REMARKABLE STEALING CASE.

THIS NEGRO'S SCHEME GETS HIM IN JAIL

Steals Crate of Tobacco, Sells it to the Consignee Who Himself Writes Check to Pay for Own Goods

It does not often happen that something is stolen from a man, that the stolen article is then sold to the man to whom it belonged, and the owner himself writes a check and hands it to the thief in payment for the stolen goods, but exactly such a case has occurred here.

On Tuesday evening a crate of tobacco consigned to the Liberty Warehouse by W. R. Summerell, of Vanceboro, came in over the Norfolk & Southern road and was delivered at the warehouse. Mr. Summerell did not show up Wednesday, and no instructions having come about selling the tobacco, Mr. Hooker did not have it opened and put on the sale for Wednesday morning.

William Watson, a colored man who had done some trucking about the warehouses and was familiar with the way consigned tobacco was held for instructions from the shipper, was about the Liberty that morning, and seeing this crate of tobacco knew why it was not put on sale. Right there William concocted a scheme that led to his downfall and has landed him in jail until he gets a sentence to go out and do service on the roads.

After the sale had started and the warehouse force had got busy on the floor, the aforesaid William Watson slipped around to the weigher and said, "Boss, I wish you'd get my crate on the floor and sell it this morning." The weigher not suspecting anything wrong, called a trucker and sent him with William to put out the tobacco. William led the way to the Summerell crate over in the corner and said it was his. He ordered it put on the floor in the name of Whitley & Brown and sold.

When the sale was all over Mr. Hooker hurried to the office to finish writing checks for the farmers. Watson was standing there and asked for the check for Whitley & Brown which Mr. Hooker wrote out and handed him, the amount being a fraction over $39. The negro had the check cashed at the bank (tobacco checks being payable to bearer) and disappeared.

Wednesday night Mr. Hooker received a letter from Mr. Summerell saying a crate of tobacco had been shipped the day before, and as he could not come up to see about it wanted it sold and the proceeds sent him by mail. Mr. Hooker knew where the crate had been left and went to see about it, but no crate was there. An investigation of the books and questioning of the force developed the facts of Watson selling the tobacco as stated above. Mr. Hooker then got busy to catch the thief. He found out that Watson lived in the "Clark Neck" down below Pactolus. He had a warrant sworn out, which he took himself and carried to Pactolus where he got Constable Sugg Fleming to go on with him to the negro's home.

Watson was found and arrested and they were about to leave with him when he let it out that he could get them part of the money. He carried them to a log crib and from between the cracks pulled out a purse in which were $33. Mr. Hooker brought Watson to Greenville and turned him over to the sheriff. This morning a preliminary trial was held before Justice C. D. Rountree at which Watson made a confession and was held for court.

AYDEN ITEMS.

News Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Nov. 20, 1908. Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock near the Ayden Mfg. Co.'s shops, Pandora Chapman, a colored girl about 4 years of age had her dress to catch fire from a stove and was so badly burned that she died in about four hours. Miss Lizzie Blount spent Tuesday night with Misses Lee and Nannie Nichols.

We are pleased to learn the condition of Mrs. W. L. Erowning is very much improved.

Rev. H. E. Tripp preached his last sermon in the Methodist church here for the present conference year. Mr. Tripp has been here only one year and our people are not only pleased with him as a preacher but have a very high regard for him as a citizen and gentleman. It is the wish of all that he may be returned to this station.

Benjamin Tucker, W. L. House and L. L. Kittrell, of Winterville, were in Ayden Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Florence Blount went to Greenville Thursday.

Misses Lizzie Becton and Pearl Thompson, of Goldsboro, are visiting the family of Rev. H. E. Tripp.

James Dawson, of Grifton, was in Ayden on business Thursday.

We regret very much that Mr. Richard Wingate, a very prosperous and successful farmer living near here is selling out his fine plantation and anticipates moving his family to Missouri the earlier part of next year. Such men as Mr. Wingate add much to a community and our people are sincerely sorry that he deems it best to move away out in the far West. All, however, wish them the greatest success and a happy life.

One of the infant twins of W. E. Patrick died Wednesday night about 4 o'clock and was buried Thursday afternoon. The parents have the sincere sympathy of everyone in Ayden in their sorrow and loss.

The Daughters of Rebekah will give an entertainment in the opera house here tonight for the benefit of their lodge.

