TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION SAT.

Large Attendance—Able Address by Congressman Small.

Reported for Reflector:

Despite the inclement weather, there was a large crowd of teachers present at the association Saturday.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. M. T. Plyler in the absence of Rev. Mr. Huske, who was away.

Miss Lucy Manning acted as secretary protem, as Miss Ada Tyson, the secretary, was detained at home on account of sickness in her home.

The regular program was taken up, the first topic, "The importance of Literature in our schools," was ably discussed by Supt. E. M. Rollins, of Farmville. He said that children must be taught literature in order that it may become a part of their lives; that in order for them to appreciate life in its fullness, they must be brought in touch with the master minds. Our children become patriotic by reading Webster and the works of the other great statesmen, not by following brass bands or cheering the flag as it passes.

The next topic "High School English" was discussed Supt. W. H. Cale, of Grifton. He laid special stress on thoroughness in the lower grades so that the pupils may be able to appreciate and rightly interpret the literature of the higher grades.

Miss Nannie Richardson, of Ayden, read a most excellent paper on "Language in the fourth, fifth and six grades."

By this time Congressman Jno. H. Small, of Washington, N. C. had arrived. He was introduced by Prof. G. E. Lineberry, who referred to him as one of the ablest congressmen in North Carolina. Prof. Lineberry also spoke of the deep interest he had shown in the educational advancement of his district.

The subject of Mr. Small's able address was, "Community Building." He spoke first of the essentials in the upbuilding of an urban community: (1) good water, (2) good sewerage, (3) good lights, (4) good hospital service. The essentials in the rural community were (1) good educational facilities so that all the children may be educated, (2) good highways, (3) good mail facilities, (4) laws regulating child labor in factory sections. He enjoined it upon the teachers to go out and help bring these things about, because they would be looked up to as the leaders in their respective communities. This was practical indeed, and we hope that we shall have the pleasure of hearing Mr. Small again.

The association has made an excellent beginning for another fine year's work.

Bids For Building.

Sealed bids will be received until 12 o'clock, noon, November 23rd, by the Town of Greenville for the erection of a brick building for executive offices and Fire Department, in accordance with the plans and specifications now in the office of E. B. Higgs, chairman building committee.

The committee reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
E. B. Higgs, Chairman.

VISIT OF COLORED BISHOP.

York Temple Has Interesting Service Sunday Night.

The visit on Sunday of Bishop Alexander Walters to the A. M. E. Zion church here, was an occasion of much importance and interest to the colored people of the community. The bishop preached in York Temple Sunday night. Rev. R. Henry Sawyer, Jr., pastor of the church, had arranged an extensive program for this service and can well feel a pride in the success with which it was carried out. He had invited white people also to attend, and several of them did so and felt more than repaid after the service was over.

Bishop Walters preached an excellent sermon that showed he is a man of culture and intellect. He has traveled extensively throughout the world and is an interesting speaker. Bishop Walters has been assigned to the Southern district which includes North Carolina, and is now making his way to New Bern where the annual conference of his church for this State will soon be held.

Another enjoyable part of the service Sunday night was the good singing. There were full choir choruses, solos and male quartette selections that were delightful to listen to. Those people are natural singers and know how to make music that is worth while.

The colored people know how to take collection in church, too. They take their time in this part of the service, having the congregation walk up to the front and lay their offering on the table where stewards receive and count it as it comes. The contributions of the members is kept separate from what the general congregation gives, and occasionally one of the stewards will call out which is ahead, and this is followed by another rally of small coins from those behind. They can learn their white friends lessons when it comes to taking a collection.

Baraca Day.

The Baraca class of Memorial Baptist Sunday school observed Sunday as Baraca day with an interesting service in the church at 11 o'clock, led by Mr. J. B. Little, teacher of the class. Prof. C. W. Wilson, of Scotland Neck, delivered an address that was much enjoyed. He spoke with interest of the origin and growth of the Baraca work and the good it was doing in helping young men. He also referred to the next national Baraca convention to be held in Asheville in June, 1909, and expressed the hope that Eastern North Carolina be well represented there. The Baraca movement is undenominational, but is young men working for young men to help them and lead them to Christ.

