LET US HAVE CIVIC PRIDE.

And Give More Attention to Beautifying the Town.

Greenville as a corporation has expended considerable money in paving Evans street and Dickinson avenue, and the adjacent property owners have been required to put concrete sidewalks along the same streets as far as the paving extends. This is a great improvement. The aldermen have under consideration an ordinance forbidding spitting upon these concrete sidewalks and requiring property owners to keep them clear of trash. This is right, and every citizen should be interested in giving the town the best appearance possible.

Our people should be imbued with a spirit of civic pride and have in mind the beautifying of the entire town. Dickinson avenue offers a splendid opportunity to begin a work of this kind. Between the paving of the street and the concrete sidewalk there has been left a park strip about three feet wide. If these park strips were all leveled uniformly and sown in grass the effect would be beautiful. An enterprising citizen was discussing this matter with The Reflector, and said he would take pleasure in contributing enough fertilizer for use on these park strips if the citizens along the avenue will agree to sow grass and look after it.

Now if you Dickinson avenue people want to take advantage of this, you can get the name of the gentleman making the offer. Then when Dickinson avenue is beautified let the spirit spread over the entire town.

Business Men Help us Help You.

Merchants and business men generally should co-operate with us in making the special trade edition of The Reflector which will be issued about the first of December, the most beautiful one ever issued in Eastern North Carolina. It will be a good thing if you will help us carry out our plans. It will be a credit to the community. We are trying to get up a handsome cover for it, which will be very expensive and we must have a liberal patronage to offset the expense. We ask you to give us this. But remember you are not giving to charity, you are investing your money in something that brings good returns.

We are getting out this special edition because we think the town and community needs it, we think it is good for you and the entire community, and it is our aim to make it, with your help, so attractive that every one who sees it will read it, from cover to cover. We expect to send them out broadcast.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., Nov. 14, 1903.

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Jackson, of Fairmount, Robeson county, spent some time this week here with relatives. They returned home Thursday. In a few days they will leave for Louisville, Ky., where Mr. Jackson will spend a year at the Seminary.

Miss Belva Dixon returned from the Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro Friday. She had been taking a course in the teachers' training department.

Winterville High School is nearing the two hundred mark. A large number of new pupils are expected after Christmas to attend the spring term.

There have been several professions at the meeting conducted by Dr. Blackwell at the Baptist church. Large crowds are attending and the preaching is excellent.

A good number of our people attended the Teachers' Association at Greenville today.

Miss Palmetta Taylor, of Hookerton, spent this week at Mrs. Clyde Daughtry.

Misses Eunice Jones and Julia Taylor, of Hookerton, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Daughtry.

For Sale—A second hand surry and cart. A good horse and buggy. Two side Harrows.

Captain Swift Galloway Dead.

Kinston, N. C., Nov. 13.—A phone message tonight from Snow Hill announces the death at that place of Captain Swift Galloway late this afternoon. He had been in poor health for several months and death was not unexpected.

He was about 70 years of age and is survived by two children and several grandchildren.

Captain Galloway was one of the most prominent figures in Eastern North Carolina.

He was of superb mental attainments and was endeared to all who knew him.

He served several terms as solicitor of his judicial district, was a member of the last legislature from Greene county and has occupied many positions of trust.

At the Churches Tomorrow.

Episcopal—Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a. m. No preaching service.

Free Will Baptist—Preaching at 11 a. m. 7:15 p. m. by Elder Windham.

Christian—Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:15 p. m.

Baptist—Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. Baraca service at 11 a. m. with address by Prof. C. W. Wilson, of Scotland Neck. Service also at 7:15 p. m.

Methodist—Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. The Sunday school rooms will be heated. But owing to our inability to heat the main auditorium the morning and evening services will be held in the Presbyterian church. Rev. M. T. Plyler will preach.

Let there be a full attendance of the Sunday school at the Methodist church.

A HOME DAY.

The Sabbath Should be a Day of Love and Never a Day of Labor.

God intended that there should be one day each week as an especial day for the culture of home duties. A day when the father would be home from work, and the children home from school, and the mother have less household care, when all could put on their best clothes, sing their sweetest songs, and enjoy a day of love. The Sabbath should never be made a day of labor in the home. The work of each home should be so arranged that it can be done almost entirely in six days and evenly as possible in each day. "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work."

