AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Oct. 13, 1908.

The Ayden band attended the public speaking at Bethel Saturday. Several of our citizens accompanied them.

Josephus Cox attended the Primitive Baptist association at Seven Springs Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. A. W. Ange and Mrs. Martha Cox, of Winterville, were visiting friends here last week. Several of the teachers went to Greenville Saturday to be present at the meeting of the teachers' institute.

In the contest Friday evening as to the prettiest and most popular young lady in Ayden, Miss Freddie Tucker received the largest number of votes and was presented with a beautiful vase. Miss Lizzie Dixon was a close second to Miss Freddie.

J. T. Keel left Saturday for Seven Springs where he will spend several days for his health.

In a game of ball here Saturday between Jackson Town and the Ayden team the score stood 2 to 1 in favor of the former team. The game was snappy throughout and was greatly enjoyed by those present.

The meetings in the Baptist church are largely attended and much interest is manifested. Mr. Mashburn is an able preacher and is preaching some fine sermons and do doubt will prove of telling effect before the meetings close.

A. G. Cox and Mrs. Cox, of Winterville, attended church here Sunday.

Mrs. F. T. Carr, of Willow Green, spent Sunday with Mrs. Agnes Blount.

The county Democratic executive committee have secured the services of the Ayden band at several of the appointments in the county during the campaign. Our boys for the time they have been organized make good music and we are glad they are appreciated away from home. It speaks well for them and Ayden too.

Mrs. Agnes Blount went to Greenville on business Monday.

Application has been made to the authorities at Raleigh for the admission in the Asylum of Bertha Richardson, the wife of Isom Richardson, a very prominent colored man of our town.

The Jeannette King Recital company will be at the opera house Wednesday evening, Oct. 14th. The comment of the press on the company is of a very flattering nature. There is no question but that the people have in store a rare treat on that occasion. The singing especially, is said to be of a very high order.

C. G. Moore, W. B. Alexander and S. A. Jenkins attended the Democratic rally at Kinston yesterday.

MARRIED.

At the home of the bride's father E. A. Lancaster, of New Bern, N. C., Grover C. Cox and Miss Ethel M. Lancaster were presented at the hymeneal altar and there took the vows that made them man and wife Oct. 7th 9 a. m. The bride and groom were dressed in beautiful attire, suitable to the occasion.

As waiters, were Jarvis Cox and Miss Mattie Stephenson; Will J. Cox and Lizzie Ippock; Leslie L. Cox and Rosa Skinner; Jim G. Lancaster and Zebbie Wetherington.

Miss Jessie Ippock of New Bern, N. C., rendered the wedding march in a most tasty and graceful manner while the Rev. Mr. King, of New Bern, officiated.

After the ceremony the beautiful loving couple, with their friends, drove to the bride's father where a delicious supper was awaiting them. It is beyond the power of the pen to write of the good things that had been so nicely arranged for the pleasure and comfort of those present. After supper, all present seemed to participate in the social gayety of the hour.

The groom is a very industrious and promising young man; the son of one of the most respectable and high standing citizens, of Pitt Co. The bride is one of Craven's most highly esteemed daughters. Their many friends wish them a long, happy and successful life.

Farmers Beware.

It is an every day occurrence to run up with reports that tobacco is off at Greenville; and when traced it originates with drummers from other markets. All such drumming is rotten to the core, and intelligent men should not listen to it.

Our sales at the Gum warehouse deny such tales. Our entire sale today averaged $11.84. Our farmers were highly pleased and went home happy. Will Brown and Harris averaged 14c for a load of tips.

C. D. Smith sold 182 at 10, 160 at 13½, 100 at 17, 146 at 17½, 122 at 19½, 40 at 23, 48 at 26.

C. D. Smith and Barrett, 130 at 12½, 62 at 15, 46 at 8, 64 at 11, 30 at 11½, 84 at 11½, 160 at 14½, 94 at 12½, 62 at 20, 28 at 32.

W. H. Shivers, 100 at 11½, 90 at 13, 116 at 143, 60 at 15, 100 at 152, 118 at 20, 62 at 21, 62 at 30, 34 at 39.

Don't listen to slimy tales but come right on to the old "Gum" and you will be pleased. Give me your next load and I will prove it. J. R. Hutchings. 10-9-3td.

