THE LEGISLATURE.

What Our Law Makers Are Doing at Raleigh.

THIRTY-THIRD DAY.

SENATE.

Among the new bills were: An act to promote agriculture and home industries; to require electric headlights on certain engines; relating to the better sanitary condition of court houses.

The political bill to elect county boards of education by popular vote came up again and brought out a warm discussion. It was finally laid on the table by a motion of Senator Blow.

The bill to amend the charter of Greenville passed third reading.

When adjournment was had it was in honor of the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln.

HOUSE.

Two bills that came from committees with unfavorable report were to provide for the electrocution in the penitentiary of criminals condemned to death, and to give the state an equal number of challenges with the defense in capital cases.

Among the new bills introduced were: To prevent the depredation of fowls (by Cotten); to amend the law as to shipping certain birds; as to the sale of certain narcotic drugs; to prevent forfeitures of life insurance policies without notice; to amend the law as to hospitals for the insane; to protect policy holders in assessment companies; to amend the law as to penalties on freight; to prevent walking on the tracks of railroads.

The principal discussion of the day was on the fish bills which came up as special order.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

News Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., Feb. 13, 1909.

Miss Lala Chapman came in from Stokes last night to spend Sunday at home.

Prof. G. E. Lineberry and Rev. T. H. King attended the anniversary exercises of the Euzelian and Philomathesian Literary societies of Wake Forest Thursday and Friday. They will return home today.

Mr. W. F. Carroll, who lives about five from town, has just installed a phone in his residence. He runs a successful mercantile business and this will add greatly to the convenience of his many friends and customers.

Misses Elizabeth Boushall and Nan Lou Waldrop went to Greenville yesterday afternoon. They will attend the Teachers' Association today.

H. C. Langston, L. L. Kittrell, Jno. Worseley, Hugh Smith, Jno. Kittrell, Misses Olivia Early, Lizzie and Bessie Harrell went to Greenville today.

All of our teachers attended the Teachers' Association today. A Mission study class has been organized at the Baptist church under the direction of Rev. T. H. King and Miss Elizabeth Boushall. They will meet every Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church.

From the way fertilizers are being hauled out these days, the farmers must be getting another crop in their minds.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—With photographs of her two small children besides her on a folding cot, Mrs. Susan H. Yonce, thirty-nine years of age, who came here from Beaufort, N. C., was found dead in her room with five gas jets turned on. Mrs. Yonce, who was employed as a clerk in the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Agriculture, retired to her room late last night. After disrobing she turned off the light and then again turned on all five jets. She was found by her landlady.

Elizabeth City, Feb. 12.—Miss Lina Sykes, about 22 years of age, met with an awful accident this afternoon at her home on Parsonage street which will probably cost her life. The young woman was heating a pot of tar on the cooking stove. When she lifted the pot the bottom fell out, spilling the contents in the fire and all over the stove.

Joe Richardson, a young negro living in this city and recently sentenced to 30 days on the roads for some trivial offense, was almost instantly killed yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock at the country rock quarry in East Wilmington as the result of the cave-in of a small amount of material under which he was working—Wilmington Star.

LUXURY IS THE MODERN TYRANT.

Although Living Expenses Have Increased, Our Money Goes for Non-Essentials.

If we should tell Newmoney that he was a second edition of the Roman spendthrift, he would point to his pew in the church, his subscription to charity and his contributions to the improvements of our village, says Lynn Raby Meekin in the March Designer. He wouldn't understand. Worse still would be our own unwillingness to admit that we ourselves are not doing more swimming against the current. Indeed, the tyrant has cast his spell over the land.

At church conferences last year pious men pointed out how the country districts—even the remote mountain places—were being demoralized by the city boarders, whose manner, frivolities and extravagance were leading the rural minds straight to the sacrifice. There is wailing throughout the land at the enhanced cost of living. We are aghast at the high prices of food—and yet they make a very small part of the total. We complain about dress—and yet the average American family does not spend a tenth of its income on clothes. We declare rents are soaring—and yet the difference is but a fraction in the whole sum.