We are giving a scholar's companion or pencil box with each pair of Children's shoes.

CHRISTMAS GIFT.

Nation's Best Gift Would be a Square Deal to Every Child

What gift would I give to this country for its benefit and future welfare as a Christmas gift, were it in my power? says Mrs. Frederic Schoff, president of the National Congress of Mothers, in a symposium, "If I were a National Santa Claus," in the December Delineator;—I would make it possible for every child to have a square deal all the time, every day, from infancy to manhood, in every home and in every kind of community.

How could this be done? The first requisite would be to provide the opportunity for every father and mother to learn more of what they owe their children; to appreciate and understand the physical and spiritual laws which must be followed if children are to come up to the highest possibilities of the race. I would prevent the sacrifice of infants' lives by providing clear, accurate instruction for every new mother in the physical requirements of babies. I would prevent the later sacrifice of health in schools and factories, by the education of every parent as to the permanent injury inflicted by overtaxing the organs which are yet in process of development. I would prevent juvenile crime by education of parents and the community in the provision of all that goes to develop the good qualities that exist in every child. Juvenile crime is a reflection on the methods and care given to children. It is preventable. Parental ignorance, crowded tenements, physical degeneracy and lack of space for play are contributing causes. The welfare of the children exceeds all other matters in its importance to the future welfare of the country. It is of national interest.

My gift to the country would be an endowment as large as is necessary to establish and conduct the national university for the welfare of the child with branches everywhere. The National Congress of Mothers has the work already under way. The help is eagerly sought to. It needs to be placed on a permanent basis, with means to do the work in education for which, as yet no adequate provision has been made.

3,764 Persons Killed in Past Year.

There were 3,764 persons killed and 68,989 injured in railroad casualties in the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30th, last, according to an announcement of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This is a decrease of 1,236 in the number killed and 3,298 in injured, as compared with the previous year.

In the three months ended June 30th, there were 591 killed and 13,098 injured, a decrease of 1,752 from the preceding quarter. The collisions during the quarter numbered 820 and derailments 1310, of which 130 collisions and 198 derailments affected passenger trains.

Prices for the Wake Forest College Glee Club and Orchestra concert Wednesday night will be 25, 35 and 50c. Seats will go on sale Tuesday at Reflector Book Store.

BAZAAR IN DECEMBER.

To be Held by Ladies of Methodist Church.

The Ladies Aid Society of Jarvis Memorial M. E. church, of which Mrs. F. G. James is president and Mrs. T. A. Person, Mrs. H. L. Carr and Mrs. Chas. Laughinghouse are the executive committee, are making extensive preparation for a bazaar to be held on Dec. 8th. They have sent out a very pretty invitation which reads as follows:

Won't you come to our Bazaar, The date is the 8th of December We'll give you a welcome both cordial and warm, And a choice of good things, remember.

We've a fancy booth, it will please you, we know, With it's contents so dainty and fine, We've dolls for the little folks and all kinds of gifts, That will just suit the Santa Claus time.

We've beautiful things and useful ones, too; Of refreshments, a tempting display, Turkey, salads and oysters, and sweets of kinds 'Twill pay you to lunch there each day.

We ask of your friends, both near and afar, To help us in this undertaking; Just send us some money, or if you prefer An article of your own making.

We'll thank you sincerely for little or much That you feel you can willingly give. For we know you'll remember this oft quoted text, 'Tis more blessed to give than receive."

Date Changed.

The time for holding the bazaar at Smith's school house for the betterment of the building and grounds, mentioned recently by our Rochdale correspondent, has been changed to Thursday night, Nov. 19th. It is going to be an interesting occasion.

