AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Jan. 12, 1909.

Frank Lilly left Tuesday for the Oxford Orphan Asylum taking with him three little Jones children to enter that grand old institution, as many boys and girls have done before. This home has been a God send to the poor orphans and made of them noble citizens.

Wm. Burney, father of our townsman, E. Frank Burney died at his home in Swift Creek township, Friday. He was a good farmer, neighbor and citizen and will be sadly missed in that community.

Bill Jenkins, colored, with state reputation as a ditcher, died suddenly Friday. His chimney caught fire and as the flames were extinguished he reclined against a stump, and when his son went to him he was dead, from heart failure.

John Cheek and Alphonzo Jenkins left Monday for Raleigh to attend the inauguration of Gov. W. W. Kitchen, the Grand Lodge of A. F. & A. M. and visit friends in the State senate.

G. F. Cooper has moved his family from Lee street, over in "Ghent" on Third and Blount streets.

W. A. Ayers, of Pantego, has moved his family to South Ayden. He is tradesman for the large lumber plant.

J. E. Jones, of Oriental, has moved his family to Ayden. Mr. Jones is representing the International Harvester Company of America. We welcome him in our city.

Dr. Riddick, our clever dentist, has embarked in house keeping and lives at the intersection of First street and East avenue.

J. R. Smith made a business trip to Winterville today.

J. M. Blow, was ordered up to Greenville Monday because he failed to listen to leap year proposals.

Prof. J. A. McArthur and his able corps of teachers attended the teachers meeting at Greenville Saturday and report a most enthusiastic meeting under the leadership of Prof. Ragsdale.

A. E. Garris and family spent Sunday at Littlefield.

We regret to learn of the illness of Capt. T. F. Johnson, who is confined to his bed with severe case of rheumatism.

C. A. Blount and D. G. Berry are having their residences remodeled and this will add much more to the looks of the "Ghent" part of our city.

The Finch Club.

Reported for Reflector.

The finch Club met with Miss Doris Overton, Saturday Jan. 9, 1909. After playing three games of finch the prize was awarded to Miss Minnie Exum Sugg for having won the three games.

Delicious refreshments were afterwards served.

The members elected Miss Doris Overton president and Miss Lelia Higgs secretary and reporter. The club adjourned to meet with Miss Eria Critcher Feb. 6, 1909, declaring Miss Doris Overton an excellent hostess.

Small Boy Loses Both Legs.

Wake Forest, Jan., 11—While enjoying the dangerous pastime of "hopping freight trains" J. Vass, the thirteen year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Woodlief, of this town, had the misfortune of losing both his legs.

GUM SWAMP ITEMS.

Gum Swamp, Jan. 9, 1909.

We were glad to welcome our charming teacher, Miss Lizzie Beverly, back into our midst Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Stokes and son, Hugh, went to Ayden Friday.

W. E. Tyson has been a frequent visitor of C. C. Meeks for the last three weeks. I wonder why?

We were surprised a few Sundays ago by a quiet little marriage, when R. E. Harris, of Falkland, claimed Miss Retha Warren as his bride. They left on the morning train for northern cities.

They will probably make their home in some northern city for awhile, then perhaps they will leave America for foreign (?) cities.

Miss Susie Leggett, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. C. C. Meeks, returned to her home at Tarboro today.

Will Teel was up this way Sunday. It is strange he did not visit us during the holidays.

Little Miss Velma Stokes is visiting her little uncle, Guy Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Warren, Herbert Gurganus, Misses Ethel and Stella Faithful were visitors at J. E. Warren's Christmas, also Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Harriss.

R. H. Parker, Z. T. Harriss, Johnnie Tyson, C. L. Parker, Willie Tyson and Eppie Reddick were visitors of Misses Lillian Pollard and Lizzie Beverly Sunday night, also Misses Bertha Tyson and Alice Hudson were present.

