CONGRESSMAN JOHN H. SMALL, SPEAKS TO LARGE AUDIENCE FRIDAY NIGHT

Discussed National, State and County
Politics—Aeolian Band Furnishes
Music—Ladies Were Present

A large audience assembled in Masonic Temple opera house, Friday night, to hear the speech of Congressman John H. Small, several ladies being among them. The Aeolian Band was present and enlivened the occasion with excellent music.

After an introduction by Chairman F. C. Harding, of the county executive committee, Mr. Small spoke for some over an hour filling his hearers with enthusiasm which they expressed in frequent applause. Mr. Small first referred briefly to notional issues, then forcibly gave the record of the two parties in North Carolina, showing pointedly the corruption and bad government when the Republicans were in control, contrasted with the honest administration and good government under Democratic control.

When he referred to educational matters he said that there was no county that gave better illustration of this subject than Pitt, for this county had made such progress educationally that it stood at or near the head of the list in the State. He said Pitt had the best county superintendent in North Carolina, and that our school buildings and educational advantages were as good as any. He complimented the community spirit prevailing in Greenville and Pitt county and referred to securing the Eastern Training school as a result of our people working together.

Mr. Small's speech was an excellent one and he showed plainly why every voter should support the Democratic ticket on the 3rd of November.

Several of the Democratic county candidates occupied seats on the stage, but none of them made speeches, all of the time being given to Mr. Small.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT.

The Old Argument to the Contrary Was Utterly Annihilated.

"What a difference one would see in this crowd if there were saloons in the city, that old argument that prohibition is no good on a day like this."

These were some of the expressions heard on the streets yesterday by men who were watching the great throngs of circus visitors as they stood, both black and white, on the streets or walked about all sober and quiet.

Mr. Heriot Clarkson, head of the Anti-Saloon movement in the state, came out of his office in the Law Building and watched the crowds gathering to see the parade, and predicted that "this will be the most orderly circus day that the city of Charlotte has ever seen." As the day passed, with not a single drunken man in sight, his prediction was proved to be true.

It does not take a fanatical prohibitionist to see the great difference in the city on days when vast crowds throng the streets, when saloons were open here, and now.

There were in Charlotte yesterday several thousand people, negroes and whites, of that class who under the rule of saloons would have been more or less under the influence of liquor, and by nightfall, in the old days, the cells at the police station would have been jammed and packed with white men and negroes, wild and boisterous, and the recorder's court this morning would have been busy for hours meteing out fines and sentences.

Instead of this condition, however, the police station yesterday and last night was as quiet as a business office, and only one negro was locked up for being drunk, and even he soon sobered up, and was turned loose to see the circus—with his peanut-eating and lemonade-drinking companions, and this morning, the session of the police court was even shorter than usual.

"This day has been a record-breaker as far as good order of the crowds is concerned," was the expression of the officers last night. These men, whose business it is to look after the peace of the city, and who have done patrol duty under saloon regime and since the city has been dry, are judges, and know what they are talking about, when they attribute this great difference on days when great crowds are in the city to the absence of saloons.

"Prohibition does prohibit" was the verdict of every observer of yesterday's crowds.—Charlotte News.

Trade Report.

Bradstreet's today will say for Richmond and vicinity:

A pre-election dullness in most lines of trade, while a fair volume is being done in some lines, in others a decided falling off, is noted since the first days of this month, and business in no line, except where special reasons exist, measures up to an average.

Sales in shows, dry goods and notions show a falling off, this is partly due to a between season period. The produce market shows more activity, fruits and produce are plentiful and fair prices are obtained.

Small sales of loose tobacco are noted, only common grades have been offered locally, but prices are satisfactory. Slightly more activity is noted in lumber, railroad reports show a decrease in idle cars. Retail trade is fair, Collections continue slow.

Boots Brown.

In Raleigh Saturday many witnesses testified a negro was who he was supposed to be and just as many testified that he was some other fellow. As a result the jury acquitted the prisoner; no doubt thinking about all coons looking alike.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Killed in Dream.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—That he killed a man while in a dream was the defense offered by John Ochowski, who was placed on trial before Judge Clifford yesterday, charged with the murder of William Libertas, a shoemaker. Counsel for the defense represented that Ochowski had gone to Libertas' shop at 210 Division street to demand the return of money Libertas had won from him at cards; that the shoemaker was absent and that while awaiting his return Ochowski fell asleep. He dreamed he was being attacked by Libertas with a knife. Libertas returned and roughly aroused the man, who, said the lawyer, shot him before he was fully awake.

There is but one more week for registration—bear this in mind.

