EXCURSION SUNDAY AUGUST 2.

Best Seaside Trip That Has Been Offered This Season.

It was first announced that the Norfolk & Southern railroad would skip Sunday, Aug. 2nd, and not have an excursion to Morehead City and Beaufort that day, but have it on the 9th. But it has since been decided to run an excursion on the 2nd also, and the schedule announced for that day is the best of any trip this season. Instead of starting from Raleigh the train starts from Wilson, leaving that town at 6 o'clock a. m. passing Greenville at 7:20, and on return will leave Beaufort at 6 p. m. This will give three hours longer at the seaside than on the previous excursions. Remember that this schedule is for Sunday, Aug. 2nd. The fare will be the same $1.50 for the round trip.

The Way to Help.

If all who owe honest debts would honestly try to pay all or a part of the same it would make conditions easier all around. Money may be "tight" everywhere, but a large part of the tightness is due to the slackness with which not a few look upon their obligations.

Some without a doubt take advantage of the condition of the money market to put off creditors from time to time. Then too many necessary improvements are neglected and even abandoned because of hard times, and thus avenues of employment are closed and public and individual progress are hindered.

In short, if all would do a little the load would be much easier to carry and there would be no "hard times" to speak of. When the willing horse has to pull the load and drag the drone along we have a bad state of affairs. No man liveth to himself alone, but in the complex modern world the affairs of each are intimately interwoven with those of others. People can make "times" just about as they want them anyway. But it takes full and free co-operation to do it.—Kinston Free Press.

Food For All.

After a certain jury had been out an inordinately long time on a very simple case, they filed into the court room and the foreman told the judge they were unable to agree upon a verdict. The latter rebuked them saying the case was a very clear one, and remanded them back to the jury room for a second attempt, adding, "If you are too long, I will have to send you in twelve suppers."

The foreman, in a rather irritated tone spoke up and said, "May it please your honor, you might send in eleven suppers and one bundle of hay.—Everybody's Magazine.

The Excursion.

Raleigh is a pleasant and interesting place for an outing, and those who went on the excursion Wednesday with the Memorial Baptist Sunday school spent a very delightful day in the capital. Some over 300 people went from Greenville, and enough were picked up between here and Wilson to bring the crowd up to about 400. The trip was made on good schedule and there was not the slightest mishap of any kind. There were many along who had never been to Raleigh before, and the visit to the State institutions was an education for them.

Be Careful.

Neighboring towns are reporting so many robberies that it should cause every one to be careful at night. In this warm weather the temptation is strong to leave windows and doors open, and in this way robbers are often invited.

Sunshine Temperature 126.

E. B. Whichard, of Carolina township, who was in town today, tells us that he hung a thermometer out in the sunshine Wednesday and in 20 minutes it registered 126. Yet folks could work in such a sunshine as that.

A Rotten Game.

League base ball is certainly not what it is cracked up to be, and sometimes the league team games are as rotten as those of a picked-up scrub team. That was about the way of the game at Raleigh Wednesday between the teams of that town and Wilson. Some of the excussionists from Greenville who took in the game say they have seen much better among the boys right here at home.

Will Go in Camp.

The Bryan Grimes drum corps and the boys brigade are planning going in camp together. They contemplate leaving next Monday afternoon for Beaufort where a large hall has been secured for headquarters in which to camp through the week. The party will take cooks, dining and sleeping paraphernalia along with them, and the trip promises to be a very cheap one. If any friends would like to go along and stay in camp with the boys they can see Capt. W. T. Burton for rates and particulars.

A FARM WHOSE CROP IS TIMBER.

Plant Trees on Your Land that Will Not Produce Crops.

In every state of the Union there are many tracts of so-called agricultural land, which, owing to their hilly character, poor soil, or numerous boulders, are not suitable for farming. The owners of such tracts are often at a loss to know what to do with them.

Without question, the best use to which land of this kind can be put is to plant it with trees. One of the fundamental principles of forest economics is, that soil which is not good enough to make the growing of cereal crops profitable should be devoted to the production of wood crops. This does not mean that trees grow better on poor soil than on fertile soil. They will, of course, grow better on fertile soil. But, in proportion to the money invested, better returns are secured from trees planted on the less valuable land.