C. L. Parker, J. R. Everett, Mrs. A. V. Pollard, and Miss Lillian Pollard, also Misses Susie Leggett and Nannie Hudson spent Christmas evening with Miss Bertha Tyson. They were in the midst of their pleasures when Miss Alice Hudson entered the parlor to their surprise.

There was quite a number of little tete-a-tetes being enjoyed when Mrs. Tyson summoned us to the table that could not be surpassed by a French cook, and think it was prepared by her own hands. Mr. Tyson has a wife to be proud of. If there were more of her kind in Pitt there would not be so many "old bachelors."

Miss Nannie Hudson, of Grimesland, returned to her home last Thursday after spending sometime at J. C. Tyson's.

Johnnie Tyson spent Christmas day at Grimesland and returned that afternoon, accompanied by Miss Alice Hudson, who is now visiting his sister, Miss Bertha Tyson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rives went to Greenville today.

Improvements.

S. M. Schultz, is making more improvements about the front of his store. Where the basement extends out under a portion of the sidewalk for light he has covered it with metal and glass skylight which adds much to the appearance.

The sidewalk beginning at the postoffice corner on Third street and extending the distance of the brick buildings, is being graded down and will be laid with concrete.

For Rent—House on Fourth street formerly occupied by B. W. Moseley. Contains 6 rooms and kitchen, electric lights. 112 dtd W. B. Wilson.

Twelve Year Old Girl Abducted.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 11.—W. C. Barker, a prosperous farmer, is locked up in the Henrico county jail without bail, on the charge of having abducted Martha Rohm, the twelve year-old adopted daughter of Cal Husselman, who lives on the Seven Pines road near this city. Barker denies that he has done anything wrong, but that he took the girl because he wanted to marry her.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

Miss Carrie Brown left this morning for Durham.

Mrs. J. F. Kemp, of Washington, is visiting Mrs. J. W. Bryan.

Mrs. M. M. Nelson returned Monday from a visit to Scotland Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Hart returned Monday evening from Beaufort.

Mrs. William Tunstall and Mrs. R. C. Lassiter, of Snow, are visiting Mrs. J. S. Tunstall.

Miss Mitchell, one of the graded school teachers who has been quite sick, is much improved.

SEVERAL GASHES IN NECK.

Woman Found Weltering in Her Own Blood.

Apex, N. C., Jan. 11.—Ghastly and horrible was the scene which greeted the eyes of Mr. R. B. Beasley, a citizen of this town, this morning before day when, being aroused by the restlessness of one of his children, which were sleeping with him, he arose to find his wife prostrated on the hearth, sweltering in her own blood, a new born child lying by her, and a few feet distant on the floor a bloody razor with which she had evidently made the several gashes in her neck, from which the red life fluid was freely flowing. Tonight little hope is entertained for her recovery.

For sometime Mrs. Beasley had been brooding over the death of her youngest child, which occurred several months ago, but further than this she seemed to be in a normal state of physical and mental health last night.

Union Welcome Service.

The Presbyterian church was taxed to hold the immense congregation that gathered to extend a welcome from the evangelical churches of the city to Rev. Mr. Plyler the new pastor of the Methodist church.

After singing, Rev. Dr. J. C. Caldwell, president of the Atlantic Christian college, temporary pastor of the Christian church, read the scripture and offered prayer. Rev. H. B. Seagriff, of the Presbyterian church, in a short, graceful speech, introduced Mr. Plyler. The sermon by the new minister was much enjoyed. It was based on the text from Psalms 4:1. "In my distress Thou hast enlarged me." Many kind and favorable remarks were made of the preacher's ability.

After the discourse Rev. R. V. Omer extended words of welcome from the Christian church. His speech was full of zeal and fervency.

Rev. J. A. Sullivan extended words of greeting from the Baptist church.

This spirit of Christian co-operation and fellowship among the denominations of the city, means much for the religious condition of Washington, and should be fostered and encouraged.—Washington Messenger, 11th.

Residence Changes Hands.

