CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Very Small Meeting Monday Night—
Joint Meeting Friday Night.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greenville had about the smallest meeting in its history Monday night. This was partly due to oversight in advertising the meeting; but more largely due to the indifference of the business people of the town.

None of the committees previously appointed for certain investigations could make more than a partial report, and several important matters had to be deferred.

There was some discussion of the question of making the secretary a salaried officer, but action was deferred to a meeting when the attendance is larger.

As the Chamber of Commerce and the Tobacco Board of Trade have common in relation advancing the business interests of the town, it was decided to hold a joint meeting of the two organizations next Friday night to discuss measures of improvement.

The election of directors and the report of the secretary on all members in arrears for dues, were matters deferred to the Friday night meeting.

The Third Term Question.

Editor of Reflector.

We hear so much of late about third terms in office, that we are constrained to ask the question, what are the offices for anyway? Are they perquisites established to reward political services, or are they sine cures to be bestowed on personal favorites, or are they positions of necessity established and maintained by and at the expense of the public, and wholly and entirely for the public good? If the two first surmises are correct, each office should have only one term, change should be made as frequently as possible, in order to give the greatest number "a swipe at the swag", but if the latter surmise is correct, the question of two terms or three terms ought not to enter into our selection of officers.

If public office is a public trust maintained for the benefit of the individual, it behooves the voter to ask himself, not how long has the candidate served the public, but how efficiently has he served the public, and is the public to be benefitted by retaining him, or damaged by losing him? The paramount question ought to be, not who wants the office, or who needs the office, but whom does the county need? It is undoubtedly true that "turn about is fair play," and that other things being equal, rotation is the part of wisdom. But it is equally true that the interest of the public should be considered ahead of the interest of any one individual, and that having served the county efficiently for two terms, ought to be no barrier to the county's asking an officer to serve it again.

Let each voter carefully consider for himself. V.

Road Re-opened.

After working all day Saturday, the Norfolk and Southern work train had sufficiently repaired the washouts on the track, caused by the recent flood of the river, to admit of the regular passenger trains resuming the schedules. The first train to go through to Newbern since last Tuesday was the shoofly, which went down Sunday morning. Since the rapid fall of the river conditions are beginning to assume their normal state. Travel over both railroad and county roads has been resumed and mail is being carried on all rural routes. The flood did considerably less damage than was at first estimated.—Kinston Free Press.

Body Not Yet Found.

Large searching parties were at work all day Sunday, endeavoring to locate the body of Mr. O. W. Patterson. A party went down to the scene of the drowning and dynamited about the place where the body was last seen, in the hope of causing it to rise to the surface. A systematic search has been conducted ever since the accident along the shores and in the boughs, but all efforts have proved futile.—Kinston Free Press.

MISS PATTIE WOOTEN ENTERTAINS

Complimentary to Miss Gertrude Midgette, of Kinston.

On Monday evening from 8:30 to 12 Miss Pattie Wooten entertained most royally at the home of her parents on Greene street, in honor of her guest, Miss Gertrude Midgette, of Kinston.

The guests were met at the front door by Miss Pattie Wooten and George Midgette, of Kinston, and ushered into the spacious hall where delicious fruit punch was served by Miss Mary James and Buncy Warren.

Miss Gertrude Midgette and Bascom Wilson, Miss Lillian Carr and Will Hooker received in the front parlor, while Miss Mary Shelburn and Norman Warren received in the back parlor.

Many potted plants, white, pink and red astors, artistically arranged, gave the home a most impressive effect. The color scheme being pink in the front parlor, red in the back parlor and hall, and white in the dining room.

The prize contest was very enjoyable. Each guest was given a card with a paper doll on it some part of every doll missing. Then the different parts of the dolls were distributed among the guests and the object was to get all of the parts of the doll before any one else. Joe Anderson, getting all the parts of his doll first, was awarded a beautiful pearl brooch, which Burt James presented with a very appropriate speech. Mr. Anderson then presented it to the charming guest of honor.

At a late hour all of the guests were given animal crackers there being two of each kind, which they had to match and go into the dining room with the person having the one they matched. Delicious refreshment were served by Mesdames Chas. Laughinghouse, J. L. Little, H. L. Carr, H. L. Coward, and J. L. Wooten.

