LAUGHINGHOUSE-COBB.

Young Couple Join Hands and Hearts Tuesday Afternoon.

A beautiful day and a beautiful scene marked the beginning of a happy wedded life on Tuesday afternoon, when at "Cobbdale" the elegant country home of Mr. B. P. Cobb, nine miles from Greenville, his charming daughter, Miss Mary, became the bride of Mr. Ned Laughinghouse, of Greenville. The ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. J. B. Cook, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, Greenville.

Many friends from the neighborhood and from Greenville began arriving about noon to witness the happy event. The halls and several rooms of the house were decorated in splendid taste with holly and white and pink carnations. The rooms were darkened and soft lights added beauty to the decorations.

As the guests arrived they were served with punch in the hall and then invited into the dining room where a salad course and mint ices were served.

Promptly at the appointed hour as Miss Anna Howard, of Kinston, played Lohengrin's wedding march, the bridal party entered the parlor.

First came the dame of honor, Mrs. C. C. Cobb, of Norfolk, dressed in blue messaline satin and carried a bouquet of Palmer violets.

Following came Mr. W. T. Lipscomb, Jr., with the maid of honor, Miss Mary James who wore white net over pink silk and carried a bouquet of Palmer violets.

Then came the groom with his best man, Dr. Henry Best, of Wilson.

The bride entered with her father. She was most becomingly dressed in a green coat suit ready for going away, and her bouquet was bride roses.

After the words that made them man and wife had been impressively said and the assembled friends had offered congratulations, the couple drove to Greenville and departed on the 4:30 A. C. L. train for Richmond where the groom has an important position with the American Tobacco Co.

The popularity of the couple was shown in the very large number of bridal presents received.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Laughinghouse and an exceedingly popular man. For his bride he won a truly charming young lady. The best wishes of all go with them to their new home.

Governor Glenn Goes North.

Ex-Governor R. B. Glenn left the city last night for New York, and will make a series of lectures in that State, in Pennsylvania and in Virginia for the next two weeks.

The eloquent ex Governor yesterday signed an agreement for a second year's work in the lecture field, in which his friends predict for him a most brilliant success. It is a work in which he delights and he will attract large audiences.—Raleigh News and Observer.

ROCHDALE SPROUTS

Rochdale, N. C., Jan. 12, 1908.

We went to Farmville to draw the lot or the gold, but all we got was a good coat of mud on one side from the buggy wheels while coming home in the evening.

R. E. Willoughby and C. E. McLawhorn went to Greenville Wednesday on business.

Mrs. John Pittman and Miss Elma Pittman, of Falkland, passed through our town Thursday on their way home from the Carman-Dixon marriage, in Greene county.

We had a cold wave and some snow and sleet with it Thursday night.

Mrs. C. E. McLawhorn was going out at the door Friday morning and slipped and fell on the bottom step. She hurt her left leg below the knee and has been suffering right much pain from the bruise.

J. B. Joyner has moved to the Seth Tyson farm.

B. P. Willoughby moved to the Alfred Joyner place.

J. S. Fulford has moved to Mrs. W. L. Cobb's place.

John Baker has taken J. S. Fulford's place.

Calvin Joyner has moved on a portion of the W. L. Cobb farm. Haywood Smith has stopped clerking for C. D. Smith and has accepted a position on one of Dr. Moye's farms to superintend the farm.

Lloyd Smith has moved to the Lizzie Willoughby place.

C. E. McLawhorn went to Greenville Saturday evening to have some of his little boy, Alton's, teeth extracted.

Mrs. M. F. Smith returned home Saturday evening after spending about three weeks with her daughters, Mrs. A. J. Willoughby.

Mills Smith went to Greenville Saturday on business.

Ivy Smith went to Greenville Saturday.

F. M. Smith went to Greenville Saturday.

G. Hinton Crumpler will, Providence permitting, preach at Smith's school house Sunday, Jan. 17th, morning and night. He is a student at the Atlantic Christian College at Wilson, and is a fine speaker. We hope all who can will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Nichols, of Poketink, passed through our burg Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McLawhorn went to Alfred Nichol's Sunday evening.