Where, then, the explanation? Seek and we shall find it in the luxuries—most of them little, some large, possibly one unreasonably extravagant, but whether big or little, many or few, the aggregate forms our ruinous offering to the Moloch of the age. The moment we move beyond the boundaries of our means we meet sorrow and danger—and luxury is always bidding us to cross the line, ever tempting us to go further into debt and discouragement and never giving us a single rebate on our investment in suffering. For the tyrant we eke out the largest sacrifices of all that makes life worth living, and his best honors and prizes are but Dead Sea fruit that, when touched, turns to dust.

Miss Susie Warren Entertains.

At the home of her parents in South Greenville, from 9 to 12 Friday evening, Miss Susie Warren entertained a number of friends at a birthday party, it being her seventeenth anniversary.

The guests were met at the door by the hostess and given a cordial welcome, and during the evening an elegant salad course was served.

The contest of the evening was answering questions with one word ending with the letter i c e. The winner of the prize, a box of stationery, was Tom Dupree. Miss Warren received a number of pretty birthday presents from her guests.

Two Parties

Miss Susie Warren entertained a number of her friends at a birthday party Friday night.

The younger set had a storm party with Miss Josephine Little Friday night.

Fine Meeting.

The meeting of the teachers' association had a very large attendance today, and the program was a fine one. We cannot give full report of the meeting until Monday.

Send in the Items.

The Reflector is always glad to print reports of social entertainments around town, but cannot do so unless the reports are furnished us. The same is true to personal items that are not within our knowledge. A little thought on the part of our people will help out in news of this kind.

A Waste of Money.

The real estate firm of Solomon & O'Sullivan had lots for sale in a new suburban addition. O'Sullivan, young, enthusiastic and Irish, was writing the advertisement, the national eloquence flowing from his pen. He urged impending purchasers to seize the passing moment.

"Napoleon not only met opportunity; he created it!" Mr. Solomon read this line in the advertisement slowly and carefully. "This fellow Napoleon," he said—"what's the use of advertising him with our money?"

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

T. J. Moore, of Wilmington, is visiting his parents here.

Miss Nannie Richardson, one of the teachers at Ayden, came up Friday evening to visit Mrs. B. F. Patrick.

James H. Brown and Oliver Wilson, colored men, caught the first shad of the season Friday night with skim net.

Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Cox, of Wilmington, are here on a visit and their many friends are delighted to see them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gaston, of Rochester, N. Y., are here on a visit to their daughter, Miss Olive Gaston, music teacher at the graded school.

Misses Elizabeth Boushall and Nan Lou Waldrop, teachers of Winterville High School, came up Friday evening to spend today and Sunday here, the former with Miss Hennie Ragsdale and the later with her sister, Mrs. Frank Wilson.

A Missing Point.

"Professor," said an acquaintance. "you understand Latin, do you not?"

"Well," replied the professor, "I may be said to have a fair knowledge of Latin."

"I know everybody says you have. I wish you would tell me what 'volix' means. Nobody that I have asked seems to have heard the word."

"If there is any such word as 'volix,' madam, of which I have serious doubts, I certainly do not know what it means."

"You surprise me, professor. A man of your attainments ought to know that 'volix' means vol. ix." The professor devoted a moment to calling up his reserves and bringing his light artillery into action.

"It is no wonder, madam," he said, "that I did not see the point of your joke. You left the point out of it."

Quick Witted Divines.

Dr. P. S. Henson once delivered his lecture on "Fools" at the New York Chautauqua. In introducing him Bishop Vincent said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we are now to listen to lecture on 'Fools,' by one"—The audience broke into a roar of laughter, and after it had died away Bishop Vincent added, "of the most brilliant men in America."

