AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Jan. 19, 1909.

Last Saturday one week Dr. M. M. Sauls brought a filly for $1.00. After feeding it a week at a cost of $2 he sold it the next Saturday for one cord of wood payable next fall. The doctor is fast forging ahead as one of our shrewdest and best financiers.

Miss Anabel Kittrell, of Grifton, spent from Saturday until Sunday evening with Mrs. W. E. Hooks.

Mrs. J. T. Harris, of Washington, came up Monday to spend some time with the family of her father, J. S. Hines, near the graded school.

Frank White is rejoicing over a newly arrived accession to his already happy household.

Dr. Louis Skinner and H. A. White, of Greenville, were here yesterday.

Cotton seed are coming in rapidly. They are selling at 30 cents per bushel and our farmers are rushing them on the market.

Richard Wingate, H. L. Blount and J. M. C. Nelson left Saturday for Texas and Oklahoma on a prospecting tour with a view of later locating. Mr. Wingate has been out there before. Why such men as these should pull up stakes where they have been so blessed and successful as here, and leave for other parts is incomprehensible to us. One of these gentlemen, starting out in life a poor man without means, and being only about 35 years of age now, today has to his credit more than $10,000, cannot surely do better, unless he anticipates finding the tree whereon $20 pieces do grow and none but the lucky can pull. We hope, however, they may change their minds and conclude to remain here.

At the home of the bride's father, Mr. Titus Jolley, near Ayden, on Thursday 14th, Mr. Luther Dail was married to Miss Clara Jolley, Rev. G. C. Vaue officiating.

Friday J. W. Glenn bought from R. B. Sumrell, one of our large and successful farmers, 3000 pounds of tobacco for which he paid $510 an average of 17 cents per pound. How is that for a sale?

While the court house at Greenville may have no special attraction for certain of our citizens, still the irresistible magnet seems daily to draw them that way. Some, however, have taken to the woods.

J. J. Smith, who has been confined for several weeks at his home with sickness, was able to be up town Saturday. We are pleased to note such a decided change for the better.

Miss Lucy Turnage, who has been away on a visit, came home yesterday.

We regret very much to learn of the sickness of Miss Lena Dawson, one of the most popular teachers at the graded school. We hope she may soon be well.

If Johnnie Noble can't sport a moustache, he seems to have the art of sporting the girls down fine.

C. G. Moore, Ayden's chief of police, has been attending court in Greenville during the past week.

There were services in the Methodist and Christian churches Sunday conducted by their respective pastors, Rev. Mr. Bridges and Rev. Morton. Large congregations were in attend-

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., Jan. 16, 1909.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry went to Raleigh Thursday night to attend a called meeting of the board of trustees of the institution for the blind.

Mrs. Mary Jane Worthington, who died Tuesday morning, was buried at the Harrington burying ground Wednesday.

Henry Blount went to Greenville Friday afternoon. As stated by the Ayden correspondent, he will leave in the near future for a prospecting tour in the south. The "judge" (as the boys call him) is one of our cleverest and best men, and we hope him a successful and pleasant trip.

On Wednesday night about 10:30 our citizens were aroused by the alarm of fire. The house of Robert Sparkman, colored was on fire. By the heroic efforts of our people the main building was saved. The fire originated in the kitchen which was a few feet from the main building. This was burned. Our folks know how to throw water.

O. H. Jackson, who has been living about one mile from town for several years, has sold his farm and purchased one near Cary. He will move to it in a few days. We regret very much to lose this excellent family from our midst. Our best wishes will go with them.

W. C. Ellis, a former student of Buies Creek academy, is here talking to our young men in regard to selling religious literature next summer.

Mrs. B. T. Cox came in from Raleigh Thursday morning.

Miss Elizabeth Boushall went to Shelmerdine Friday evening to spend Sunday with relatives.

Several of our boys happened to tough luck on their way to and from the fire at Greenville Friday night. They can tell you about it.

MAIN BUILDING GONE.

Building Costing About $35,000 or $40,000 up in Flames.

Goldsboro, N. C., Jan. 16.—About 140 children were, in a measure, rendered homeless tonight, by the destruction by fire of the main dormitory building of the Odd Fellows Orphans Home. All occupants of the building escaped injury, so far as can be learned.

