STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

An increase of $11,000 in the appropriation of the North Carolina National Guard, was made by the general assembly. This increase is to go to the enlisted men in the various departments of the military of the State. Each man is to receive 25 cents for each drill he attends, this being limited so as not to exceed two drills in each month.

Capt. W. K. Hinnant, of the Norfolk & Southern mail train informed the reporter that an unknown young white man, who was found in a desperately sick condition in Dover, was sent to the hospital at New Bern for treatment upon the advice of Dr. Raymond Pollock last evening. The young man died this morning, having left no clue as to his identity.—Kinston Free Press.

Attorney General T. W. Bickett, by the direction of Governor Kitchen, has brought suit in the supreme court of the United States against the state of Tennessee to definitely establish the boundary line between the officers of the two states in regard to the collection of taxes, and much litigation has also arisen on account of the conflicting land grants. The proceeding instituted is of an entirely friendly nature, it being to the interest of all parties concerned that the lines in dispute may be definitely established.

Mr. Hodges, of Grimesland, was brought to the Washington Hospital last night suffering with a pistol ball wound in his thigh. The ball was extracted and the patient is doing well. The wound was inflicted accidentally.—Washington Messenger.

Raleigh, N. C., March 11.—The Seaboard Air Line passenger station at Youngsville consisting of telegraph office, and two waiting rooms, was completely destroyed by fire early this morning. It is thought the building was set afire by sparks from the early morning trains.

Greensboro, N. C., March 11.—A fire with fatal result occurred this morning at 2:30 o'clock, when Biggs' Hygienic Sanitarium, 408 West Market street, was totally destroyed and Frank Greene, an aged patient, whose home was at Goldston, Chatham county, perished in the flames.

The Insurance Department of North Carolina is receiving big money already this year and the amount that it is turning into the State Treasury is aiding in the payment of the State's obligations. The report of Commissioner Young shows that in February he has collected $61,929.54 and that for January he paid into the State Treasury $16,620.99. This makes a total of $78,550.53 for the past two months, a splendid showing for the work of the Insurance Department.—News and Observer.

Wrecker's Derailed Train.

Monroe, La., March 11.—As a result of the work of train wreckers, the southbound express on the Arkansas and Gulf railroad, was derailed 20 miles north of this city, shortly before midnight last night. Engineer C. W. McDaniel was instantly killed and Fireman J. B. Gowan was seriously hurt. No passengers were among the injured.

This was the day for it to rain.

The Newspaper Does the Work of All.

The development of the publishing art is such that in these early days of the twentieth century that every craft and every profession has its special periodical literature. There are magazines for the lawyers and magazines for the doctors; the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker have their trade journals; the subdivision of class interests is such that we believe there is even a weekly or monthly publication pledged to the separate service of red-headed men. It is thus possible for the advertiser, by using simultaneously some hundreds of the specialized periodicals, to reach with its message all kinds of people in all walks of life—but at how great a waste of money and energy! At one sweep the great daily newspaper covers the same field as all the narrow class publications, and covers it with a ten times more powerful grip upon the attention and interest of the reader. The man who advertises an article of general use in a magazine of special use, and does not advertise in the daily newspapers, is the self-same individual whose experience leads him to believe that advertising does not pay.—Philadelphia Record.

N. & W. Must Pay $20,000.

Norfolk, Va., March 11.—The Supreme court of Virginia today handed down decisions affirming verdict against the Norfolk and Western Railway, growing out of the killing under the wheels of a freight train of Mrs. Munsell and Mrs. Holmes of Springfield, Mass., who lost their lives while attending the "Millennial Dawn" national convention here in November, 1907. The husband of each victim is awarded $10,000, the maximum allowed under Virginia statute.

A Foxy Game.

A certain New Jersey county has been forced to abolish its bounty on fox hides because it was discovered that a number of citizens were regularly cultivating foxes and disposing of them to the officials at a rather fancy price. Quite a foxy game.—Salisbury Post.