We were delighted yesterday to meet our friends Mrs. Bettie Goodwin, of Philadelphia and Mrs. M. M. Nelson, of Greenville, whom we had not seen for several years. It was indeed a pleasure we appreciate. They in company with Mrs. Rosa Burnes, of Scotland Neck, spent the day with the family of Capt. D. G. Berry.

Mrs. J. J. Stokes and children left Thursday for Greenville where they will spend several days visiting relatives.

Mrs. C. D. Rountree, after a pleasant visit here to the family of her brothers, Dr. Hardy Johnson and C. K. Johnson, returned to her home in Greenville yesterday.

D. O. Moore has been to Washington this week on business. Several of our people are attending the annual convention of Disciple church at Kinston this week.

Rev. C. Manly Morton, of Wilson was here Thursday.

W. G. Smith has moved his family to the country.

Gathering Road Hands.

If the recent rate of arrests keeps up long, the next criminal court of Pitt county will turn over a big bunch of good road hands to Superintendent Joe McLawhorn.

HOW SHE DID IT.

One Girl Gave Everybody Just What Was Wanted.

"How do you do it?" I asked a girl in the office the day after Christmas. "Do what?" she queried. "Remember everybody. I have seen ever so many presents you made, and everybody said, 'It was just what I wanted.'" "I guess you did notice what cheap little gifts they were."

The girl dipped her pen in the ink and began to make a row of figures up and down the side of her blotter. "I'll tell you, I don't squeeze the pleasure of Christmas into a day or a week. It is all-the-year-round fun for me. I keep a note-book and begin jotting things into it as early as December twenty sixth. All summer long I watched Lillian at the next desk thrusting her flowers into an empty paste-pot. Her little green vase cost me ten cents. Timmie, our office-boy, has been wishing for a new bicycle bell. I found an old bell in a second-hand store for ten cents; when it was polished, it looked brand-new. The cashier has been wondering why somebody didn't invent something to stick inky pens into. I found a cute little Japanese dish which would just hold a raw potato. He has the potato jabbed full of pens now. All the year round I watch out for little things people want—my purse won't allow big things. I buy them as I can and tuck them away in my Christmas box. This year it was overflowing before November."—The December Designer.

CAPTURED A STILL.

Officers Stop a "Moonshine" Plant in Belvoir Township.

Sheriff L. W. Tucker and Deputy R. Hyman were out on a "moonshine" hunt, Thursday night, and captured a large still in Belvoir township. The still was in a pocosin more than a mile from the public road. It was not in actual use, but there were several barrels of beer and other ingredients around in readiness for operation to begin.

The officers poured out the beer and brought the still to town. It was on a buggy in front of the court house this morning and attracted a large number of spectators.

Ayden Next.

In the interest of the Christmas edition of the Reflector which will be published about December 1. Mr. R. S. Garey will call on the merchants of Ayden, to secure at first hands the required "data" for descriptive articles of their several enterprises. These articles will be prefaced by a brief "write up" of Ayden's trade features and will be given wide publicity in the Christmas number. All are invited to share in the pronounced benefits of this publicity to every enterprise depending on its well being for public patronage. Support from the progressive and enterprising always awaits efforts of this character, and Ayden will be no exception to the general experience.

Fire at Parmele.

At Parmele Wednesday night about two o'clock the home of Mr. F. J. Gleason was destroyed by fire. The family were forced to flee from the building in their night robe in order to save their lives. The origin of the fire is unknown.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

Oakley N. C., Nov. 19, 1908. Miss Bettie Roberson, of Hassell, is spending this week with Miss Ella Corey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Whitehurst spent Sunday with J. S. Cherry, of Stokes.

We welcome our new neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Powell, who were recently married near Washington and are now making Oakley their home. We wish them a long and happy life.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Corey spent Sunday with his parents near Oakley.

A good many drummers are passing through out little town. They must have found out that the farmers have sold their cotton.

Miss Lenora Corey, of Williamston, spent Sunday with Miss Pearl Jenkins.

Mr. Gray Corey, one of our prosperous farmers, sold from one acre of land 69 barrels of potatoes for $159, then he planted the same acre in corn and by the use of nitrate of soda, gathered a second crop of 18-5 barrels of corn, and left a good crop of peas for the stock.