The city fire alarm was sounded about 10 o'clock tonight, but the orphanage being located beyond the fire limits of the city, the fire department was unavailable and the building, recently erected by the Odd Fellows Fellows at a cost of $35,000 or $40,000, went up in the flame.

The origin of the fire is unknown but it is supposed to have been caused by a defect in the electric wiring. The children were given temporary homes in other buildings and in homes of the citizens.

ance upon each.

Presiding Elder A. McCullen delivered a splendid sermon at the Methodist church Sunday night and held quarterly meeting Monday for that congregation.

Miss Carrie Smith, a teacher at the seminary, spent Sunday with her father near Greenville.

Buy Gilt Edge flour, the best of all, fresh car load just received. J. R. & J. G. Moye.

THE LEGISLATURE.

What Our Law Makers Are Doing at Raleigh.

ELEVENTH DAY.

SENATE.
Monday's session of the senate was devoted almost exclusively to local measures, the only exception being a bill by Senator Gay to punish public drunkenness in North Carolina.

HOUSE.

There were quite a number of new bills introduced in the house, yet only a few of them of general interest. Among these were the following: Morton: To separate white and colored convicts in the penitentiary and convict camps at sleeping and eating hours. Another bill by some representative to provide for better training of colored youth and thereby minimize race prejudice.

Latham: To regulate the sale of pistols and cartridges.

By Graham: To regulate the trial of capital cases, giving state and defendant each 12 peremptory challenges and the state not to stand any at the foot of the panel.

Dr. Cox's bill to prohibit killing squirrels between March 1st and October 1st in Pitt county, passed. Wayne county was added to the bill.

TO COMPLETE FIVE-MILE BRIDGE.

Contract for Completion of the Structure Across Albemarle Sound.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 16.—The receivers for the Norfolk and Southern Railway have let a contract to the McLean Construction Co. for the completion of the five mile bridge of the road across Albemarle Sound. The bridge will cost a million dollars. Work was stopped on it when the road went into the hands of receivers.

The bridge will be completed by the first of next year. It will take the place of the ferry between Edenton and Mackeys Ferry and save passenger trains one and one-half hours in crossing the Sound, and freight trains six hours.

It is Making Good

The Demorest Comedy Co. played to almost a capacity house in their opening Monday night. There were few vacant seats on either first floor or gallery. The large audience thoroughly enjoyed both the bill and the specialties. There is real merit in the company and it certainly gives the money's worth. A decided novelty was the playing by Mr. and Mrs. Demorest on different musical instruments, some of them never seen here before.

The bill for tonight will be "A Midnight Elopement." There will be a change of program each night during the week and a Saturday matinee.

School Observes Lee's Anniversary.

The half hour chapel exercise at the graded school this morning was devoted to a program in observance of Lee's birthday. There was a talk by Gov. Jarvis and some appropriate songs. Such exercises beget the spirit of patriotism in the hearts of the children.

Stock of Mdse. For Sale.

The stock of general merchandise in Farmville, N. C., in store recently occupied by M. Smith & Bro., must be sold at once. For terms &c., apply to J. B. James, Assignee, Greenville, N. C. Jan. 18, 1909. 118 tfd

SUPERIOR COURT.

January Term in Session—The Cases Disposed of.

The following cases have been disposed of:

James Smith, retailing liquor without license, guilty, judgment suspended on payment of cost.

Ed. Fleming, Ed. Fleming, Jr., Will Joyner and Neal Joyner, affray, both Flemings not guilty, both Joyners guilty, judgment suspended on payment of costs. George Phillips, Sr. secret assault, not guilty.

Judgment against Dennis Atkinson of 30 days on roads for carrying concealed weapon, was stricken out and judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

Mike Atkinson, larceny, pleads guilty of forcible trespass, judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

Charlie Price, murder, jury returned verdict guilty of manslaughter and recommended mercy of court. The defendant is the small colored boy who recently killed a girl by carelessly pointing a gun and shooting her. Judge Allen said he deemed it best to bind the boy out to some good man until he is 21 years old instead of sending one so young to the penitentiary.

Will Smith, assault with deadly weapon, pleads guilty, 60 days on roads.