Dr. Henson rose and, with a genial smile, said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I am not so great a fool as Bishop Vincent"—Another roar of laughter, after which the speaker added, "would have you believe?"

Diagnosis.

Into a general store of a town in Arkansas there recently came a darky complaining that a ham which he had purchased there was not good.

"The ham is all right, Zeph," insisted the storekeeper.

"No, it ain't, boss," insisted the negro. "Dat ham's shore bad!"

"How can that be," continued the storekeeper, "when it was cured only last week?"

The darky scratched his head reflectively and finally suggested: "Den mebbe it's had a relapse."—Harper's Weekly.

A Disciplinarian.

Miss Hobson was most popular with the two young and unmarried members of Centerville's school board. They did not propose to have any change of teachers in district No. 3.

"Do you think Miss Hobson pays quite enough attention to discipline?" suggested one of the elderly married school committeemen one day.

"Discipline! Why, of course she pays a great deal of attention to it," asserted Ed Porter hastily.

"We never had anybody else begin to pay as much," said Henry Lane. "Why, one afternoon I was in there at No. 3, and Miss Hobson spent the whole time—every minute of it—preserving order in that schoolroom."—Youth's Companion.

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place because the place isn't there after the first visit.—Judge.

SATURDAY, FEB. 13, 1909.

With Seawell and Crum both left until Mr. Taft takes charge looks like they are going to give him trouble at the very beginning of his term.

Hon. J. B. Respass, a prominent figure in the politics of the first district in years gone by, died Thursday at an advanced age at his home in Beaufort county.

An occasion of much interest to the State in the last few days was the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Wake Forest College. Dr. David R. Wallace, once a citizen of Greenville but for many years a resident of Waco, Texas, is the oldest living graduate of the institution.

The government department of agricultures that the savages of field mice and rats cause a loss of $20,000,000 annually, and want to exterminate these pests. If the government will investigate some on the annual loss caused by whiskey and take steps to eradicate that evil it would be equally as timely.

Our town and country merchants censure people for dealing with big mail order houses in the great cities, and thereby depleting the amount of money that otherwise would be in circulation, but do not seem to understand why it is done. But there is at least one reason for it, if no more. Most of the people take advantage of the mail facilities, and have their boxes visited by the R. F. D. man every day, and into these boxes are placed lots and scores of catalogues, circulars, newspapers &c.; itemizing and giving in detail an outline of their wares. People read these ads, select what they desire, send their money and have the goods delivered. At the same time, the nearby merchant has the same or better quality of goods, at the same cost, but he fails to advertise; while the other fellows keep the public posted.

As a rule you might as well try to grow fruit on a broom stick as to make a business grow without advertising. Great commercial successes in all lines of human endeavor are monuments to good advertising, built on a foundation of honest merchandise. Newspaper publicity is the ladder on which practically all of our merchants, prominent in city and village, have climbed to positions of power and affluence. Human nature is the same the world over. We are all susceptible to the same influences which, through good advertising, have never yet failed to produce the desired results; nor will it every fail as long as this advertising is carried out along judicious lines and appeals to common, every-day horse sense.—Ex.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A dog sat out in the midnight chill, and howled at the beaming moon; his knowledge of music was strickly nil, and his voice was out of tune. And he howled and howled as the hours went by, while dodging the bricks we threw till the moon was low in the western sky, and his voice had split in two. And there wasn't a thing at which to howl, over which a foolpup should weep, and the course of the dog wrong and foul, and people were wild to sleep. There are plenty of men like that foolish hound, who yell when there's nothing wrong, disturbing the country with senseless sound—the pessimist's doleful song.—Ex.

Says the Atlanta Journal: "Sending the Duke D'Abruzzi a cask of wine was like taking coals to Newcastle. The Elkins should have sent a pint of North Carolina corn." Not so, because that would have brought Abruzzi to this State to live and Tar Heels don't want any "busted" nobility down this way—and besides, you forget, that this is a prohibition State.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Iowa has solved the problem of securing accurate birth certificates. The mother will be paid one dollar for each certificate filed with the authorities.—Wilmington Star.

