turned out by the potter, sculptor, carver or manufacturer are not considered sacred or fit to be worshipped until certain mystic words have been uttered over them by a priest. The ceremony of "the giving of life," as it is called, to the image is a very solemn affair, and when it is done the idol is regarded as holy and must ever afterward be approached and treated with the utmost reverence.

Out of the many millions of so called gods in India, all of whom are counted worthy of worship, three are regarded as specially sacred and form the Hindu triad or trinity. They are respectively Brahma, Vishnu and Siva. Of these it is stated the second person of the trinity only has been represented on this earth by human incarnations. Through one or all of these gods the Hindoos believe they may obtain salvation. Brahma represents the way of salvation by wisdom, Vishnu by faith, and Siva by works. It is immaterial which method is adopted, as they all lead to the same goal.

Juggernaut is perhaps the most famous name among all the Hindoo idols, inasmuch as his fame has gone forth into every land. His temple is situated on the sandy shores of Orissa, washed by the wild waves of the bay of Bengal. The worship of Juggernaut dates back nearly 2,000 years, and Orissa has been the holy land of the Hindoos from that time till the present day.

Sir William Hunter, who was one of the greatest authorities on things East Indian, says in a wonderfully graphic description of the temple of Juggernaut: "On the inhospitable sands of Puri, a place of swamps and foundations, the Hindoo religion and Hindoo superstition have stood at bay for eighteen centuries against the world. Here is the national temple whither the people flock to worship from every province of India. There is the gate of heaven whither thousands of pilgrims come to die, lulled to this last sleep by the roar of the eternal ocean."

Well, I saw on one occasion that marvelous sight, the dragging of Juggernaut's car and the cars of his brother and sister. The three idols are inseparable, and ugly things they are, being nothing but huge logs of wood coarsely fashioned into human shape, but without arms or legs.

Juggernaut's car stands forty-one feet high and has fourteen enormous wheels. The other two cars are just a little smaller. The great cars have to be dragged a certain distance—half a mile or more from the temple—and the god will not allow horses or elephants to undertake the work, but calls upon his faithful worshippers to do it themselves. Immense ropes, or rather, cables, are attached to the cars, and at the word of command from the priests thousands of men and even women and children rush forward and seize the ropes and range themselves in order and the next moment are straining and pulling at the cumbersome conveyances, which at length move with a heavy, creaking noise.

Never shall I forget the sight. The road was filled with tens of thousands of lookers-on, all wild with excitement, and the fanatics who held the ropes were dragging the cars along with frenzied zeal. Every now and then there would be a stop that the men might rest, I supposed, but instead of resting they took to jumping in the air and to whirling themselves around like dancing dervishes and shouting at the top of their breath: "Victory! Victory to Juggernaut!"

Once on a time infatuated worshippers would throw themselves under the wheels of the mighty car that they might be crushed to death, counting it a privilege and a joy thus to perish. Some might do it today if the paternal British government did not provide against such catastrophes by taking all due precaution.—John J. Pool, B. D., F. R. G. S., in Los Angeles Times.

THE GIANT ANT EATER.

A Most Peculiar Creature That is Found in Venezuela.

The giant ant eater of Venezuela is one of the most outlandish looking creatures in all the domain of nature. It is an animal about two and a half feet high. The body and tail taken together measure about seven feet in length. The tail is usually carried curved over the back, draping and shading the body. In appearance the bushy tail may be likened to a clump of ornamental grass. The head is very small, but it is prolonged into a snout a foot or more in length. The mouth is at the extremity of this snout.

The ant eaters belong to that group of the animal kingdom known as the edentates, a class usually toothless. If they have any teeth at all, they are very few in number, of a rudimentary or simple form, in the back of the head. They resemble in this respect birds, and they furthermore bear a resemblance to the bird creation in the possession of muscular, gizzard-like stomachs. One feature of the edentates is that they all have some peculiarity in the covering of the body. The armadillo, for instance, has a shell of armor, the pangolin a series of shingle-like scales, the aardvark, native to the Transvaal, a piglike skin, scantily covered with hair, and, lastly, the ant eater, with a bushy tail and the body plentifully covered with hair.