An Ohio farmer is solving the problem of what to do with the worn out farm. He owns an old homestead of sixty acres, which he is desirous of keeping in the family. He does not live on the place, however, and farming has been a losing proposition. He has, therefore, decided to plant the entire tract with trees. He has already planted 35,000 Norway spruce, set three and one-half feet apart each way, on an area of about eleven acres. These trees will be cut, as they become large enough, for Christmas trees.

Chestnut seedlings will be planted in the spaces left by the removal of the spruce, and it is expected that they will begin to come in bearing when the last spruce is cut. In addition to the spruce, hardy catalpa, black locust, elm, boxelder, and sycamore have been planted. It is planned to put the entire sixty acres in forest within five or six years. The owner is wise in planting several kinds of trees instead of confining himself to one species. His forest will be producing six or seven kinds of lumber, chestnuts, and Christmas trees, at the same time.

Bryan Our Next President.

William Jennings Bryan will be the next President of the United States unless all signs and figures fail. It will be through an alignment of the Solid South with the great and growing west. Here is how we figure it out. Cut this out for future reference and look at it the day after election and see how near our predictions come true:

The Solid South,	156
California,	10
Colorado,	5
Idaho,	3
Indiana,	15
Kansas,	10
Montana,	3
Nebraska,	8
Nevada,	3
Ohio,	23
Oklahoma,	7
Utah,	3
Washington,	5
Wisconsin,	13
Wyoming,	3

Total electoral vote is 483.
Number necessary to elect 242.
Bryan's majority over Taft 25.
Bryan can lose Ohio and still win by a close margin, giving Bryan 244 and Taft 239.

A NAVAL HERO.

The Highly Exciting Career of Captain John Manly.

The adventures of no dashing rover of fiction make more exciting reading than the true history of Captain John Manly. The valuable aid of the privateers during the Revolutionary period has always been recognized and acknowledged by the navy, and it is in appreciation of the fact that torpedo boat No. 22 bears the name of the gallant captain. Mr. Edgar S. Maclay in his "History of American Privateers" gives an account of Manly's services to his country.

Captain Manly took charge of the Cumberland in 1779. Soon after he took command he was captured by a British frigate and carried to Barbados, where he was cruelly treated. His escape from prison was most audacious. He bribed the jailer, fled from his confines, seized an English government tender, placed the crew in irons and made his way to the United States.

He was immediately placed in charge of the fine ship Jason, of twenty guns. He had hardly left port when a squall carried away his masts and left him helpless. The fact of this disaster, coupled with his misfortune on the Cumberland, made the crew suspicious, and they mutinied.

A disabled ship and a rebellious crew are difficulties enough to dishearten any commander. But Manly was not to be downed by untoward circumstances. With the vigorous help of a cutlass he reduced the mutiny and brought his ship to port for repairs. More than that, he took two prizes, the Hazard and the Adventurer. These he carried to Boston. There he heard that a British fleet of merchantmen, homeward bound, were supposed to be skirting the New England coast.

Manly could not lie quiet under such news, and off he started in pursuit. One thick day the fog suddenly lifted and revealed to the Jason a fleet of forty large ships in alarming proximity. This was a bit too much, even for the bold captain, and by the aid of the fog, which fortunately shut down again, he escaped.

Not long after this the Jason came up with the British vessel Surprise.

"Heave to or we will fire into you!" shouted the English captain.

"Fire away! We have as many guns as you!" coolly replied Manly. He fought bravely, but again his crew mutinied, and the Jason was captured. Manly was carried before the lord admiral.

"Are you not the same Manly who commanded the Cumberland?" questioned the admiral.

"Yes."

"Were you not taken by the Thunderer?"

"Yes."

"Did you not escape by bribing the jailer and taking the king's tender?" roared the admiral. Manly did not wish to incriminate the jailer, so he held his peace. He was sent to England to be kept in Mill prison until the end of the war, but in 1782 he was exchanged. He was at once put in command of the Hague and in thirteen days had captured a valuable prize-ship. How much more he would have harried British shipping is not known, for he was run into Martinique and blockaded there until peace was declared.