After enjoying much vocal and instrumental music, barn-dancing, games, and conversation, guests departed for their homes, declaring Miss Wooten a most delightful hostess and Miss Midgette a most charming guest of honor.

The out of town guest were Misses Gertrude Midgette, and Mattie Fleming, of Kinston; Miss Arlene Joyner, of Ingletarr; George Midgette, of Kinston, and Tom Gorman, of Richmond.

Longevity Due to Cold Baths and the Elimination of Corsets.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who claims to be 103 years old, says her extreme longevity is due to the fact that she takes a cold bath every morning and doesn't wear corsets; that she has taken a cold plunge every morning for 100 years and now she is well preserved, walks a mile daily, climbs three flights of stairs to her room nightly, eats three square meals a day and takes her cold baths unassisted. Her only defect is blindness, due to cataracts. She was also kissed by Gen. Lafayette 84 years ago. The old soul evidently loves to talk.

The bridge across the river would be completed in quick order if the lumber for the flooring was delivered fast enough.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Sept. 8, 1908.

How delightfully enchanting as one stands in the center of the crossing of any two of our most prominent streets, gazing northward, eastward, southward, or westward, to behold the clear blue sky, the electric wire, the telegraph pole, the magnificent shade tree in lovely foliage, mother earth resplendent in her evergreen grasses, head high and chin deep, where the little children play peek-a-boo and sometime the wily thief can hide from our chief. Then, too, our sidewalks, with now and then a man hole or a washout wherein danger lies giving to Ayden a scene delightfully grand, magnificently superb and sooner or later will add many thousand to her already rapidly increasing populace. Yes, 'tis grand, and encouraging, too.

N. & S. PLANS.

May Cause Division—Senator Spooner Employed to Bring Suit.

New York, Sept. 7.—According to well authenticated rumors in certain Wall Street circles which have been going the rounds since the proposed reorganization plan of the Norfolk and Southern Railroad was announced, the interests heavily involved in the property are almost finally divided among themselves. Conferences were held here last week and no agreement could be reached as to reorganization or for providing funds for receiver's certificates. The terms of the plan are so drastic as to provide for the complete cancellation of the present outstanding stock and for an exchange of outstanding bonds for stock in the new company. There is some talk here that through some circumstance the property of the John L. Roper Lumber Company is not fully in the possession of the railroad company and that Ex-Senator Spooner, now one of New York's leading attorneys, has been employed by the Roper interests to enforce an old contract between the original underwriters and suit may be entered at any time.

This has caused some of the leading banking houses to question the validity of the bonds. With these serious legal complications, the enormous floating debt and large immediate cash requirements of the company and the statement being freely made that present lumber prices and demand is such that the Roper company cannot be of any financial assistance to the railroad and its earnings poor, due to the great depression and large losses by the recent storms in the South, it looks as if the court and receivers will continue in control of the property indefinitely. The final outcome is awaited by several of the large railroad and financial interests already indirectly identified with the company and the holders of the underlying bonds who are ready to divide up the railroad lines and lumber plants to suit themselves when the fight is propitious.

The river is almost within banks again and the ferry can soon resume operations.

The building opposite Hotel Bertha that has been used as a sample room is being remodeled.

INDIFFERENT MERCHANTS.

There was a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the court house, Monday night, and notwithstanding it was the annual meeting there was an unusually small attendance, in fact the smallest we ever noticed at a meeting of the chamber. As one gentleman remarked "it was a meeting at which commerce was conspicuous by its absence," his reference being to the non attendance of merchants. Out of the more than half a hundred merchants in Greenville, there was but one at this meeting, and it can be said to the credit of that one that he has been present at every meeting the chamber has held.

It is remarkable that the merchants of the town as a class take such little interest in an organization that so vitally concerns them. The people who should be most active in matters looking to the promotion of the commercial interests of the town are the merchants, and when they fail in this particular it is more or less discouraging to those who are trying to put forth the effort to advance the business of the town. If the merchants could have heard the criticism upon them Monday night, they would have seen in what light their indifference is held. Certainly they cannot continue such indifference and then blame any one but themselves if the town falls short in the business that ought to come here.