William Watson, larceny, pleads guilty, 12 months on roads.

Beats Them All.

The most useful calendar The Reflector has received was sent by C. C. McDonald, of Raleigh. It is in four sheets, the first containing pictures of all the presidents from Washington to Taft, the Declaration of Independence with picture and signature of the signers, and a calendar for 1909. The second leaf has maps of North Carolina and South Carolina, and on the back is a list of cities and towns of both states with location and population. The third leaf has a map of the United States and Panama canal and tables of weights and measures, and on the back is the growth of our country with a list of all towns of over 3000 population according to census reports of 1880, 1890 and 1900. The last leaf is a map of principal countries of the world with capitals, area, population, debts, expenditures and revenues, and on the back is "in Congress July 4, 1776" with the declaration of the thirteen original States. Duplicates of this calendar can be had by sending 50 cents to C. C. McDonald, Raleigh, N. C.

Boy Taken Suddenly Ill.

On Sunday morning white at the wharf with some other boys, Bennie Corey, a little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Corey, was taken suddenly ill and fell unconscious to the ground. He was first taken to Hotel Greenville and later removed to his home where he is yet very sick. The attending physician thinks his sickness is due to ptomaine poison.

Have Not Bought Piano.

The Reflector has been asked to correct the item in Monday's paper that the Sunday school of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church had purchased a piano. The piano was placed there by an agent in the hope of making a sale, but it has not been purchased.

King's Daughters Meeting.

There will be a regular meeting of the King's Daughters tonight at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Blow. The meeting will only last one hour, from 7:30 to 8:30, in order that those may attend who have previous engagements for the evening.

"The Grand Old Man."

On Monday ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis celebrated his 73rd anniversary. May he yet have many more happy and useful years, filled with such deeds of love and devotion to his country as already stand to his credit. Greenville, Pitt county and North Carolina are more indebted to him than to any other man.

And They Turned Away Scrowful.

Two "ladies of color" presented themselves at the gallery entrance in the opera house Monday night, and asked admission. "Tickets!" demanded the doorkeeper, when one of them said "We thought you advertised that ladies would be admitted free tonight." "Where are your escorts with paid tickets?" again asked the doorkeeper. The escorts were not in evidence and the "ladies" took the exit with apparent disgust.

Meter readers ought to be good singers.

The secret service turned out not to be so much of a secret.

With airships quoted at $5,000 we have no idea of being among the early purchasers, but will continue to go it a-foot.

The State legislature today unanimously re-elected Hon. Lee S. Overman to succeed himself as United States Senator. A worthy selection.

Talking about an "anti-trust law with teeth," care should be taken not to bite off too much. There is sometimes danger of being over zealous and doing the State more harm than good.

Hains having been through two murder trials with acquittal in both, may make him bold enough to try his gun again to see if he can run the gauntlet a third time. He ought to have been hanged years ago for the first murder he committed.

There are complaints about the big hats in the opera house that refuse to come off even after requested to do so. People who wear such hats should be more considerate of others. The opera house is no place to wear hats of such proportion as to obstruct the view of those sitting behind them, and the possessors of such hats should either leave them at home or take them off during the performance.

Monday President Roosevelt sent the senate the name of H. F. Seawell, of Carthage, as judge of the Eastern district of North Carolina to succeed the late Judge Purnell. That seems to settle the matter, unless some trouble should arise over his confirmation. By the way, Judge Seawell, is a son of Dr. V. N. Seawell and lived for a while in Greenville when a boy.

SCARBOROUGH MAY HAVE TO GIVE UP SEAT.

Quite a surprise was sprung in the capitol Saturday afternoon when notice was served upon one of the democratic members of the house that he was ineligible to his seat. The representative upon whom the notice was served is Eli T. Scarborough, who holds the dual position of representative from Wake, and postmaster at Eagle Rock, this county.

Saturday Charles D. Wildes, attorney for Powhattan McK. Mathews, who received the highest vote on the republican ticket for representative, gave Scarborough notice that article 14, section 7, of the Constitution, prohibited any person holding a position of trust under profit under the United States to be elected to the general assembly, and sections 2364 and 2895 of the Revised, provided a penalty of $200 to be recovered by suit in any state court. Mr.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hail's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hail's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

 Take Hail's Family Pills for constipation.