Register of Deeds W. M. Moore has purchased of T. E. Hooker the house and lot occupied by the latter on Dickinson avenue. Mr. Hooker will move to one of the Munford houses in South Greenville where he will reside until he builds a new home on a lot on Fifth street which he purchased sometime ago.

There are a number of business men here who have much to do yet before filling the measure of their duty in helping Greenville go forward.

There is just this thing about being watched: The man who faithfully discharges the duties of any position in which he is placed, is not afraid of scrutiny.

Gov. R. B. Glenn retires from office with the love and esteem of the people of his State. He has made a great governor, and his administration can always be pointed to with pride. We do not believe his retirement from official life will be for long.

Criminal Procedure.

To give relief to some crowded dockets, and for the more speedy enforcement of the criminal law, with proper safeguards preventing too lenient punishment of crime. I recommend that in every town, city and township there be appointed or elected one or more persons as recorders or trial justices, who shall have jurisdiction to try and punish all misdemeanors. This system has worked well in many of our cities and greatly relieved the Superior Courts from the trial of criminal cases. It has been repeatedly suggested that the State be divided into two judicial circuits, half of the judicial districts being in one circuit and the other half in the other, the judges of a district rotating in the circuit, as they now do in the State. This would save an immense amount of expense and time to our judges, who are now paid little enough, and certainly could do no harm, for the governor, as now, could have the power to allow judges to exchange courts from one circuit to the other, if any good reason was assigned, and could also order a judge in one circuit to hold a special court in the other circuit, when there was no judge available in the first circuit. In all criminal cases the challenges allowed the State and defendant should be the same, for, by reason of the present challenges especially in capital cases, a defendant can virtually pick a jury to his liking, and thus justice often miscarries. This practice grew out of the fact that formerly a defendant could not testify in his own behalf, and it was felt that he should have some advantages in selecting a jury. Now, however, he can, and no good reason exists for giving a defendant so much advantage. I also insist that you thoroughly examine all the judicial districts, equalize them in accordance with the amount of work necessary to be done, and then put solicitors on a salary.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

All executions for capital offenses should be held in the State's prison at Raleigh, and not in the county where the offense was committed, and should be by electrocution, and not by the old and barbarous mode of hanging. I believe this change can be made without any amendment to the constitution, and it will, in my judgement, prove very satisfactory. — Extract from Governor's Message.

National laws can be made once a year. County laws can be made once a month or oftener. City laws can be made weekly, semi-monthly or monthly according to the city. Why should State laws be made only every four years? The North Carolina legislature should meet every year and sit for ninety days as the governor proposes. — Greensboro Telegram.

Why He Liked the Song.

A man who knew nothing of music and prided himself on the strictly business views he took of men and things told Mr. Frederick E. Weatherby that what he liked most about his song, "Nancy Lee," was its sentiment. Mr. Weatherby was pleased, as he relates in London M. A. P., and asked the man what it was in the sentiment which specially appealed to him. "The refrain," he replied. I pressed him to tell me what it was in the refrain he liked so well. "Why," he said, "it is the common sense of the thing." On further pressure he said: "Don't you remember what you wrote?" "Not precisely," I answered. He was good enough to repeat the refrain to me. "The sailor's wife the sailor's star shall be." "Well?" I said. "Well," he replied, "if the sailor's wife is his star, she would always be able to keep her eye on him."

Sky Signs.

Whether clear or cloudy, a rosy sunset presages fine weather; a sickly looking, greenish hue, wind and rain; a dark or Indian red, rain; a red sky in the morning, bad weather or much wind, perhaps rain; a gray sky in the morning, fine weather; a high dawn, wind; a low dawn, fair weather. Remarkable clearness of atmosphere near the horizon, distant objects, such as hills, unusually visible or raised by refraction and what is called a good "hearing day," may be mentioned among signs of wet, if not wind.—London Tit-Bits.

The Explanation.