Boom Your Own Town.

Business will prosper
Only when the people
Of the community
Make a united effort.

Your business depends
On others' prosperity.
Unless we work together
Results are disappointing.

Only those prosper
Whose patrons are prosperous.
Nothing succeeds like success!

Towns thrive and flourish
Only when they deserve to—
When their own people
Neglect no opportunities.

ELECTRICITY.

Why It Is Difficult For the Layman to Understand What It Is.

"What is electricity?" is a favorite query with people who desire to "get a rise" out of a scientific man. And when he fails to answer it in the same simple fashion that he might treat the question "What is a biscuit?" the questioner cries out: "Aha! You profess to know all about electricity. Why, you can't even tell what it is!"

Now, to "tell what a thing is"—that is, to define it—is to state its relations with something more familiar. The particular familiar thing that the questioner is thinking of in this case is ordinary matter. Heat has been explained to him as a vibration of material particles. Light, he has been told, is a wave motion in the ether, and he understands the ether to be a kind of matter or a substance resembling matter in some particulars.

It is not to be denied that no such simple general relationship can be stated between electricity and matter. But, this being so, it would be just as correct to say that we do not know what matter is as that we do not know what electricity is. As a matter of fact, we do not know what matter is, and the latest plausible theory of it builds it up on an electric basis, so that on this theory the idea of electricity is more fundamental than that of matter. Unfortunately our senses have been evolved by contact with matter and are trained to detect only matter. Electricity they know only secondarily, through its action upon matter—the light or heat that it causes matter to give out, the attraction that it causes certain substances to exert, and so on. To the man in the street, therefore, matter is familiar, and he demands a statement of the latter in terms of the former, illogical though this may be. After the scientist has stated all this the reply comes back, "Yes, I understand all that, and it is most clear, I am sure, but tell me, then, what is electricity, anyway?"

Another source of confusion to the lay mind is that scientific men do not always use the word "electricity" to mean the same thing. The engineer often employs it to express the thing that the theoretical electrician calls "electric energy."

To find the energy of electricity—that is, its ability to do work—the electrician multiplies the quantity of electricity by the potential or tension under which it exists. But to the engineer this product itself measures the thing that he calls "electricity."

The work that a pound of water may do by falling a foot is one foot pound. The water is the same after falling as before, though its energy is less. So to the electrician a quantity of electricity at 100 volts is precisely the same as at one volt, though the former is able to do a hundred times as much work.

This difference in meaning causes thousands of disputes among students. "Electricity is a form of energy," says one, "just like light or heat." "Oh, no!" is the reply. "It is not energy at all, though it may possess or convey energy." One disputant is talking about the electricity of the physical and the other about that of the engineer; hence their dispute is merely a matter of definition, though they do not know it. What wonder that some people are still content to regard the whole subject as a civilized Mumbo Jumbo?—St. Louis Republic.

Whistling on Sabbath in Scotland.

Concerning the Scottish reprobation of whistling on the Sabbath Dean Ramsay has a characteristic story. A famous Glasgow artist met an old highland acquaintance unexpectedly. "Donald, what brought you here?" "Ou, weel, sir, it was a baad place you; they were baad folk, but they're a God fearin' set o' folk here." "Well, Donald, I'm glad to hear it." "Ou, aye, sir, 'deed are they, an' I'll gie ye an instance o't. Last Sabbath just as the kirk was skailin' there was a drover chield frae Dumfries comin' along the road whistlin' an' lookin' as happy as if it was a middle o' the week. Weel, sir, oor lairds is a God fearin' set o' lairds, an' they were just comin' oot o' the kirk—o'd they yekit upon him an' a'most killed him!"

That English Complexion.