On Wednesday morning, Nov. 18th, a very pretty marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gray Corey, when Mr. Z. T. Whitehurst led to the altar their charming daughter Miss Reba, with Mr. Simon A. Congleton performing the impressive ceremony that made them man and wife. The bride was handsomely attired in an exquisite cream taffeta with hat and gloves to match.

The groom is a rising young business man of Oakley. The bride is a general favorite, who by her charming grace and lovable traits of character is held in universal esteem. The popularity of the happy couple was evidenced by the numerous presents received.

They left on the 8:30 train for an extended tour of the northern cities, after which they will make Oakley their home. We wish them a long, happy, and prosperous life.

The indications are that cupid is still busy in our community and the wedding bells will soon be ringing again.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

As the president and governor have issued their proclamations to give thanks on the 26th of November, in consequence thereof, to do it properly, go to J. M. Reuss and buy supplies for a Thanksgiving dinner. Just received raisins, currants, citrons, shelled almonds, new English walnuts, Brazil nuts, California prunes and peaches, domestic and imported sardines, lobsters and shrimps, salmon and kippered herring, Doxey's clam juice, apples, oranges, grape fruit, malaga grapes, bananas, celery, cranberries and cranberry sauce and jelly. All things nice for a Thanksgiving dinner. Come and see Jimmie Reuss. 17 dtf

Kills Wild Cat.

Mr. Henry Gurganus and others while out hunting last Wednesday night, came in contact with a vicious wild cat near Mr. Arthur Woolard's farm. By having a good old cur the wild animal was soon forced to take a tree and he was then shot and killed by Mr. Gurganus and is the first wild cat killed around here in many years. The animal weighed about twenty-five pounds.—Washington Progress.

Mashed a Foot.

Mr. C. W. Harvey has been having to use crutches to aid his walking the last few days. He was superintending the measuring and unloading of a car of wood at his wood yard, when a big stick of wood fell out of the car and struck endways on top of his foot. The blow mashed his foot quite severely, but it is now improving.

FRIDAY, NOV. 20, 1908.

Make up your mind that business is better and you will find it better.

It is getting time some other big enterprise was launched for Greenville.

You can easily read between the lines that Mr. Roosevelt would like to have the job again after awhile.

General J. S. Carr, of Durham, has donated $2,500 for the endowment fund of Greensboro Female College.

It is said to have cost a million and a half dollars to get Taft elected. He is never going to be worth anything like that sum to the country.

Now here comes a Buffalo doctor who accuses a cabbage and lettuce worm of being the cause of cancer. First thing you know we will have to stop eating.

New York is boasting that there is less suffering in that city this winter than last. But this winter has hardly begun yet and it is very early to make comparisons.

Some of the guests of President Roosevelt's labor dinner in the White House, a few nights ago, declared it was a "bully dinner." Doubtless that expression about it delighted the president.

Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, who is suing for divorce from her husband, asked for $120,000 a year alimony, and said she could not get along on less. How a woman can blow in that much money in a year is hard to understand. The court must have taken that view of it also, for she was allowed only $25,000.

At a New York infirmary thirty-six nurses and forty-five patients were made quite sick by eating "fricassed chicken and chicken hash served with piquant sauce." Too bad that chicken should also come under the ban of things not to eat. Next thing you know they will be finding some fault with 'possum and yam 'taters.

THE INLAND WATERWAY.

Congressman John H. Small, of North Carolina, is looking after the interests of this State in the convention of the Deep Waterways Association now in session in Baltimore. The particular object of this organization, as explained by the Sun, a general way, is to urge a protected waterway along the Atlantic coast from Boston to southern Florida deep enough for coastwise vessels of large size. Nature has provided such a way for a considerable part of the distance. Cape Cod and Buzzards Bay, Long Island Sound, the Delaware and Chesapeake Bays and the North Carolina rivers and sounds will form sections of the route and the work to be done is to run these together through deep channels. As to the respective merits of different routes for these connecting channels there is diversity of opinion. But of the importance of opening the North Carolina sounds into the Chesapeake there can be but one opinion. Such a channel, deepened all the way from Norfolk to the ocean at Beaufort, N. C., would open up a fertile country to the markets, and would enable the coasting vessels to avoid the dangerous navigation around Cape Hatteras. "The whole scheme," says The Sun, "is based upon the idea of the utilization of the natural resources of the country. Any plan for reducing the cost of transportation, for making it cheaper for producers to get their products to the markets, to bring cheap and abundant food to the teeming populations of our cities, to bring cheaper raw material to the factories which give people employment and pay wages, is sure to command the consideration of the country. This Atlantic coast inside waterway will cost a vast sum of money, and the complete realization of the hopes and expectations of the convention may be in the distant future. Nevertheless, each channel to connect the natural waterways is a separate proposition and complete in itself. By taking one at a time all may finally be accomplished."

