WELCOME TO NEW PASTOR.

INTERESTING SERVICE IN MEMORIAL BAPTIST CHURCH.

Churches and People Unite in the Welcome—Excellent Addresses and Inspiring Music.

"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Those were the first words in the Scripture reading at the welcome service to the new pastor of Memorial Baptist church Sunday night, and they never seemed to apply with more appropriateness than on this occasion. There was an outpouring of people of all denominations represented in the town, as well as those of no denomination, united in greeting a new pastor, and they made a congregation that would fill any speaker with pride to face. It was an inspiring gathering in Christian fellowship, typical of the changed conditions that have come to Greenville in late years.

Rev. J. B. Cook, formerly of Manchester, Va., came to Greenville to assume the pastorate of the Baptist church on the first of January, and this service Sunday night was arranged to give him a welcome to his new field of labor. The service was made up of addresses and a select musical program, and the large congregation took keenest interest in all.

The music, which interspersed the addresses, was fully in keeping with the high record Greenville has attained. There were special songs by Mrs. T. E. Hooker, Mrs. B. E. Parham and Mrs. W. L. Hall and Mr. Charles James that were heard with much delight, and the anthem, chorus and hymns by the choir were no less enjoyable. The regular choir was strengthened by Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Couch, and Miss Lillian Carr assisted Mrs. Woodward in the accompaniments.

The devotional part of the service was conducted by Mr. J. S. Mundy, of Newark, N. J., who followed the prayer and Scripture reading with a few appropriate words expressing his pleasure at this marked evidence of Christian unity among the churches, all coming together in such a great audience for the specific purpose of welcoming a new pastor to one of the churches. There were beautifully worded addresses of welcome by Mayor H. W. Whedbee on the part of town, by Rev. B. F. Huske of the Episcopal church and Rev. D. W. Arnold of the Christian church on the part of the other denominations, and by Prof. W. H. Ragsdale on the part of the Baptist church, followed with an equally beautiful response by Rev. J. B. Cook, the new pastor.

MAYOR WHEDBEE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Whedbee spoke first of his profound reverence for the house of God, his respect for the true minister of Christ, and among those who mould public opinion and influence men for good, he gave the minister of the Gospel the first place. He made an earnest appeal to all Christians present to give to their minister not only their moral support in every thing, but that the church has a business side to it, and that for the class of men measured by ability, general preparation, character and the manifold demands made upon their time and talent, that they are the poorest paid class of men he knew. He pointedly urged larger salaries and more prompt payment as an appreciation of their work.

He gave expression to the pleasure it afforded him, being an outsider, to see the different Christian bodies of the town meeting in a welcome service to a new minister, said it was in striking contrast with the spirit of ten years ago when the people were not united in anything. He rejoiced in the coming of this new era when peace, harmony and co-operation prevailed, congratulated the new minister that his advent was under such auspicious circumstances and eloquently welcomed him to the city on behalf of the citizens generally without regard to politics or religion.

Mayor Whedbee's address was a gem, and we regret that he is so pressed with other duties just now that he could not prepare a full copy of it for publication.

REV. B. F. HUSKE'S ADDRESS.

We have met tonight for a definite purpose. That purpose is to welcome the Rev. Mr. Cook to our midst.

The welcome is in our hearts, yours and mine, it is my part to be one of the voices that speak our spirit of welcome.

Standing here as a citizen, as one interested in the spiritual life of the community, as a minister of the Gospel of Christ, I extend a sincere welcome to Brother Cook.

We welcome him to be a citizen, to believe in our town and people, we welcome him to be a captain in the army of the living God, to strengthen the forces that work for righteousness and for God—we welcome him to be a minister of our Master, Jesus Christ, to go in and out among our people with the message of God's love. We welcome him not simply to come among us, but to work among us. We welcome him to be a power for good in our midst, to work for civic righteousness, for moral uplift, for spiritual development, to leave an impress among us that will last forever. We welcome him to do his work for our people and to bring us nearer to God and to hasten the coming of the Kingdom of Christ.

The welcome I pray for him to receive is not simply the one that makes him happy at his coming, but the welcome that lasts through all the years, comforting him in his trials and adversities, helping him in his undertakings, and supporting him in all his work.

This occasion has a meaning, we Christian brethren, men of different denominations, are gathered for one purpose. This is a time when we do well to speak of Christian unity. I long for the town of Greenville to present to the world an inspiring example of Christian fellowship and co-operation. Let us remember what we have in common to make us united; we have a common work before us, we have the same God above us.