We can hear the wedding bells ringing at Cobbdale and I guess that before this reaches the printing office two hearts will be made one.

Whooping cough is raging in our section at a high rate just now. Some of the children are in a critical condition with it.

Coming Next Week.

The Demorest Comedy Co., composed of 15 people, will open a week's engagement in the opera house here on next Monday night. The company is composed of good actors and our people will be pleased with the performances. The opening bill will be "The Miner's Daughter," a thrilling play.

On Monday night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort with a paid ticket purchased before 6 o'clock p. m. Popular prices will prevail through the week, 15, 25 and 35 cents.

THE LEGISLATURE.

What Our Law Makers Are Doing at Raleigh.

SIXTH DAY

Tuesday being inauguration day, both branches met earlier, but the sessions were short.

SENATE

The senate met at 10:30 and the first business was the report of the committee on rules. This report made very little change in the rules that governed the session of 1907.

Among the bills introduced were these:

By Jones: To amend the Revisal relating to public schools.

By Hanks: To erect a fire proof building for the state library and museum.

By Blow: To amend the law relating to township boards and supervisors.

By Britt: To place Madison county in the tenth congressional district.

HOUSE

The house met at 10 o'clock. All the new bills introduced were purely local in nature and of little importance. Other committees were named by the speaker.

At 11 o'clock the two branches met in joint session to canvass the returns of the last election and declare the result, and following this all the state officers were inaugurated.

"Perils of a Great City."

This charming play will be presented by home talent at an early date. The cast has been well taken and much interest is manifest in the rehearsals now in progress. Our people certainly have a treat in store for them and they should watch for announcement of the date on which the play will be given.

MUSIC CLUB ORGANIZED.

Ladies Have Interesting Meeting With Mrs. T. E. Hooker.

On Friday afternoon Jan. 8th, Mrs. T. E. Hooker very charmingly entertained a number of friends.

After being served with punch by Miss Vernessa Smith, all were invited in the parlor where Mrs. J. W. Higgs and Mrs. W. L. Hall delighted those present with an instrumental and vocal solo.

There were two guessing contests, the first being questions, the answers of which were some musical term. Mrs. Carper and Mrs. Woodward tied for the prize and was it drawn by Mrs. Carper. The second was a romance of the civil war, the answers being old familiar songs.

The object of the meeting remained a secret until just at this time when Mrs. Hooker announced that a musical club for Greenville had been thought of and by several of the ladies. We had with us Mrs. Willingham, who has had experience in clubs of this kind. She gave an account of one she was interested in at Knoxville. After some discussion the club was organized to be known as the Friday Afternoon Musical club.

The following officers were elected, president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

After being served with delicious refreshments, all left for home having spent a most delightful afternoon.

This club will be limited to 20 members. Any one desiring membership will please present their name at the next meeting which will be held with Mrs. J. L. Carper Friday afternoon, Jan. 29th. Sec.

The annual oration was delivered by Major Robert Bingham, of Asheville.

During the past year the membership of the Masonic order in North Carolina increased by 1,000, there now being in the State 19,000 Masons.—Raleigh News and Observer.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 13, 1909.

We think the "pitchfork" got the best of it.

Governor Kitchin will get no more salary than his predecessor received.

Governor Kitchin was given a brilliant inauguration Tuesday, and all wish that his administration may be equally brilliant.

With the inauguration over the legislature can now get down to hard work. One thing we hope the body will take action on is a provision for a change in the homestead law.

The governor of Tennessee opposes the prohibition law that is being considered by the legislature of that state. The time has come when there is not much surprise at anything that happens in Tennessee.

Another rascal has been added to the list of absconders. Thomas Canler, who was superintendent of the cotton mills at Selma, used money belonging to the mill and ran away rather than face his crime. The amount of his shortage or stealage has not been given out.

An article in yesterday's paper, taken from the Greensboro Telegram by the omission of a line from the copy made that paper say just the opposite from what it did say. The last sentence of the clipping should have read "The North Carolina legislature should meet every year and sit for thirty days, instead of every four years and sit for ninety days as the governor proposes."

