GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 31, 1908.

NUMBER 5276

THE RAINFALL HERE.

Largest Since the Weather Observer Was Appointed Two Years Ago.

Mr. C. V. York, weather observer for Greenville, gave us this morning some interesting figures on the recent rainfall, as follows:

His report states that within the last 24 hours, up to 8 o'clock this morning, 5 1/2 inches of rain fell at this point, and for the previous 24 hours 1.90 inch fell.

This is the largest rain that has fallen in this vicinity within the last two years, by two inches, the rainfall being 3.20 inches January 2nd, 1908.

Crime Unhinged His Mind.

Murphy, July 30th.—Robert Brown, colored, was confined in the county jail yesterday, because of an unbalanced mind. Brown claims that the cause of his becoming insane is that he has been worrying over a murder he committed nineteen or twenty years ago near Bold Springs, Ga. Brown says his right name is George Jones, and that he shot and killed with a shotgun a colored man at a dance, whose first name was Frank. He says he can't remember the other name. He says at the time of the killing Cross McHan was sheriff. Application has been made for Brown to be admitted to the State hospital for the colored insane at Goldsboro.

Almost a Record Breaker.

Fifteen minutes after the independence party adjourned in Chicago yesterday morning at 1:14 o'clock Central time, or 2:14 o'clock Eastern time, the story of its proceedings—at least 500 words—was in type and in the forms ready for stereotyping in The Observer office. Such rapid work in all departments is seldom equaled. The Associated Press handled the account in its usual masterly manner, the dispatches being relayed South from Washington. Had the convention been in session in the Auditorium at the corner of Fifth and College streets, just a stone's throw from The Observer Building, its proceedings could not have been reported with greater expedition.—Charlotte Observer.

Warehousemen's Convention.

If there is any business, or any sense, in keeping warehouses open during the month of July, we fail to see it. Perhaps warehousemen in the bright sections would want to keep open a part of July, but the entire matter could be arranged, provided warehousemen would get together. Tobacco warehousemen in Virginia, North and South Carolina, ought to hold a convention any way. Why not?—So. Tobacco Journal.

Mr. Garden Leaves.

Mr. J. D. Garden left Thursday evening for Asheville and will make his home there or in some other western town. Mr. Garden has lived in Greenville for ten years engaged in the tobacco business, and made a good citizen. He numbered everybody here among his friends, and all regret that he has decided to locate elsewhere.

The bad weather making it impossible for us to dispose of our regular order of ice cream in the usual way, we are offering it at 35c a quart.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newly Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., July 30, 1908.

The following teachers have been elected for the ensuing term: J. A. McArthur, superintendent, Fayetteville; Miss Helen Graver, Leasburg; Miss Ella Harris, Youngsville; Miss Nannie E. Richardson, Selma; Miss Lacy Hodges, Kinston; Miss Lillian Munn, Ayden; Miss Lena Dawson.

With Prof. McArthur as superintendent and this able corps of education as his Aid De Camp, we can well expect glowing results from their efforts the coming term.

J. R. Smith made a business trip to Winterville Thursday.

Mr. Lorenzo McLawhorn was in town Thursday and tells us he is cultivating 225 acres in cotton, 53 acres in tobacco, and so far his crops were never more promising, having made good cures. Mr. McGlohon is one of our most substantial farmers, and successful business men. He operates a gin, saw and grist mill, is an undertaker, has general repair shop, and does an extensive time business, besides he is a contractor and builder. In fact, he is a great and useful citizen. He owns considerable farming lands in Pitt and Greene counties, besides large interest in real estate in Ayden and Greenville. He is a very busy man and believes in the old maxim, "Early to bed and early to rise." He is a man that looks on the bright side of life. He never troubles trouble, and trouble never troubles him.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Davis died Wednesday and was buried Thursday. Rev. T. H. King conducted the obsequies.

J. R. Smith Company just received a car of lime cement. Brasco Bell, of Pactolus, a candidate for register of deeds, was shaking hands in town Wednesday.

Dr. J. C. Caldwell, of Wilson, will begin a series of meetings at the Christian church next Sunday morning. He has a broad reputation as an educator, minister and scholarly gentleman, and is worthy of careful attention.

Miss May Smith returned from Middlesex Wednesday, where she had been visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. C. Jackson.

Mrs. Will T. Hart is visiting her mother, Mrs. Celia Sylvant, at Snow Hill.

Our warehouse is now ready for the opening sales next Wednesday, August 5th, and we are expecting big things. The managers, Messrs. Glenn and Gentry, are up-to-date judges of the warehouse proposition and will give perfect satisfaction, so send in the golden leaves.