The ant eater is in many ways unlike other animals. The most striking dissimilarity is in its mouth, which does not open and shut with an up and down movement of the lower jaw, as that of all other quadrupeds, but it is a mere aperture, opening only enough to admit of the passage of the foot long, whip-like tongue.

In captivity the ant eater is fed on bread and milk. In its native haunts, the forests of South America, it feeds exclusively on termites, or, as they are commonly called, white ants. These termites abound in the wilds of tropical America, and the ant eater tears open with its sharp fore claws their conical mud nests and with its slender tongue licks up the inmates out of every nook and crevice.

The ant eater has a queer way of walking. It is the manner in which it uses its fore limbs. The claws of its fore limbs are so constructed that they are incapable of sustaining the weight of the body, but are turned backward, compelling the animal to stand and walk on the outer surface of the wrists. When it ambles around, awkwardly, as it appears, it seems to be using two amputated fore limbs.

He Loved Animals.

Of Blackmore, the novelist, an old friend said that his kindness to animals and birds was nearly divine. "Dogs loved him; pigeons followed him about. A blackbird built in a hole in his garden well one year, and he plucked the well over lest the young ones, when they became venturesome, should be drowned. From the planks over the water he had a sort of ladder constructed for them to escape, which they all did and repaid him by bountifully devouring his strawberries. There is a picture of himself as a vine dresser in one of his Devonshire tales, 'Christowell.' His love for women and girls, especially girls, was as great as Mr. Ruskin's, but less outspoken, though evident in his books. There is always a Lorna or a Dairiel as sweet as English air can make her. He was shy and retiring and not given to tongue."

Beecher's Fee.

On one occasion when Henry Ward Beecher was on a lecturing tour Major Pond, his manager, was sitting beside him in the railway car. Suddenly the preacher slapped his hand on the little watch pocket of his trousers and drew forth a small envelope. For a moment he looked at it in surprise, then opened it and smiled. Presently he turned to his companion.

"Major," said he, "I married a great railroad magnate a few months ago, and as I was taking leave of him he handed me an envelope, which I slipped in my pocket unopened. That was the last I thought of it until today. Just now I opened it, and this is what I found."

The major took the envelope. Within it were five $1,000 bills.

A HUMAN MACHINE.

He Was Able to Correct a Language He Did Not Understand.

When Max Muller was preparing his edition of the Rigveda he had, so the story goes, an illustration of the instinctive wisdom of the compositor. In providing the manuscript for about 6,000 sheets of print the author naturally tripped from time to time. Whenever he did trip, there on his proof was the error queried in a careful hand. Surely, he thought, some unknown scholar in the university must be overlooking his proofs with kindly interest and making the corrections for him. Inquiry showed that this was not the fact. The corrections were the corrections of the man who set up the type. "Did this man, then, know Sanskrit?" Muller asked. Not a bit of it. Use and wont enabled him to detect the errors as a hungry child scent a cooking dinner. The discovery originated through his arm rather than from any intellectual doubt, and that arm was palsied!

This printer had sustained an accident, leaving him with an arm partly paralyzed, and as this made him slower with his setting his masters turned him on to Sanskrit, with which he had had no previous acquaintance. He had to learn upward of 300 types for the work, but he learned them and accustomed himself to the work. Now, many of the letters in Sanskrit cannot follow each other or, if they do, must be modified. In writing Muller sometimes forgot these modifications, but they were all marked on the proof. Muller was so interested that he sought out the printer to ask him how he was able to correct a language which he did not understand. The explanation was remarkable: "You see, sir, my arm gets into a regular swing from one compartment of types to another, and there are movements that never occur. So if I suddenly have to take up types which entail a new movement I feel it and put a query." What a dog's life the "nu spelling," or Artemus Ward's, which is the same thing, would have caused that marvelous human machine!—St. James' Gazette.

There Was a Difference.

When Dr. Randall Davidson, archbishop of Canterbury, was a curate, one day at Dartford he took a Sunday school class in a neighboring parish. The subject was King Solomon, and after the lesson he proceeded to catechise the children.

"Tell me, boys," he said, "what was the difference between Solomon and other men?" No answer. "Come, come!" said the future archbishop. "Was there any difference, for instance, between King Solomon and myself?"

A tiny hand went up and a tiny voice replied, "Please, sir, Solomon was wise!"—London M. A. P.