Through the night of doubt and sorrow,

Onward goes the pilgrim band,
Singing songs of expectation,
Marching to the promised land.
Clear before us through the darkness
Gleams and burns the guiding light:
Brother clasps the hand of brother,
Stepping fearless through the night."

"One the light of God's own presence
O'er His ransomed people shed,
Chasing far the gloom and terror
Brightening all the path we tread.
One the object of our journey,
One the faith which never tires,
One the earnest looking forward,
One the hope our God inspires."

"One the strain the life of thousands'
Life as from the heart of one,
One the conflict, one the peril,
One the march in God begun:
One the gladness of rejoicing
On the far eternal shore
Where he One Almighty Father
Reigns in love for evermore."

"Onward therefore, pilgrim brother,
Onward, with the Cross our aid,
Bear its shame, and fight its battle
'Til we rest beneath its shade."

REV. D. W. ARNOLD'S ADDRESS.

I am thankful for this opportunity. It gives me great and unlimited pleasure to welcome you, Mr. Cook, to our town. Sir, I am prone to the opinion that your people here will be delighted to promulgate your success, as to that matter all the citizenry of Greenville will do so with gladness.

In olden times, a new comer, entering a house for the first time had to read his passport. I am thankful that such is unnecessary now. But I trust it will be easy for you to read your welcome in our open arms and grateful hearts. Your coming among us is hailed with joy. We need you and we are thankful for your presence. We trust that our homes, our friends, our entire town, will be the better for your having cast your lot with us.

Some weeks ago there could be seen on a banner floating to the breezes at Harvard, this expression, "Harvard has waited two hundred years for us." It is true, Harvard now has the greatest body of students that ever graced her halls, and their prospects are the brightest that ever gleamed before the student body there.

We, sir, have waited until 1909 for you to make your advent in to Greenville, and I am sure that the prospects were never more bright for any of the ministers called to shepherd this flock, than for you.

We hail your coming with delight. And now, sir, on behalf of the Christian church of Greenville, and as her humble servant, I extend you cordial greeting, and most hearty welcome. And, sir, I pledge you my unstinted and loyal support, to the end, that we may work together for the glory of our God and the saving of precious souls. When in need of us, call on us and you shall have us.

PROF. RAGSDALE'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Cook: By request of the committee, and speaking as the representative and in behalf of this church, it is my happy privilege to extend to you its greetings as pastor.

The field to which you come is one that calls for arduous labors and many cares. Duty discharged in it will not lead through paths always hedged with roses, nor can you at all times repose on flowery beds of ease, but it is a field of promise and one of opportunity.

To this work, to these opportunities, and to this prospect of success we welcome you.

Leadership and the power to command, even though it take the "big stick" we grant you with the promise that we will follow wherever you lead.

We welcome you to the sick room, where sorrow may be lightened and grief softened by the blessed promises of the Gospel you preach. We welcome you to our homes, that by sweet communion, fellowship and companionship the hearts of those who now love Jesus may be gladdened, and the ones of the household who are now strangers to His love may by your influence be lead from the paths of sin into a holier, sweeter, happier and more useful life. We welcome you as a member and the director of all the organizations of the church, that they may be patterned and fashioned in accordance with the will of our Master.

We grant to you leadership in all the services of the church that they may be uplifting, inspiring and elevating, and bring honor and glory to the name of our King.

We welcome you also to the Sunday school, where are gathered from Sabbath to Sabbath our brightest and best, who are to be trained for a higher, brighter, holier and more useful life.

May your presence in this ever be a benediction as you shall exhibit the spirit of our loving Lord.

Last but not least, we welcome you to our hearts, loyal and true, to our affections, warm and constant, to our devotions, marked and known by all men, and to our fixed determination to uphold your hands in whatever you undertake in His name by our best efforts and our most earnest prayers.

To the work, to the cares, to leadership, to the sick room, to our homes, to all the organizations of the church, to the Sunday school, to the innermost recesses of our hearts, to our affections, to our devotions—to all these we gladly welcome you, praying God's richest blessings upon you and yours as you come among us.

May our love, our loyalty and our devotion be yours. May joy, happiness and the consciousness of duty well done be yours here, and at life's close an abundant entrance into that larger, higher, purer, holier, happier, brighter life yonder with our Savior in our eternal home.