Mrs. R. H. Burnette, of Rocky Mount, left Wednesday for Greenville to visit her brother, J. Bryan, after spending some time in Ayden with her daughter, Mrs. O. C. Nobles.

Miss Geraldine Burnette and little Miss Fannie Nobles left for Rocky Mount Thursday morning.

Notice.

In compliance with chapter 2, Section 1, of the ordinances of the town of Greenville you are hereby notified to clean the sidewalks around your premises of all rank weeds and grass by the 3rd day of August, 1908. Failing to comply with this notice will subject you to the penalty of the law.

By order street committee,
J. T. Smith,
Chief of Police.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

A. R. Forbes, of Rocky Mount, is here.

C. D. Rountree and H. C. Edwards returned Thursday evening from Seven Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cherry came home Wednesday evening from Ocracoke.

Mrs. W. E. Tucker is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Mason, in Washington.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., July 30, 1908.

Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity: Wholesalers of dry goods and notions report ordering fair, and anticipate increased business as the season advances. Jobbers of millinery have travelers out with fall samples and report prospects encouraging. Manufacturers of food products and canneries are at their busy season, they report fruits and vegetables plentiful in most sections. Manufacturers of boxes, shooks and packing crates are working at full capacity. Jobbers of shoes import fair orders. Retail trade is dull. Collections continue slow.

CROP REPORT.

Seasonable rains are reported throughout the district, this has been beneficial to all growing crops as dry weather had begun to work injury on crops and pasture lands in many sections. Tobacco and cotton are reported in good condition, and the indications are for a full crop.

Capized by Water Spout.

Washington, N. C., July 30.—The Lady Antrim, a large sailing vessel used in the river and sound traffic and plying between this city and points on lower Pamlico river, was capized yesterday afternoon by a large water spout near the mouth of Pamlico river.

It seems that the vessel was becalmed when overtaken by the water spout, and immediately capized, the captain and crew clinging to her bottom until taken off by a passing vessel. Several vessels arriving in port today report seeing the water spout at a distance of five miles, and it seemed to be about the size of a hoghead at its smallest diameter and traveling slowly from east to west. No other casualties have been reported to date as a result of the spout.

P. M.'s. of State to Meet in Charlotte.

Raleigh, N. C., July 30.—The association of North Carolina postmasters will hold its second annual session in Charlotte on September 22 and 23, 1908, according to a decision of the executive committee as announced today. The intention is to secure the presence of the postmaster-general and other officials from Washington and make this a notable convention.

When the association was organized in Raleigh last October, over 200 postmasters attended and a number of notable officials were here. The fourth-class postmasters association, of which R. L. Blaylock, of Oakridge, is president, will meet in Charlotte at the same time.

THE "AMACHURES."

No Game Yesterday—Rain Came in Torrents.

The Kinston "amachures" left on the morning Coast Line train for Greenville where they will cross bats this evening with the Greenville baseball team. This will be the third game in the series between the two teams. Baseball fans are keenly interested in this game as each team has one game to its credit. The "amachures" were confident of victory. However, judging from the weather, it's a cinch that the game belongs to the clouds today.—Kinston Free Press, 30th.

The forecast of The Free Press was correct. At the time the game was to be called it was raining as hard as it ever does. The game was postponed indefinitely.

Court Not Color Blind.

An interesting thing came about this morning in Mecklenburg Superior court when the selection of a jury was in progress. Joe Ardroy was called to the box. The name itself is a synonym for free fairness in this section, but in the meantime, somebody had put wise the alert Mr. Plummer Stewart. The man was passed as a jurymen on one side, but Mr. Stewart plied questions that let him down and out, "Ardroy," said the attorney, "are you a white man or a negro?" The man responded in some wise that allowed another guess as to racial actualities. Finally, Mr. Stewart brought out the statement that the about-to-be jurymen was not white, and that he was the husband of a black woman in the country. Joe Ardroy was permitted to retire from the jury box.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Some Curious Corn.

Mr. Stewart C. Leslie brought into The Observer office last night an ear of corn—black Mexican corn—grown in his father's garden on Church street. The exhibit was quite a curiosity in the shop. 'Squire Barkley, who is an expert on corn and tigers, had never seen anything exactly like it. The yield per stalk is five or six ears, and this country seems to be all right for it.—Charlotte Observer.

Two Examples.

The teacher was explaining to the class the derivation and significance of the word "ambidextrous." "It comes from two Latin words," she said, "ambo, meaning both, and dexter, meaning right or right handed."