Though it was his last day in office, we doubt if Gov. R. B. Glenn ever had a happier, prouder day than Tuesday. He retired from office with a conscientiousness of duty well performed, and bearing the fullest esteem and gratitude of the people of his State. Two instances occurred in his office that day in which this esteem was expressed. The other State officers joined in presenting him with a gold watch and fob, and the women of North Carolina presented him with a silver service. The gift from the good women was to show their appreciation of his efforts in their behalf in ridding the State of the sale of whiskey.

Good Roads.
 In my judgment, the greatest need today in North Carolina is good roads, and here, too, the geological survey has already done much service. When inaugurated in 1905, I said: "Mud next to illiteracy, levies the highest tax on a state, and bad roads are a curse and a hindrance to the business, education and progress of a people." Dr. Pratt's recommendation as to the kind of highways we need meets my approval, and I hope a fuller and more up-to-date measure relating to roads will be passed at this session, for one needs only to study the improvement in counties having good roads over those having roads without proper grade and full of mud to know what better highways mean for the growth and wealth of a county or state. During my administration I have taken an active interest in every measure looking to the improvement of our roads, making many speeches in the interest of bond issues for this purpose, and doing what I could to bring the minds of the people to a healthy sentiment along this line. The people are now ready for the work, and I commend to this legislature and the incoming governor as the one paramount need of the hour good roads; and if the next administration should accomplish nothing but this one result of better highways, it would forever deserve the thanks of a grateful and rapidly enriched people. Dr. Pratt is in possession of so much valuable information about the subject above discussed that I have requested him to remain in Raleigh during your session, to the end that you may see and fully converse with him concerning matters fraught with such vital importance to our people. —Extract from Governor's Message.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Clever Dog.
 "Yes, dogs are undoubtedly sagacious animals," Jones said to his friends, "but none of your dog stories will beat this. My friend Johnson had a most intelligent retriever. One night Johnson's house caught fire. All was instant confusion. Old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled out with them pretty sharp. Alas! One of the children had been left behind, but up jumped the dog, rushed into the house and soon reappeared with the missing child, which he deposited on the lawn. Every one was saved, but Rover dashed through the flames again. What did the dog want? No one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with—what do you think?"
 "Give it up," chorused the eager listeners.
 "With the fire policy, wrapped in a damp towel, gentlemen!"

A Correction.

Six-year-old Marjorie and four-year-old Josephine were making their first transcontinental trip—from New York to San Francisco—and, of course, encountered new marvels at almost every mile of the trip. But the crescendo of their ecstatic outpourings was reached when they saw their first Indian families—braves, squaws and paposes.

"Oh-h-h!" sighed Josephine, gazing wide eyed at the moccasined, gaudily blanketed squaws. "Ain't those squashes just splendid, though!"

Marjorie's equally deep admiration was momentarily quenched in her feeling of responsibility as elder sister monitor, and she eyes Josephine severely as she admonished:

"They ain't squashes, Josephine; they're squabs!"—New York Times.

Disadvantages of a Clock.

"There used to be a big clock above that door," said the woman shopper. "What has become of it?" "We took it down," the clerk replied, "because it scared away customers too long before closing time. When that clock was in plain view women who maybe had an appointment or wished to catch a train kept an eye on it, and when they found it was getting late they left the store with their shopping only half done. With the clock out of the way, they are not reminded so constantly of the passing time, and so they stay till they have bought what they want, no matter how long it takes."—New York Press.

The Way to His Vote.

Lord Beaconsfield's skill in picking up stray votes was well known. An illustration of it is given in a book by Henry W. Lucy.

At the time that the Imperial titles bill was pending there was a certain pompous little Irishman, Dr. O'Leary, who seemed manageable and was desirable. One evening in the lobby Disraeli laid a hand familiarly on his shoulder.

"Dear Dr. O'Leary, the resemblance is most striking," he said. "I really thought I saw again my old friend Tom Moore."

The vain little gentleman was captured.

He Hrs Back.

There had been a domestic spat at breakfast.

"You monster!" snapped the matron, who was always scolding. "You are not like my two former husbands. They were tender men."

