Mr. Tripp is a jolly good man and is very popular with our people. We had a nice rain here Monday. Dr. Dixon and wife and Caleb Cannon and wife returned Monday from Morehead City. W. F. Hart and wife left Sunday to spend a week at Morehead City.	Almost Drowned in the Sound While Returning From Surf. Mr. F. D. Blackburn, a tobacco auctioneer of Greenville, was among the excursionists to Morehead last Sunday and had a thrilling experience. He was one of the sharpies returning from a trip over to the surf, and was reclining very carelessly on the deck rail. He was cautioned as to his position but did not heed the warning. As the pilot of the shapie was about to shift course the boat took a sudden dip and over rolled Mr. Blackburn into the sound where the water was very deep. Instantly the boat turned about to rescue the man overboard and for a time all was excitement. A box was first thrown him and this helped to keep him afloat. The boat was difficult to manage in such short turns and Mr. Blackburn was run over several times before he was finally picked up and hauled back on board. He was pretty well used up and has not yet fully recovered from his experience. Girls on the Street. There is a great difference in girls as one sees them on the streets. Some are modest and gentle and go along without attracting attention; except what may be awakened by graceful carriages and pleasant faces. They tell of good homes and thoughtful mothers and gentle breeding. They suggest likewise good books, moral ideas and intelligent associates. But there are other kinds of girls who are careless of their conduct. They are just a little loud, laugh a great deal and chatter noisily. They are rather empty creatures who read trashy books and talk the same way, and are inclined to get reckless in their chatter about beaux. It is their folly that attracts attention along the street. Whenever they pass a young man, he turns and regards them with curious grin. Really, if they were sensible, modest girls, they wouldn't like this. They wouldn't like for the loafers along the street to gawk at them and wonder who they are and make shallow remarks to the other fellow. They would want to go along the street leaving a sort of undefined sensation, if any at all, that "there goes a lady!" These differences the casual observer can easily see, but really the gentle and well bred are in the majority, while the loud and ill bred are only exceptions; but there are enough of them to excite disgust among all true men, that these girls and young women would conduct themselves so as reflect honor upon their sex.—Ohio State Journal. Heroic Deed of a 13-Year Old Lad. Wilmington, July 19.—News has just reached here of the heroic act of 13-year-old Nash Penny, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Penny and a grandson of Dr. L. L. Nash, of the North Carolina, at Southport a few days ago. With several companies of his own age they were in bathing from the government pier at Southport. Skylarking on the wharf young John Harper was knocked off the wharf and fell on young Doc O'Quinn, whose shoulder was broken by the contact. In 20 feet of water, disabled and about to drown, the O'Quinn boy was rescued by young Penny, who sprang overboard and swam with him to the shore, where a physician attended the injured lad.—Charlotte Observer.	The Editor With a Painfully Sprained Ankle. The editor is in somewhat bad shape just now, and those who have ever suffered a similar experience will know how to sympathize with him. A little more than two months ago he stumbled one night on a sidewalk and sprained an ankle. Though painful it was not a bad sprain, and in a few days was thought to be all right. Several times since a slight misstep has caused some trouble to the same ankle, and Monday night an unfortunate step gave it such a severe sprain as to put it on the doctor's repair list. He can get to the office with assistance, but work is done under disadvantage and attended with much pain. Patronize Home. We said something yesterday about buying home, or Southern made goods. When we buy at home we get the goods and keep the money, and when we buy in other markets we send the money away. It is to the interest of every man, woman and child to ask for and to get Southern made goods. The more sold the more work there will be for every one. If you have surplus money to invest, look around in your home town or State. See what factory or merchant could use more money to advantage. Place it where you can see just what it is doing and where you will have something to say about it, rather than in stocks and bonds away off, where you absolutely have no chance to have the slightest opportunity of saying a word, and where it is hard to tell the exact facts as to what the company is doing. You can get better results from your investment at home, besides by increasing business in your section you increase its wealth, of which you will get your share.—Durham Sun. Imogene, or The Witches' Secret. The appreciation of the efforts of our local talent in its presentation of Imogene Wednesday evening was well demonstrated by the large audience which swarmed into the opera house and to their seats early in the evening. We have heretofore had demonstrated the fact that Williamston had a good deal of real stage talent, but never before has this fact been so well shown as it was in this great presentation of Imogene. Each player acts his, or her, part as though it were an actual event in his natural life, and you were impressed with the naturalness of the whole presentation, which would have done credit to any opera company. The between-act-specialties, too, were strictly up to date and full of amusement and kept the audience in a roar of cheers and encores. This presentation coming just at this time to break the lull and monotony of the summer was gladly welcomed by all, and we look forward with no little degree of expectant delight to the promised presentation of "Because I Love You" at the completion of the City Hall.—Williamston Enterprise. For Sheriff. I hereby beg to announce myself as a candidate for sheriff of Pitt county, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries of Pitt county. John J. E. Pks. 7 21 1908 w	Remarkable Maternity Record of Asheville Lady. In Asheville lives a lady who, if not entitled to the prize for maternity, should certainly take a high rank in any such contest. Mrs. Flora Brown, who lives on Williams street, has been the mother of 18 children. Of this number there were four sets of twins. This record is certainly an unusual one, but it is made far more remarkable by the fact that Mrs. Brown is now but 38 years of age. Mrs. Brown is not only no older than 38 years, but also looks no older than her age, being robust in appearance, and more than this she says that she has never had a serious sickness. Mrs. Brown has been married twice, and her husband is one year younger than her eldest son. She came from Winston-Salem, where several of her sons have good positions with the Reynolds tobacco works.—Asheville Citizen. PROBABLY AFTER A HORSE. Mr. W. H. Kilpatrick Frightens Away an Intruder. About 3 o'clock this morning Mr. W. H. Kilpatrick, who lives in South Greenville, was awakened by hearing someone walking through his yard, and also noticed a noise like the rattling of a rattle. Thinking someone was trying to steal his horse or "borrow" the animal for a drive Mr. Kilpatrick jumped out of bed and started out to investigate. He made more or less noise in his movements and in opening doors, which the intruder heard, and just as he got out on the back porch he saw a man run around the corner of the kitchen and make off to the street. The man had a rattle in his hand which he had taken along to catch the horse. STATE HAPPENINGS. Things Occurring Over North Carolina J. O. Neal, colored, living near Bayboro, broke the record Tuesday. He killed two very large rattle snakes, one of them having 16 rattles and the other 14. He also killed a poplar leaf, a black snake and another one, he did not know what kind. This is no snake story he had them on exhibition Bayboro Sentinel. High Point, N. C., July 20.—This evening a son of Chas. Hariston, driver for the High Point Ice and Fuel Company, was run over by a heavy wagon, driven by his own father, and his head mashed into a jelly. Rockingham, N. C., July 20.—Henry Harvey, a negro, shot and killed Hugh Price here Sunday morning. He also shot another negro at the same time. The trouble seems to have begun over a game of crap Saturday night. Sanford, N. C., July 20.—The first court for Lee county convened here this morning in the opera house and Judge B. F. Long, of Statesville, is on hand. This is to be a one week's term for the trial of civil cases only and no cases of importance will come up before this court. On account of this being the first court ever held here there will be quite a crowd in attendance. Give the Williamston visitor a good audience in the opera house tonight. Subscribe for The Reflector.	The Visitors Here and People Who Travel. A. TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1908.

