IMPROVEMENT OF COUNTY ROADS

CONGRESSMAN SMALL WORKING TO GET GOV. ENGINEER HERE.

The Opportunity Offered to Have Better Public Roads Throughout Pitt County.

On the first Monday in this month Congressman John H. Small appeared before the board of commissioners of Pitt county relative to the acceptance of an offer made by the director of public roads of the United States department of agriculture, to the effect that the director would furnish the services of a consulting and advising road engineer for one year if the commissioners would employ a competent person to have immediate charge and supervision of the construction and maintenance of the roads of the county.

The matter was discussed at some length between the congressman and the commissioners, when it was suggested to have a government road engineer appear before the commissioners at the meeting of the board the first Monday in August. Congressman Small accordingly made application to the department for the engineer to be sent here, but has received a letter from the director of public roads advising that as this is the busiest season of the year with the department the engineer could not be sent here to confer with the commissioners earlier than the September meeting of the board.

This is a matter in which the entire county should be greatly interested, as every citizen feels the need of better public roads. The chamber of commerce at its last meeting appointed a committee to confer with the county commissioners relative to road improvements, and to urge the acceptance of the offer made through Congressman Small for the services of the government engineer. The need of better roads is too apparent for argument, and this proposition affords an opportunity of getting our roads improved at less cost than ever has been presented or may be presented again. All interested should talk with the commissioners and urge the acceptance of the offer.

For the Legislature

To the Democrats of Pitt county:

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the nomination to the lower house of the State Legislature subject to the Democratic primaries which are to be held on Saturday, August 29th.

It is with real gratification that I learn from letters and personal interviews from many of the leading people of my county that they favor my candidacy; and if I am nominated and elected as one of your representatives, I promise to do all in my power that will be for the best interest of the people of Pitt county and the State at large.

Very truly,
W. E. Hooks.

HEADS VERSUS LUNGS.

Some Sensible Observations on the Men in the Convention.

The average delegate to a State political convention is not himself. He says and does things in the wild passion of the hour that will bring the blush to his cheek when reason returns. The fact is, the devil is much at home in a political convention. There is in the air an influence that is not wholesome for the soul. At the late Charlotte meeting many fool things were done and said, and by men who ought to have known better and who did know better, but who turned themselves loose and let the devil lead them captive at his will. To be perfectly plain, the average delegate, after he has become intoxicated with the convention spirit, has no more sense than a goat. He throws reason to the winds and devotes himself to the business of trying to make more noise than the man who sits beside him with a voice like a fog-horn. Lung power is the main thing with these delegates, and all their braying only adds to the confusion and obstructs the run of the business. But there are a few men, blessings on them, who work their heads rather than their lungs. They restrain their passions, as a trained horseman does his steeds; they keep their heads cool and clear. They have no time to shout—they are too busy controlling the shouters. After the turmoil has subsided and the clouds have cleared away, it is easy to look back and see these captains looming large above the lung artists who, sensible enough at home, are wild as bucks in Charlotte. Here, as elsewhere, these superior men attain their power by first conquering themselves, and after that it is easy enough to conquer others.—Charity and Children.

Kinston Beat Us.

The Kinston "amachures" did the Greenville "cracks" to the tune of nine to two runs, in a fast, snappy game of ball on the local diamond, yesterday afternoon. The "amachures" had the game from the start and cinched it.—Kinston Free Press 18th.

Big Crowd Sunday

Sunday gave the Norfolk & Southern the largest crowd of the season to Morehead and Beaufort. There were sixteen cars in the train and 211 tickets were sold at this station. The next Sunday excursion will be on August 9th.

An Inspiring Record.

It is generally understood that in a mutual life insurance company the insured are partners engaged in the business of providing indemnity, and sharing the profits that may be derived. Unlike many business enterprises in this there is little danger of the investor losing the capital he has invested. If the recent examination of the New York insurance companies had accomplished nothing more than to furnish the assurance that the great institutions were "absolutely sound" the work should be commended. There never has been a question that the original amount of the insurance expressed in a Mutual Life contract would be paid at its maturity.

The question of the amount of profits to be divided among the "partners," however, is another matter. These are decided by the methods of the management or the general success of the business. An extravagant management is likely to result in a decreasing rate of dividend, while careful and economic methods are likely to result in an increased amount of profits to be divided. Under its present management the financial reports of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York have shown a constantly increasing sum to be distributed as dividends among the insured, as will be seen by the following record taken from the reports issued by the State department:

Dividends paid in 1905, $2,758,008.99.

Dividends paid in 1906, $2,785,919.15.