"I never doubted that they were tender, Maria," ventured the meek man. "When you kept them in hot water all the time." And he just cleared the front porch two yards ahead of the rolling pin. — Chicago News.

Clergyman—What do you mean, Pat? You are no carpenter. Pat—No, but if it rains next Sunday O'll sit over the hole.—Pearson's.

THE BOLOMETER.

By This Instrument Is Measured the Heat From the Stars.

A star ray, however bright, could hardly carry, it was imagined, even the smallest fraction of a degree of temperature across such immense gaps of empty space. But this idea was proved incorrect by the late Professor S. P. Langley, who, with the aid of a wonderful instrument of his own invention, called a "bolometer," succeeded in measuring the heat delivered upon the earth by several of the stars, such as Alpha Centauri, Arcturus, Aleyone and Sirius.

For this purpose the star ray was caught upon a large mirror disk, which was so arranged mechanically as to follow the twinkling orb in the heavens, reflecting the ray in such a manner as to cause it to fall upon the center of another mirror of concave shape. The second mirror in its turn, concentrating the ray, threw it upon a thread of platinum about the thickness of the filament a spider spins. Through this thread a current of electricity was kept continually flowing. In order to determine the temperature of the platinum thread it was merely necessary to measure its electrical resistance—such resistance varying directly with the temperature of the metal—and this was accomplished by the aid of an extraordinarily sensitive galvanometer.

The galvanometer in question was a balance, the beam of which was a thread of spun glass five inches long and less in diameter than a human hair. In the exact middle of the beam was a concave mirror no bigger than a large pin head and so accurately made that it would fit perfectly upon a sphere about six feet in diameter. It also was of glass, weighing only two and one-half milligrams—about as much as the hind leg of a fly—and was fastened upon a square piece cut from a dragon's fly wing. The whole affair was suspended from a fiber of spun quartz crystal two feet long and one five-thousandths of an inch thick.

When the concentrated star beam fell upon the platinum thread its heat, inappreciable to ordinary human sense, raised the temperature of the metal, changing its electrical resistance correspondingly, and thus caused the beam of the balance to move. To record this movement a ray of candlelight was allowed to fall upon the tiny mirror already described, which threw it upon a measuring scale of white paper, where it appeared in the shape of a tiny dot of light. As this dot of light ran along the measuring scale it indicated exactly the amount of change in the temperature of the platinum thread—in other words, the amount of heat carried by the star ray.—Technical-World Magazine.

Cruelty to a Wife.

It was a happy inspiration, and Mr. Flexby immediately acted on it, as his appetite was particularly keen. Ringing up his wife on the telephone, he said:

"I'd like to bring a friend home to dinner this evening. Have something good."

"Why, certainly, my dear!" responded Mrs. Flexby.

"John," she said later, "you told me you were going to bring a friend home to have dinner with us, and I've done my best to prepare a really nice meal. Now, where is he?"

Mr. Flexby did not even blanch.

"My dear," he responded, "I said I'd like to bring a friend. I couldn't find one to bring. If dinner's ready, let's make a start. I'm hungry!"—Chicago Journal.

A BRAVE BLACK MARE.

When Flung to Death She Saved Herself and Her Colt.

A man of the name of Walker, who lived in Mansfield, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., about 1857, bought a black mare in Canada. After having her a few years he sold her to a minister, who had her bred. When her colt was about five months old the minister emigrated to the west and shipped the mare and colt at Buffalo on a vessel for Chicago with himself and family.

The boat encountered a terrific gale soon after leaving Buffalo and came near going to pieces. Everything that in any way was thought to relieve the danger was thrown overboard. Among the rest were the mare and colt, with a number of other horses. The boat finally weathered the storm and arrived safely at Chicago.

The minister was repaid for his mare and colt. He wrote Mr. Walker about it and said, although he received ample pay for the mare and colt, it nearly broke his heart when he saw them struggling in the water, where they must shortly drown in the waves of old Lake Erie.

Soon after this Mr. Walker received a letter from the man of whom he had bought the mare in Canada, saying he was thunder-struck one morning to find the black mare, with a fine colt by her side, standing by the old barn door. How she got there was the puzzle. Had Mr. Walker sold her to some one in Canada or how was it that she came back home?

