SOME MORE LETTERS.

That Santa Claus is Asked to Read Today.

Saturday The Reflector printed twenty five very bright letters to Santa Claus from its little friends, and we know those letters have been read with a great deal of interest. Just after supper that night the editor's phone rang, and a sweet little voice at the other end in plaintive tone inquired: "Mr. Whichard, am I too late to send a letter to Santa Claus?" We assured her that good old Santa should read all she wished to write him, and today we are printing hers and a few more letters:

Greenville, N. C.

Dear old "Santy"

Please bring me an English doll carriage, in white leather Piano and a white Bureau. I will try and be a good little girl and I do want a great big doll so bad. Your little friend!

Nelle White

Dear Santy:

Please bring me an automobile, 22 air rifle, foot ball and a pony, and I will be all O. K. for Christmas. Your little friend,

Julian White.

Dear Santa Claus:

Please bring me a brass bed, a doll and that white set down to Mr. Moye's, and a doll table. I try to be good.

Your little friend,

Ada James.

WINTERVILLE IT EMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., Dec. 19, 1908.

Nearly all the students and teachers left yesterday for their respective homes. Prof. Lineberry and family left this morning to spend their holidays at his old home in Chatham county. Miss Stone will spend the holidays at her home near Raleigh, Miss Boushall at her home at Belcross, Miss Roberson at her home at Gold Point and Miss Waldrop with relatives in Bethel and Greenville. The spring term opens Dec. 28 and most of the old pupils will return and several new ones are expected. The attendance was full up the last day.

Mrs. Frank Wilson and Miss Waldrop left for Ayden yesterday.

Miss Hattie Kittrell gave a apron party at her school last night at Woodland. The boys say that our efficient operator, J. E. Greene, made a most excellent auctioneer. Quite a neat sum was realized, F. F. Cox acted as receiving treasurer.

Thos. Buck, who has been attending school at Richmond, is spending the holidays at home.

Elder Fred McLawhorn left this morning to fill his regular appointment at Hickory Grove today and Sunday.

R. G. Chapman went to Greenville today.

Miss Elizabeth Boushall left this morning for her home at Belcross to spend the holidays.

Miss Miriam Johnson and brother went to Greenville this morning.

Accepts Call to Pastorate.

Rev. J. B. Cook, of Manchester, Va., has accepted the call extended him to become pastor of Memorial Baptist church. Mr. Cook advises the committee that he will be in Greenville ready to begin his duties as pastor on the first Sunday in January. The church is to be congratulated upon securing him.

SUGGESTION VIA NEWSPAPER.

How It Goes Into the Family Circles Where No Salesman Can Enter.

The assistant traffic director of the Harriman lines, E. O. McCormick, at a recent meeting in Kansas City of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, paid this tribute to the newspaper, while speaking of advertising "as a commodity."

"Reading the newspaper is as intimate a part of our every day life as sleeping and eating. It is a rare person who does not at least glance over his daily paper, and to the great majority of people it is the only avenue open to their minds accessible to those who have things to sell. The peculiar strength which is all its own is well put by a recent writer in the following words:

"The newspaper carries suggestion into the family circle at leisure moments in parlor or library, where no salesman is ever permitted to enter."

"It is in closer touch with and exerts a greater influence in the home than any other printed thing. To start with: There are in the older communities a vast number of people who have inherited the continuance of the paper which their parents read. It is as real to them as 'Proofs of Holy Writ.' To practically all others it is their own choice. The intelligence of the world's doings is gleaned from its pages. That which many deem their own judgment, as related to current topics, is merely a reflection of what they have read in their home paper. What reaches them for the first time in today's paper, in a week or a day later has become their belief and knowledge. And now that I remind you of it, you have a friend or neighbor whose conversation is largely made up of what he has read in the day's paper. He does not add any new thought to it, either, or indeed any new words, except perhaps the three—"they do say." Of almost equal value to the advertisers, in my judgment, is the distribution factor of the newspaper; for, after all, distribution is the most important detail of advertising and the one which should command your constant attention.

"As to distribution: Any other printed matter involves a distinct and separate work, with all kinds of obstacles. When you use the newspaper you do not have to create circulation, or attend to it. The circulation is,"—Newspaperdom.

CHRISTMAS DANCE.

Perkins' Hall Decorated Extensively With Decorations from Ellsworth.

The musical concert and German to be held here on Friday evening, Dec. 25th, promises to be one of the most beautiful and brilliant social affairs ever held here. Visitors will be here from all over the State and the German will be a very large one. Perkins' hall is beautifully decorated to represent a Japanese garden, with Japanese parasols and lanterns hanging from the ceiling.