REV. J. B. COOK'S RESPONSE.

Mr. Chairman, brother ministers, neighbors and friends: This in indeed a beautiful and gracious welcome you have extended to me tonight and it has touched my heart.

I beg to assure you that I am not insensible to the high honor you confer upon me or the obligation it lays upon me to live among you worthily and faithfully the life of a good minister of Jesus Christ.

I am reminded, however, that this is not so much a personal honor conferred upon me as it is a tribute to Him in whose name I come—to Him "whose I am and whom I serve."

In responding to the cordial and eloquent words which have fallen from the lips of the gentlemen who have preceded me, I cannot find words to express my heartfelt appreciation of good will and brotherly kindness to the "stranger within your gates." I am glad I am to be a citizen of no "mean city," but one where the spirit of modern progress and development—material, educational and spiritual, is evidenced on every hand.

I have been welcomed tonight as fellow citizen, fellow servant and fellow helper, or as a man, a minister and spiritual friend.

Every ambassador of the Heavenly Kingdom must, if he would make the most of his ministry to this world, recognize these relationships to the community in which he lines.

The minister is a man—a citizen, and as such he must act as a man. When he accepts ordination he forfeits none of his rights as a man nor relinquishes any of his privileges as a citizen. Therefore as a man among men his high calling should serve only to intensify his holy ambition to be the best man in his community, an example to others. The fact that his "citizenship is in heaven" should not cause him to forget that he is a member of society and as such should do a good man's part. The fact that he is striving to "render unto God the things that are God's" does not relieve him of the necessity laid upon him to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." The minister then should be a broad minded, big hearted, public spirited citizen, contributing cheerfully of his time, talents and substance to the commonwealth.

As a minister he is a man with a message—a message from God—a message to the hearts and consciences of the people to whom he expounds the Word of the Lord, a message delivered not in the "enticing words of man's wisdom" but in "the demonstration of the Spirit and of power". That the faith of his hearers may not "stand in the wisdom of men but in the power of God". He should speak with authority and while his theme should ever be "Jesus Christ and Him Crucified" he must not neglect the great practical question of the day which are the material outcome of such Gospel preaching, viz: Missions, education and moral reform. In these great fields of Christian endeavor he will find abundant opportunity to cultivate that broad and generous spirit of Christian co-operation with other Christian people not of his particular fold but which is so desirable and helpful in a community like our's.

But it is as a pastor we get our closest, sweetest and holiest view of the minister's character and life. As "under shepherd" watching over his flock, feeding the sheep, carrying the lambs in his bosom and the weak upon his broad shoulders, rejoicing with them in their prosperity and comforting them in their sorrows present with them on the bright festal occasions when their sons and daughters are, by his words, made one in the holy bonds of marriage, or kneeling in tender prayer at the bedside of their sick or before the open graves of their death.

God being my witness and my helper I accept my task in His fear and assure you that with a firm hand, a watchful eye and a tender heart I shall endeavor to do my duty.

MONDAY, JAN. 11, 1909.

Governor Kitchin will be inaugurated tomorrow.

President-elect Taft will sail from Charleston on the 25th for his trip to Panama, but the seceders are envious because the name of the cruiser on which he will take voyage is North Carolina.

South Dakota has become ashamed of the money that State got out of North Carolina through the aid of Butler and Russell in that old bond suit, and a bill has been introduced in the legislature out there to return the money.

The meeting of electors of the State to cast their vote for president and vice president, the inauguration of a governor and other State officers, the meeting of the grand lodge of Masons, in addition to the daily sessions of the legislature, ought to fill Raleigh's cup of happiness full for one week.

The Raleigh News and Observer sought an interview with Hon. Moses Harshaw, the Republican leader in the house branch of the general assembly, in regard to increasing the governor's salary and gave much prominence to that gentleman's expressions in favor of it. Possibly Mr. Harshaw thinks he can look down the future and see a Republican occupying the governor's chair, and if the salary is increased in advance of such a contingency the Republicans could not be accused of doing it just to give their fellow more pay.