Finally the thing was explained. The boat happened to be somewhere near where the mare was raised, and when she was thrown overboard she must by some sense have found out she was near her old home, started that way and was followed by her colt. The man said he would never let her again be taken from the farm if he could help it, but was willing to pay for her. How it was at last settled I never learned, but many old residents of Cattaraugus county will remember the circumstance, which was considered a remarkable happening.—Em Pierce in Our Dumb Animals.

GAVE THE ANSWER.

A Soldier Who Followed the Orders of General Jackson.

Illustrative of the exasperating ease with which chickens occasionally "come home to roost" is this story from "A Soldier's Letters to Charming Nellie." On a day in June, 1862, in the early part of the civil war General Hood of the Texas brigade halted each regiment in turn and gave his orders. To the Fourth he said:

"Soldiers of the Fourth, I know as little of your destination as you do. If, however, any of you learn or suspect it, keep it a secret. To every one who asks questions answer, 'I don't know.' We are now under the orders of General Jackson, and I repeat them to you."

General Jackson also gave strict orders against foraging, but apples were plentiful, and it was contrary to nature for hungry soldiers not to eat them, and so it came about that on the march to Staunton General Jackson came upon a Texan sitting on the limb of an apple tree busily engaged in filling his haversack with the choicest fruit.

The general reined in his old sorrel horse and in his customary curt tone asked:

"What are you doing in that tree, sir?"

"I don't know," replied the Texan.

"What command do you belong to?"

"I don't know."

"Is your command ahead of you or behind you?"

"I don't know."

Thus it went on, "I don't know" given as answer to every question. Finally Jackson asked sternly:

"Why do you give me that answer to every question?"

"Cause them's the orders our general gin us this mornin', an' he tole us he got 'em that er way straight from ole Jackson," replied the man in the tree.

Disgusted with a too literal obedience to his own commands, but yet not caring to argue the point, General Jackson rode on.

WHERE RICH MEN ARE FEW.

They Are as Scarce as Black Swans in Bulgaria.

Bulgaria is the nearest approach to a peasant commonwealth which the world has known in modern times. There is not a Bulgarian Slav who is not the owner of a plot of land upon which he lives and out of which he gets his own livelihood by his own labor.

Large landowners are almost unknown. The few men of wealth in the country are mostly of foreign birth or descent, and even they would not be counted as wealthy according to the standard of other European countries.

The small landowners, who form the vast majority of the population, are peasant born and peasant bred. They are extremely thrifty. They are content with very plain food. They wear the same sheepskin garments from year to year, only turning their coats inside out with the changes of the season.

Whole families, even of well to do peasants, sleep in the same room upon mats stretched out on the floor. They live under conditions of dirt and discomfort which no British or German or French laborer would tolerate for a week. Yet, notwithstanding their disregard of the simplest sanitary arrangements, they grow up singularly strong and healthy.

Moreover, they are free from the irritation caused among other laborers, overworked if not underpaid, by the spectacle of neighbors living in affluence and ease without any necessity to curtail their expenditure. Rich men are black swans in Bulgaria. I was told by a foreign banker in Sofia who had traded for many years in the country that he doubted greatly whether there were fifty men in all the rural districts who had net incomes of $5,000 a year.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

What the Sailor Will Do to Obtain Shore Leave.

As illustrating how men respond and adjust themselves to reward, or, what comes to the same thing, the maximum satisfaction for a given amount of effort, two instances that came under my observation while in the navy are very interesting. One cruise was made on a vessel whose executive officer was in most respects a very able man. Discipline in general was admirable. In arranging for shore leave of the enlisted men, however, he managed so to arrange matters, strange as it may seem, that it was possible for a man in an inferior conduct grade to get more liberty than one of the best behaved men. This was of course entirely unnatural and came about from a combination of two separate systems. The reason was that naval regulations compelled the giving of at least a certain amount of shore leave to men in the second grade, while the system he was using actually allowed less to a man in the first grade. The result was that in a short time the bulk of the men were in the second conduct grade where they could get the most liberty. At a later date, on another ship, the executive officer was an extremely able man, who had studied this question more carefully and was a great believer in making it worth while for the men to behave themselves and keep in a high conduct grade. He so arranged matters that if any man behaved himself sufficiently well and did all his work with high efficiency he could have an unusual amount of liberty. The result was that this ship had more than half its crew in what is known as the "special first class," far and away the largest percentage that ever came under my observation. —Walter M. McFarland in Engineering Magazine.