Trade Report

Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity;

Wholesalers of dry goods continue to receive fair orders for future shipment and moderate filling-in orders have been received, which tended to keep up the spirits of the jobbers who look forward to a fair fall trade. The same may be said of shoes and other kindred lines. In the produce and provision market the mid-summer dullness prevails and shipments are small except in car load lots for resorts or northern markets. Considerable of the new crop of wheat is being marketed and prices have been well maintained.

Manufacturers of tobacco are reported active. The old crop has been well used up and buyers are eager for the new crop. More inquiries are being received for lumber. Locally building operations are active. The corn and tobacco crops are beginning to suffer for rain in Virginia and sections of North Carolina are also reported dry. In that State tobacco is being cured and small quantities of the new crop have been marketed at satisfactory prices. The crop is reported full to more than an average.

Retail trade is quiet. Collections continue slow.

SMALL AND THE WATERWAY.

The August number of the National Magazine contains an editorial on Hon. John H. Small, congressman from the first district of this state, which should be read by all North Carolinians, particularly, of course by the people that live in Mr. Small's district. We wish we had space here to reproduce the entire article, but as we are unable to do so we subjoin some extracts to show in what esteem the congressman is held beyond the borders of his own state and what a splendid work he is doing for the future development and increased wealth of his section of the country. The National Magazine says in part:

"Thousands of bills pour in on every side at each session of congress, and among them are a few measures that look well into the future. Congressman John H. Small, of North Carolina, has not only given attention to the local interests of his constituents and to general legislation, but his greatest public service has consisted in directing public attention to the improvement of the waterways of the country. Beginning in 1899, when he first entered congress, he began to concentrate much of his time upon this subject. He made occasional talks in the house of representatives; he appeared before committees; he visited the seaboard cities between Baltimore and Jacksonville; he furnished material to the press and contributed to the magazines.

"He contended that no substantial progress could be made in the waterways which did not embrace the entire county and contemplate the waterways of all sections. Naturally, most of his attention was directed to the construction and improvement of the chain of waterways from Boston to Florida. But there is one particular link in that chain which he considered of paramount importance. That was the link extending from Chesapeake bay on the north, and thence southwardly through the sounds and rivers of eastern North Carolina, and entering the ocean again at Beaufort Inlet, North Carolina. This protected route will avoid the dangers of Cape Hatteras and Cape Look-out, probably the most dangerous points on our Atlantic coast, and will also remove the present barriers which restrict the water traffic of eastern North Carolina. Those persons who have made a coastwise trip will never forget rounding Cape Hatteras, and will welcome a route avoiding Diamond Shoals and Cape Look-out. The most dangerous point along the coast is Cape Hatteras and this is retarding the coastwise trade, and accelerate this class of traffic for a large volume of bulky merchandise would then seek this route. Navigation south of Beaufort Inlet is comparatively safe.

"This project, known as the Norfolk-Beaufort Inlet waterway, has received the enthusiastic endorsement of a large number of commercial organizations between Baltimore and Jacksonville. A special board of United States army engineers estimated that the traffic which would be favorably affected each year by this waterway amounted to one million and one hundred thousand tons, and that the annual saving from its construction would amount to at least $600,000. It is proper to say that the commercial organizations referred to estimated the amount of traffic and the annual savings would be very much larger."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than in other districts put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc.

The high stand Congressman Small has taken in the house and the advance he has made in ultimate construction of this important public work shows the great importance to a state of keeping a good man in congress when it gets one there. Had Mr. Small been retired after having served only two terms, this waterways project would have languished and, most probably, fallen through entirely. Frequent change of congressmen from the districts chiefly interested in the subject would have been fatal to it, or at least would have greatly delayed progress, for no matter how competent and energetic the new congressmen they could not have taken up the work where it was left off by their predecessors and carried it on so successfully, or have aroused such great interest in it among the people of the commercial centres of the entire Atlantic seaboard.