The stage where the orchestra will be decorated in white and draped with very large American flags with the small electric lights behind each flag.

The side floors are carpeted in white. All couples are requested to be at the hall before 9:30 as it will be strictly a card dance with the grand march at 9:30 sharp. Prof. Levin and his full orchestra, of Raleigh, will open by concert from 8:30 'till 9:30. Prof. Levin has the best orchestra music in the State and the music will be of a very high order.

Don't forget to tell us those personal items.

The next two days will be good for advertising.

The postoffice is feeling the weight of Christmas' mail.

We do hope it will not snow between now and Christmas.

One thing to guard carefully against is Christmas accidents.

If you don't know where to go or what to get look in The Reflector.

After three more nights there will be a big hanging of stock-sockings.

Folks move like there was something ahead of them—or behind them.

All business men of the community should be at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tonight.

It is real pleasure to see the faces of the little folks brighten up with joy as Christmas gets nearer.

Christmas shoppers were out in large number today and the number will increase for the next three days.

The big stumps which the city fathers have for several weeks let lay on the corner of Third and Washington streets, are not at all ornamental.

It will be dark nights Christmas and Santa Claus will have to take a lantern along to find the chimneys.

In your plans for Christmas do not overlook the poor. Your greatest happiness will come through making others happy.

Won't some people be tired about the time this week winds up?

We are not over hard to suit—just pass anything up for our stocking.

Now don't anybody send a copy of the New York World to go in the president's stocking.

No decent newspaper should allow in its columns an X for the first syllable of Christmas.

The president may hand out a few membership cards in his Annanias club as Christmas presents.

Such a funny world! A woman will wear a rat on her head but run if a mouse gets anywhere near her toe.

The Charlotte Observer gave its readers a Christmas number of 40 pages on Sunday. It was something fine in the way of a newspaper.

Saturday one of the building and loan associations of Charlotte which had just matured a series of stock, cancelled $30,400 in mortgages on homes built for the stockholders, and distributed $55,100 in cash. That is an example of the good done by building and loan associations.

Judge Thomas R. Purnell, of the United States court for the Eastern district of North Carolina, died Saturday afternoon at his home in Raleigh. Among those mentioned to succeed him is Col. Harry Skinner, of Greenville, the present United States Attorney for the same district.

We believe Colonel Skinner is better qualified for the position than any other aspirant who has been named, and we would like to see him get the appointment.

Cannot Revoke a Pardon

In an opinion just delivered the Supreme court takes the position that an order by the Governor revoking a pardon because there has been any violations of conditions under which it is granted is not valid and that the prisoner must have his freedom in spite of the desire of the Governor to recall his action granting the pardon. In re Dick Williams, serving sentence from Burke county on the Gaston county roads, is the case in which the ruling is made. His crime was retailing liquor. The pardon was procured by R. L. Huffman as counsel, the payment of costs and sober and industrious life after release were the conditions. The costs were paid and the pardon sent to Gaston county for the release when the telegram came from

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Dr. Dixon's New Plan for Assessing Real Estate.

With reference to the ever-present trouble of tax assessment, State Auditor Dixon says he will recommend that one man be appointed (not elected) in each county to assess all real estate and that the counties be grouped in districts, the various assessors to meet in district conferences, compare assessments and make their reports to the State board of equalization. Dr. Dixon declares that this is the only way in which the assessment of real estate in North Carolina can be made equitable. He says the last legislature enacted a law which proves inoperative, because it only gives 30 days in which to assess all real estate and the work cannot be done within that short space of time.—News and Observer.

There must be some whiskey of quality left in the country—some that awakens a man's ideas. A friend started with another to Keeley the other day. On the way the man being taken got the other drunk; at the institute the intended patient informed the authorities that he had a patient for them and placing him in bed, departed for home. That kind of liquor is worth $20 a gallon at prevailing prices.—Greensboro Record.

May be these card parties are all right, but when it leads to betting cold cash by women it strikes us it is time to stop. This is being done without any concealment in at least one town not over a hundred miles from Greensboro.—Greensboro Record.

Story of Durban.
Durban, South Africa, figures in early gazetteers as D'Urban, a form of spelling which links it visibly with the British commander who took Port Natal from the Dutch and gave it his own name. Sir Benjamin D'Urban, born in 1777, had practically completed his brilliant military career before he became governor of the Cape, and his conversion of Natal from a Boer to a British colony was his last great accomplishment. In 1842, when the thing happened, there was but a handful of farmers at the port. Now the population is over 60,000, and the harbor, which was then a place to keep clear of, is safe enough for even a British warship.—London Chronicle.