Paid High for His Experience.

The papers are telling about one "Rev." John White of Eastern North Carolina, a thrifty farmer, who dreamed that the Lord wanted him to go to Egypt as a missionary. In spite of the entreaty of his friends against it, he sold his farm and took his family to Egypt, expecting a special revelation from the Lord to teach him the language of the natives and provide for his daily wants. After nine months in the far country he has written his friends for money to come home to begin life over again. He learned some sense, but the price was high.—Charity and Children.

Reels Did Not Come.

In some way the picture reels were delayed and did not arrive in time for the moving picture show Monday night and the ladies of the End of Century Book club had to postpone their entertainment until tonight. It was very regrettable, for a great many people were disappointed, but they will have the opportunity of going tonight. The tickets that were purchased for Monday night are good for tonight. Don't forget to go.

Red Men to Have Big Day.

The semi-annual meeting, of District No. 4, I. O. R. M. will be held Thursday, Oct. 15th 1908, at Ormondville, Greene county, N. C. The Ormondville Tribe will entertain the visiting brethren by giving a big old time picnic.

Why, Oh, Why?

Mr. D. A. Tompkins, one of the representative men not only of North Carolina but of the South, has an interesting article in The Charlotte Observer and in which he discusses in splendid manner "Banking and Currency." In closing his article he makes this very live observation and which unfolds much:

"Refusal of the banks to give the proper guaranteed deposit will mean postal savings banks, where deposits are received and guaranteed by the government. This would put the government deep into the banking business and would take money out of the commercial banks to be tied up, inactive, in the hands of the government."

The moral of this is plain. The Democratic party stands for guaranteeing bank deposits; the Republican party stands, in its pledge in its platform and as a hobby of the "Big Stick," for a postal savings bank. Yet bankers—not all of them by any means—are against the Democratic platform and in favor of the Republican platform. What does it mean? Does it mean that they believe the Democrats would carry out their promises, while the Republicans would fool the people, or what?—Wilmington Dispatch.

Miss Anna Keyes Entertains.

Reported for The Reflector.

Miss Anna Keyes entertained a host of friends most delightfully Monday evening from 8:30 to 12. The guests were met at the front door by Miss Anna Keyes and Percy Forbes and were given a cordial welcome.

Flinch and barn dancing were the most enjoyable features of the evening. Music was rendered by a number of young ladies present.

About eleven o'clock ices, cakes and fruits were served by the hostess.

The guests departed to their homes about 12 o'clock congratulating themselves on having spent such a pleasant evening.

A host of friends will regret that Miss Keyes will leave here Wednesday to make her home in Washington, but she will always be pleasantly remembered by them for her kind hospitality Monday evening.

The Special Revelation Failed.

The papers are telling about one "Rev." John White, of eastern North Carolina, a thrifty farmer, who dreamed that the Lord wanted him to go to Egypt as a missionary. In spite of the entreaty of his friends against it, he sold his farm and took his family to Egypt, expecting a special revelation from the Lord to teach him the language of the natives and provide for his daily wants. After nine months in the far country he has written his friends for money to come home to begin life over again. He learned some sense, but the price was high.—Charity and Children.

Indefinitely Postponed.

The supper that was to be given tonight at Harper's Palm Garden by the King's Daughters has been indefinitely postponed. Due notice will be given when the date is decided upon.

Colored Fair.

The week following the State fair in Raleigh the colored people hold their industrial fair there. For the one to be held next week the Norfolk & Southern railway will sell tickets from all stations at reduced rates.

Sad Accident in Wayne.

Fremont, N. C., Oct. 12.—At the home of Thomas Hooks, who lives about 8 miles from Goldsboro, in Indian Springs township, occurred Saturday one of the saddest deaths recorded in this county in many a day. A young man of the neighborhood by the name of Grant had been out hunting, and came by the Hooks residence. In coming up to the house he very properly removed the shell from his shot-gun. Some of the family were in the front yard, among the number being, Mr. Hooks' daughter, a girl about 14 years old. As young Grant was leaving he inserted the shell and in recoupling the gun it was discharged, killing Lessie, the girl above mentioned, almost instantly. The remains were brought here for burial. Many friends and relatives were at the depot, when the train arrived, and accompanied the hearse to the cemetery.