Mr. Bryan's past experience at campaigning ought to stand him in well this time.

Candidate Taft has been elected to membership in the Dirt Digger's Union. We would like to see a man of his composure doing some actual digging.

Charlotte has been in the midst of a real sensation the last few days. A young lady, Miss Mattie Havis, suddenly disappeared from the city Friday morning, and notwithstanding diligent search is being made she has not yet been located.

They have a regular examining board to take sample chews and pass upon the chewing tobacco to be used by members of the navy. As tastes often differ it might be best to let the Jackies select their own brands for chewing.

Wellsville, O., must be a good place to live in. A man recently died there who was a few weeks more than 100 years old, and it is said his father lived to the age of 103. Possibly if his record could be traced back it might be found that he was a descendant of Mathuselah.

Wake county Superior court, Judge Walter H. Neal presiding, made quick work of a murder trial Saturday. John Evans shot and killed his father about two weeks ago. Evans was arraigned, the jury impaneled, the verdict rendered and a 30-year sentence in the penitentiary pronounced upon him inside of half an hour.

We don't know if Congressman Richmond P. Hobson is one of the undesirable, but he has the misfortune, if it may be called that, of being suppressed at times. On two occasions he has delivered himself of speeches at national conventions, and on both occasions the speech was expunged from the records. Possibly in congress he can meet with better luck, for there it is not infrequent for remarks that are not even spoken to get printed in the Congressional Record.

Writing copy with a sprained ankle, or at least having the disabled member stretched across a chair with its pain punctuating the sentences as the writing progresses, is one of the disadvantages under which The Reflector hands this delectable dish to its readers today. There is a studious avoidance of language contrary to early Sunday school teaching, but those have traveled such a road, with a jumping pain at every movement, may know something of the temptation to backslide. It takes grit, dearly beloved, to break the chain of communication between such an obstreperous ankle and the pencil point.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctor pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

TRICK OF A THIEF.

Reformed Jailbird Explains How He Lost Faith in Mankind.