The complexions of the English have often been exploited for our benefit. The damp climate and the exercise out of doors produce the red, they say. But on examination it proves to be not the red of the rose, but the red of raw beef, and often streaky and fibrous at that. The features are large and the face high colored, but it is not a delicate pink. It is a coarse red. At a distance the effect is charming, bright, refreshing, but close to often rather unpleasant. Here the features of the women, even the features of the beautiful women, are molded, while the features of our beautiful American women are chiseled.—Scribner's.

A Funny Family.

"What makes your hair snap so?" asked the child who was watching his mother comb her hair.

"Electricity," his mother replied. "We are a funny family," remarked the child after a few moments of thought. "The other day you said papa had wheels in his head, and now you've got electricity in your hair. If you put your heads together you might make an electric motor, mightn't you?"—New York Times.

The Size She Wanted.

The woman went in the bookstore and asked for a globe.

"What size do you want?" asked the clerk, turning one on its pivot for her to look at the various and sundry countries in pink and blue.

"I think," said the woman; "that you may give me one life size."—New York Times.

CAN YOU SPELL?

Test Your Ability by Writing This Jumble From Dictation.

It is some time ago since spelling bees were popular forms of entertainment in this country, but still one occasionally comes across the very superior person who tells you he can easily spell any word ever printed in a dictionary. If ever you meet this type of man, just ask somebody to dictate the following jumble to him and see how many mistakes he will make:

"Antinous, a disappointed, desiccated physicist, was peeling potatoes in an embarrassing and harassing way. His idiosyncrasy and privilege was to eat mayonnaise and mussels while staring at the Pleiades and seizing people's tricycles and velocipedes. He was an erring teetotaler and had been on a pica-yune jamboree. He rode a palfrey stallion and carried a salable papier-mache bouquet of asters, phlox, mullein, chrysanthemums, rhododendrons, fuchsias and nasturtiums.

"He wore a silyb's resplendent turquoise paraphernalia, an ormolu yashmak and astrakhan chaparejos. He drank crystallizable and disagreeable curacao juleps through a sieve. He stole some moneys and hid them under a peddler's mahogany bedstead and mattress.

"Like a fiend in an ecstasy of gaiety I rushed after him into the maelstrom, or melee, and held him as in a vise. I could not feaze him, however, and he addressed me, with autocracy, in the following imbecile words, which sounded like a soliloquy or a superseding paean on an oboe: 'You are a ratable lunamoth, a salaaming vizier, an equinoctial coryphee and an isosceles daguerreotype.'"—New York Mail.

Range of Eyesight.

Those who are curious in such matters may be interested in testing the correctness of the conclusions of Dr. Schaeffer of Munich concerning the distance at which people can be recognized by their faces and figures. If you have good eyes, he says, you cannot recognize a person whom you have seen but once before at a greater distance than twenty-five meters (eighty-two feet). If the person is well known to you, you may recognize him at from 50 to 100 meters, and if it is a member of your family even at 150 meters. The white of the eyes may be seen at from twenty-seven to twenty-eight meters and the eyes themselves at seventy-two to seventy-three meters. The different parts of the body and the slightest movements are distinguishable at ninety-one meters. The limbs show at 182 meters. At 540 meters a moving man appears only as in indefinite form, and at 720 meters—2,361.6 feet—the movements of the body are no longer visible.—Youth's Companion

Better Than Spanking.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, of W. Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

A Curious Story.

The queen of Hanover, wife of King Ernest Augustus of Hanover (better known as the Duke of Cumberland, son of George III.), died at Hanover about 1842 of an illness which baffled the skill of her doctors as to its real cause. During her illness a clairvoyant was consulted, who wrote certain curious signs and words on the door of her bedroom; but, although these mystic words were repeated over and over again, the queen died. The king of Hanover after his wife's death gave orders that her bedroom should always be kept as though the queen would sleep there at night. The bed was turned down, the pillows reshaken, hot water brought and the faintest slippers laid in readiness for her.—Home Notes.