Business is not going to make itself, but comes only when it is gone after. If the merchants showed as much interest in the upbuilding of the business of the community as do other classes of citizens, you just could not hold Greenville within bounds. The merchants will have an opportunity to redeem themselves, next Friday night, by attending a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Tobacco Board of Trade that will be held in the court house. This very question of which The Reflector is speaking will be one of the matters discussed at that meeting. Indifference and selfishness will kill any town, while organized activity in the advancement of public interests will make it.

Just think of what Greenville would be if every business man was active in promoting the town's welfare. Come out to the meeting Friday night.

While the South has lately been in the throes of floods, the Northwest has had a scourge of fire. In Minnesota forest fires raged for three days and several towns were almost swept away. Thousands of people were rendered homeless.

August, 1886, made itself famous with an earthquake, while August, 1908, made a flood record that will be remembered.

With banks closing in Pittsburgh it does not look like the wave of prosperity was very high there.

There have been enough storms of late without another coming at the equinox.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY.

Durham county is after its tax dodgers with a sharp stick. It could hardly be at better business. A man who will try to shirk paying his fair share of the cost of government must be utterly lacking in self-respect and there is no other way to get them to do their duty but to force them to do it. The county which does not so force them is not doing its duty by its citizens who do meet their obligations.—Greensboro Telegram.

There are many important issues in this national campaign but none more important than the issue of Republican extravagance. No citizen of public spirit objects to any proper expenditure for the general welfare, but the fact that within the past eight years the Republican administration of the national government has created 99,000 offices, entailing an annual expenditure of $70,000,000, should arrest attention.—Statesville Landmark.

The Philadelphia Ledger at the top of one of the columns of its editorial page invites its readers to tell why they will support their choice for president. In its Saturday's issue five men took advantage of this invitation. One expressed the intention of voting for Debs. The other four letters were from old time Republicans who will vote for Bryan. Now watch the Ledger pull down its invitation.—Florida Times Union.

You don't catch your Federal judges giving up life-time jobs to run for governor. No indeed. Judge Pritchard, of this State, wouldn't do it. And Judge Goff, of West Virginia, has made a similar declination. A Federal judgeship at six or seven thousand dollars a year for life is not something to be tossed lightly aside. And the average Republican is something of a commercialist and a stand-patter anyway.—Greensboro Telegram.

Laughing Plant of Arabia.

The seeds of the laughing plant of Arabia produce the same effect upon persons as laughing gas. The plant attains a height of from two to four feet, with woody stems, widespread branches and bright green foliage. Its fruits are produced in clusters and are of a yellow color. The seed pods are soft and woolly in texture and contain two or three black seeds of the size of a Brazilian bean. Their flavor is a little like opium, and their taste is sweet. The odor from them produces a sickening sensation and is slightly offensive. The seeds, when pulverized and taken in small quantities, have a peculiar effect upon man. He begins to laugh loudly, boisterously. Then he sings, dances and cuts all manner of fantastic capers. Such extravagance of gait and manners was never produced by any other kind of dosing.

Did He? "I am reminded, boys," said the new teacher, "of the career of a boy who was once no larger than many of you whom I see before me."

"He played truant when he was sent to school, went fishing every Sunday, ran away from home when he was ten years old, learned to drink, smoke, chew tobacco, play cards. He went into bad company, frequented low taprooms and saloons, finally became a pickpocket, then a forger, and one day in a fit of drunkenness he committed a cowardly murder."

"Children," he continued impressively, "where do you think that boy is now?"

"He stands before us!" cried up of the youngsters in a shrill voice.

FISHING SUPERSTITIONS.

Various Queer Notions Exist All Over the World.

In British Columbia the Indians ceremoniously went to meet the first salmon and in flattering voices tried to win their favor by calling them all chiefs.

Every spring in California the Karaks used to dance for salmon. Meanwhile one of their number secluded himself in the mountains and fasted for ten days. Upon his return he solemnly approached the river, took the first salmon of the catch, ate some of it and with the remainder lighted a sacrificial fire. The same Indians laboriously climbed to the mountain top after the poles for the spearing booth, being convinced that if they were gathered where the salmon were watching no fish would be caught.