Congressman Small could be well called the father of this great inland waterway project. At times when it was about to expire, he fanned it into renewed flames and finally got Congress financially interested in it. A start has been made and there is no reason to doubt that the waterway will be completed according to original plans. And the credit for the final consummation of this great work will belong to North Carolina.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The gross bonded debt of New York City is near one billion dollars or more accurately speaking $905,000,000, while the interest bearing debt of the United States is less, only $897,000,000. New Yorkers have to pay in interest the enormous sum of twenty-seven millions yearly.

Spinning the Eggshell.

Moisten the rim of a breakfast plate—not merely the outer edge, but all the raised portion. Place the half of an empty eggshell on the wet surface, the shell being broken evenly, so as to form a little cup. Now, if you hold the plate up and tip it slightly, the egg may be made to not merely slide, but spin along the rim, and by continuously altering the inclination angle of the plate you can cause the shell to spin all the way round it. It will not spin rapidly, like a top, but as it goes round the plate it also revolves slowly about its own axis in the same direction. Now, this, you know, is just what the earth does in traveling around the sun, so here you have an easy and pretty lesson in astronomy at the breakfast table.

Sympathy For the Orphans.

An elephant while stamping through the jungle one day quite unintentionally stepped upon a mother bird, crushing it to death. Hearing the cries of the little brood in the bushes near by, she sought out the nest and with a sympathetic sigh said: "Poor little things! I've been a mother myself. I'll keep you warm." And she then proceeded to sit upon the nest.—From George T. Lanigan's Fable, "The Kind Hearted Bhe Elephant."

"Marked Copy" Did the Trick.

"MARKED COPY" on a newspaper wrapper is sure to make the receiver open and read.

Last year a southern man bought fifty copies of his local paper containing a suggestion for a factory location, marked them and mailed them to fifty individuals or concerns that might be interested.

Result: Twelve immediate inquiries, three propositions for the factory site, one thriving factory located which today pays wages to 175 persons living in that town.

THE AGE OF MONEY.

A Pull on the Reins in the Wild Race For Riches.

In the earlier ages of the world there was a time when fishes dominated all else. Geologists called this age of fishes the devonian period. Later vegetation supplanted the fishes, and there came the carboniferous after the devonian, and coal was stored up which we use for our needs today. Subsequently there followed an age of reptiles, an age of mammals and finally an age of man, and the age of man has been variously subdivided until we now have the age of money.

In spite of the fact that it has been pointed out upon the very highest authority that the love of money is the root of all evil with which the world is charged, its value and power have now grown so very great that in our day and generation it is worshipped by high and low, the rich and the poor. The good, old-fashioned morals of former days are relaxed in order to obtain it, and defalcations constantly grow because of the modern creed that reads, "Get money—honestly if possible, but get it in any event."

Luxury increases and extravagance grows. The idea of slow accumulation of money saved during the productive against the declining years, when the earning power decreases, no longer obtains. We would all be rich, and we would be rich quick. Speculation arises, and a long train of evils marches constantly before us, because our age has become an age of money irrespective of all other considerations.

It is exceedingly pleasant to have wealth. When we see the beautiful palaces at Newport and their gardens and the countless luxuries that money spells anywhere and everywhere only the anchorite turns aside and will have none of it. Horses, steam yachts, European travel, entertaining, various art products and a thousand and one things beckon to the rich man and lure him and tend toward making him forget that the conquest of the world is not worth the loss of a soul.

We of this age of money need to remember that there are certain cardinal virtues that will linger when stock and other exchanges are no more, and in ages yet to come money will be replaced by something higher and better than a commodity that can upon occasion take on a taint.—W. G. Bowdoin in Brooklyn Citizen.

Making of Veneer.