The baking and cooking can be done on Saturday, and Sunday can be made almost entirely a day of rest by warming over the food prepared before. We fear many good housewives make a serious mistake in giving too much time to Sunday cooking. Others are perhaps equally in error by overworking on Saturday so that they cannot properly rest or enjoy the Sabbath day. Parents and children ought to be more to each other on that day than on any other. A day of uplift and delight it ought to be made in every home.—Ex.

Gov. Folk on the Mail Order Buyer.

"I do not believe in the mail order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and make his money in it is good enough for him to spend his money in. Whenever you find a man that is not succeeding in business you will generally find that it is because his heart is not in that business. Whenever you find a town that is not progressive, it is generally because the citizens of that town make it no worse than they suffer it to become. Look at the stores and the newspapers of the town and you can tell the kind of people that live in that town.

"A newspaper filled with advertisements of the local merchants indicates a progressive and prosperous community."

Wake Forest Glee Club.

You will take no chances by attending the entertainment to be given by the Wake Forest Glee Club and Orchestra in the opera house, next Wednesday night, but can go with the assurance of being well entertained. The club is composed of twenty-four musicians, every one of them trained for his part of the program. They should have a large audience.

With Our Colored People.

Tomorrow at the A. M. E. Zion church our special conference rally will begin at 11 a. m. and at 3 p. m. We hope to have a large congregation. Rt. Rev. Alexander Walters, A. M. D. D., Bishop of the 3rd Episcopal district of the A. M. E. Zion church, will preach at night. Our good white friends are kindly invited to be present, and to occupy the pews in the left hand, amen corner. The bishop is indeed a most eloquent speaker, a profound preacher and orator, as well as a safe leader of men in church and in State. We do not hesitate to recommend the bishop as one of the best leaders of the colored race. Good music will be rendered by our choir and others. It is already a conceded fact that colored people can sing.

If it is so that you just cannot come, why not send something out of the third book, namely the pocket book, to help the pastor in this rally. God will bless you.
R. Henry Sawyer, Jr., Pastor.

Oyster Roast at Light Plant.

The young men gave an Oyster Roast at the electric light plant Friday evening in honor of Miss Gladys Mitchel of Kinston. Those present were: Misses Mitchel, Irma Cobb, Glenn and Helen Forbes, Mary James, Mary Higgs and Woodard. Messrs. Cary Warren, Harry Skinner Jr., Sim Chapman, Frank Beaton, Frank Wilson, Burney Warren, J. Y. Monk, Chaperonez, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hall.

Teachers' Meeting.

Considering the very bad weather, there was a remarkably large attendance at the meeting of the county Teachers' Association, and the program was very interesting. The address of Congressman John H. Small on "Community Building" was indeed a treat to all present. Owing to the lateness of the hour of adjournment we have to wait until Monday to give a fuller report of the meeting.

Universalist Services.

The Rev. W. H. McGlouffin, D. D., general superintendent of the Universalist church in the United States and Canada, will preach in the Delphia Moye chapel on Sunday, the 15th inst., at 11 o'clock a. m. The public specially invited. No services at night.
11 14

Baraca Day.

The Baraca class of Memorial Baptist Sunday school will observe next Sunday as Baraca day. Prof. C. W. Wilson, of Scotland Neck, will deliver the address. There will be an interesting program for the exercises.

Champ Clark says tariff reform by the Republicans is a burlesque game. And he is not far from right.

If the example of a Virginia town, that has passed a law placing a fine of $10 on every boy under sixteen years of age caught smoking a cigarette, should be followed by all towns, fewer boys would be indulging in this injurious practice.

Mr. Business Man, go to the Chamber of Commerce meeting in the mayor's office, Monday night, with something on your mind to suggest for the good of Greenville. This meeting can be a very profitable one to the town if the business men will decide to make it such. Lay aside your individual work for one evening and devote an hour or two to the welfare of your community.

The Risk in Mercantile Advertising.

"How can Swift, Cash and Getthere afford to waste so much money in advertising?" How many slow and sleepy merchants have occasionally waked up and made the above exclamation about a nearby merchant.

The complaint of the merchant who loses by advertising, is as old as time. It is the merchant who does not advertise, that looks upon advertising as a fearful money expenditure, and is surprised that the merchant who does advertise, makes it a success.