MONDAY, NOV. 16, 1908.

Even if Atlanta is a dry town the mayor-elect seems to know how to get it.

Anna Gould seems to tire quickly of her husbands. This soon she is seeking to get her second divorce.

Every man put his shoulder to the wheel and help make Greenville roll forward. This is no time for drones and drawbacks.

While the Republicans seem to have all the votes they need to keep them in business, we are unable to see why they are so anxious to break the solid South. If everything was all one way it would not be long before there was a split coming.

It has been said of the merchants of Greenville that they did not take much interest in matters looking to the development of the town. They can rebut this charge by being present at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the mayor's office tonight and showing their interest.

The Greensboro Industrial News does not seem to have found the flood of prosperity that was heralded as following in the wake of Taft's election, that paper having filed a petition in bankruptcy and been placed in the hands of a receiver. Announcement is made that publication of the paper will be continued for the present. It looks like there are enough Republicans in North Carolina to keep one daily paper going, especially when it has the administration and all Federal office holders in the State to draw on.

DEMONSTRATION FARM WORK.

The object of the farmers cooperative-demonstration work is to place an object lesson in the various communities to illustrate the best methods of producing the standard farm crops and to secure such active participation in the work as will prove that the average farmer can do better work and will do it if properly approached.

These demonstration farms show that better and larger crops can be raised on the average farm and at a vastly greater net profit per acre. Incidentally they are assigned to prove that there is no necessity for the present wide spread deterioration of the farms and the comparative poverty of many of our farmers. Like all great reforms this work cannot be done for the people to be benefitted, but it must be done by them to be effective. The sick man is the one who should take the medicine if he is to be cured. It will do him no good for his neighbor to take it for him.

As a rule from 50 to 100 demonstration farms are established throughout a county. A good farmer is selected to locate these farms and supervise the work during the season. The methods followed on these farms are such as are advocated by the depart-

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hell's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggist, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

ment. The methods did not all originate at Washington, however, but are the methods already in use by the most successful farmers throughout the country. Any farmer desiring to take up the work can do so by communicating with county agents.

Records kept of this work for five years in the South show that the men who are using the methods have been greatly benefitted by them. They are making from 10 to 50 per cent and occasionally 100 per cent more than formerly and without much increase in the cost of production. There are 3,000 farmers using the methods this year. This number will probably be doubled next season.

One of the most important things advocated is deep fall breaking of the soil, especially where there is some clay underneath. This should be done before the clay gets wet and in such a manner that the sub-soil will not be thrown out on top. We do not want the soil turned bottomsides upwards until it has gone through a weathering process for two or three years, by which time it will have become soil and the plant food in it will have become available. The depth of plowing should be six or eight inches, or ten inches if possible. Other instructions will follow in the work from time to time.

Mr. J. F. Evans, whose post-office address is R. F. D. No. 1 Greenville, is the agent of this work in Pitt county, and will be glad to get in touch with any farmers who desire to co-operate with it.

The Carolina-Virginia game is drawing near. Two weeks from today the student bodies of the two universities will take the Virginia capital by storm and fifteen thousand sons of the Old North State and the Old Dominion will gather at the Broad Street Park to witness the great game of the South. Apropos of this the Charlotte Observer says:

"It occasionally happens there are stronger and better marched teams of the South vying with each other but nothing can take the place of the consideration of ancient rivalry, of the double-state-wide interest, of the traditions and fame of the contesting Universities, and of the fifteen thousand cheering spectators."

The Carolina-Virginia game is to the South what the Yale-Harvard game is to the North. It is not always the game that decides, (though it often has decided) the Southern champion-

THE CURIOUS SNAIL.

Strange Facts About the Peculiar Cold Blooded Animal.

If one wishes to examine a snail he should place the specimen on a piece of glass. The snail is a cold blooded animal, and contact with a warm hand probably induces in him the feeling which would result in us from placing the hand or body on top of the kitchen range. The coolness of the glass will be agreeable to his snailship, and he will travel peaceably along, rapidly expanding and contracting his broad, suckerlike feet.