"A short while before I reformed," said the man who spent much of his early life in jail, "I had an experience that shook my faith in human nature. Going uptown one night on the street cars, I extracted from a man's pocket a letter and $50. I hadn't wanted the letter, but it was so tangled up with the bills that I couldn't help taking it too. After I once got it out of the man's pocket I couldn't very well put it back, so I kept it. Unfortunately, I read it.

"It was a pathetic letter. Even a heart of stone couldn't hold out against an appeal of that kind. It had been written by a woman who evidently had some claim on the man. She was in deep trouble. The letter related in touching simplicity a story of sickness, want and death. The writer implored the man to aid her and her family, and it was clear that the $50 I had relieved him of had been scraped together to send to her.

"Well, with that $50 in my pocket and that woman's letter on my mind I put through the most miserable night of my existence. I hadn't much of a conscience left, but what little bit I had was hard at work. Even when I dropped off to sleep I was tormented with dreams of that poor woman. By morning the strath had told on me. I couldn't stand it to keep that money in my possession another hour. The man's address was on the letter, and I wrote to him, inclosing the $50 and the letter that had brought me to that softened state. I did even more than that. I inclosed $5 of my own. I told the man that I was about as low as they make 'em, but I wasn't low enough to keep money that had been meant for those poor souls.

"For obvious reasons I did not give my name and address. I was satisfied with doing good. I did not want to be thanked. I wanted no notoriety. On account of my obscure position it was impossible for the man to communicate with me if he had wished to do so. However, I did hear from him again, just a week before I went out of business for good. It was what I heard then that made me doubt all mankind.

"I learned that the letter was a kind of financial life preserver. The man always carried it wrapped up with whatever cash he happened to have on hand. A sister-in-law of his out in Indiana wrote a fresh copy and mailed it to him every week so it would always look nice and new and prevent suspicion of its being a fake. You see, that fellow reckoned the chances were ten to one on even the most hardened jailbird being melted by that appeal and returning the money. He guessed right too. Is it any wonder that I have been cynical since then? To see a nice, respectable man stoop to such trickery is enough to sour the most trusting disposition."—Washington Post.

The Set of the Sails.
"I stood on the beach," said T. De Witt Talmage, "looking off over the sea, and there was a strong wind blowing, and, noticing that some vessels were going one way and other vessels were going another way, I said to myself, 'How is it that the same wind sends one vessel in one direction and another vessel in another direction?'"

"And I found out, by looking, that it was the difference in the way they had their sails set. And so does trouble come in this world. Some men it drives into the harbor of heaven, and other men it drives on the rocks. It depends on the way they have their sails set."

Tin Mines.
Cornwall, Banca, Mexico and some parts of Australia are the only important tin producing districts of the earth. It is impossible to say how long the Cornwall mines have been operated. They are known to have been worked without interruption from the earliest historic periods. They were probably opened by the Phoenicians anywhere from 800 to 1,000 years before Christ. — New York American.

WALTZ OF THE OSTRICH.

The Big Bird Shows Its Good Spirit by Strenuous Dancing.

The so called waltzing performance of the ostrich is familiar to all in South Africa, but few outsiders have ever heard of it. It consists of a rapid whirling movement, sometimes one way, sometimes another, the wings spread out and alternately elevated and depressed. It is a fascinating sight when indulged in by a large flock.

First one bird will dart forward and begin the circular movements. Another will follow and then others until the entire flock is careening around in the mad whirl. Some will continue until they drop exhausted or, apparently becoming giddy, stumble and fall.

The dance is seen in all its glory only when a considerable number of birds are together. It often takes place among only a few, but is never so intense or prolonged as when the flock is large.

Chicks only a month or two old engage in the amusement, though they are rather clumsy and sometimes stumble, particularly when they are reversing. As they grow older they perform several complete turns with great facility, though even adult birds sometimes stumble and break their legs in falling.

This gay behavior is no doubt instinctive, and, as with other instincts, it is perfected by experience. Ostrich chicks begin the whirl even when reared away from other ostriches and without having seen the performance. The South Africans have the following theory of the significance of this playful activity:

The wild ostrich can protect itself against lions and leopards in no other way than by flight. When chased by a beast of prey the ostrich, starting to run, twists and turns in a curious fashion and jerks so quickly from side to side that no beast would be likely to have time to set himself for a spring in one direction before the bird had changed its course.

Ostriches thus pursued have been seen to stop at full speed, turn as if pivoted and flee again in almost the opposite direction. Probably no other animal can do this.

The South Africans believe that the instinctive waltzing movement of the ostrich is useful in perfecting the bird in the art of suddenly twisting and turning, which is most likely to assist it to elude its natural enemies, the larger carnivora. — New York Sun.