"The other fellow" is not worrying about the "cost" of his advertising, for the simple reason that he doesn't have to pay it. The competitor who cannot "afford" to advertise really, in effect, pays the bills of the man who can "afford" it. He pays them in the loss of business caused by his failure to advertise. The business he ought to have—his "share" large part, to the competitor who seeks it, who can afford to advertise for it. The profits on the trade drawn away from the timid advertiser by the aggressive one pays the latter's advertising bills—and leaves a comfortable surplus.

Advertising has long since passed as a business risk. It is everywhere, among live merchants, recognized as a part of the legitimate business expenses. More than this, it has become an established fact that only through advertising can there be mercantile or any success that calls for the public attention. The risk is in not advertising, if trade success is to be won.—New Bern Journal.

The Australian Ballot System.

The Charlotte Chronicle and the Lenoir Topic are two more North Carolina papers that favor the adoption of the Australian ballot system, for as the latter

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggist, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

says in its advocacy it favors the adoption of this or some other system "whereby a man's intelligence will be brought into play and he will be permitted to select his ticket without interference." Our contemporary might also add "and whereby fine chances will also be obviated for the buying of a certain class of voters." We have long favored such a system, especially with reference to Wilmington, because a system that permits workers to crowd the polls and allows a worker to accompany a man to the ballot box is not productive of good results. A system should be had that keeps all workers at the polls at a distance and that provides a place whereby the voter may go into seclusion, as it were, and prepare his ballot. In the first place, a voter is entitled to prepare and cast his ballot without being subjected either to observation of his ballot or comment upon how he casts it, and, in the second place, the opportunity offered for the buying of votes would be decidedly slim, as no man will buy a vote unless he can see the voter cast the ballot in accordance with the purchase, for a man who would sell his vote would not hesitate to play a partner in crime false at the last minute, especially when there would be no chance of discovery.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Laying for Suckers.

An enterprising Mexican has started a cotton tree farm in Southwestern Texas. He imported some of the trees from Mexico two years ago and a report of them says: "The trees are bearing this year for the first time. They greatly resemble the ordinary pear tree, both as to shape and to height, and are fully 12 feet tall. The yield is much heavier in proportion to the size of the bush than on the ordinary cotton plant, the staple is of better quality, and the fact that it is only necessary to replant them once in a score of years is a great saving of labor. The Mexican in charge of the trees has planted several acres and is increasing the acreage each year." The next thing we will hear of this scheme is that the wily Mexican has landed his suckers—has formed his joint stock company, pocketed the cash and disappeared, leaving his dupes in possession of a grove of trees that will produce about as much cotton and of as good a quality as so many okra bushes.—Charlotte Chronicle.

ANCIENT PICTURE THIEVES.

Some Who Were Caught and Executed—A Case of Substitution.

In olden days, indeed until the end of the Napoleonic era, art robberies on a grand scale were the privilege of the mighty of this earth and the adjunct of victorious warfare. This was so in the days of ancient Rome, when shiploads of marbles and bronzes were transported from Greek to Italian soil, and it was again when the first Napoleon pillaged the collections and churches of Italy and Spain. Such action, however, was considered the conqueror's right and does not come within the scope of this article, which is to deal with petty theft and criminal appropriation of works of art.

The first deed of this nature of which I have been able to trace the record occurred so far back as 1601, when two heads were cut out of Wenceslaus Koberger's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" in Antwerp cathedral. The fragment is said to be even now in an English private collection. But the thieves were caught and speedily put to death.

Other cases are on record of art thefts committed in the dim past, but in most cases they amount to a bare statement that such and such a picture or object disappeared at such and such a date and has never been heard of since. These records lack the flavor of romance which clings to those other cases in which the peregrinations of the thieves and of the stolen property can be followed as in that of the famous Murillo at Seville cathedral, representing "The Appearance of the Infant Jesus to St. Anthony."

The Duke of Wellington is said to have been so struck by the beauty of this masterpiece—a canvas of imposing size—that he offered to cover the whole surface with gold pieces if the chapter would sell it to him. However, the chapter refused, and in November, 1874, the figure of St. Anthony was cut out of the picture by unknown hands, and the stolen fragment found its way to America.