"Literally speaking, an ambidextrous person has two right hands; that is to say, he can use his left hand just as well as he can use his right. Do any of you know of an ambidextrous person?"

Two little boys raised their hands. "My sister is," said Tommy Jones. "She plays the typewriter with both hands."

"So's my mamma," said Bobby Smith. "She spansks just as hard with the left hand, as she does with the right."—Youth's Companion.

A Conundrum.

Jones—I say, Smith, you are a good hand at arithmetic.

Smith—Yes, I am considered very good. Why?

Jones—Well, here is a little problem for you. There was a man named Little living in Dublin who had a daughter. Now, she was in love with a chap she knew her pater did not approve of, so one day she eloped with him. When the old man found out he was very angry and at once followed them. Now, then, what time was it?

Smith (angrily)—What time was it? How on earth do you suppose I can tell you? I give it up.

Jones (triumphantly)—Why, Little after 2, of course.

Mr. Cleveland's Human Qualities.

Looking back over a friendship of many years, I see more clearly than ever before two things that were characteristic of Mr. Cleveland. In his attitude toward human nature there was a keen perception of its weakness and limitation, combined with a fifth faith in the gradual and ultimate triumph of its nobler qualities. This made him in the broad sense of the word, a democrat, but not an obstreperous and flamboyant one,—a steady and hopeful democrat. "You can trust the best judgment of the rank and file," he said, "but you can't always reach it in a hurry." And again: "The best part of every man ought to rule, and when you can get that all together you have the real voice of the people. That is what education is for,—to bring the best part to the front."

The second thing that was characteristic of him was his attitude toward the law. He did not want overmuch of it, but he wanted it to be profoundly respected and fearlessly enforced. He had a sincere mistrust of excessive legislation. The hope of bringing the millennium by statute was one that he did not share. But for the law as established, and for the safeguards which it offers to common rights of person and property, he had a very holy reverence. Conscience and courage both entered into this feeling. It came out again and again in his public acts and utterances. It shone also in his private conversation and in the whole bearing of the man.

He had that kind of genius which consists in application of large ideas to every-day problems. He illuminated important questions with homely illustrations. I remember his beginning a discourse on the Venezuela boundary dispute with a reference to a quarrel between two farmers about a line-fence. Before he had finished that homespun figure of speech he had made every one see the real reason and justification of an act of American statesmanship which Wall Street cursed for a fortnight, but which the world at large has approved ever since.

It seems to me that Grover Cleveland will take his place among the great Presidents of the United States. But his greatness did not consist in the possession of extraordinary qualities of common manhood to an extraordinary degree. He represented the best type of a plain American man raised to the Nth power.

His friendship, to which he admitted younger men with such a hearty and natural sympathy, was frank, generous, and steadfast. The whole man went into it. Those who knew him thus will always remember him, not as a personage, but as a splendidly real and satisfying person-

The 6.00 o'clock A. C. L. train Thursday evening, brought to Greenville a young and happy couple, Mr. Curtis C. Collins and Miss Florence F. Stancil, both of Roanoke, Va., who wanted to get married right away. They drove to the court house immediately from the depot and summoned the ever obliging magistrate, Maj. H. Harding, who tied the knot in his usual good style in the presence of a large number of people in the sheriff's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins are stopping for the present at the Taylor House.

ADMIRE PITT'S WAY.

Commenting further on the Pitt county primary and the explanation The Reflector gave of how the campaign is being conducted, the Kinston Free Press says:

We acknowledge that we had in mind at the moment a long drawn out contest like the gubernatorial contest just ended. Of course there is no way of shutting it off and confining it to a limited space of time. If a fellow has a political bee in his bonnet it will keep up a continual buzz. But our idea was that it would be best to limit the campaign so far as it is possible by shortening the time between the call and the primaries being careful at the same time to allow the candidates ample time to put in their work.

We admire Pitt's way of disposing of this question of county nominations, and our purpose in reproducing the call was to ask our executive committee to go and do likewise, though we thought it would probably be better to shorten the time between the call and the primary. We have heard of no friction in Pitt, neither do we anticipate any in Lenoir, because of a primary campaign.

Nan Patterson is before the public again. This time the wife of a prominent Pittsburger charges her with enticing her husband. The poor wife is trying to have Nan put out of Pittsburg, but has not succeeded so far, although the effort has caused some of the officers of the city to lose their jobs. Nan is still in the city and says she intends to remain there. Wonder what she'll do next.