A Story of Dr. Mitchell.
The following anecdote is told of Dr. Mitchell: While on one of his foreign trips he decided to consult a very eminent German specialist regarding a nervous disease of his own of long standing. The two men had never met before, so he sent up his card as "Mr. Mitchell of Philadelphia" and was received by the German under this title. The physician examined him very carefully and then said, "My dear sir, do you say you come from Philadelphia?"

The doctor was forced to admit the inquiry.

"Well," said the physician, "have you consulted Dr. S. Weir Mitchell of that city?"

The doctor said that he had.

"And he couldn't help you?"

"No," was the answer.

"Then," said the doctor, removing his spectacles with an air of finality, "I'm afraid I can't do anything for you."

Warned by His Whiskers.
Of what use are a cat's whiskers? Are they merely to give pass a handsome, martial appearance, or have they a distinct use? The latter is the case. They are organs of touch, each one being connected with the nerves of the lip, says Answers. The slightest contact of these whiskers with any object is therefore felt by the animal, although the hairs themselves are insensible. When a lion is stealing through the jungle his whiskers warn him of any obstacle which may retard his progress or of any bush which might rustle if he touched it in passing. So his whiskers, in conjunction with his padded feet, enable him to move through the thickest growth with a deadly silence.

He Could Bear No More.
Two old school chums met after the separation of many years in the house of the prosperous one, and something like the following dialogue ensued: "How is the wife?" asked the host. "Don't ask me. She died two years ago." "I'm sorry. And your girl?" "Oh, didn't you hear? She's got divorced, and it's been a lot of trouble to me." "Terrible! But how is your son getting on?" "Don't mention him. He ran away last year, in debt." The host rose, touched the bell and said to the butler: "Tomkins, throw this man out. He is breaking my heart." — Pall Mall Gazette.

FACTORY READERS.

Cuban Cigarmakers Are Entertained While They Work.

Work in a Cuban cigar factory of the best class is agreeably spiced with entertainment. According to the Cuba Review and Bulletin, not only does every cigarmaker have plenty of light and air, a leather covered chair to sit on and the privilege of keeping his hat on while he works, but he is entertained meanwhile with serial stories and newspapers, song and discussion.

The factory reader sits at the rear of the workroom, enthroned upon an elevated stand. He is paid from the private funds of the cigarmakers, the cost to each man ranging from 10 to 15 cents a week.

This covers the cost of the books, novels and newspapers, as well as a salary of $39 which is paid the president of the reading committee to make up for the time he is supposed to lose from his work while engaged in counting votes or making the weekly collection.

The readers earn from $40 to $60 a week, reading for a period of three or four hours a day. As a rule, each factory has two readers, and newspapers are taken up in the morning and books or serial stories in the afternoon.

The selection of the book or serial story to be read is an interesting feature. It takes the character of a political election, each man voting for the book he wants. The president of the reading committee counts the votes and announces the winning book, which is forthwith bought and placed in its turn to be read.

Those who cannot read or write are yet kept informed in this way on public questions and are able to discuss intelligently problems of national and municipal interest. They seem to be well informed on scientific discoveries and other matters.

Feminine Curiosity.

"Mr. Dolley, won't you let me look at your watch a little while?"

"Certainly, Miss Flypp. Do you want to consult the time?"

"No," replied the girl as she opened it and examined its case and works. "I was curious to see if water tarnished gold or had any effect on the watch's delicate mechanism."

"Water? What do you mean?"

"Well, Mr. Hunker told me you were in the habit of soaking your watch. What is the object of such treatment, Mr. Dolley?"

Electric Fish of the Nile.

The electric fish of the Nile, of which the Egyptians made pictures thousands of years ago and which still inhabit the waters of that river, are provided with an electrical organ that incloses the whole body. It is situated in the skin and when viewed with a microscope is seen to be composed of about 2,000,000 beautifully formed little disks superposed upon connected rows of minute compartments in which are the terminals of nerves. The shock is produced by an intense current which traverses the entire organ from the head to the tail of the fish, returning through the surroundings. It stuns small fish in the neighborhood. A naturalist likens its action to that of a self loading and self discharging gun. The electromotive force of the organ in a fish only eight inches long can, he asserts, attain the surprising maximum of 200 volts. A single giant nerve cell at the head of the spinal column is the source of the impulses which discharge the organ.

The Age of Progress.

The robber brought his sand bag down with considerable force on the head of the citizen, but the latter only staggered a little and passed on.

"Your money or your life!" the robber called after him impatiently.

The citizen instantly retraced his footsteps.

"Pardon me!" quoth he. "I knew by the feeling it was a sand bag, and I supposed, of course, it was ballast from some passing airship."

It was now the robber's turn to make apology.

"I don't blame you!" he protested. "My style of robbing is so dreadfully out of date that few except very old fashioned people know what I am about until I have explained to them."—Puck.