The senate acted very promptly on the suggestion of Governor Glenn is his message that the salary of the governor should be increased, and passed a bill providing that the salary be $6,000 a year. But it looks like the matter will fail to get through the house in time to effect the incoming governor inaugurated on the 12th. A similar bill to the one passed by the senate was introduced in the house and referred to committee on salaries and fees. This committee met Saturday afternoon to consider the matter but took no action except discussing the bill, though it was ascertained that had the committee voted it would have been almost unanimous against the bill. The governor's salary ought to be larger. Governor Glenn says that during his administration it cost him $2,000 a year more than he received. A great State like North Carolina should pay her governor as much as a congressman receives.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

the record of the last legislature. It appropriated more than the taxes collected enabled the treasurer to pay out, and this has produced serious complications and difficulties.

With the youth of our land needing education, the unfortunate ones in our institutions for the insane and the deaf and dumb and the blind, and other departments asking needed help, we must either declare a policy that will make provision for all, or else declare that we will take no more in our institutions of learning, in the Soldiers' Home or in our eleemosynary institutions, making no provision to protect our records, documents, etc., and leaving our youth to go elsewhere for an education or get none; our unfortunates to suffer and become dependent on the state, instead of breadwinners and producers, and our records run the risk of destruction and our departments render inefficient service for lack of room.

To me there is only one way to meet the emergency, and that is to issue enough bonds to accomplish what is necessary to be done. Of course, you will hear objections from some good men, who will say, "Don't issue bonds; let us pay as we go, or else not make any improvements." I have already shown you that we are practically out of debt; in fact, our assets are more than we owe, and therefore we can easily issue enough bonds to put all institutions in a good and healthy condition and provide for an administration building without increasing our tax rate one cent, and these bonds in a few years will be paid off by the enhanced value of our property and a better assessment in taxation. No one objects to going in debt more than I; but what would become of individuals, corporations, counties, cities and towns if they adhered to the policy of "paying as you go?" We issue bonds to build good roads, inaugurate waterworks, enlarge our plants, educate our children, etc.; then why should a state do patchwork, thus dwarfing its resources and crippling its possibilities by turning hundreds of our youths from our schools for lack of room, shutting the door in the faces of our unfortunates and refusing to make adequate provisions for the protection of our records, papers, etc., and the transaction of necessary business? I recommend, therefore, that you appoint a wise business committee that will act for the state's truest interest, which committee shall investigate what is necessary for these institutions to render efficient service to the state, commensurate with our present requirements and conditions, and then find out the amount required to do this work; and then if the amount derived from taxes is not enough to do all that is required, issue enough bonds to do what is necessary. It will not take very much, and the good accomplished will be so great that all thinking people will soon approve your acts. Just now we need wise statesmen to look at these things as they are, and then have the courage to carry out what they deem to be right; and when this is done, I feel that all patriotic people, regardless of party affiliations, will approve your course.—Extract from Governor's Message.

Wabby and Weak Versus Solid and Strong.

Water can't rise above its level.
Nor can a community rise above the level of its citizenship.
If the citizens are lukewarm, limp and lazy, the town will be wishy-washy, wabby and weak.
If the citizens have VERTEBRA, VIM AND VIGOR, the town will be substantial, solid and strong.
Let's all brace up and make this town of ours a place of energy, ambition and enterprise.

A FABLE OF NIGERIA.

The Crafty Spider and the Way He Paid His Debts.

The following fable of the spider is one of the folk tales of northern Nigeria:

A spider, it seems, had occasion to borrow a sum of money. A journey round to the generously disposed brought him 2,000 covies each from the cat, the dog, the hyena, the leopard and the lion. When pay day came round, the spider remained at home to receive the visits of his creditors in a certain prearranged order. First came the cat to claim repayment of his loan. "Hush!" said the spider. "I hear a noise outside. It is a dog come to see me. You must hide under this calabash for safety." The cat was scarcely hidden when the dog, coming in, made a similar request for his money. Says Master Spider, "There is a cat under that calabash. Take him and consider the debt paid." No sooner said than done. Just then a snuffling and scraping were heard at the door. The third creditor, the hyena, had arrived. "Don't be alarmed, my dear dog, but hide here till he has left." And the spider hustled him under the calabash. "I smell a dog," said the hyena, routing about. "Under that calabash," the spider replied. "Eat him up, and your debt is paid." The dog paid the penalty of his simplicity, and all was quiet once more. The hyena was preparing to leave, when he heard an ominous sound that sent him crouching against the wall. It was the pattering of the leopard's feet at the door. "Quick! Under this calabash!" cries his host, and the hyena curls up in the fatal cache, only to meet a like fate from his more courageous enemy. "My debt is repaid," said the leopard, and ran against the lion coming in. A terrible fight ensued, for the leopard and the lion are equal in strength, so the natives say. When blood and dust make havoc in the house and both animals are exhausting their strength the spider is busy at the fire. Seizing a pot of boiling grease, he pours it over the clawing mass. Leopard and lion roll apart in their death agony, and the spider has only to straighten and clean up before resuming once more the humdrum life of fly catching. No wonder he is known as "Matwayo," the crafty one.