ALMOST A FIRE.

Window Curtain and Contents of Trunk Ruined.

Thursday night there came near being a fire in the home of Mr. R. L. Humber, on Fifth street, Miss Mitchell Waddill, one of the graded school teachers, boards there and was called down stairs to Mrs. Humber's room, the latter being sick. A lamp was left burning in Miss Waddill's room and a little later, an odor of smoke being detected, one of Mr. Humber's boys was sent up stairs to see if the lamp was all right. Upon opening the door of the room the boy found the window curtain burning and there was also fire in a trunk near the window. The fire was put out without any damage to the building, but much of Miss Waddill's wearing apparel was ruined.

The Plain Truth.

But no editor worthy of the name will allow himself to be stopped from speaking what he believes necessary for the cause of right and justice—and speaking it plainly, no matter who is hit—either by threats or entreaties.—Statesville Landmark.

The above states in a few words a great truth that every newspaper man in the country ought to ponder. It is easy enough to hit a man or a cause that everybody is down on, but it is quite another thing to tell the plain truth when the writer must suffer for it. But what is a man worth who "gallops with the gang"? There are editors who are brags as lions in denouncing evils in foreign communities, but they tread softly in dealing with the same conditions among their own people. There were some propositions before the legislature just adjourned that ought to have been perforated but escaped because of the men behind them.

Some papers are blind to faults among brethren of their own church that would lambast the same things in others. There are editors who rage at the ravages of liquor in general who will say not a word about a blind tiger in particular. There is this to be said, however: the day of blind subservency to party or to public opinion is passing. There is much more independence of thought and expression than there used to be. Right and justice demand plain speech often, but never in bitter or violent spirit.—Charity and Children.

With Our Colored People.

Rev. Henrietta C. Heath, the woman evangelist, of Long Branch, N. J., who has been assisting Rev. R. Henry Sawyer, Jr., at A. M. E. Zion church in a revival service, will preach her closing sermon Sunday. Much good has been done among the colored people, 17 new members having been added to the church during the revival. If any of the white friends desire to hear her Sunday and will notify the pastor, seats will be reserved for them.

There will be a Christian march at tonight's service.

Cost for Town Taxes.

This is to notify all persons owing taxes to the town of Greenville for the year 1908 that they must pay the same by the 15th of March or cost will be added. Jas. C. Tyson, Tax Collector, 36 tfd

It will not be long before town politics will come to the front.

Forty-Seven Years Young.

Prof. Z. D. McWhorter, the able superintendent of our graded schools, celebrated his forty-seventh birthday on Tuesday of this week, and in honor of this event Mr. and Mrs. McWhorter entertained at dinner at five o'clock p. m., their delightful hospitality on this occasion being enjoyed by the entire graded school faculty and several other friends, viz: Miss Clontonia Cartwright, Miss Lena Markham, Miss Frank English, Miss Lies, Miss Jackson, Miss Clara Littman, Miss Adeline Rountree and Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Mintz. This charming home is noted for its hospitality, as those present on this occasion will attest. Prof. McWhorter's friends wish for him many more years in life's journey.

As is his custom each year, on the adjournment of school, Tuesday afternoon Prof. McWhorter presented each of the 250 or more pupils with an orange, and it is needless to say that this token from their esteemed superintendent was enjoyed and appreciated by every one of them.—Mt. Olive Tribune.

Announcement.

Having transferred my hardware business to an incorporated company known as Carr & Atkins Hardware Co., I take this method of thanking my patrons for the patronage given me through the years I have been in business in Greenville, and to ask a continuance of their favors to the new firm. H. L. Carr.

Having taken over the business of H. L. Carr and changed it to an incorporated company as stated in the foregoing, we cordially invite the people of Pitt and surrounding counties to visit our store and trade with us. It is our purpose to enlarge the business and carry a complete line of general hardware, and to be in position to supply any reasonable needs at prices as low as can be had.

Would Use Chloroform.