Magistrate (to clergyman, summoned for exceeding speed limit)—Well, you say you were only going at eighteen miles an hour, and the constable still declares you were traveling at thirty. Now, I don't like to doubt either of you. Can you think why he declares you were going at that rate? Is there any grudge he owes you?" Clergyman—No, I can't think of anything—unless, perhaps, it is that I married him three years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

A Truthful Scholar.

I met an honest boy this morning," said a man who is fond of children. "He was a little round faced, blue eyed chap with a stack of books under his arm, going to school as fast as his feet would carry him. 'Do you like to go to school, lad?' I asked him. 'No, thir,' he lisped, giving me one brief honest look and hurrying on past. Most children would have said yes, to make a hit with you, but this boy was not that kind."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Jury's Verdict.

A south Missouri man recently was tried on a charge of assault. The state brought into court as the weapons used a rail, an ax, a pair of tongs, a saw and a hoe. The defendant's counsel exhibited as the other man's weapons a scythe blade, a pitchfork, a pistol and a hoe. The jury's verdict is said to have been: Resolved, That we, the jury, would have given a dollar to have seen the next.

WILLING TO DEAL.

But His Terms Didn't Suit the Man Who Found the Watch.

A well known western detective was talking about football crowds. "They are usually," he said, "the most respectable of all crowds. I had, however, an odd experience at a game in Chicago.

"I started out at the end of the first half to get a glass of soda. There was a young man in front of me, a young man in a baggy suit and a soiled collar. He walked slowly. I was almost treading on his heels. Suddenly he stopped, and I nearly tripped over him.

"No, you don't!" he said, with a kind of sneering laugh, as he rose. "You seen it first maybe, but I was too quick for you, wasn't I?"

"He showed me a watch that he held in the palm of his hand. The ground was muddy, his knees were brown with mud where he had knelt, but the watch was unsoiled. A thick, solid looking affair it seemed to be.

"Hard luck, cully," he went on, and he walked on beside me, brushing his knees. "You saw it first, but I was the quickest and copped it out. Hard luck, old man. I guess it's worth twenty-five, plunks, this here ticker. What do you think?"

"I examined the watch. 'It looks to me to be worth every cent of a hundred,' I said heartily.

"And I copped it!" he chuckled. "You saw it first. By gosh, you nearly upset me! I was too quick for you, though. Hard luck!"

"He paused and gave me a kindly look.

"Say," he exclaimed, "I don't want to be mean. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll go halves. You saw it first."

"Oh," said I, "you are too generous. Halves would be too much."

"Well, then," said he, "I'll make it a third. You was the first to see it. Then a third of it's yours."

"Do you mean it?" I cried.

"Every word," said he. "I'm no shyster!"

"All right," said I. "That makes your share, then, $33. Give me $15, and we'll call it square."

"He gave me a keen, frowning look. He thrust the watch into his pocket.

"Fresh!" he muttered and vanished in the crowd."—Exchange.

Wanted to Make Sure.

A number of students from a German university were drinking in a beer garden. A self satisfied looking American said to one of the shortest and stoutest students: "I'll bet you $5 you can't drink seven schooners of beer!"

The Dutchman hesitated, then declined the bet and left the room. In ten minutes he came puffing back, hurried up to the American and exclaimed:

"I will take der bet!"

The beer was ordered, and the Dutchman in the presence of an admiring and envious company quickly drank off the seven schooners.

The $5 were paid over, and the American asked:

"Would you mind telling me why you went out before you took the bet?"

"Nein; to see could I drink der seven schooners, what?"—Bohemian.

Russia's Great Fair.

What surprised and struck me most about the fair was the great size of it. One hears of the fair of Nijni and one pictures to oneself a quantity of small booths in a market place. One does not realize—at least, I did not—that the fair is a large town, consisting entirely of shops, hotels and restaurants. The most important merchandise that passes hands at the fair consists of furs. But there are goods of every variety; secondhand books, tea and silks from China, gems from the Urals and "art nouveau" furniture. There are also old curiosity shops rich in old church vestments.—From Barin's "Russian Essays."