His horns are protracted in an inquiring manner, and if a finger is placed in front of him he will probably walk on until these feelers come in contact with it. Then the tentacles are withdrawn and waved about in the effort to see the obstruction more clearly, for each feeler contains at its end a small, imperfect, but still discernible, eye, which is capable of distinguishing between light and darkness.

A snail's manner of withdrawing his horns is very curious. He does not pull them back bodily into their receptacle, but turns them inside out, just as one turns the fingers of a glove in drawing it off backward.

The funny little creature has a sense of smell and also a fairly well developed ear, which lies close to the roots of his horns. His breathing apparatus is of the simplest description. Looking carefully at his right side, one may see that a distinct hole occasionally appears there, remains open a few moments and then closes again. This is simply a cavity in the snail's body, into which he allows a certain quantity of air to enter "whenever he thinks of it," as one might say.

When air has thus found its way into his interior he keeps it there until its oxygen is exhausted by his vital processes. What remains, laden with carbonic acid, is allowed to escape by reopening the little trapdoor, and the receptacle is filled by another supply of fresh air.

The snail's mouth is armed with a sawlike tongue, which resembles a long, narrow ribbon, coiled up in such a manner that only a part of it comes into use at once. Distributed over the surface of this ribbon are tiny teeth, one animal sometimes having as many as 30,000.

As one set of teeth becomes worn away by leaf cutting another section of ribbon is uncoiled, and the teeth which before were wrapped up at the back of the mouth come forward to take their turn in pressing the food against the horny upper surface of the mouth and thus cutting it in clean incisions.

The shell of the snail is a horny covering that serves to protect him against his numerous foes. Slugs are simply snails that live a retired life and consequently need no covering at all. The snail's shell is built up from lime in the plants on which it feeds, and the creatures are never found on soil which produces no lime.—Philadelphia Record.

Letting Him Off Easy.

"Before I agree to undertake your defense," said the eminent criminal lawyer who had been called in, "you will have to be perfectly frank with me and tell me the whole truth. Did you embezzle the $20,000 you are accused of having taken?"

"Yes, sir," replied the accused man. "I'll not attempt to conceal the fact from you. I stole every penny of it."

"How much of it have you left?"

"It's all gone but about £10."

"Young man," said the eminent lawyer, putting on his gloves, "you'd better plead guilty and throw yourself on the mercy of the court."

"I'll do it if you say so, sir. What are you going to charge me for the advice?"

"Ten pounds."—London King.

Definite at Least.

A calm, blue eyed, self possessed young lady in a village down east received a long call from a spinster, who, after prolonging her call beyond the young lady's endurance, came to the main question that had brought her thither.

"I've been asked a good many times if you were engaged to Dr. C. Now, if they ask me again what will I tell them I think?"

"Tell them," answered the young lady, fixing her calm blue eyes in unblinking steadiness on the inquisitive features of the questioner, "tell them that you think you don't know and you are sure that it is none of your business."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Aesop In "Little Italy."

A schoolteacher in the Italian quarter of an American city told her children the story of the fox and the grapes. Tony was especially delighted with the story and eagerly sought his chum, Joe, who was in another class. By good luck the teacher overheard Tony's version.

In his excited, broken English he told the fable much as it is written until he came to the end. This was his rendering of the climax:

"De olda fox he say: 'Da grape no good anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta de banan!'"

Candid!

Excited Individual — See here, Mr. Bangs, you're a scoundrel of the first water! When I bought that horse I thought I was getting a good, sound animal, but he's spavined and blind and got the staggers. Now I want to know what you're going to do about it?

Bangs—Something ought to be done, that's a fact.

Excited Individual — Well, I should say there ought!

Bangs — Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinary surgeon. It's a shame to allow the horse to suffer in that way.

No Crest For Him.