Atlanta, Ga., March 11.—General Clement A. Evans, commander in chief of the United Confederate veterans, and chairman of the prison committee of Georgia, advocates chloroforming criminals who have received the death sentence. "I believe the law has no right to do more than take a man's life," said General Evans. "No living man should witness it. The death cell should be airtight and the man who is to die should inhale the very breath of death itself and should die painlessly and alone. Any other death punishment is nothing short of barbarism. Even this is bad enough." General Evans had already qualified this statement by declaring himself opposed to capital punishment for any crime save that of attack upon women.

Appeal in the Lumsden Case.

New York, March 11.—It was announced today that John C. Lumsden, convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for fatally shooting Harry P. Snydam, a curb broker, would take an immediate appeal.

The jury rendered the verdict after five hours' deliberation. All hope of acquittal for the young prisoner vanished with the first ballot taken by the jury. Every vote was for conviction, either of murder or manslaughter.

As to Newspapers.

It is foolish to argue that county papers are not necessary and proper in the intelligent dissemination of information, or that they are necessary to properly inform their constituency fully as to the various matters of importance which arise in every county. They perform a very great work in the newspaper life of the world, and every man should support his county paper in good faith for the common good. It is absolutely impossible for the great dailies, covering large territories, to handle all these county matters in detail, and if they could there is a certain percentage of the people who would be deprived of the daily on account of price. On the other hand there are many people residing in the various counties, men of means, with families whose intellects could be improved by reading a high-class daily newspaper. It is a duty every man who can afford it, owes to his family.—Ex.

Who Pays for the African Hunt.

The Philadelphia Record gives the story of Roosevelt's scheming to have the government pay the cost of his trip to Africa. First one plan and then another was started, but in each one he failed to get his hand into the Federal treasury. The original plan was to have the Smithsonian Institute foot the bill of his proposed "scientific expedition," but the institute had no funds available for so extensive an undertaking. Another proposition was that Roosevelt would pay the personal expenses of himself and son, and the Smithsonian would supply zoologists and taxidermists, getting the money therefor where it could, but congress was recognized as impracticable. The president described himself as a "faunal naturalist." He stipulated that he and his son were to do the killing, the skinning being left to the Smithsonian experts, and all the specimens were to be given to the Smithsonian institution except those that Mr. Roosevelt might care to keep for himself. But the question still arose; Where was the Smithsonian to get the money to defray that part of the expense of the hunt? Finally, according to the Record, Secretary Walcott, of the Smithsonian institution, went over to Wall street and found five persons of great wealth who would rather have Mr. Roosevelt in Africa than anywhere else, and were willing to contribute $5,000 each toward the expenses of the Smithsonian scientists who will accompany Mr. Roosevelt, conditioned upon his staying away not less than one year.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In discussing what is needful for a return of prosperity, the Norfolk Landmark says:

The consumer has been over-exploited in this country. The manufacturers were the first to collide with the fact. The food-producers are about to meet the same wall in their path. It is a simple truth that the consumer cannot buy more than he has money to pay for, unless he buys on credit which must collapse if the process continues. It may take some time, it may take only a few months or weeks, but the prices of necessities must return to a reasonable level before the road is open to renewed general prosperity.

It is easy to offer a remedy for the 'business depression or to account for it on this or that theory, but we are inclined to think that if the folks who have some money would take it out of the banks, from under the pillows or from wherever it is hid away, and put it in circulation, the trouble would be at an end. As it is, the money owners don't seem disposed to invest their money except in something easy. They'll buy real estate and wait for it to go up in value, or they'll build a house and exact a high rental, but beyond that they are not keen for investment of any sort. Nothing venture, nothing gain is as true as gospel. Money was made to be used, not hoarded. The business depression, which is not melting away as fast as it ought, is quite largely to be accounted for by the undoubted fact that a great deal of the money of the country is lying idle.—Greensboro Telegram.

Patronize Home Talent—It Pays.

Last month a merchant a thousand miles from Chicago wanted to place over his store an electric light sign he had heard about in Chicago. Made a special trip there for specifications and terms. Too high!