Wildes formally notified Mr. Scarborough, by letter, that under the Constitution he was ineligible to a seat in the general assembly and that his client would take such action as he deemed best.

Mr. Scarborough was seen by a Times man today and he stated that the only thing he had to say was what he had said to Mr. Wildes and what he would say when the matter was taken up: That the postoffice at Eagle Rock was not a place of trust or profit and that he only held it as a benefit to the community. If he had been after money he would have sought another job. He did not think that he had violated the Constitution or the laws of North Carolina and would not believe so until it had been definitely decided by the proper authorities.

The outcome of this contest is looked forward to with great interest.

Nothing was done about the matter in the house of representatives today.—Raleigh Evening Times.

Governor Campell, of Texas, suggests that it be made a felony to sell liquor in local option territory. It is a fact that one of the reasons it is so hard to make prohibition prohibit is that the punishment is ordinarily so light that prospective violators of the law are not deterred. For the same reason the law against carrying concealed weapons does not prohibit as thoroughly as it should.—Greensboro Telegram.

"Marked Copy" Did the Trick.

"MARKED COPY" on a newspaper wrapper is sure to make the receiver open and read.

Last year a southern man bought fifty copies of his local paper containing a suggestion for a factory location, marked them and mailed them to fifty individuals or concerns that might be interested.

Result: Twelve immediate inquiries, three propositions for the factory site, one thriving factory located which today pays wages to 175 persons living in that town.

A LOST ART.

Crude Way in Which the Old Timers Moved a Giant Statue.

"Not long ago there was a lecture delivered in St. Louis on the lost arts before a small, select gathering," says a local scholar, "in the course of which the lecturer strove very hard to show how many arts and sciences, totally unknown to us, were possessed by the ancients.

"I was particularly impressed by one statement concerning the immense size of some of the blocks of stone used in the temples of Baalbec and the pyramids of Egypt and the enormous weight of the great granite blocks from which were hewn the giant statues of the kings and gods. Some of these blocks are computed to weigh seventy-five or eighty tons, and the lecturer intimated that the ancients must have possessed engineering machinery superior to our own to be able to lift and transport stones of such immense size and weight.

"As a fact, the great cranes employed in our gunnery and armor plate works would pick up such blocks and carry them off as easily and quickly as though they were of wood.

"There is no mystery at all about the way in which these blocks were moved. In several histories of Egypt there are reproduced pictures found on the wall of an Egyptian tomb which represents the moving of one of the giant statues. Scores of ropes are attached to it, and hundreds of men stand ready waiting for the signal to pull. The statue is on a plank road and rests on rollers. Men with jars of oil are greasing the rollers, taking them out behind and placing them in position in front. The superintendent of the work stands on the pedestal with a trumpet by his side. In the next picture he gives the signal, the trumpeter sounds, and everybody pulls for dear life, while overseers run up and down the line with whips in their hands making sure the pulling is well done.

"This is one of the lost arts, and no one need regret that it is lost. We accomplish by ingenuity and skill what the old timers did by brute force. It is not probable that anything of value has ever been lost, and, what is more to the purpose, we know a hundred, perhaps a thousand, useful things of which the ancients had no conception."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Proprietor—Yes, sir.

Customer—Then please provide me as quickly as possible with pen, ink and paper and two decent people as witnesses.

Proprietor (in alarm)—What is the matter, sir? Would you like a doctor?

Customer—No, thank you. But I ordered my dinner twenty-seven minutes ago, and I thought it would be advisable to make my will before I starved to death.—London Fun.

A TAX ON MARRIAGE.

Ancient Rule of a Famous Cheshire Hunt Club.

We cannot definitely tell when it was that the scarlet coat was first recognized as the emblem of the fox hunter. The annals of the renowned Tarporley Hunt club, however, indicate that in 1770, at any rate, red was the correct wear for fox hunting. Originally founded for the purpose of hare hunting in 1762, the rule as to dress ran, "Every member must have a blue frock with plain yellow metal buttons, scarlet velvet cape, double breasted scarlet waistcoat, the coat sleeve to be cut and turned up."