The best veneer is saved, but a great deal is sliced and still more is "rotary cut." By the last named process logs of the desired wood are steamed until they are soft and then fixed in a lathe-like machine, in which they are turned against a wood knife. As the log rotates against the knife veneer of the desired thickness is peeled off in a continuous slice, as if you should pare an apple, going deeper and deeper at each complete turn, until nothing is left but the core. The center of the log left after the veneer is cut is also called a "core." A good deal of waste occurs in the manufacture of veneer. It is always a problem, for instance, what use to make of the cores left by the rotary process. In many cases these are used for pulp wood, pillars or panel headings, and they are largely used also for fuel, excelsior, crates, boxes and baskets.

Who Was Jack Robinson?

Jack Robinson has long been a favorite synonym for rapidity of speech or action, but possibly few people who use the phrase are aware that Jack Robinson was a real live person.

"As a politician," says Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "Reminiscences," "John Robinson was a great favorite with George III. His political career was long, for he was a member for Harwich during twenty-six years, being on one occasion bitterly attacked by Sheridan, who, denouncing bribery and its instigators, replied to the cries of 'Name! Name!' by pointing to Robinson on the treasury bench, exclaiming at the same time, 'Yes, I could name him as soon as I could say Jack Robinson,' and thus originated the saying still current at the present day."

How Polly Saved the Plate.

An old lady had a parrot, which she had bought from a sailor friend, and on taking it home, much to her astonishment, she found Polly could only say three words, "Get the gun!"

One dark night, when all was still, burglars broke into the house. The silver was kept in the same room as Polly. They crept in as quietly as possible, but before they had time to strike a light a deep voice from the other side of the room said, "Get the gun!" The men were so frightened that they ran off as fast as their legs could carry them. And so Polly saved her mistress' silver.—Home Notes.

FATE OF A STAGE PRODIGY.

Master Betty, Who, It Appears, Overstayed His Welcome.

It may interest readers to know that rather over 100 years ago—in 1807, to be precise—the country was worshipping at the shrine of a twelve-year-old prodigy, a boy actor—the juvenile Henry Irving of his time, says the Glasgow Mail. While at the height of his fame and popularity this infantile marvel visited, among other places, Glasgow and Edinburgh, and in both of these towns he is said to have created a hitherto undreamt of sensation.

The wonderful youngster's name was William Henry West Betty, and he was Irish to the backbone. His histrionic capabilities were evidently born with him, for it is recorded that when at the age of eight his father treated him to his first visit to the theater young Betty at the conclusion of the play solemnly informed his parent that he had decided to be an actor himself.

How the youngster subsequently came to get a footing on the stage is not known, but in the month of August, 1803, we find him making his first appearance, performing the leading part in a popular drama at a Belfast theater. He leaped at once bound into the very forefront of popularity, and it is said that on one occasion when he turned ill the whole nation awaited with feverish anxiety the different bulletins which were regularly issued to tell of young Betty's condition.

The boy's first appearance in Glasgow, which happened in May, 1804, created unparalleled enthusiasm in the city during the several nights he performed in the now long defunct Dunlop Street theater. The enormous crowds that flocked to see the wonderful boy were unprecedented in the theatrical history of St. Mungo, and hundreds, it is said, were nightly injured in the great crush and desperate struggle for admission to the theater. In Edinburgh, where the boy actor afterward appeared, the same enormous crowds rushed to see him. To quote from one of the local paper's criticisms, he "set the town in a flame." His subsequent appearance at the world famous Drury Lane completed the prodigy's triumph, for it was not long before the metropolis also succumbed to young Betty's magnetic acting.

But Master Betty's stage success was comparatively short lived. In the course of a few years he—or his parents—compiled an immense fortune, and with the wealth thus speedily accumulated the young actor was given the chance of a first class education. When out of his teens the glamour of the footlights again appeared to have appealed to him, and he again made a bid to regain his position as a popular idol. By this time, however, the people had quite forgotten their former hero, and young Betty had to rest content with only a very ordinary degree of success. He had, so to speak, overstayed his welcome.

Room For Improvement.

One day during the rehearsals of "The Tempest," which opens with a storm at sea, all the actors except Beerbohm Tree knew that a real storm was raging outside the theater. Mr. Tree never knows anything at rehearsal time except that he wants to get the best possible out of his company. He was especially anxious that the opening scene should be rendered as true to nature as possible, and time after time he made the men whose duty it was to suggest to the audience the ungovernable fury of the elements repeat their efforts. Presently a blinding flash of lightning, followed by a deafening peal of thunder, swept through a narrow window above the scene dock and illuminated the stage.