NIGHT IN THE DESERT.

The Sky and the Stars as Viewed From Broad Sahara.

The nights in the desert are as beautiful as the days, though in winter they are often bitterly cold. With the assistance of a warm bed and plenty of blankets, however, one may sleep in the open in comfort, and only those who have known this vast bedroom will understand how beautiful night may be. If one turns to the east, one may stare at Mars flashing red somewhere over Arabia, and westward there is Jupiter blazing above the Sahara. One looks up and up at the expanse of star strewn blue, and one's mind journeys of itself into the place of dreams before sleep has come to conduct it thither. The dark desert drops beneath one. The bed floats in midair, with planets above and below. Could one but peer over the side the earth would be seen as small and vivid as the moon, but a trance holds the body inactive, and the eyes are fixed upon the space above. Then quietly a puff of wind brings one down again to realities as it passes from darkness to darkness. Consciousness returns quickly and gently, points out the aspect of the night, indicates the larger celestial bodies and as quickly and gently leaves one again to the tender whispers of sleep.

When there is moonlight there is more to carry the eye into the region of dreams on earth than there is in the heavens, for the desert spreads out around one in a silver, shimmering haze, and no limit can be placed to its horizons. The eye cannot tell where the sand meets the sky, nor can the mind know whether there is any meeting. In the dimness of coming sleep one wonders whether the hands of the sky are always just out of reach of those of the desert, whether there is always another mile to journey and always another hill to climb, and, wondering, one drifts into unconsciousness. At dawn the light brings one back to earth in time to see the sun pass up from behind the low hills. In contrast to the vague night the proceeding is rapid and businesslike. The light precedes its monarch only by half an hour or so, and ere the soft colors have been fully appreciated the sun appears over the rocks and flings a sharp beam into the eyes of every living thing, so that in a moment the camp is stirred and awakened.—Arthur E. P. Weigall in Blackwood's Magazine.

Hair Ropes and Snakes.

The curious black rope was made of hair.

"It is going out to India," said the dealer. "We ship lots of hair ropes out there. They are placed on the floor about beds to keep the snakes off."

"Snakes won't cross a hair rope. Inside a hair rope you are as safe from a snake as though inside a steel case. Cowboys know this, and lots of them, in rattler infested regions, carry lariats of hair that they lay in ellipse form on the ground and sleep in when necessity makes them camp out on the plains."—Buffalo Express.

The Burning Diamond.

The great French chemist Lavoisier proved by actual experiment that the diamond is combustible. He imprisoned a diamond in a glass vessel containing air and standing over mercury. By means of a burning glass it was then ignited, and the resulting vapor, being confined in the vessel, was subjected to close chemical scrutiny. This vapor was found to be nothing more nor less than carbonic acid gas, a gas that consists of carbon and oxygen and is produced whenever any form of carbon is burned.—New York American.

The Basis.

He—I wonder if we can get along all right. She—Certainly. We can buy the auto with the money father left me, and you will surely make enough to pay for running it, don't you think?—Puck.

A Peculiarity of English.

Still another peculiarity in our English language has been pointed out by a foreign linguist. This time it concerns the use of the pronoun "I." He says:

"If a Frenchman writes with reference to himself, he makes 'je' (the French equivalent of 'I') with a small 'j.' So with the German, who may use capitals to begin every noun, but he always uses the small 'i' in writing 'ich.' The Spaniard avoids, so far as possible, the use of the personal pronoun when writing in the first person, but he always writes it 'yo,' taking pains, however, to begin the Spanish equivalent of our 'you' with a capital. In English it is surely big 'I' and little 'you.'"

Cleaning a Clock.

There is a very popular belief that when once a clock has made a trip to the clocksmith's it is never thereafter just "right," and certainly it is not desirable to expose a clock to the unavoidable jolting that the handling entails if it really does not have a broken part, but merely needs cleaning, and this is very often the only trouble with the clock that "won't go." Take a lump of cotton about the size of an egg for a medium sized clock, more for a larger, and saturate it with kerosene, placing it on the floor of the clock, after which the case should be tightly closed. The clock should be kept running, if it can be wound without opening the case; otherwise allow it to run down. In four days the works will be as clean as when new and the cotton will be black with particles of dirt which have been loosened by the kerosene fumes.—Suburban Life.