Having just come into a large fortune, it was necessary that he should launch out in style. His first visit was to a fashionable tailor, to whom he mentioned that he was sending around his coachman to be measured for a suit of livery. A keen man of business, Mr. Snips scented a good customer, who might not be averse to flattery.

"Don't you think, sir," he said insinuatingly, "that it would be nice to have your crest stamped on your coachman's buttons? It's quite the correct thing."

"Crest!" roared the indignant Croesus. "What do you think my servants want with crests? D'ya take us for a family of coconuts?"

MISGUIDED GENIUS.

A Sculptor Who Devoted Himself to Producing Fake Antiques.

One of the most astonishing examples of genius devoting itself to forgery was that of the Italian Bastianini. Born in 1830 in the midst of abject poverty, he had, properly speaking, no systematic education, either literary or artistic. But he had real genius.

An antiquarian of the name of Freppa employed him for 40 cents per day to produce "antiques" which might be sold at a good profit. So this became Bastianini's life work—the production of forgeries.

One of his most celebrated works is the bust of Savonarola. Persuaded that here was a real fifteenth century bust, two public spirited gentlemen collected $3,000 and purchased it from Freppa to prevent its sale and exportation.

One critic, Dupre, declared that he must assign it to Michelangelo for its force and to Robbia for the exquisiteness of its treatment, regarding it as a wonderfully beautiful work of art.

Sir Frederick Leighton, the noted English painter, having received a photograph, placed it, "like a sacred image, at the head of his bed." It is said that the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia and Lipart seriously thought of building a temple to house this wonderful bit of art.

But, notwithstanding the plaudits of those who "knew," the bust was a fake. Rumors having become current that the piece of terra cotta was not what it purported to be, one of the purchasers abruptly demanded of Bastianini one day at his workshop whether he was the creator of the bust. And he admitted that he was.

But this was not the only great "success" of Bastianini. A terra cotta bust of Benevieni, a sixteenth century poet of Florence, was regarded as a contemporary work of art and purchased by the Louvre for $2,600 and installed in a room containing work of Michelangelo himself.—Scientific American.

The Logical Place.

It was closing time at the town library. Old Mr. Duke, who had filled the post of librarian for years, took down his coat and hat and, with the assistance of his little daughter, got them safely on. Together they started for the door. It was raining hard.

"Wait a moment, child," said her father and went back into the building. The girl remained obediently.

Five minutes passed. Then ten. She pushed open the door and walked in. Her father was bent over one of the card catalogues.

"What are you looking for, father?" she inquired.

He put the drawer back, suddenly abashed.

"I'm getting old, Margaret," he said. "I couldn't find my umbrella, and I was searching for it under U in the lists."

A Trunkless Body.

An explorer lately returned from his travels was relating his adventures. "I peered," said he, "into the thicket, and there before me lay a trunkless body." "Nonsense," remarked an interfering critic. "Who ever heard of a trunkless body?" "My friend," replied the traveler quietly, "the body was that of an elephant." He then resumed his story.—London Globe.

Not Like His Parent.

"Do you think Mr. Skinnum's baby will take after its father?"

"Not at all. The other day they persuaded it to cough up a nickel it had swallowed."—Exchange.

Prompt.

Two young men once wrote a joint humorous production—at least they thought it was humorous—and sent it to Life. They did not see each other for twenty-four hours.

When they met joint author No. 1 remarked to joint author No. 2:

"Since writing that thing I've thought of some awfully funny twists that we might have put in it. Too bad we sent it away so hurriedly. I should have liked to make certain changes and additions."

With a sardonic grin joint author No. 2 put his hand in his pocket, produced an envelope addressed to himself and drew therefrom the manuscript of the joint production.

"Here it is," he said. "It has just come back. Make all the changes you want."—New York Times.

How He Scared Sister.

A Gaylord street little girl, eight years of age, ran to her mother crying one afternoon.