Homicide at Gumberry.

Weldon, N. C., Oct. 12.—W. H. Harrell, of Gumberry, foreman of a Seaboard Air Line work train, is dead and Amos Pennewell, the Seaboard Air Line operator at Seaboard, is under $500 bond on charge of killing Harrell at Gumberry Sunday.

The two men, it is stated, had quarrelled on board the train No. 41 from Norfolk and had been parted. When the train arrived at Gumberry and while it was standing at the station several pistol shots rang out at the rear of the depot. Three balls had taken effect in Harrell's body and he died in a few minutes.

Sent in a Trunk.

New York, Oct. 12.—In a package not much larger than an ordinary traveling trunk, A. M. Herring will today ship his aeroplane to Fort Myer, where it will be assembled for the government trials tomorrow. Herring states he will probably receive an extension of one week before the thirty days period of the tests begin.

Should Have Been $12.03.

A regrettable error was made in Monday's paper in reporting the sales of the Star warehouse "43,957 pounds at an average of $7.75." The average should have been $12.03 instead of $7.75. The article is published again today with the figures corrected.

Boy Getting Along Well.

Harry, little son of Mr. J. S. Feed, who swallowed a pin some time ago and was taken to the Kinston hospital to have it removed from his throat, where it lodged, was brought home Monday. The place on his neck where it was necessary to cut to remove the pin has healed nicely and he is getting along well.

TUESDAY, OCT. 18, 1908.

Putting college boys on their honor not to engage in hazing, is on a par with looking to the Republican party to revise the tariff.

As Hobson could not scare up a war between this country and Japan, he might get interested in the scrap that seems imminent over about Bulgaria.

After all the agitation raised over their engagement, and the consent of the royal family having been given for the duke to marry her, the announcement comes that Miss Elkins has jilted the Duke of Abruzzi. Maybe she can find an American good enough for her.

Candidate Taft is coming to North Carolina to make a speech. He is the same Taft who once said in a speech at Greensboro that it would be a good thing for the Republican party if the Federal offices in this State were filled by Democrats. There would not even be any Republican party in North Carolina if it was not for the offices they got a chance at.

The statement is given out that the total contributions to the national Democratic campaign fund so far amount to about $220,000. Just think of that sum in comparison with the $260,000 Harriman himself raised at the solicitation of President Roosevelt to buy 50,000 votes in New York for the Republicans in the campaign four years ago. The entire Democratic campaign fund this year is not as large as the amount Cortelyou tried to get for the Republicans out of the Standard Oil Company four years ago.

Another Roosevelt Break.

The Mountain Ash Choir, of Wales, on a visit to this country, gave a White House concert, Wednesday, which is coming in for a good deal of advertising, by reason of a wine-passing incident. The leader of this famous band of Welsh singers told about it at a subsequent concert in a Methodist church in Washington. He told of the hearty reception accorded the choir by the president, who especially applauded the singing of "The Men of Harlech," while Mrs. Roosevelt expressed her delight over the rendition of "Old Black Joe"—then "one of the doors opened and an attendant carrying a large tray, on which there were glasses containing sherry. When the tray was passed to us we declined with thanks. We are all prohibitionists. The attendant passed with the tray to the head of the line of the chorus. The first singer declined with thanks. The next man, and the next, and the next did the same thing. It was the same way all down the line. Then the attendant, evidently realizing that a mistake had been made, hastily disappeared. The members of the choir are all hard-working men in their native country and they are all pro-by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

hibitionists. They use neither sherry nor any other wine at any time." This account of the incident by the Welshman was heartily applauded. The president was always accused of getting Fairbanks into the cocktail trouble, but there is no avenue of escape open to him for the claret incident. There's wine in the White House and the president is indiscreet in the passing of it around.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The New York Herald's independent canvass of presidential possibilities, printed yesterday, showed:

Total vote in electoral college	435
Necessary to elect a president	212
Republican, reasonably sure	188
Democratic, reasonably sure	100
Doubtful, Republican leanings	55
Doubtful Democratic leanings	19
In the balance	45

Total 435
Taft to win must get of the doubtful votes
Bryan to win must get of the doubtful votes
The battle is yet to be won.—Charlotte Observer.