There is a distinct element of humor in the circumstances that attended the theft of a portrait by Paris Bordone a good many years ago from the house of a wealthy collector in Vienna, who generally allowed the public access to his gallery when he was away from town. The picture was one day cut out of its frame and carried off. A reward of £120 was immediately offered for its recovery, and descriptions of the stolen picture were sent to the diplomatic representatives of Austria abroad.

The result was that a stranger called at the collector's house and arranged to return the picture against payment of the promised reward if no further questions were asked. His terms were accepted, and on his producing the painting, which fitted exactly into the opening that had been cut out of the original canvas, the stranger was paid his promised reward. It was only some time afterward, when one of the collector's friends expressed doubt as to the authenticity of the Bordone, that the picture was found out to be a copy of the stolen masterpiece.—London Magazine.

A Youthful Experiment.

Little Clara, aged three, was always asking for dried apples. Her mother, fearing this diet might lead to harm, told her of a boy who had eaten dried apples which swelled in his stomach and caused his death. Clara was much impressed, but the temptation was strong, and one day, when she had been absent for a time, the piping voice called triumphantly from the room where the strings of apples hung. "Muvver, I ain't dead yet!"—Delineator.

THE MISSISSIPPI.

An Explanation of How Water Can Run Uphill.

Can water run uphill? It would be a legitimate answer to this question perhaps to cite the flow of water through a siphon, its capillary action as in a lamp wick or its upward course when drunk by an animal. The inquiry should be made more explicit. Can a river in its natural channel, open to the air, run uphill? Impossible as this seems, it is an established fact. In truth, every river flowing toward the equator for a sufficient distance runs uphill.

The mouth of the Mississippi is three miles higher than its source—that is, Minnesota, where the Mississippi rises, is three miles nearer the center of the earth than is the gulf of Mexico. In the reason for this difference in level will be found the explanation of the river's uphill flow.

As any schoolboy will tell us, the earth is a ball flattened at the poles. This flattening, while comparatively insignificant, is still sufficient to make the polar diameter twenty-eight miles shorter than the equatorial diameter. In other words, the north and the south pole are fourteen miles nearer the earth's center than is the equator.

Now, the distance from the north pole to the equator, measured along the earth's surface, is 6,000 miles, and the distance from the source to the mouth of the Mississippi is about 1,500 miles, or one-fourth of 6,000. If, therefore, there is a difference in level of fourteen miles between the north pole and the equator there will be a difference in level between the source of the Mississippi and its mouth of one-fourth of fourteen miles, or three and one-half miles.

But the territory watered by the Mississippi has been elevated somewhat by the action of volcanic or similar forces, and the actual excess in height of the river's mouth is reduced to three miles.

How is it possible for the river thus to run uphill?

When, long ago, the sun had thrown the earth from its surface like a drop of water from a swiftly turning wheel, our globe became a huge ball of molten rock, itself swiftly revolving in space. As it gradually cooled it shrank, and by shrinking its velocity increased, just as a stone tied to a string and twirled about a boy's finger revolves more rapidly as the string winds about the finger.

When the centrifugal force had so increased as to exceed gravitation a huge mass shot off from the earth's equator and became the moon. Still the centrifugal force retained ample power to expand the equator and to retain it in this form until cold and rigid.

Nor has this force yet abated. As it drew toward the equator the earth's material when plastic, it still continues to attract in the same direction all the fluids on the earth's surface. In this way gravitation is partially overcome, and the Mississippi river flows steadily up its three mile hill to the Mexican gulf.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Narrow "Street."

The English town of Great Yarmouth contains a street that well may be considered the narrowest built up street in the world. This thoroughfare is known as Klitty Witches row, and measurement gives its greatest width as fifty-six inches. The entrance would seriously inconvenience a stout person, as twenty-nine inches is all that is spared from wall to wall. The town contains many such streets as Klitty Witches.—Westminster Gazette.

SAM WELLER.

Where Dickens Got the Idea of This Quaint Character.

There were Wellerisms before Weller. It may be noted, by the way, that Samuel's name was no invention. The name of Weller is familiar to genealogical students as that of families in Kent, Surrey and elsewhere in the south of England. In the time of Edward III. a certain Hugh le Veller was living at Henley-on-Thames, so perhaps Mr. Weller, Sr., when from the gallery of Mr. Justice Stareleigh's court he encouraged his son to "spell it with a we" was not so very far wrong.