Dividends paid in 1907, $4,331,493.34.

Apportioned for payment in 1908, $3,311,002.02.

This tremendous increase in the amount of dividends paid and to be paid, is due to the careful and economical management of the company and the maturing of deferred dividend policies.

The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, stands at the top. H. Bentley Harris, agent

DON'T TROUBLE THE CHINAMEN.

Mayor Whedbee Gives Warning in This Particular.

Some of the boys around town have been giving much trouble to the Chinaman, who lives and conducts a laundry on the corner of Third and Cotanch streets. The Chinaman has lived here five years or more and proven himself a good, inoffensive citizen. Through timidity he made no complaint to the authorities of his bad treatment, but some of the neighbors realizing that the trouble should be stopped reported the matter to the officials. As a result of this there was a young man before Mayor Whedbee this morning, charged with cursing, threatening and alarming the Chinaman. The young man was taxed with a bill of cost and judgement is suspended over him to become effective in case he gives the Chinaman any more trouble.

There were a number of boys present at the trial, and Mayor Whedbee gave warning that the Chinaman was entitled to and should have the protection of the law, and if any other were arraigned for troubling him severe punishment might be looked for.

THE GAME OF POLITICS

North Carolina is Not Going For Taft and the Country Will be Safe and Prosperous. No Matter who is Elected President.

The Republican party is trying to make people think that North Carolina is going to vote for Taft—but is something on the line of the claims of the Johnson men. Taft will get some voters down this way from the Democrats but they will constitute but a handful. North Carolina will give the Democrats the State by twenty-five thousand and there is no other way to figure it.

We like this political game. We like to sit here in our conning tower not caring a sou who is to be who, knowing that whatever happens the country will be safe; we like to look over the inconsistencies of platform and party and see the truckling and the sycophancy of men otherwise well intentioned; we like to hear know-it-alls talk and tell how it will all come about—it is sport—but to enjoy it you must know in your own conscience that no collar eats the flesh of your neck—that no material reward awaits your declamations.

Bryan will make a good President. He is clean and intelligent; a dreamer but a good citizen; Taft will meet all requirements, and no matter what the law says or what the platform declares there will be prosperity in this country because we have ninety five million people who must live and eat; because we have a citizenship that will protect property and lives. There will be panics and there will be flush times; there will be statesmen and there will be hot air artists—and it makes no difference to the average citizen who is President, provided only, a majority of the people elect him.—Fair-brother's Everything.

SHOE BUCKLES.

Fleeting and Costly Craze of the Eighteenth Century.

Once on a time your shoe was nothing without the buckle. Indeed, it was a case of the "tail wagging the dog," for the buckle was the attraction and the shoe but the accompaniment. Be it observed that at first, however, it was not the size, but the costliness of the buckle, which was conspicuous. Thus among royalties, people of high rank and those who were the glass of fashion and the mold of form at court wore diamonds. Needless to say that those who desired to imitate them wore paste buckles, happy perhaps in that self complacency which imagines nobody else shrewd enough to estimate possibilities.

In 1720 a leader of fashion would wear a full flowing curled wig reaching in ringlets halfway down the back and arms, a laced coat cut straight, with buttons put on in every possible place—thereby, by the way, affording a remarkable similarity to the "pearlies" of the popular and up to date costermonger—and square toed black shoes, with an enormous flap on the instep, high heels and on the flap a small but brilliant buckle. Next to the buckle of brilliants came that of gold. Rich landowners and equally rich merchants, men whose reputation for being "warm"—or, in the then recent Alsatian fashionable slang, "rhinoceerial," a quite obsolete synonym for money—was universal, wore gold buckles larger than the diamond ones, but still small in proportion to the flaps.

Your thriving shopkeepers wore buckles of silver and your opulent farmers those of shining steel, and the poorer classes had buckles of brass or iron, but of some material every one wore buckles on the shoes. Indeed, so wide reaching was the depreciation in buckle makers' work when, at the epoch of the French revolution, people in general followed "Roland the Just's" example and took to shoe ribbons that the buckle makers actually, in their desperation, petitioned George III. and parliament that shoe ribbons should be forbidden under penalties, clamoring for a renewal of the sumptuary laws of Plantagenet and Tudor, with an apparent inability to read the signs of the time. A spasmodic attempt was made by the princes and their entourage to benefit the buckle makers by wearing buckles as ostentatiously as possible, but ribbons, decidedly far more unpicturesque, though much more practical, carried the day.—St. James' Gazette.

When Pat Cornered Nansen.

Dr. Nansen, the arctic explorer, came across an Irishman on one occasion who declared that he had traveled farther north than anybody.