Of course, Mr. Small's friends do not claim for him credit for all that has been done, but it cannot be denied that his share in it has been very large. — Raleigh News and Observer.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

They Succeeded the System of Nomination by Caucus.

Conventions have not always nominated our presidents and vice presidents. For more than thirty years presidential candidates were named by a caucus made up of members of the house and the senate. This system died when in 1824 the caucus insisted upon by Martin Van Buren and other friends of William H. Crawford, which threw the election into the house on account of the scattering electoral vote caused by the entrance of Clay, Calhoun, Jackson and John Quincy Adams in the race. This fracas elected Adams.

The campaign of 1828 in consequence was somewhat demoralized, and in 1831 the Republicans followed the example the anti-Masonic party had set the year before and met in convention in Baltimore to nominate Henry Clay. The Democrats held their first national convention in the same city the following year, nominating Martin Van Buren for vice president. The dominating figure of the party, Andrew Jackson, needed no indorsement of his candidacy for the presidency.

The Democrats in 1835 and 1840 nominated Van Buren for the presidency in Baltimore, and the Whigs nominated Clay in the same place in 1844, when the Democrats named Polk.

In 1855 Romulus M. Saunders introduced the two-thirds rule to the Democratic convention, and it was adopted. The customs installed at these earlier conventions which succeeded the tyranny of the caucus chamber have been continued and added to from time to time, and the conventions today are merely the descendants of those that nominated Clay and Van Buren.—Charles Wadsworth Camp in Metropolitan Magazine.

Horizon.

A man calls it the horizon where the earth and the sky seem to meet, but a woman's notion of the horizon is the families she can see moving in from behind her front window curtains. If, further, they hang out their washing in a spirit of candor, they are, of course, all the more so. The horizon is caused by a number of things, chief among them the gregarious instinct. Only for this next door would mean as little as tariff revision or pure food or international arbitration. It takes a star or something of that sort to rise above the horizon, but a very ordinary woman may feel above it.—Life.

The Cult of the Hotel.

"Hotel" is a French word, but a thoroughly British institution. LUDWIG THE LUNATIC

Patti Once Threw Him Into a Frenzy of Madness.

A FREAK OF THE CRAZY KING.

He Frightened and Enraged the Great Diva by His Strange Whims, and When She Finally Sang For Him in Munich It Drove Him Wild.

When Patti was in the first heyday of her fame Ludwig II., the mad king of Bavaria, set his heart on having her sing for him at his private auditorium in Munich. He wrote letter after letter, begging, imploring, offering extravagant sums of money, but Patti resolutely refused to go. She had heard too many stories of Ludwig's freaks and was desperately afraid of him, but at last the king offered her a sum so enormous that it seemed ridiculous to refuse it. Then the singer plucked up courage and started for Munich. When she and her maid alighted at the station not even a carriage was there to meet them, and they had to inquire the name of the best hotel and call a cab. That was the first shock to the diva's nerves and temper. After luncheon she started out to see the town and incidentally to examine the posters announcing Europe's greatest singer. Not a mention of her name could she find. She rushed back to the hotel and told her maid to pack the trunks.

Just at that moment a resplendent officer delivered a letter from the king. The letter stated curtly that his majesty would wait for her at 7 o'clock precisely in the royal palace, where his singer in ordinary, Mme. Fischer, would give her further directions. Mme. Fischer would also sing with Mme. Patti the duets which his majesty wished to hear. A programme was inclosed. Patti wept with rage. "I have never been treated so brutally," she said. "I shall leave at once. Tell the king so. I will not sing—never, never, never!" The officer pleaded with the irate prima donna. His majesty had been wild with excitement ever since he knew she would come and had not slept for three nights, so great was his joy at the prospect of hearing her.

"Besides," added the officer, "you know your king is—is—is!"

"Crazy," snapped Patti. "Yes, that's very comforting, isn't it? I don't know why I ever came." Just then she caught sight of this postscript:

"The king commands Mme. Patti to appear in pure white, without any color whatever, and not by any means to wear a satin gown, but soft wool. Silk is painful to his majesty."

"His majesty will have to be pained, I have no white woolen gown except my peignoir. I shall wear red velvet."