It will be good news to the Democracy of the State that ex-Governor and ex-Senator Jarvis is to enter the campaign, making his first speech at Fayetteville Wednesday night. We have more brilliant men, speakers of more fire and with more of the grace of oratory, but Governor Jarvis is the wisest man in North Carolina, in wisdom about public affairs, and his words carry tremendous weight, as they deserve to. His entrance into the campaign means more Democratic votes in every locality where he speaks.—Charlotte Observer.

Mr. H. A. White,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir—
During the summer you prevailed on me to buy a disability policy in the Maryland Casualty Company. Within a very short time after purchasing same, I found that it was necessary for me to have a slight surgical operation performed on account of which it was necessary for me to remain away from my business for a period of about two weeks.

The check presented me to-day in full settlement of lost time, also covering cost of operation is very much appreciated, and I can highly recommend the Maryland and yourself for the prompt service rendered.

Very truly yours,

PEGGY'S ADVICE.

Why It Suddenly Changed From Excellent to Worthless.

It was the era of the first Quincy baby, and the attention of the entire Quincy family, consisting solely of mother and father, was directed to the proper upbringing of the infant. Books on babyhood were bought and digested. Suitable magazines were subscribed for. Friends and mothers were consulted on every point. But, to the wonder of the solicitous Mrs. Quincy declared that the advice that did the most good was that which appeared in the morning paper, signed with the fetching name "Peggy." But the time came when even that was discarded.

"Aren't you going to read me the little lesson from the Journal for today?" asked Mr. Quincy at the breakfast table.

"I shall never read that stuff to any one any more," said the mother firmly. "Why not? Only day before yesterday you were saying what excellent recommendations Peggy made about crying children. Why do you desert her?"

"I'll tell you, Tom," she said. "I had meant not to say a word about it, because it is so humiliating, but now you've spoken—well, I might as well confess. The paper yesterday said something I didn't quite understand, and, as I was downtown, I thought I'd just run into the office and ask Peggy what she meant. So I did. The office boy smiled when I asked for Peggy, but he took me up a lot of dirty stairs and then pointed to a door. I knocked, and a voice answered, 'Come in!'"

"Well?" queried her husband. "Well, there isn't any Peggy! Not a woman at all, but a perfectly horrid, grinning man, smoking a cigar! He writes that advice—a man! What do you think of that, Tom?"

Mrs. Quincy paused in her indignation. "I thought you found the advice good, as a rule," he objected. "Tom Quincy, how could a man in a newspaper office write good advice to mothers? I am surprised! You men think you know everything!"—Youth's Companion.

MOSLEMS AT PRAYER.

The Khedive's Devotions on the Last Friday of Ramadan.

As the living stream continued to flow in by one door there suddenly arrived at the main entrance the central figure of the day's spectacle—the khedive coming to say his prayers on the last Friday of Ramadan.

The brilliant escort, the royal salute, the military band and flash of arms were the affair of an instant. He had alighted and entered for worship. And still the stream of other men, arrested for a moment, flowed on and in.

With the magic of the east, unaccountably slow and unaccountably swift, the stream was reversed in its course, and it poured and surged back through the gateway, a stream before, a flood now.

Soldiers and police struggled and fought to keep it within bounds, for the khedive had finished his prayers and must be allowed to return as he had come. Another brief ceremonial and the brilliant escort and the magnificent carriage of the Turkish ambassador had swept by.

Then came a general tumult, and the pent up human masses poured over the open space, noisy, childish and jubilant. In strange contrast to the wild scene below were a few women of the poorest class up on the flat housetops.

Closely shrouded in their black dresses, they crouched, motionless like birds, gazing down from their isolation on the great sight in which there was no place for them. Outside, as inside, they all were men. The climax of the day had not yet been reached.

As soon as the ebbing tide had somewhat subsided it was possible to press through the doorway into the interior of the mosque.