"Willie is bad," she said between sobs.

Willie, her ten-year-old brother, was called "on the carpet." "What did you do, Willie?" asked his mother.

"Scared her with a Hemoracampa leucostigma," replied Willie.

"A what?"

"A Hemoracampa leucostigma."

"What's that?"

Willie held out his hand. "This is one," he said.

It was a caterpillar. Willie had found the scientific name for it—how his mother does not know.—Denver Post.

An Apt Comparison.

His majesty's inspector was testing the class in general knowledge.

"Now, lads," he said gravely, "your teacher, I expect, has explained to you the meanings of most of the mottoes which apply to the months of the year. Thus, 'If February gives much snow, a fine summer it doth foreshow,' and 'In January if sun appear, March and April pay full dear.' But I wonder which of you can remember what comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb?"

There was an awestruck silence for a few moments, and then a pale looking boy said:

"Please, sir, it's our landlord when he gets his arrears paid up!"—London Answers.

The Clown Eclipsed.

For the third day in succession the golf tyro strode forth, determined to beat his record for the eighteen holes, which was 472. A villager and his little son stood by while the sportsman placed his ball on a very high tee.

Swish! Whack! The good turf flew in all directions.

Swish! Whack! (More turf and a little language.)

Swish! Whack! (Being a high class paper, we cannot print his remarks.)

Swish! Whack! Swish! Whack! Swish! Whack!

"No, Johnnie," said the villager, turning slowly to his little son—

"noo air ye sorra ye're mither wadna let ye go to the circus?"—London Tit-Bits.

"I do not believe in the mail order citizen. IT IS BETTER THAT WE SHOULD HAVE A THOUSAND TOWNS THAN ONE LARGE CITY. If a place is good enough for a man to make his money in, it certainly should be good enough for him to spend his money in. The merchants have a just right to all the business of the town in which they have their stores, and every good citizen will help them to get it."

THE BRIDGE ACCEPTED.

Completed Structure Turned Over to the County.

The final detail of tendering and accepting the new steel bridge that spans far river at Greenville inspired one day last week. Mr. L. Moseley, of Greensboro Southern agent of the Orange Bridge Co., the contracting company. Mr. J. H. Hershey, of Owego, N. Y., one of the directors of company, and Mr. R. S. Neal, of Scotland Neck, the sub-contractor, were here in this final settlement with the Board of County Commissioners.

Mr. D. M. Clark, supervising engineer on the part of the county, made his report to the commissioners that the bridge was complete and constructed according to contract. Upon this report the bridge was accepted for the county and final settlement made with the contractors.

Chairman R. W. King, of the board, tells us the contractors and builder were pleasant to do business with and that the settlement was in every way satisfactory. The cost of the bridge complete was $41,650.80. It is a modern steel structure, securely built and will stand for ages. The bridge is 1556 feet long and 18 feet wide. The turn table draw when open leaves a clear span of 44 feet for boats to pass through. The draw is the same width as the bridge.

The bridge is a splendid one and a credit to the county.

Wedding Called Off.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—On account of reported ecclesiastical differences between the religious denominations represented, the prospective groom being a devout Catholic and the bride-elect being a devoted communicant of the Protestant Episcopal church, the wedding of Miss Tallulah Low DeRosset and Mr. John B. Peschau, both prominent young society people here, was declared off Thursday afternoon at 5:10 o'clock after all the arrangements had been made and guests were actually arriving for the ceremony, which was appointed to have been held at the home of the bride's father, Capt. Armand L. DeRosset, on South Second street.

C. W. HARVEY & COMPANY

Dry Goods and Ladies Dress Goods.
I have purchased the interest of the late B. E. Patrick in the firm of B. E. Patrick & Co., and will continue to carry on a general dry goods business at the same stand.
A ladies department with a special of dress goods and trimmings has been added, Miss Nellie Barnhill being in charge of this department. The ladies are cordially invited to call and look at this line.