Not Open to Everybody.
"A most peculiar effect was produced by an announcement in the advertisements of a county fair to be held in my state," said a southern congressman. "Among other things, the announcement said that 'attractive features of this great fair will be highly amusing donkey races and pig races.' Then, to the amazement of the judicious, this note was added: 'Competition in these two contests will be open to citizens of the county only.'"

The Secret of Style.
Style is in a very small degree the deliberate and designed creation of the man who therein expresses himself. The self that he thus expresses is a bundle of inherited tendencies that came, the man himself can never entirely know whence. It is by the instinctive stress of a highly sensitive or slightly abnormal constitution that he is impelled to distill these tendencies into the alien magic of words. The stylus wherewith he strives to write himself on the yet blank pages of the world may have the obstinate vigor of a metal rod or the wild and quivering waywardness of an insect's wing, but behind it lie forces that extend into infinity. It moves us because it is itself moved by pulses which, in varying measure, we also have inherited.—Havelock Ellis in Atlantic.

An Endless Task.
Mrs. Arnold had been calling on her friend, Mrs. Black, and upon leaving asked, "Why do you never come to see me?" Mrs. Black replied: "I would so much like to, but some way I don't get time to go anywhere now. It takes me all the time to fix over my sleeves."—Lippincott's.

DON'T FIGHT THE WEATHER.

Try the Plan of Being on Friendly Terms With It.

What a great misfortune this is, the habit of considering the weather—of thinking that we must consider the weather! It is largely due, is it not, to clothes? No mention is made of rain in the garden of Eden, but we must not therefore contend that rain was disagreeable and omitted. We must recollect that Adam and Eve did not need to consider rain. Furthermore, in blessed ignorance they did not know that it was anything to be considered. To mind the rain no more than the May sunshine, but to plunge into it and let the drops pelt as they will, to accept snow without a thought of discomfort, but, rather, to enjoy the thronging presence of it; to pursue one's daily stint regardless of whether the sky be dun or blue—this is a state which we, especially of the cities, long have lost.

We regain it, some of us, in the wilderness camp, where we hunt or fish if the day be dark or if the day be bright, and where we find that the dash of the soft rain on one's face is not death, after all; that wetness and dryness are merely relative terms.

All the centuries of fussing and fuming with the weather have not affected the weather one particle. It still rains and snows and sleet and blows, just as dictated by circumstances. Therefore, what's the use? Are your puny diatribes or mine of any greater potency than those of others gone before? Evidently not. Accordingly try the plan of being friendly with the weather, of agreeing with it instead of fighting it, and, upon my word, presently it will be agreeing with you.—E. L. Sabin in Lippincott's.

Puzzles.

Why should one razor be a treasure and another, made from the same steel at the same time, be only fit for throwing away?

This is one of the questions which are difficult to answer. You may buy two razors for the same price, exactly similar in every respect. One will be a useful servant for years, while the other is a constant source of trouble and irritation, acting beautifully one day and scratching and scraping the next.

In the same way one nut will go smoothly on to a bolt and remain there firm; another, exactly the same size, will not go on at all. A third will go on all right and keep coming off. One tool will break the first time it is used, another will last for years and then break suddenly, while a third will be worn quite away by hard work without causing trouble. Why?

It is one of the puzzles to which there would seem to be no satisfactory answer.

Something Definite.

Angelina Spring, in spite of the beatific sound of her name, had a bad temper. One day she insisted on crying and protested when the question was put often enough to elicit an answer that she had a "pain." Exactly where she would not or could not describe. Her persistent fretting finally won for her a vigorous spanking.

After the punishment there was quiet. A caller came and heard the tale.

"You see," said Mrs. Spring, "she kept saying that 'it hurt her,' but she wouldn't say where. So there seemed no other way to stop her bawling than to spank her."

"Kind of localizing the pain?" suggested the visitor.

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Spring heartily. "That is it precisely."—Youth's Companion.

No man was ever so much deceived by another as by himself.—Greville.

THEY MADE BELIEVE.

How the Mansfields, Father and Little Son, Enjoyed Themselves.

"Gibbs," said Richard Mansfield, the great actor, to his little son out walking one day, "why are you sliding your feet?"

"I'm a steam engine," replied the little fellow.

"Then you need coal." And his father shoveled imaginary coal into the boy's pockets with an imaginary shovel until they were make believe full.

The engine went full steam ahead. But soon Mansfield came upon him at a dead standstill. "What's this—something broken?" With perfect seriousness, "Yes, sir."