Ex-Judge Montgomery evidently found out that he called up the wrong man.

What Mr. Dixon said to ex-Judge Montgomery ought to be enough to satisfy him.

The Republicans are organizing clubs in different parts of Pitt county. The last one reported was organized at Fountain a few days ago with "NO" members.

There were several prominent speakers with the Republicans at Fountain Tuesday, the most prominent being W. J. Manning, and W. R. Dixon, postmaster of Farmville.

Treasurer Herman Ridder, of the Democratic national executive committee, has made public the donations to the campaign fund up to October 9th, giving the names of all who contributed $100 dollars or more. There were very few of the large contributions, and the total from all sources, including $42,500 left over from the Denver convention, amounts to only $248,567.55. You will not hear of the Republican committee letting their donations be made known before the election.

The strongest evidence that the Republican party is unfit to trust with the affairs of this State, and of this county, particularly, is the fact that they continue their campaign of misrepresentations. There is not an argument used by them that is not false, and not a promise that they would fulfill. It is a scramble to see who can make the most noise, and, in case Taft should be elected, it will be, who can get the most pie? The postmasters know that they must work or they forfeit their right to office. There are more Republicans now than the postmasters like to see. The more Republicans the more competition.

Cotton and the Panic.

Heretofore the South, with the exception of the mill and lumber men, have not seriously felt the effects of the "financial disturbance" which is, being interpreted, the panic. It was hoped that all the trouble would be over by this time, and that our folks would go right along without the depression that has for a year been so prevalent in the North. But the price of cotton, though the crop is not a large one, shows that the trouble is not yet over. It is the strangest situation that ever confronted us. No man can explain with any degree of clearness or satisfaction the cause of the business stagnation or predict with any sort of authority when it will end. It is quite as easy to make a forecast of the weather by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O Sold by druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

er for December. Politics had nothing to do with it, of course. Mr. Roosevelt is as innocent of bringing on the present panic as Mr. Cleveland was that of a dozen years ago. However, it makes no odds what brought it on, the hard and unpleasant fact is that it is here and refuses to budge. It is a poor time to sell cotton, but it is not right for a farmer to withhold it if he owes his merchant for supplies. The best thing to do is to "square up" as nearly as possible, and if there is a surplus every man must exercise his own judgment, which as a rule, is better for him than any other man's. We hope when the election is over the skies will brighten.—Charity and Children.

Be Calm in Thy Soul.

We are coming to the time that tries men's souls. As the election approaches men give freer rein to their passions and are apt to speak unadvisedly with their lips. Let us utter a word of caution to our friends. Democrats are not naturally rascals nor Republicans scoundrels. It all depends on the man himself. In all parties there are all sorts of men, but it is foolishness to saddle the sins of members of any party on the party itself. Partisan feeling should not for a moment mar the harmony among neighbors and friends. Above all, the prejudice and passion of the hour should not be allowed to enter our churches. The devil usually has a picnic about election time, for it is his best opportunity to sow discord among the saints. Guard your lips. Keep your reason. Hold your tongue. No candidate for any office is going to help you heal the wounds your indiscretion may inflict. When you are tempted to say a hard word about a brother who differs from you on the issues of the day, remember you are being tempted of the devil and bid him begone.—Charity and Children.

Republican Tariff and Panics.

Ex-Secretary Shaw, a leading Republican, is the authority for the statement that the "stringency of 1907 is generally conceded to have been the severest the world has ever witnessed." And that panic came under the Dingley tariff passed by the Republicans, though in their platform they had solemnly (and falsely) declared that "a Republican tariff has always been followed by business prosperity." The fact that a Republican tariff was followed by the "severest panic the world has known" proves that Republican tariff panics went hand in hand in 1873 and 1907.

Dear Sir—

During the summer you prevailed on me to buy a disability policy in the Maryland Casualty Company. Within a very short time after purchasing same, I found that it was necessary for me to have a slight surgical operation performed on account of which it was necessary for me to remain away from my business for a period of about two weeks.

The check presented me to-day in full settlement of lost time, also covering cost of operation is very much appreciated, and I can highly recommend the Maryland and yourself for the prompt service rendered.

LONDON GAMING DEN

The Way the Police Descend Upon Them in a Raid.

SKILL, CUNNING AND DARING.

Absolute Secrecy is Maintained by the Officials, and the Policemen Are Kept in the Dark Until the Last Moment—Getting into the Club.

The police have recently carried out some sensational raids on big gaming clubs, and it may be interesting to learn how these raids are effected. This is how it is done in London: As soon as the detectives' suspicions have been confirmed they apply to the commissioner of police for a warrant to enter. The warrant authorizes certain officers mentioned by name to enter the club in the name of the king. Ordinary policemen are not permitted to carry out a raid, but the detectives can call upon them for assistance at the critical moment.