Bismarck and Music.

Bismarck's utterances regarding music are compiled in a book by Kendall. "Fürst und Fürstin Bismarck, Erinnerungen aus den Jahren, 1846-1872." Kendall once saw the man of blood and iron shed tears during a performance of Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata. His favorite composers were Beethoven and Schubert. The only thing he did not like in their works was the variations. These, he said, "do not speak to the heart." Concerning the sonata just referred to he remarked: "This is like the singing and sobbing of a whole human life. If I heard this music often I should always be brave."

Ma Meant Well Anyway.

A young woman overheard an old negroes call to a picaninny, "Come back, Exy, Exy!" "Excuse me," said the young woman, "but isn't that a queer name for a baby, aunty?" "Dat ain't her full name," explained the old woman, with pride; "dat's jes' de pet name I call fer short. Dat chile got a mighty grand name. Her ma picked it out in a medicine book. Yessum, de chile's full name is Ecema."—Ladies' Home Journal.

AN IRISH CONSPIRACY.

Now an Ulster Reporter Duped a London Correspondent.

A correspondent sends us an amusing instance, for the truth of which he vouches. "It was the time of the plan of campaign," he writes, "and the English Tory papers were doing their best to prove that Ireland was in a condition that would make an armed insurrection at any moment not at all surprising. One of the leading London papers sent over its picked correspondent, a man with a splendid ignorance of everything Irish and a splendid willingness to believe anything of a sensational nature he could hear. Among the places he visited was a little town in Ulster that was about as quiet a spot as he could have singled out anywhere between the north pole and the Rock of Gibraltar. He had the reporter of the local weekly paper into the hotel with him, and over the whisky he set himself to extract from that rather unscrupulous person the 'truth about Ireland.'"

"Is it true," he asked, lowering his voice for a question of so grave an import, "that the peasants are being drilled every night in the use of arms?" The local man could have burst out laughing, but he contented himself with a quiet twinkle and admitted solemnly that the state of the country was getting desperate. The truth seeker then said he was determined to get at the bottom of things and wondered if there was any possibility of his being a witness of one of these midnight drillings. The local man after pondering for a moment thought it might be managed, though it would involve some danger, but he was sure the other didn't mind that.

"It was pouring weather the next night, and the great correspondent was taken away from the fire in the hotel and given a walk of a mile or so along a dark, muddy, deep rutted road. Then he had to scramble through a gap in a hedge and over a wall into a field and walk on tiptoe toward the side of the field. Here he had to get down into the ditch and move along on his hands and knees through the nettles and brambles that he dared not even curse for fear the 'rebels' would hear him. At the end of the field, however, drenched, dirtied, stung, pricked, he had his exceeding great reward. Kneeling in several inches of water, with his chest pressed against a bank of wet earth, he was able to peep through a hole at the bottom of the hedge at certain dim figures in the next field. They were being walked up and down, and now and then the word 'Halt!' or some other word of command was sternly spoken in an undertone and rigorously obeyed.

"It was too dark to see very clearly, but it was clear the conspirators were armed with something long, either pikes or rifles, which they raised into the air every now and then. The local man admitted that this was only one of many fields where such things were nightly practiced. The visitor crawled back to his bed, sore and sneezing, but happy, and probably he tells his friends to the present day of how he saw Irish rebels at their wicked midnight work. Of course the 'conspirators' were only a few of the boys of the place, whom the local correspondent had put up to the joke, and the rifles and pikes were nothing worse than a few simple sticks cut from a hedge."—London Mail.

FAMOUS LONDON TREE

The Cause of Several Hard Fought Legal Battles.

ITS SITE WORTH MILLIONS.

But the Lawyers Never Have Been Able to Break Through the Phalanx of Legal Enactments That Preserve the Old Landmark in Cheapside.

There is a tree in Cheapside, London, that may be described as the most expensive of its kind on earth. If five dollar gold pieces filled the entire trunk and five dollar bills fluttered in place of every one of the leaves it would not buy the terra firma it occupies, for the land on which it stands, the northwest corner of Wood street and Cheapside, is worth $4,500,000 an acre. The tree has stood on the spot for more than 200 years, while its site has augmented in value to almost fabulous proportions.