After a careful examination of fingers, neck and elbows: "Of course. This engine needs oiling." Forthwith his cane became a long spouted oil can and poked all over the engine, which directly flew off at lightning speed, as, of course, any well lubricated engine would. Next day this conversation would take place:

"Good morning, Gibbs."

"Good morning, sir."

"What are you this morning?"

"I'm a sea captain, and my boat has 2,000,000 head of cattle in the hold, which my million of sailors—"

after an earnest pause—"no, I'm a greengrocer this morning, father."

"Oh, well, in that case I want to complain of the cabbages and artichokes which your man sent me yesterday."

"The one with the red hair?"

"Yes, sir. I think he nibbled the cabbages, and I'm sure he choked the artichokes."

After a concentrated moment to grasp this subtlety: "I'm glad you spoke about it. I felt he was a bad man. I've discharged him already. You know, I want to keep your patronage, Mr. Mansfield. You're the best customer we have."

"In that case send me a bushel of turnips and a few of your nicest grape fruit."

"New ones in this morning." Hands imaginary-fruit.

Making pretense of examining imaginary grape fruit: "Much better than last. Two, if you please. How much?"

"Two hundred and fifty dollars."

Without so much as a glimmer of a smile he passes out make believe payment. "There you are."

"Thank you. Here's your change." Thus make believe entertained them for hours.—Paul Wilstach in Scribner's.

Oyster Shell Window.

On the west coast of India is found a species of oyster, Placuna placenta, whose shell consists of a pair of roughly circular plates about six inches in diameter, thin and white. At present these oysters are collected for the pearls which they often contain, although few are fit for the use of the jeweler. But in the early days of English rule in India the shells were employed for window panes. Cut into little squares, they produced a very pretty effect, admitting light like frosted glass. When the Bombay cathedral was built, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, its windows were paneled with these oyster shells. In Goa they are still thus employed.

Unkind.

"My dear," exclaimed a young bride, "my husband writes so beautifully! You really ought to see some of his love letters!" "Yes, dear, I know," was the unkind retort. "I have a drawer full of them at home!"—Manchester Guardian.

PARRHASIUS.

The Famous Greek Painter Who Deceived a Rival Artist's Eye.

Among the famous painters of ancient Greece was Parrhasius, and the following interesting story is frequently related about the talent of this great artist. About the year 455 B. C. an improved style of painting was introduced in Athens by Zeuxis. The aim of this new style was illusion of the senses. Zeuxis soon acquired great wealth by his paintings and was very ostentatious in the display of it. The same vanity is shown by the fact that after he had reached the summit of his fame he no longer sold, but gave away his pictures as being above all price.

He was a great master of color, and in this lay the secret of his success and of that of his school, for it rendered his paintings so accurate and lifelike that they never failed to create an illusion. This is exemplified in the story told of him and Parrhasius.

As a trial these artists were engaged to paint each a picture. That of Zeuxis represented a bunch of grapes, and so naturally was it painted that the birds came and pecked at it. After this proof Zeuxis, confident of success, called upon his rival to draw aside the curtain that concealed his picture. "The curtain is the picture," replied Parrhasius, and Zeuxis was obliged to acknowledge himself vanquished, for, though he had deceived the birds, Parrhasius had deceived him.

The paintings of Zeuxis displayed great dramatic power. He worked very slowly and carefully, and he is said to have replied to somebody who blamed him for his slowness, "It is true I take a long time to paint, but then I paint works to last a long time."

His masterpiece was a picture of Helen of Troy, in the painting of which he had as his models five of the most beautiful maidens of Crotona, for which city the picture was painted. Zeuxis died in the early part of the third century B. C., and it is said he died from laughter at a hag he had painted.

Parrhasius spent most of his time at Athens. He attained to so high a degree of excellence and was held in such honor that he became arrogant, calling himself the descendant of Apollo and the prince of painters and claimed that he had assigned to art precise limits which could never be transgressed. Quintilian says that Parrhasius was so exact in his drawings that he was called the legislator of painting and that other painters followed, as a matter of obligation, his models of gods and heroes.

The Square Deal.

A stout and opulent man dwelling in a suburban town had borne the expense of the annual Sunday school picnic, and the superintendent of the school, out of gratitude, asked the benefactor to address the children. The philanthropist was not much of a speaker, but he was a master hand at poker. When he found himself gazing into the expectant faces of 150 children his embarrassment almost overcame him, but he managed to stammer out: "My dear children, what I want to impress upon you is that—er—er—it pays to be good. That er—er—er—a man who deals from the bottom of the pack is generally buried at the public expense."