Absolute secrecy is enforced right up to the moment of entry. There is no excitement at the station on that day, and the men on duty have no suspicion of what is in the wind. Plans of the house are drawn and carefully studied by the raiding officers, for the doorkeeper of the club is prepared at the slightest alarm to send a warning to his customers, and every vestige of gambling apparatus will mysteriously disappear and the raid fail. A carefully planned ruse, therefore, has to be evolved which will disarm suspicion.

During the day a body of "reserve" policemen will receive a communication from the station that they will be required to parade at a certain hour, and they meet with no idea of what is expected of them. They are drawn up in line, and after names have been called over they are dismissed from the station one by one, with the injunction to be in the immediate neighborhood of a certain street in a couple of hours and not to get near the spot before the prearranged moment.

The first officer to appear on the scene is the one in charge of the raid. He is always disguised and usually looks like a well dressed man about town. He passes the club carelessly, but it is sufficient for him to learn from a confederate inside that gaming has commenced. A policeman then saunters to the corner of the street and stays there as though he were on "point" duty. Then, not till then, is the information of the precise club to be raided secretly conveyed to the attacking force in their hiding places, while the club, unconscious of its impending fate, pursues its gambling.

The first difficulty to surmount is to get past the burly doorkeeper. If this is not successfully done the raid will end in failure. Presently the sound of a drunken song is heard in the distance, and two apparently rough looking men come staggering along. As they near the entrance to the club they begin disputing and soon come to blows. The doorkeeper peeps through the wicket and orders the men away. One of the men rushes at the wicket and challenges the doorkeeper to "come outside like a man" and at the same time shouts out something about the character of the house. The combatants continue fighting, and the officer at the corner comes along and orders them away. The men return, however, to "have it out with the doorkeeper." The noise increases, attracting homeward bound gentlemen in evening dress, who gather round and urge the men on.

The doorkeeper by this time becomes alarmed, for the rowdy crowd will frighten away his clients. Perhaps just at this moment a member of the club arrives and seeks admission. The door is opened with the utmost caution to admit him. Before he has time to fasten it the two officers hastily secure the member and rush upstairs. The two combatants were disguised policemen and the onlookers detectives.

As soon as an entrance into the club has been effected the constable at the corner sounds his whistle, and before the sound has died away the whole neighborhood is alive with police. If the house boasts of a trapdoor on the roof, the flash of lanterns will be seen up there, the men having been concealed among the chimney pots since it was dark. The front door is secured, and the police form a guard around the house, so that escape is impossible.

Meanwhile the scene upstairs is one of the wildest excitement. The gamblers, intent on business, had not noticed the scuffle in the passage, and the first intimation they get of the state of affairs is when the door is thrown open and the officer in charge calls on them to regard themselves as his prisoners. Then they realize their position. The tables are overturned, and card counters and money roll all over the floor as the members endeavor to escape. They make for the street door, but, balked in this direction, hurry to all parts of the house to hide.

The crestfallen members of the club are conveyed to the station, each in the custody of two officers. Then the house is searched for the gaming apparatus. Every inch of the place is examined, for gamblers have remarkable contrivances whereby they can hide their apparatus in the event of being raided. Tops of tables are knocked off, flooring taken up and walls searched for secret cupboards. Yards of chalked string are regarded as prizes, and with these and more apparent proofs the case is ready for the magistrate. The evidence is laid before him, and the proprietor and members are charged and the sentence passed of a heavy fine imposed on the prisoners.—London Tit-Bits.

THE PLOWING SEASON

Ancient Superstitions of the Tillers of the Soil.

SACRIFICES TO THE GODS.

Customs That Were in Vogue Among the Romans of Old—Ceremonies That Are Observed in India and China—Rites of the Siamese Farmers.

The formal inauguration of the plowing season is very ancient and still is observed in some parts of the world.

Among the Romans by the institution of various religious festivals connected with agriculture the seasons came to be regarded with a sort of sacred reverence. Before the old Roman put the plow into the ground he went to the temple of the goddess of earth, Tellus, one of whose priests performed certain propitiatory rites. Virgil in his "Georgics" advises the Roman husbandman to observe the signs on heaven according to the crop he desires to produce. The time to plow for flax, barley and the sacred poppy was when "balance has equalized the hours of day and sleep and halves the world exactly between light and shade. When Taurus ushers in the year with his glided horns and Sirius sits facing the threatening bull is time for beans. For wheat and spelt the Pleiades should hide themselves from your eyes with the dawn. Many have begun before Maria sets, but the desired crop has baffled them with empty ears." But first of all the poet admonishes the farmer to "honor the gods and offer sacrifices to Ceres."