There have been several hard fought lawsuits over this plot of ground, the fight having been carried even to the house of lords. But so far the lawyers never have been able to break through the phalanx of legal enactments which preserve the tree. In the first place, there is a law in England which prohibits builders from putting up a structure which shall keep out the light from windows which bear the mysterious words "ancient lights." This tree in Cheapside literally is surrounded by a number of "ancient lights" proprietors whose consent never has been obtained when it came to cutting down the tree and putting a modern structure on its site. For the same reason the storekeeper who rents the tiny two story structure on the corner just in front of the tree never has been able to put his building up beyond its present height.

Some years ago one builder, who thought himself more "cute" than the others, started to take the law into his own hands and put up a building, thinking to "arrange" with the owners of the "ancient lights" afterward. But he was met with a perfect shower of injunctions, proceedings, writs and indictments, more than would have covered the tree in its full spring bloom, and it is said he never has been able to pay the thousands of dollars of law costs which his little experiment resulted in.

A few years ago some gardeners were ordered to lop off certain limbs of the tree which hung over Cheapside. It was done really to save the life of the tree and with the consent of the parish clerk and churchwardens of St. Peter's, Cheapside, the ancient little Norman church in Foster lane, near by, who guard this tree from the vandals' clutches. When the men began to work on the tree, however, it created a big sensation in Cheapside. "They are chopping down our tree," went up from a thousand angry throats in the district. Policemen were called, and doubtless there would have been another shower of writs, injunctions and proceedings had not the minister of the parish explained the real reason for the lopping operations.

Another almost impassable barrier which protects the tree in its position is the fact that it grows in sacred ground. There is a law in London that no building can be erected on sacred ground without special act of parliament, and woe betide the unhappy man who dares to put up even a shanty within the sacred precincts of a graveyard in England.

This particular corner of Cheapside has been immortalized by Wordsworth:

At the corner of Wood street when day-light appears
There's a thrush that sings aloud; it has sung for three years.

This bird was wont to perch in the now famous tree, and it attracted the attention of Wordsworth, who used to breakfast in a little shop near by. As far back as the year 1392—just a hundred years before Mr. Columbus discovered America—another tree stood in this graveyard and is spoken of by Chaucer:

That whosoever ploynes it away,
He shall have Chrystis' curse for aye.

The tree is therefore a direct descendant of perhaps the oldest tree on record in England, and it may almost be described as an English institution.

This particular portion of Cheapside is back of the general postoffice and is one of the finest pieces of real estate in the world. With the tremendous difficulties that stand in the way of its being built over—the sanctuary of the land itself and the power of the "ancient lights" statute—it is probable that this piece of ground will remain "unimproved" for another century or two. In a recent interview the manager of the real estate agents who control nearly all the land in the district declared that "the old tree in Cheapside occupies a position which is likely never be built upon." There would be a perfect howl of execration from all sides if any one were to attempt to put up a modern building there, for Wood street itself is so narrow that the people on both sides of the street have a right to claim "ancient lights," and the builder who went in for improving this property would have to "square" so many people that he would never be able to get any profit out of the building.—New York Press.

Easily Explained.

An old lady who was a passenger on one of the ocean liners seemed very much more afraid of the icebergs than of logs or storms and asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision.

"Macam," the captain replied, bowing low, "the iceberg would move right along in its course just as if nothing had happened."

And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Not Needed.

Frank Lincoln, an entertainer and humorist, had been appearing in London for a time in a monologue. One afternoon he had just made his bow and was about to begin when a cat walked in and sat down on the stage.

"You get out!" said Mr. Lincoln severely. "This is a monologue, not a catalogue!"—Success Magazine.

Lost and Wanted.

The polite shopwalker obsequiously approached the square jawed, austere looking woman who stood before the "lost and found" counter at the special sale.

"Madam, have you lost anything?" he politely inquired.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "I've lost a hundred and fourteen pounds of husband, in a light brown suit, with black bowler, small tuft of hair on its chin, two scars on its temple and a frightened look. I lost it in a crush at the fancy goods counter. It's probably wandering through the building in search of me, and I want it on account of a bundle it's carrying under its arm. I thought perhaps you could find it easier than I can."

The Navigating Jellyfish.