"That's better," announced Mr. Tree, "but I think it could be improved upon."

"If you please, sir," observed the master carpenter, "that was a real one."

Flour Too Low.

A Portland man tells of a shiftless inhabitant of a Maine town, rejoicing in the appellation of Tobe Carter, who would not work a minute more than was necessary to secure money enough to support him in idleness for a few days.

Tobe had gone into the village store to purchase some groceries, one item of which was $1 worth of flour. He put the smaller articles in a basket, which he took on one arm, while he carried the flour on the other.

Suddenly Tobe plumped the bundle down on the floor. "Say, Bill," he demanded, "is flour lower?"

"Yes, Tobe," replied Bill. "We give thirty-five pounds for $1 now instead of thirty."

"Well," responded Tobe, "I'll be glad when it goes up again, so I shan't have to lug so much home for $1."—Philadelphia Record.

Colonel James Fisk was once called to meet a woman who recalled his father's days as a peddler and defamed him. He had lied to her about a yard of ninepenny calico, so she asserted, but Fisk did not think the old man would tell a lie for 12 1/2 cents, although possibly "he might tell eight for $1." It is said that the elder Fisk refused to subscribe for the erection of a fence about the cemetery at Brattleboro, the home of the Fisks, on the ground that none was needed, because no man that was out of it wanted to get in and none of those who were in could get out.—Argonaut.

What a Water Beetle Can Do.

An entomologist of authority writes thus: "I selected a common black water beetle weighing 4.3 grains and found that he was able to carry a load of shot in a small bag, the whole weighing exactly 8 1/4 ounces, or exactly 858 times the weight of the beetle. If a man weighing 150 pounds could carry as much in proportion, he could shoulder a forty-five ton locomotive and then chain a train of railway carriages together and take the whole lot across the country at a five mile an hour gait."

Thanksgiving Day—Orphans' Day.

The good people of North Carolina have chosen Thanksgiving day as a time for special offering to the orphans' homes of our State.

We have abundant cause for gratitude to God. Can we in a better way express our thanks to Him than heartily joining in to care for and train aright homeless, orphan children?

When, impelled by a spirit of gratitude, we do for these little ones, does the great Father of the fatherless not accept it as done for Him?

At present the demands upon and needs of the orphans' homes of North Carolina are unusually large. The Thanksgiving offering will be a great factor in enabling these institutions to continue their beneficent work.

The cause appeals to our sympathies, to our reason, to our sense of justice.

We hope even a large number of our people will unite this time in the interest of this work and that the gifts will be, in all respects, greater than any of the offerings of former years. We believe the interest of our people in this cause is deepening and we look for even more liberal support to our orphanages.

MIXED THE SIGNS.

Sarasate and the Sandwich Men in Edinburgh.

To advertise Sarasate's performances in Edinburgh eight sandwich men were sent out, each of whom bore in front and behind him one letter of the great musician's name. They started all right, but after a time removed the boards from their shoulders to have a rest.

On resuming their labors each man shouldered the board nearest him and fell in behind the man who had formerly marched before him.

When the leader, who bore the initial "S," turned around to see if his men were ready, what he saw was "Sarasate." He knew enough to realize that something was wrong, but how to right it was more than he could tell.

After changing a man here and there he got it "Sarasate." But still it didn't seem correct.

By this time the poor fellow was in a terrible state. If any of their employers' people were on the outlook and could see them, their day's wage would be stopped! He tried again and yet again, but it was no use.

And a moment later a man bearing the letter "S" before and behind was seen running toward the music hall to copy down the name from one of the posters there. And along the right side of Princeton street there walked toward the appointed rendezvous at the Mound three men who bore the strange device "A A E," while opposite them there paced along the left side gutter four others, who, if to advertise means to attract attention, succeeded well, for every one who passed looked around in wondering amazement as to what "Rats" meant.—Edinburgh Dispatch.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

A. A. Tyson, 134 Lexington St., Rocky Mount, N. C., says: "I feel it my duty to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as I used them and found them to be a valuable kidney remedy. For years my kidneys were in a disordered condition and their action was so frequent that I was obliged to rise several times during the night, thus being unable to obtain my proper rest. I also had dull pains across my loins and was bothered by a constant dull backache. Having heard about Doan's Kidney Pills I decided to try them and procured a supply. I had taken them but a short time when I could notice their beneficial effects and thus encouraged I continued their use until cured."