"Red!" groaned the officer. "Oh, no, no! Red sends his majesty into fits. If you appear in red, he will scream and have convulsions. Oh, do be patient, madame! I will bring Mme. Fischer to you. She understands the king's nerves. She will explain."

He fled from the room, and shortly after Mme. Fischer appeared upon the scene. She soothed Patti into good humor and also attacked the white wool peignoir and transformed it into a most becoming Greek robe.

Before 7 the royal carriage arrived at the hotel and Patti went to the palace. She was led through dimly lighted rooms and corridors into Ludwig's private theater, which was in utter darkness save for the moonlight that entered through the windows. Patti stood upon the dark stage, while an orchestra, somewhere out of sight, began a soft prelude. Through the gloom she could just make out a white face in the royal box opposite the stage. Not another auditor was in the great hall.

Patti felt the cold shivers creeping over her. She shook with nervousness and fear, and when she should have begun her aria not a sound could she make. She opened her mouth, but her throat was paralyzed from nervous terror. There was a pause. The king sprang up and leaned forward out of the box, his white face gleaming in the moonlight. The violins repeated the prelude. Patti gathered herself together and made one heroic effort. Her voice rang out into the great empty place, and the king sank back into the dark box.

Patti, though badly scared, made the effort of her life and finished the aria from "La Traviata" triumphantly and stood flushed with victory. Dead silence. Not a sound came from the gloom before her. She went off the stage in a temper. Mme. Fischer was behind the scenes, and Patti waited with her for the signal to sing the next number. A messenger appeared at the door. His majesty had had enough music and had gone to his apartments. For a moment Patti stood stunned. Then she laughed. The rudeness was so colossal that it was funny. Mme. Fischer took the diva to supper and then home.

The next morning Mme. Fischer called at the hotel once more, accompanied by the court chamberlain, who bore the promised check, an autograph letter of thanks from the king and some jewels of great value. King Ludwig, Mme. Fischer said, was in one of his maddest moods, wild with regret, cursing himself and cursing Patti. He had walked the floor all night, growling that he was a traitor, for Patti's voice had so ravished his senses that for one moment he had gone over to Italian music and had been false to Wagner, the one musician who alone had satisfied his majesty's soul.

"That was better than having bored him," added Patti, shrugging her shoulders.

AN ISLAND OF MASSACRES.

Over Five Million People Have Been Assassinated in Haiti.

Haiti has been the scene of more massacres than any other place on earth.

They began with the coming of Columbus and the rabble rout that followed him. In a few years its 3,000,000 gentle, brown skinned inhabitants had perished utterly, exterminated by fire and sword and by forced labor in the mines, to which they were utterly unsuited. In all history is no tragedy more colossal and more pitiful than this one.

Next the buccaneers seized the unhappy island and wreaked vengeance on the Spaniards in such a manner that even the old chroniclers tell of the worst of the atrocities only in the Latin tongue.

Presently came the French, and for a brief space there was some semblance of peace. But in 1793 the negroes revolted and murdered practically all the whites, the scenes enacted resembling those that took place at Cawnpore and elsewhere during the Indian mutiny, but magnified a thousandfold.

On account of these atrocities frightful reprisals took place when France in due course reconquered the island. But the negroes bided their time and presently rose again under a ruffian named Dessalines.

This time they did the thing thoroughly. Not only were all the Europeans put to death, but all having any admixture of white blood in their veins suffered a like fate. Many of the victims were burned alive after having been first tortured.

In all it is computed that over 5,000,000 men, women and children have met with violent deaths on this island of massacres since the intruding white man first set foot on its palm fringed strand.—Pearson's Weekly.

Sleep Talkers.

It is a curious fact that people when talking in their sleep are always truthful and never evasive, but if their feelings are played upon by their questioner they will betray great anger. Their eyes are always tightly closed, and the intonation of the voice is very different from the tones used when the person is fully awake. Sleep talkers may by conversation be brought to remember a dream within a dream, and they will recollect what happened in preceding dreams. Very often mental anxiety will make people talk in their sleep when under other conditions they would never do it.