Scientifically, of course, the popular idea of the jellyfish is wholly mistaken. But it is perhaps only in tropical waters that he is found in the perfection of intelligence. In the south Pacific, around the islands of Polynesia and as far south as the upper portion of the north island of New Zealand, there is a jellyfish that not only knows where he wants to go, but is even provided with a sail, which he can and does hoist or lower at will. The sail, like the rest of this curious animal, is almost transparent, but, unlike the body of the fish, which is of the usual gelatinous construction, the sail is a membrane almost as hard as shell.—London Standard.

The more one speaks of himself the less he likes to hear another talked of.—Lavater.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

Representative R. R. Co. ten came down from Raleigh Saturday evening to spend Sunday at home and returned there this morning.

Mrs. M. H. Quinerly, Misses Annie Perkins, Bettie Tyson and Helen Forbes and K. W. Cobb left this morning for Raleigh where they joined the special party for a trip through Florida and Cuba.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

They Had an Interesting Session Saturday.

Reported for Reflector. Despite the inclement weather, there was a good attendance at the Teachers' Association Saturday and the programme was somewhat informal but full of interest from beginning to end.

After the devotional exercises conducted by Rev. J. B. Cooke, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, the president called the association to order. In the absence of the secretary, Miss Ada Tyson, Miss Elizabeth Boushall acted as secretary pro tem.

The first paper by Miss Hulda Cox on, "How to organize a Betterment Association," was an able one. It was practical, thus giving her own experience in the work.

"Primary Reading" was next discussed by Miss M. M. Mitchell, teacher of the fourth grade in the Greenville graded school. It was one of the best papers we ever heard on reading. She has kindly consented to allow it to be published in The Reflector in near future, so we will not attempt to comment on it further, only that every teacher in the county ought by all means to read it.

"The Round Table Talk" conducted by the president was truly interesting. We were sorry indeed that the time for adjournment suddenly closed this very practical discussion on the different phases of our school work.

A vote of thanks was extended by the association to D. J. Whichard for the beautiful cards containing a toast to North Carolina. He presented one to each teacher who would have it framed and put it in her school room. The association also truly appreciates his great kindness in giving it the use of his columns from time to time in publishing programmes and reports of the meetings.

The Betterment Association regrets very much to lose Miss Bettie Wright, one of the Greenville graded school, as its president. On account of continued illness she has had to give up her here. The association unanimously elected Miss M. M. Mitchell of the Greenville graded school to fill her place and we are confident that they have made a most excellent selection.

Also in the continued absence of Miss Ada Tyson who has been unavoidably detained, the Teachers' Association elected Miss Jamie Robinson assistant secretary. Miss Elizabeth Boushall was elected reporter in the place of Miss Wright whose absence has been explained above.

Resolutions of Respect.

The members of the Woman's Missionary Society and of the Ladies' Aid Society of Greenville Memorial Baptist church, realizing their great loss in the recent death of Mrs. Alice Harper, who was a member of both societies, desire to give expression to this tribute to her memory.

Mrs. Harper was one whose love for the service of Jesus and faith in Him, whose devotion to duty, kindness of nature, gentleness of spirit and patience in suffering, made an example worthy the emulation of all. Hers was a pure, sweet, gentle, Christ-like life that was a blessing to the world. We shall miss her wise counsel and helpful hand from our meetings and work.

Resolved, That while we are deeply sorrowful at the death of Mrs. Harper, we do not grieve as those without hope, having faith to believe she has only passed to the home the Savior has prepared for those who so faithfully serve Him while on earth.

Resolved further, that we express our heartfelt sympathy to the children and relatives so sorely bereaved by her death; that this tribute be inscribed upon the records of our societies, and also be published in The Reflector.

TIME TO ACT

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness Profit by Greenville People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect this ill. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Greenville prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. J. F. Stokes, Cor. Twelfth and Evans Sts., Greenville, N. C., says: "For some time I suffered severely from kidney complaint. The kidneys were very irregular in action and at times caused me great annoyance. I had bearing down pains through my abdomen and sharp shooting twinges through my loins causing me untold misery. There was a tender spot across my kidney regions and at times my limbs pained intensely. I finally read of Doan's Kidney pills and was so much impressed that I procured them at Wooten's drug store. They soon relieved the pains in my sides and limbs, restored the secretions to a regular and normal condition and at present I am feeling a great deal better in every way. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for the great improvement in my condition."