Those who had already finished their worship were writing their names on the walls, touching the sacred pillar, licking the stone that brings prosperity, squeezing into the niche that secures health, fingering the gorgeous carpet on which the khedive had prayed, kissing the saint's tomb and looking with supercilious suspicion on the Christians who had quietly come into their midst.

The roof of the liwan was low for its great extent, and the sounds reverberated from it. A little farther on two rows of men faced each other and swayed backward and forward, bending their bodies nearly double. As they did so there arose rhythmically and with an intensity of fervor the awful word, "Allah, Allah, Allah!"

The sound rose and fell with the accompanying motion and was repeated time after time as the mighty machine seemed to become intoxicated with the strength of its own assertion.

There was little frenzy. The startling thing was that these men knew what they were doing. Seated on the ground close by was a group of men, sane and purposeful, led by a staid and dignified sheikh, who swayed to and fro and recited with monotonous intentness the Moslem's hundred names of God.

Here under an old roof, supported by 300 columns, all of which were taken from various ancient Christian churches, was the prophet's God worshiped with a meaning that could not be mistaken.—"The East and the West."

Too Small to Pray.
"Yes, your reverence, our Johnny is a wonder. He can play cards, bowl and cuss like a trooper."
"Can he say his prayers?"
"No; he's too little for that."—Fillingende Blatter.

Love makes the world go round, but money buys the axle grease.—Chicago Record-Herald.

SAM. WELLER.

Where Dickens Got the Idea of This Quaint Character.

There were Wellerisms before Weller. It may be noted, by the way, that Samuel's name was no invention. The name of Weller is familiar to genealogical students as that of families in Kent, Surrey and elsewhere in the south of England. In the time of Edward III. a certain Hugh le Veller was living at Henley-on-Thames, so perhaps Mr. Weller, Sr., when from the gallery of Mr. Justice Stareleigh's court he encouraged his son to "spell it with a w" was not so very far wrong.

There can be but little doubt that just as Mrs. Frances Sheridan's Mrs. Tryfort, with recollections of Dogberry and his like, suggested to Sheridan the creation of Mrs. Malaprop, so Dickens drew the idea of Sam Weller's peculiar way of illustrating his talk by apt comparison and felicitous allusion from a character in a farce by Samuel Beazley, which was popular before "Pickwick" was thought of. This was pointed out in detail more than a quarter of a century ago by the late Mr. E. L. Blanchard, although many lovers of Dickens seem to be still unaware of the existence of this prototype of Weller. Both Beazley, who was by profession an architect, and his dramatic works are unknown to the present generation. But in the early decades of the last century his plays were popular, especially a musical farce called "Five Hours at Brighton; or, The Boarding House," produced at the old Lyceum theater in 1811. A favorite character in this farce was Mr. Simon Spatterdash, a militiaman. Copies of the play are very rare, but Mr. Blanchard gave a number of examples of Mr. Spatterdash's sayings, of which we quote one or two: "Come on, as the man said to his tight boot;" "I'm down upon you, as the extinguisher said to the rushlight;" "Where shall we fly?" as the bullet said to the trigger;" "I'm all over in a perspiration, as the mutton chop said to the gridiron;" "Let every one take care of themselves, as the donkey observed when dancing among the chickens," and so on.

An actor named Samuel Vale was identified with the part of Simon Spatterdash and in private life was in the habit of belarding his talk with comparisons of the Spatterdash brand, comparisons which flowed with fatal facility from his lips. Sam Vale's "latest" passed from mouth to mouth, and both the name of the actor and the farce with which he was associated must have been familiar to Dickens. There can hardly be any reasonable doubt that the name of Sam Vale suggested that of Sam Weller, just as his trick of talk, derived from the militiaman of Beazley's farce, suggested Samuel's amusing method of speech.—London Globe.

Killed to Save Silk.

On attaining full growth the silk worm stops feeding and throws out silken threads. The silk is formed in a fluid condition and issues from the body of the worm in a glutinous state, apparently in a single thread. From this silk the worm constructs its cocoon; an interval of from three to five days being required to complete its imprisonment in the envelope. In order that the silken strands may not be subjected to the danger of breakage by the moth emerging from the cocoon, the cocoons are steamed till the inclosed insects are dead. After this the silk may be wound off.—Boston Journal.