An Astounded Parson.

Of a certain bishop, famous as being the plainest man in England, the following pleasing tale is told:

One day, as this homely parson sat in an omnibus, he was amazed by the persistent staring of a fellow passenger, who presently unburdened himself as follows:

"You're a parson, ain't you?"

"Well, yes, that is so."

"Look 'ere, parson, would you mind comin' 'ome with me to see my wife?"

Imagining the wife was sick and needing assistance, the clergyman, at great inconvenience to himself, went with the man. On arriving at the house the man shouted to his wife to come downstairs, and when she did so he pointed to the astonished parson and said, with a grin of delight:

"Look 'e 'ere, Sairy. Yer said this mornin' as I was the hugliest chap in England. Now, just look at this bloke!"—London Illustrated Bits.

The Signet Ring.

"The seal or signet ring," said a jeweler, "once had a very practical use. In the middle ages, when nobody but the priests could write, men stamped documents with their signet rings, as the illiterate now make their marks.

"The signet rings of noblemen bore the owner's crest or arms. The rings of merchants bore intricate monograms, trademarks or the like. There are certain old European firms that preserve in cabinets the seal rings worn by their founders, rings whose seals are inscribed with the trademarks still in use."

TIRING OUT THE STAG

A "Deer Take" in England's Oldest Deer Park.

HOUSED UNTIL HE GASPS.

The Game Animal is Mercilessly Driven Hither and Yon, Through Lake and Wood, Until He Falls Exhausted, Though Undaunted.

Parts of certain great parks in England, such as Eridge park, the oldest deer park in the kingdom, are kept practically wild in their original forest state, while near to the castle is the cultivated home park. Eridge park contains 3,000 acres and is the only estate in England, with one exception, where deer taking with hounds is still carried on. Eridge park once formed part of the royal chase. It still retains the wild beauty it then had, although there are more than seventy miles of lovely drives in it, not counting those of the home park.

Deer taking is entirely different from deer hunting. The object is to take the animals alive so that they may be transferred to the home park to be fattened and eventually turned into venison.

The sport is by no means as tame as it sounds. A seven to nine year old red deer is an awkward customer to tackle. He is powerful, agile and well armed with antlers and hoofs.

When there is to be a deer taking at Eridge park the meet is planned for 11 o'clock at the park keeper's house. The underkeepers, with fresh hounds, are scattered through the park to head off the stag should he come their way.

The underkeepers having spread themselves over the park, the park keeper, with the "field" (those following mounted and on foot) set off to find a deer which looks ready for fattening purposes. Having selected one, it is the work of the keeper to get him separated from the rest and then to slip his hound and set after him as hard as we can gallop. The pace, of course, is tremendous, and as rabbit holes abound the risk of a fall is even better, or rather, a trifle of odds on the certainty of our "taking a toss."

As our deer bounds away with his wonderfully easy, elastic movements he makes for the widest part of the park, expecting to escape his pursuers. In one place after another he is met with hidden keepers and fresh hounds, till with the instinct of his species he turns to what he thinks is his sanctuary—the lakes. With open mouth and tongue outstretched he plunges a good fifteen feet into the water and swims for the opposite bank. Gasping and tiring, he lands on what he hopes is freedom from his pursuers. But, alas, no! Yet another fresh hound is after him. What can he do? He is too pumped with his already hard burst to face the hill before him.