In India there are certain days when it is unlawful to plow. Mother Earth is supposed to sleep six days in every month, and on such days she refuses to be disturbed in her slumber.

In northwest India the cultivator employs a pundit to select an auspicious time for the commencement of plowing. Great secrecy is observed. In some places the time selected is in the night; in others daybreak is the customary time.

The pundit goes to a field, taking a brass drinking vessel and a branch of the sacred mango tree, which is efficacious in frightening away evil spirits that may haunt the field. Prithivi, the broad world, and Sesha Naga, the great snakes which support the world, are supposed to be propitiated and reconciled by this ceremony. The pundit satisfies himself as to the direction in which the great snake is lying, for it occasionally moves about a little to ease itself of the great burden of the broad world which it carries. The pundit then marks off an imaginary line. Five (a lucky number) clods of earth are thrown up, and water is sprinkled in the trench five times with the sacred mango bush to insure productivity. Caution must be exercised lest the charm be broken and prospective fortune imperiled. The farmer must remain secluded during the following day; no salt must be eaten, no money, grain or fire given away.

Among the Karnas before plowing the farmer makes a burnt offering of butter and molasses in his own field and again at the village shrine.

The Chinese begin plowing on the first day of their solar year. Anciently the rites which were celebrated by the Chinese at plowing time were elaborate, but rationalistic sovereigns eliminated one expensive religious rite after another until nothing was left except the imperial act of homage to heaven and earth and agriculture in the ceremonial plowing.

The Siamese observe a rite called Raakua about the middle of May, which is preliminary to the plowing season, and it is not proper for any one to plow until the ceremony is over. The court astrologers determine the time for it. On the day fixed by them the minister of agriculture, who is always a prince or nobleman of high rank, goes with a procession to a piece of ground some distance from the capital. Where the festivities are to take place a new plow, to which a pair of buffaloes are yoked, is in readiness, decorated with flowers and leaves.

The minister guides the plow over the field, closely watched by the spectators, who are especially interested in the length and folds of the silk of his lower garments, because the prosperity of the season and its characteristics, wet or dry, are to be predicted from these as he follows the plow. If the robe rises from his knee there will be disastrous rains. If it falls below his ankles there will be a drought. If the folds reach midway between knee and ankle the season will be prosperous.

After a proper number of furrows have been turned old women strew grain of different kinds in them and bulls are released from the yoke and allowed to feast upon the seeds. The grain which the animals eat most freely will be scarce next harvest, and that which they refuse to take will be abundant.

In Yorkshire it was considered unwise to disturb the earth with plow or spade on Good Friday.—Exchange.

A Shipwreck.
Muggins, gazing intently at a dead dog, in a resigned tone at last said: "Here is another shipwreck."
"Shipwreck! Where?" blurted out Juggins.
"Where, my dear friend?" quoted M. "There is a bark lost forever."
Juggins growled and passed on.—London Fun.

It is impossible for a man attempting many things to do all things well.—Xenophon.

FLORENCE ACKLEY as Dorothy, in "The Runaways."

The Runaways Are Still Running.

"The runaway" is another brilliant example of the type of entertainment that has been made famous by the New York Casino; but none of the other celebrated musical plays that have hailed from this frolicsome temple of fun and song has ever achieved a success in any way compared with that of the Runaways. Most Casino successes hold their sway over the public fancy for a year or two, and then slip gracefully into forgetfulness. But with the Runaways it has been different. Its first Casino engagement lasted for seven long months. Its hold upon New York playgoers so firm, however, that since then, it has been sent back to Broadway again and again, and while other musical comedies were arising and falling the Runaways has held its popularity undiminished. Its success outside of New York has been equally astonishing. It is now in its sixth season on tour, and its audiences everywhere are bigger and more enthusiastic than ever. In the opera house Monday night, 19th.

A Double Headed Bull.
On the occasion of a public reception at Napier, Australia, the school children of the town, after being duly complimented by his excellency from County Tyrone on the hearty manner in which they had rendered the national anthem, were solemnly assured that if they put their shoulders to the wheel they would be sure to reach the top of the tree, upon which a compatriot turned to me and said, "Sure, it was an axletree he meant, bedad!"—London Spectator.

Equally Cutting.
"Your voice," said the commanding officer, "is decidedly rasping."
"Yes, sir," said the subordinate, touching his hat. "I have been out roughing it with a file of soldiers all morning."—Chicago Tribune.