Maybe the demonstrations indicate the strength of the parties. In the Independence League convention the demonstration lasted fifteen minutes, in the Republican convention it was forty-five minutes, and in the Democratic convention it was an hour and a quarter. We hope the ratio will keep up and the Democrats come out that far ahead in the election.

They are now asking the usual question, "Who is Hisgen?" He is not a Who's Who celebrity. His name does not appear among the 16,395 in that list. Is he a newspaper reporter detailed by Hearst to be a presidential nominee and to write articles on 'How It Feels

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. to be a Candidate? Can he speak or does he write, or has he a bar? Is he a horny-handed son of toil prominent in local labor circles or is he a Massachusetts high-brow who simply thinks things? Usually it is the unknown who is sprung for the vice-presidency, but in this instance the order is reversed. Colonel Graves is known to a few million people, while Hisgen the head of the ticket, is such an obscure man that people are going about asking who he is. But it doesn't matter. He is never going to be President, and he is going to give but little trouble to anybody.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Both Tactful.

When a tactful host entertains a tactful guest there is sure to be rewarding conversation for the on-looker and listener. "What do you think of our place, on the whole?" asked Mr. Brown as he stood with his old school friend on the piazza, waiting for the station carriage which was to bear the twenty-four hours' guest away.

"Rather a good little place," said Mr. Ray impartially, "perhaps a bit bare now, but no doubt time will change all that."
"Yes, indeed," said his host, with great heartiness and no hint of offense. "I hope before you come again the trees and shrubs will have made a good growth. Then you'll see a change."

WARNED BY SPECTERS

One Person's Three Experiences With Ghosts.

THE SPIRIT OF HIS SISTER.

How an Apparition From the Unseen World Aided the Brother in Deciding an Important Legal Question—The Phantom on the Grave.

Three times in my life, each instance separated by an interval of years, have the experiences here told been mine.

I come of a family to different members of which have become visible at times those appearances which for want of a better name are known as "ghosts." It is at least possible that the superstition regarding the second sight of one born with a veil may have some foundation in scientific fact, for my uncle was thus veiled at birth, and all his life from infancy vacant space was peopled to him with forms, which he would describe so accurately in dress, appearance and manner that listeners would instantly recognize departed friends, gone over years before my uncle's birth in many instances.

It was not till he was a large boy that he realized that the forms seen by him were not visible to others. Pages could be written of his experiences, but I am not here to give hearsay evidence, but my own personal experiences, the sights seen with my own bodily vision.

The first instance was so early in my life that I do not recall it, but my mother relates the circumstances.

Our home was in Brooklyn, and we had gone for the summer to Greenfield Hill, Conn. I was so young that I still wore dresses and was in charge of a nursemaid who was in the habit of receiving visits from Annie, a girl of her own class, so that I was well acquainted with Annie.

She died suddenly and was buried in the country churchyard, but I was not told of her death, being considered too young to understand.

As I walked with my nurse past the cemetery one evening in the edge of dusk her superstitious horror can be imagined when I cried, pointing directly to Annie's grave: "Oh, Maggie, there is Annie! She is waving her hand for us to come over to her!" I broke away from my nurse and ran to the cemetery fence. She caught me up and ran in a panic to the house, nor would she ever again pass the cemetery after dark.

The only idea in my mind was that of a familiar friend whom I had not seen for some time.

The second instance was at the most unromantic age possible to a boy—about thirteen. I was attending boarding school in Dedham, Mass.

A school friend, a boy of about my age, had left the school some days before for his home in the west, leaving in perfect health.

At about 9 in the evening I sat on the edge of the bed removing my shoes when the wall of the room seemed to part and open, showing the night outside, with the dim forms of the trees gently waving in the wind. As I sat spellbound at this strange sight in the rift of the wall against the background of the night stood my friend as I had last seen him, just as in life. He waved his hand to me in token of farewell, stood looking at me a moment, and gently the vision faded.

I said to my roommate, who had seen nothing: "Charlie is dead. I have just seen him." The next morning a telegram to the school said that he had died the night preceding.

In the third instance I had grown to manhood—a normal, healthy man, over six feet tall and weighing nearly 200 pounds. I am a civil engineer, the hardy outdoor life being far removed from dreams and morbid imaginings.

It was on one occasion necessary for me to consult a lawyer, and one evening I met the lawyer in his Boston office to talk over a matter of business. In the course of the conversation he asked me a question which I was undecided about answering. I stopped a moment before replying, for consideration, lowering my eyes, and when I raised them, there stood behind the attorney a favorite sister, dead many years.