There can be but little doubt that just as Mrs. Frances Sheridan's Mrs. Tryfort, with recollections of Dogberry and his like, suggested to Sheridan the creation of Mrs. Malaprop, so Dickens drew the idea of Sam Weller's peculiar way of illustrating his talk by apt comparison and felicitous allusion from a character in a farce by Samuel Beazley, which was popular before "Pickwick" was thought of. This was pointed out in detail more than a quarter of a century ago by the late Mr. E. L. Blanchard, although many lovers of Dickens seem to be still unaware of the existence of this prototype of Weller. Both Beazley, who was by profession an architect, and his dramatic works are unknown to the present generation. But in the early decades of the last century his plays were popular, especially a musical farce called "Five Hours at Brighton; or, The Boarding House," produced at the old Lyceum theater in 1811. A favorite character in this farce was Mr. Simon Spatterdash, a militiaman. Copies of the play are very rare, but Mr. Blanchard gave a number of examples of Mr. Spatterdash's sayings, of which we quote one or two: "Come on, as the man said to his tight boot;" "I'm down upon you, as the extinguisher said to the rushlight;" "Where shall we fly?" as the bullet said to the trigger;" "I'm all over in a perspiration, as the mutton chop said to the gridiron;" "Let every one take care of themselves, as the donkey observed when dancing among the chickens," and so on.

An actor named Samuel Vale was identified with the part of Simon Spatterdash and in private life was in the habit of belarding his talk with comparisons of the Spatterdash brand, comparisons which flowed with fatal facility from his lips. Sam Vale's "latest" passed from mouth to mouth, and both the name of the actor and the farce with which he was associated must have been familiar to Dickens. There can hardly be any reasonable doubt that the name of Sam Vale suggested that of Sam Weller, just as his trick of talk, derived from the militiaman of Beazley's farce, suggested Samuel's amusing method of speech.—London Globe.

A Witty Professor.

Professor Jebb, the eminent Grecian scholar, once held the Greek professorship in Glasgow university. By the arrangement of class rooms Professor Jebb's Greek room was immediately beneath the class room for rhetoric, conducted by Professor Veitch. These rhetoric classes attracted 200 students, who frequently indulged in loud applause at the efforts of their professor. In one of these outbursts a section of plaster from the ceiling of the Greek room fell on the head of Dr. Jebb. Looking up, he exclaimed, "I fear my premises will not support Professor Veitch's conclusions!"

"Faded Oysters."

"Faded oysters," said a dealer, "are freshened up by dipping them into what in the trade is known as the 'tank,' which is filled with a salty mixture which freshens them slightly. They are then placed on shells again and put into the window. A running stream of water has a marvelous effect upon oysters, fattening them to almost three times their size in a few days. Thin, starving bivalves which left alone would never be sold can be made to look quite large by this process. Oysters can also be improved by being kept in a sandy floored cellar. A blanket is laid over them, and this is daily sprinkled with sea water and oatmeal. The fish will live for a long time this way in cool weather and grow nice and corpulent. The flavor is also greatly improved."—London Tit-Bits.

Only a Secondary Matter.

"Yes," said the affable theatrical manager, "our next production is to be something really wonderful in the way of comic opera."

"Got something new?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes, indeed. I have engaged Drillem Daily, the famous stage manager, to devise the evolutions and groupings of the chorus. I have retained Cuttan Fittem, the celebrated costumer, to plan and prepare the garments worn by the principals and the chorus, and I have engaged Redden Yaller, the renowned scenic artist, to execute the stage settings. Can you beat that?"

"But who are to write the music and the libretto?"

"Pooh! Haven't had time to think about that yet."

Testing Water.

To ascertain if water is free from organic pollution place a lump of sugar in a bottle nearly full and cork it up, and if after thus excluding the air and keeping the bottle in the light for two or three days no milky cloud is apparent, but the water remains clear, it may be considered free from the phosphates with which sewage water is impregnated.—Engineering News.

Literary Taste.

"I have written a book that everybody ought to read," said the author.

"I am afraid it won't do," answered the publisher. "What the public seems to want now is a book that nobody ought to read."—Washington Star.