EDWIN FORREST.

The Great Tragedian's Acting Was Saturated With Realism.

Edwin Forrest, says William Winter in "Other Days," was an uncommonly massive and puissant animal, and all of his impersonations were more physical than intellectual, while no one of them possessed any spiritual element whatever.

From the first and until the last his acting was saturated with "realism," and that was one reason of his extensive popularity. He could at all times be seen, heard and understood. He struck with a sledge hammer. Not even nerves of gutta serena could remain unshaken by his blow. In the manifestation of terror he lolled out his tongue, contorted his visage, made his frame quiver and used the trick sword with the rattling hilt. In scenes of fury he snarled, snorted and snarled like a wild beast. In death scenes his gasps and gurgles were protracted and painfully literal. The fellow that he emitted when, as Richelieu, he threatened to launch the ecclesiastical curse almost made the theater walls tremble. The snarling yell of ferocity that burst from him when, as Jack Cade, he recognized and sprang upon Lord Say in the forest fairly frightened his hearers. His utterance of Lear's delirious prayer to nature was like a thunderstorm. Often he produced amazingly consolatory effects, affording ample gratification to the overstrained feeling of his audience, desirous—as in stormy passages of "King Lear" and "Othello," the forum scene of "Virginius," the statue scene of "Brutus" and the scaffold scene of "Damon and Pythias"—that something tempestuous and terrific should be said and done. There are times when it is a comfort to see somebody who can let himself go. Forrest could. His style accordingly had its positive, ample, undeniable merits, but neither he nor his apostles were ever satisfied with acknowledgment of those merits at their actual worth.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

The Powerful Motive That Moved the Commercial Traveler.

"No, I'm not whistling and singing because business is good," replied the hardware drummer. "What alls me is because I have a clear conscience for the first time in three years."

"Have you confessed to murder?" was asked.

"Gentlemen, don't try to be funny. This is a sacred thing. I was in Boston three years ago, and I picked up a package on the street. On opening it I found seventy-five $1,000 bills. The name of the loser was there, but I took that money and got out of town by the first train. My conscience told me that I was as bad as a thief, but I tried to stifle it."

"A drummer with a conscience?" sneered three of the listeners in chorus.

"I went to Chicago with the money," continued the drummer, "and invested it in real estate. I knew it was wrong, but I did it. Six months ago I found myself worth $200,000. Conscience would not down. It got so bad that I couldn't look even a confidence man in the face. At length I started for Boston and hunted up the loser of the wealth. I found him in his office and told my story. When it was finished I laid my all before him and asked his forgiveness."

"And what did he do?"
"I will tell you what he did, and I shall never forget it. He looked at me and saw how I was suffering, and he took me by the hand and said in a fatherly way:

"My friend, suffer no more. I was going to a poker game when I lost that money, and it would have gone anyhow."

"But what in thunder are you doing on the road if you are worth $200,000?" shouted a voice.

"Conscience again, gentlemen—conscience. It won't let me retire and leave you fellows to do all the lying!"

People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect this ill. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Greenville prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. J. F. Stokes, Cor. Twelfth and Evans Sts., Greenville, N. C., says: "For some time I suffered severely from kidney complaint. The kidneys were very irregular in action and at times caused me great annoyance. I had bearing down pains through my abdomen and sharp shooting twinges through my loins causing me untold misery. There was a tender spot across my kidney regions and at times my limbs pained intensely. I finally read of Doan's Kidney pills and was so much impressed that I procured them at Wooten's drug store. They soon relieved the pains in my sides and limbs, restored the secretions to a regular and normal condition and at present I am feeling a great deal better in every way. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for the great improvement in my condition."