Her eyes were fixed on mine, her fingers on her lips. I instantly absorbed the idea conveyed by her suggestive pose and did not give the lawyer the information he asked. As I afterward proved, it was greatly to my interest not to do so.

The lawyer shivered slightly as the visitant stood behind his chair and said that there was a draft through the room.

He never knew that the sensation of cold conveyed to his nervous system was a breath from an unseen world. Science has proved that light, sound and color are all the results of vibration of greater or less rapidity. Some of these vibrations affect our senses and we see, hear or feel their effects. But what of the vast space filled with those vibrations which affect none of our senses, yet are unknown to science? Could our senses respond to them what secrets of the unseen might not be revealed, and who can say but the secret of these strange sights which sometimes greet the eye of mortals is hidden in this unknown range of vibrations, hiding a world that is all about us, mingling with and overlapping, surrounding and telescoping our common humdrum daily life and only in rare moments of attunement drawing the veil aside for a glimpse into the unknown.—New York Herald.

From Any Other Shoes We Know

You'll say the same if you will drop in and look over our Spring Styles—they're beauties.

You may not be able to tell by looking at them that they're different from shoes costing one or two dollars a pair more. But try on a pair and you'll FEEL the difference.

Owing the fact that they are foot moulded while being made Ralston shoes need no "breaking in."

This is a FACT, not merely a claim. Make us "show you."

DOCTORS' DILEMMAS.

The Question of Revealing the Employee's Condition.

Many dilemmas arise from the doctor's duty of keeping his patients' secrets. There was recently the much discussed case of a doctor who discovered that a signalman on a railway was in such an unsound condition that he might have been the cause of an accident. What was the doctor's duty? Was it right for him to keep the patient's secret, or should he have disclosed the fact to the directors of the company? It seemed quite clear that the signalman could have brought an action for damages against the doctor, but it is very doubtful if any jury would have let the doctor suffer in the circumstances.

Lay, legal and medical opinion differed greatly in the matter. Of course it was the doctor's duty to use all his influence to get the man voluntarily to permit him to report the case. It was urged by some that if doctors consistently disclosed the condition in such cases it would merely mean that they would not be consulted. The ailment would be concealed, and the doctor would lose the chance of treating the case properly and using the moral influence to get the patient to disclose his condition. The moral of the whole case was that employees in important positions should be frequently examined by a doctor representing the company.

The less serious problem arises—ought a doctor to disclose the condition of an employee to an employer where there is no public danger involved? An employee, for instance, may be ill or incapacitated through drink. Here the doctor must be guided entirely by the patient's consent and should, even at the risk of offending the employer, keep his patient's secret. In England the law is indefinite on the point, and the unfortunate medical man may be held guilty of contempt of court if he refuses to answer questions in the witness box, or if he does so he may have an action for damages brought against him by the patient.

In 1896 the Royal College of Physicians took the opinion of eminent counsel—Sir Edward Clarke and Mr. Horace Ivory—on the question of professional secrecy, and their view was that a doctor should not reveal facts which had come to his knowledge in the course of his professional duties even where there was suspicion of a criminal offense having been committed. Mr. Justice Hawkins (afterward Lord Brampton), however, held that in very serious cases, involving the screening of criminals, it was the duty of medical men to speak out.—London Mail.

Guided by a Spider.

A spider was the direct cause of most serious loss and injury to the Dutch nation at the time of the attack upon Holland by France in the year 1794. A French prisoner at Utrecht, who had spent some of his long, lonely hours in studying the habits of spiders on the walls of his cell, was able by watching them to forecast the coming of rain or of frost. At a time when a sudden thaw raised the prospects of the Dutch and seemed to destroy the prisoner's hope of rescue by his countrymen his humble friends upon the wall gave him sure signs of a renewal of the frost. Upon this he managed to send a message to assure the French generals that within a few days their troops would be able to pass over the frozen waters, a prediction that was soon fulfilled, and so it came to pass that a spider was responsible for the release of Quartermaster Disjonval and for the conquest of the Dutch.

He Complied.

A distinguished Belgian lady, says a German paper, wrote the following note to the famous cellist, Servais:

We give next Thursday a banquet, followed by a reception and ball. M. de Z. and I shall be most happy to see you with us. Cordially,
BARONNESS DE Z.

P. S.—Do not forget to send your violoncello.

The baroness had not long to wait for the artist's reply. It ran as follows:

My Dear Baroness—A pressing engagement necessitates my leaving Brussels immediately, so I am forced, though with great regret, to decline your very kind invitation for Thursday. Sincerely, SERVAIS.

P. S.—In accordance with your wish I am sending you my violoncello.