"What nonsense!" exclaimed the doctor, getting angry. "Why, sir, do you know I calculate to have traveled as far as any human being can possibly get."

But still the Irishman persisted and went on to say:

"Now, listen to this. How do you know that you've traveled as far as any human being can get?"

"Because," replied the doctor, "I came to a huge wall of ice that no one could get around."

"What did ye do then?"

"Well, I conversed with my staff of men on the subject."

"Ah, begorra!" exclaimed Pat, "O! heard ye. O! was on th' other side o' the wall!"

And he walked away in triumph.

Marriage In Burma.

Marriage has no religious element in Burma. There is no marriage ceremony. Just as two men go into partnership in business, so a man and woman may enter into the marriage state without undergoing any form. Coupled with this very secular, nonchalant view of marriage is the fact that facilities for divorce are very great. As marriage is merely a partnership, so divorce is a dissolution of that partnership and may be obtained on demand by either of the parties from the elders of the village. In Burma, however, as elsewhere, we find that a priori dangers are largely neutralized by practical good sense. The fear of outraging public opinion furnishes a powerful motive in propriety of life.

WATERLOO.

The Immutability of the Famous Old Battlefield.

One of the most striking features of a visit to the battlefield of Waterloo today is the immutability of the entire scene in which one of the greatest battles of history took place. Notwithstanding the many years that have passed since the memorable day of June 18, 1815, the entire scene of the battle remains practically unchanged and untouched, and the very buildings around which the tide of battle surged the fiercest, save for the necessary restorations of the damage they sustained in the conflict, remain exactly as they were, nor has any encroachment of building or progress marred the historic field.

The battlefield of Waterloo is an open, undulating stretch of good farming land. On the day of the battle the greater part of it was covered with crops of rye, wheat, barley and oats, and the same crops are still grown there each season. The field is intersected by two highroads branching at Mont St. Jean, the one on the right leading to Nivelles, while that on the left, which lay in the center of both armies, led south to Genappe, Charleroi and Namur. Upon the crest of the ridge which formed the first of the allied positions a crossroad runs east and west. This road, on approaching the spot where the "Lion of Waterloo" now stands, ran through a cut in the crest some twelve to fourteen feet deep, and it was this point that was known after the battle as the Hollow Road. Some 500 yards to the south-east of the "Lion" is the farm of La Haye Sabote, while about 900 yards to the southwest stands Hougomont, the old chateau, farmhouse, outbuildings, walled garden and orchard, which played such an important part in the fate of the day. These buildings are nearly 300 years old and were built with a view to their defense, as many old stone loopholes still to be found testify. — Robert Howard Russell in Metropolitan Magazine.

Insomnia.

Insomnia is the not uncommon fate of the brain worker who after years of continuous mental strain retires from active life. The reason is that mental activity demands a large supply of blood for the brain, and the blood vessels gradually accommodate themselves to this large supply. But when the hard work is over the brain does not always realize that it needs less nourishment, and hence the condition of excessive mental activity which is what insomnia is.—London Mail.

Suspicious.

At a meeting of the Democratic executive committee of Pitt county, held in Greenville on Saturday, July 11th, the following resolution was adopted relative to the holding of primaries at all the voting precincts of the county to nominate candidates:

Be it resolved by the Democratic executive committee of Pitt county, in session this day, that a primary election be held for the county of Pitt, on Saturday, the 29th day of August, 1908, for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for the legislature, for county officers, for township officers, and for members of the township executive committees, at which election all Democratic voters who are entitled to vote at the general election, to be held in November, 1908, shall be allowed to vote.

That said election shall be held and conducted in the several townships at the places that are provided by law for holding general elections, and that the same shall be opened and kept open from 9.00 a. m., until 6.00 p. m., in all of the voting precincts of said county, except in Greenville, Contentnea No. 1, and Contentnea No. 2, which shall be opened at 9.00 a. m. and kept open until 7.00 p. m. Red Blood and Blue.

Three-year-old Allan had a very aristocratic grandma, who prided herself on her own and her husband's blue blooded ancestry. She told him heroic deeds of them and warned him from ever playing with boys of low degree.

One day Allan came screaming upstairs to his mamma and grandma, holding his hand up covered with blood where he had cut his little finger. They were both greatly alarmed, as he was a child who rarely cried or complained when hurt. Mamma washed the blood off and, examining the cut, said: "Why, dear, it's not so very bad. Does it hurt you so much?" "I'm not cryin' 'cause it hurts," he said, "but 'cause it's only red blood, and grandma said I had blue." —Philadelphia Ledger.