His Comment.

A Chicago whist enthusiast, who thinks that he is a great player, wrote and published a book on the game and sent one copy to a famous Milwaukee player for his opinion of it. In about a week the book was returned to him with the following letter: "My Dear Sir—You favor of the 10th inst., accompanied by your book, was duly received. I have read it very carefully. It seems to be a very good game, but I don't think it is as good a game as whist."

If You Need a Piano

THREE PONTS

SHOULD BE CONSIDERED WHEN YOU PURCHASE

First: Is the Piano strictly high-grade, of a lasting tonality, and made by a reliable factory?

The use of best materials, best construction by skilled workmen, profiting by the experience the STIEFF FACTORY has had in its sixty-eight years of continued manufacture under the same management, places the STIEFF PIANO at the head of High-Grade Instruments. Its sweet tone does not change, as does the so-called "good as" variety, so often sold by dealers to unsuspecting purchasers because there is more profit in the sale.

THE FIRST BOYCOTT.

English Weavers Leagued Against the Scotch in 1527.

The trade boycott is by no means of as recent origin as some people suppose, nor is it of Irish extraction. Among the early boycotts which strongly suggest the modern institution is one that hails from north England and is chronicled in Brand's "History of Newcastle." This had its inception in a dread of Scotch competition. On Aug. 31, 1527, in the corporation of weavers in Newcastle a number of regulations were adopted, among them that "no member shall take a Scotchman to apprentice or set any of that nation to work under a penalty of 40 shillings." More than this, to call a brother "Scot or man-sworn" involved a forfeit of 6s. 8d., "without any forgiveness."

The canny Scotch doubtless did not delay to pay back the English in kind, but it is nearly two centuries later before any record appears of the extent to which this commercial feud raged between the two peoples or as to the reprisals that were made by the "blue bonnets over the border."

In 1752 a sort of covenant was entered into by the drapers, mercers, milliners and other tradesmen and shopkeepers of Edinburgh to cease all dealings with commercial travelers from England, then called "English riders." The language of this covenant runs: "Considering that the giving of orders or commissions to English riders or clerks of English houses when they come to this city tends greatly to the destruction of the wanted wholesale trade thereof, from which most of the towns in Scotland used to be furnished with goods, and that some of these English riders not only enhance the said wholesale trade, but also correspond with it and sell goods to private families and persons at the same prices and rates as if to us in a wholesale way, and that their frequent journeys to this place are attended with high charges, which consequently must be laid on the cost of those things we buy from them, and that we can be as well served in goods by a written commission by post (as little or no regard is had by them to the patterns or colors of goods which we order them to send when they are here); therefore, and for the promotion of trade (?), we hereby voluntarily bind and oblige ourselves that in no time coming we shall give any personal order or commission for any goods we deal in to any English dealer, clerk or rider whatsoever who shall come to Scotland."

To this document, with its naive pretense that it is for "the promotion of trade," is added an obligation to have "no dealings with any people in England who shall make a practice of coming themselves or sending clerks or riders into Scotland." The penalty for violating this agreement was set down to be £2 2s. for every offense.—Indianapolis News.

His Curiosity Satisfied.

A wealthy tradesman who had been drinking the waters of Bath, England, took a fancy to try those of Bristol. Armed with a letter of introduction from his Bath physician to a professional brother at Bristol, the old gentleman set off on his journey. On the way he said to himself, "I wonder what Dr. Blank has advised the Bristol physician in regard to my case?" and, giving way to curiosity, he opened the letter and read:

Dear Doctor—The bearer is a fat White-shire clothier; make the most of him. Yours professionally, J. BLANK.

Pelican and Flamingo.

The book of the pelican's bill is red, and undoubtedly the fable that the pelican feeds its young with blood from its own breast originated in the bird's habit of pressing the bill upon the breast in order to more easily empty the pouch, when the red tip might be mistaken for blood. Another explanation is that the pelican became confused with the flamingo, which discharges into the mouth of its young a secretion which in color resembles blood.