Later there was an amendment that "the metal buttons be changed for basket mohair ones and that every member provide himself with a scarlet saddle cloth bound with blue." Another rule was, "If any member does not appear in the strict uniform of the hunt he shall forfeit a guinea for every such offense."

In 1770 the club abandoned hare hunting for the pursuit of the fox, and then it was that the wearing of pink was insisted upon. It was then agreed that "the hunt should change their uniform to a red coat unbound, with a small frock sleeve, a grass green velvet cape and green waistcoat, and that the sleeves have no buttons, the red saddle cloth to be bound with green instead of blue." It appears evident that these gentlemen sacrificed their blue frocks for a red coat because red was the only orthodox color for fox hunting.

The wearing of leathers does not appear to be specifically insisted upon in these rules, for the reason that at that time they were universally worn by regular hunting men. This is implied by a rule of the Tarporley club which decreed, "If any member of the society should marry he is to present each member of the hunt with a pair of buckskin breeches." Moreover, "Any member of the hunt who marries a second time shall give two pairs of leather breeches to each member of the hunt." We may safely infer from these rules that in 1770 a red coat and leather breeches were the correct wear of the fox hunter. It is interesting to note the close and far from simple details of this hunting costume, the slightest deviation from which led to a fine of a guinea for every such offense.

It is on record that a member was fined for "not taking the binding off the buttonholes of his coat," while another gentleman paid forfeit for having his saddle cloth bound with purple instead of the orthodox scarlet.

Surely the Tarporley Hunt club, which is still today, with its race meeting and its toasted cheese, one of the most revered institutions of Cheshire, may be regarded as the greatest of champions for the etiquette of hunting costume.—Baily's Magazine.

A Pleasant Prospect.

A Philadelphia woman whose given name is Mary, as is also the name of her daughter, had recently engaged a domestic, when, to her embarrassment, she discovered that the servant's name, too, was Mary.

Whereupon there ensued a struggle to induce the applicant to relinquish her idea that she must be addressed by her Christian name. For some time she was rigidly uncompromising.

"Under the circumstances," said the lady of the house, "there is nothing to do but to follow the English custom and call you by your last name. By the way, what is it?"

"Well, mum," answered the girl dubiously, "it's Darling."—Harper's Weeklv.

DYNAMITE IN THE MAKING.

Workmen Who Are Encircled by Death in Gallons and Tons.

So thoroughly deceptive is dynamite in the making that you are apt to be disappointed on viewing the surface of things. You could more readily fancy thunderbolts leaping and crashing from tender blue skies than that the most fearful forces in creation are hidden under such a peaceful exterior. Nitroglycerin, a cupful of which would distribute you over square miles of landscape, is diligently mixing around you in hundreds and thousands of gallons.

It is making itself in big iron retorts cascading down leaden gutters and merrily tumbling in minute Niagaras into immense vats, where the deliquescent yellow peril pursues its journey powderward. Out of one receptacle it fares furiously through special lead coils, driven only by cooling blasts of air, and is drawn off like draft ale and piped on to the next perfecting stage. Gaze with the nitroglycerin expert into one of those big caldrons. The interior is brilliantly illuminated by electricity, the only illuminating agency permitted in or about the danger houses.

Around you are other houses at uniform distances apart and connected by a series of narrow gauge trucks wherein workmen are railroading nitroglycerin from here and pulp cotton from there to be compounded into dynamite and blasting gelatin. Greatest care is taken in rolling the product from house to house. As soon as a loaded cart is ready to pass out of the nitroglycerin house, for instance, a semaphore signals from an adjoining station, to which the consignment is carefully hurried.

Around you are long storehouses packed with pulp in tons of innocent whiteness. Presently this pulp will assume a tan color under the nitrating process, and then, suddenly becoming carbonite, red cross, hercules judson and giant powder, forcite or what you order, it develops the quasi virtues of dynamite—dynamite or blasting gelatin in which more natural forces are condensed to the cubic inch than exist anywhere else in creation. Death, curbed and sleeping, encircles you in gallons and tons. Annihilation threatens at every turn in the form of potential pulverizing forces. But the man and the mercury are there also, alert, responsive, reliable.—Leslie's Weeklv.