He turns around and tears down through the bracken with a bound on each side of him, ready to pull him down if they get but half a chance. It is a dingdong race, under trees, through bogs and bracken, up and down dells and breaks, smashing headlong through everything, anything, to reach the shelter of the friendly water once again. With a mighty spring he is in again. For a moment there is breathing space, for now the keepers and hounds, yet some way off, are making for the poor beast, which is in the middle of the lake. Away he swims with graceful movement of his noble head, glancing all around at his pursuers, but with his mind fixed on his line of retreat. He reaches the shore, and, with dripping sides, he is out upon the bank.

Again he makes an effort to baffle and leave behind those clinging hounds that would bear him down. And now two great hounds are stretching themselves out to their utmost pace. Side by side they race after their tiring quarry; in another minute they will have him. The stag, however, manages to make a spurt, though he is now stiffening rapidly, and just reaches some park palings surrounding the big lake.

In an instant he has turned on his pursuers, and with head down and upraised fore leg he is prepared to fight to the death. A hound rushes in, but in a twinkling he is on his back, hurled away like a piece of wood. This checks the other hound, which dodges and buys around the stag. Seeing that things are now getting a bit too warm for him, the stag suddenly turns round and, smashing the palings like match wood, finds himself again in the icy water of the big lake. Away and away he swims, up this long stretch, the water seeming to revive him, for he swims the eastern length, three-quarters of a mile, and then lands at the far end while he follows on the shore. He swims till his feet touch the ground and stands facing us.

All we can do now is to end the situation as speedily as possible. A keeper deftly throws a rope with a loose knot over the stag's antlers. In a moment four busy keepers are hauling him out by the ropes. It is now a slow march to his feeding ground in the home park. Slowly the procession moves, never a slackening of the rope or the hold on the antlers. Through the gate dividing the parks he is brought, an unwilling prisoner, though undaunted. This ends the deer taking.—Town and Country.

Never think that intellect is nobler than the heart, that knowledge is greater than love. Not so! A thousand times no.—Frances Power Cobbe.

BED OF THE OCEAN.

The Rainbow Colors of the Bottom of the Sea.

The mud on the bottom of the deep sea, instead of being black or brown, is all the colors of the rainbow. Marine deposits in either deep or shallow water at a distance of from 100 to 200 miles from the coasts of the United States and Europe are whitish, being largely composed of minute shells reduced to powder and mingled with volcanic dust and tiny mineral fragments torn away from shore by the action of the waves and currents. In the Arctic and Antarctic waters continental rock fragments are mixed with the other deposits.

In greater depths, far from land, under the northeast Pacific, the ocean floor is carpeted with clay, ranging from brick red to a reddish chocolate. This clay is soft, plastic and greasy to the touch while wet, but when dried cakes into a hard, compact mass which can only be broken by a smart blow from a hammer. When rubbed with the fingers or any hard substance the fragments become glazed and shining like earthenware, though far less brittle.

In this red clay minute red worms almost invisible to the naked eye are found, but whether the worms are colored by the ooze they inhabit or the ooze owes its ruddy hue to them is a question yet undecided by marine scientists. Another kind of mud is straw color, becoming cream white when dried, when it is soft and light as ashes to the touch and sticks to the fingers like fine flour, which it closely resembles.

In tropical seas at considerable distances from land mud is found of a deep rose color, shading to milky white. Nearer land this mud becomes gray or bluish gray. Blue mud is only found on the bottom of some tributary or arm of the sea. The blue color is caused by organic matter and sulphide of iron. The unpleasant odor of this mud is due to sulphureted hydrogen.

Green mud and sand are developed along bold and exposed coasts—as, for instance the Atlantic coast of the southern United States and on the Agulhas bank. The green colored sand, which sparkles in the sun like pulverized emeralds, is usually found in shallower water than the mud—that is, in about 449 fathoms to 513 for the mud. Neither is discovered at less than 100 nor more than 900 fathoms.

Around islands of volcanic origin the mud varies from light gray to brown and black. Coral mud, red and white, is found, of course, near the coral reefs and islands. Along the Brazilian coast the ooze is identical with that in the Yellow sea near the mouth of the Yangtsekiang, being red brown in color and yielding the same deposits on analysis.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