Very widespread, in fact, is this native belief of the necessity of caution whenever Adam is on fishing bent.

In Japan among the primitive race of the Ainos even the women left at home are not allowed to talk, lest the fish may hear and disapprove, while the first fish is always brought in through a window instead of a door so the other fish may not see.

The Eskimo women of Alaska never sew while the men are fishing, and should any mending be imperative they do it shut up in little tents out of sight of the sea.

Under no circumstance on the northeast coast of Scotland will a fisherman at sea mention certain objects on land, such as "minister," "kirk," "swine," "dog," etc., and the line will surely be lost if a pig is seen while baiting it. As on the land chickens must not be counted until they are hatched, so at sea fish must not be counted until they are caught. It is good luck to find mice nibbling among the nets. A horseshoe nailed to the mast will help, and a herring caught and salted down will produce wonders.

In the Shetland islands a cat must not be mentioned before a man baiting his line, and among the Magyars of Hungary a fisherman will turn back and wait over a tide if he meets a woman wearing a white apron.

Every year the natives of the Duke of York island decorate a canoe with flowers and fern, fill it with shell money and cast it adrift "to compensate the fish for their fellows caught and eaten."

It was always the custom of the Maoris, the primitive inhabitants of New Zealand, to put the first fish that they caught back into the sea "with a prayer that it might tempt other fish to come and be caught."

If the fish did not come soon enough in British Columbia the Indians used to employ a wizard, who made an image of a swimming fish and put it in the water to attract live fish to the bait.—Los Angeles Times.

Sacred Geese of Rome.

The tradition of the "sacred geese of old Rome" is that when the Gauls invaded Rome a detachment, in single file, climbed up the hill of the capital so silently that the foremost man reached the top without being challenged. But while he was striding over the rampart some sacred geese, disturbed by the noise, began to cackle and thus awoke the garrison. Marcus Manlius rushed to the wall and hurled the fellow over the precipice. To commemorate the event the Romans carried a golden goose in procession to the capitol every year.—New York American.

An Improvement.

Phisty—I suppose you think that if you had the regulating of the universe you could make some improvements on the present job, don't you?

Kuphs—I don't know about that, but I think I could suggest one change. I should like to have things so arranged that when a man is having a good time the days would seem to pass slowly instead of quickly, as they do now.—Chicago Tribune.

A Card.

I hereby announce that I have removed from the practice of my profession from Falkland to Greenville. Residence on Third street next door to J. L. Fleming. Office, Dr. Bagwell's former office where I can be found at all times when not professionally engaged elsewhere.

VOTE FOR THE NEW CANDIDATES.

Pitt County Democrats Should Do Away With Third Terms.

Rally! Boys! Rally!
To the grand old Democratic flag, and let the majority of the Democratic voters be compensated for the noble work, in harmony which was so faithfully carried out in our first primary for the support of our many friends. Now we realize that all can not hold an office. And we do not think it just for one to hold office more than two terms, and we do not approve of any more third term doctrine.

Not that we think any the less of the present office holders who have made officers that have faithfully performed their duties, and men against whom there is not a word of complaint. Now we appeal to the voters to cast their votes for the new men on Saturday, the 12th day of September. There being only eight hundred and fifty two votes out of two thousand five hundred and forty six cast for L. W. Tucker, and five hundred and thirty five out of two thousand three hundred and fifty two cast for Williams, eight hundred and three out of two thousand three hundred and ninety eight cast for S. T. White.

Therefore we the undersigned Democratic voters, do hereby appeal to the better judgment of the voters of old Pitt, and ask them to vote for the new candidates on second primary, September the 12th, 1908., which are as follows: S. I. Dudley for sheriff, W. M. Moore for register of deeds, W. B. Wilson, for treasurer.

Lotteries.

The first scheme for the distribution of prizes by chance in modern times is generally attributed to one Benedetto Gentile of Genoa, who established his lottery in 1820. The proper lottery, in which each person takes part by means of tickets costing each a fixed sum of money, had its origin in more ancient times, being known even in the middle ages. Such a lottery was established at Florence as early as 1530.—New York American.