Mr. Merchant returned home and incidentally told the local electrician about his troubles. Mr. Home Electrician replied that he could reproduce the Chicago sign, with improvements, at a price that suited. And he did so.

JUST THINK THIS OVER, WILL YOU?

SPANISH ETIQUETTE.

Politeness to Servants and Even the Street Beggars.

From what we saw and from what happened to us I made up a page of Spanish etiquette. It is probably not correct, but I offer it as the result of our experiences. Other people may have had different impressions. If you are of the female sex never wear a short skirt, a sailor or English walking hat unless you are willing to have people stare at you and sometimes call after you. If you have red hair dye it or be prepared to be saluted as "Rubia." Never bow to a man unless he lifts his hat first. If you are a man you may dress as an Englishman, an operatic tenor or a chorus singer from Carmen without exciting remark. Never wear glasses. If you are blind take a dog on a string. When you sit down at the table or arise always bow and say, "Buenas." This is imperative. You may jostle people without apology, but never speak to any one without saying "your grace," be he noble, friend or beggar. "Will your grace do me the favor to bring me my coffee at 9 o'clock tomorrow?" would strike an American bellboy with dismay. But it is the literal translation of the Spanish request. Never tell a beggar to clear out, but say that you have left your purse at home and that you will remember him tomorrow or gently murmur that God will reward him, whereat he will smile, thank you and depart. These same beggars, who spring up on every side, seem to have a code of etiquette we could not fathom. After two or three days there were a few who begged only from me, two or three others who besought Jean. Evidently we were understood to be the patrons of certain beggars who out of a crowd of mendicants were the only ones to approach us who would take their dole with thanks or if we said "tomorrow" would smilingly back away at once.

A trip into Spain ought to mean more than sketches of life as we saw it in a single city. Yet it was our pleasure to linger on in Madrid, with the exception of three days spent in Toledo and the Escorial, for the whole of our two months' holiday, and to return direct to Paris without seeing any of the southern country, so beloved by other tourists. So can any one wonder that to us Spain means Madrid, the city of marvelous contrasts?—E. C. Allen in Outing.

It Was New to the Bishop.

At an unusually large dinner party, where the guest of honor was an English bishop, the butler, an elderly man, was obliged to bring in from a friend's house an inexperienced lad to help him in the dining room. The awkward helper annoyed the butler beyond endurance with questions as to his duties.

He continued interminably until the butler, worn out and nervous, said ironically:

"All you will need to do is to stand behind the bishop's chair, and whenever his lordship puts down his glass you must reach over and wipe his mouth with a napkin."

That silenced his assistant. But the young man actually took the order seriously, and as soon as dinner began he stationed himself behind the bishop, waited till his lordship had drunk and put down his glass, and then, as deliberately as his nervousness would permit, he opened out a large napkin and wiped the dignified old gentleman's mouth!

Too Suggestive.

The new patient had been put to bed by the nurse. Upon waking he inquired:

"Plawat did ye say the doctor's name was?"

"Dr. Kilpatrick," was the reply. "That settles it," replied the sick man. "Thot doctor will not git a chance to operate on me!"

"Why not?" asked the nurse. "He is a good doctor."

"Maybe so, but not for me. You see, my name is Patrick."—Ladies' Home Journal.

ENGLAND'S SACRED BEAST.

Unwritten Law Against Shooting Even Hen Eating Foxes.

"Down in the country the other day there was a village sensation in which I was called upon to adjudicate for the farmers assembled in the parlor of the only village inn," writes the London correspondent of Town and Country. "One of their number had shot a fox which had prowled about among the fowls for so many nights that fowl keeping was becoming a risky business.

"The ordinary farmer does not mind losing an occasional hen, but reynard is a greedy beast and kills for the mere pleasure of the thing, and the hunt does not always pay up promptly. So here was a fine point in sporting etiquette to be settled. The farmer had shot a fox. He did not deny it. In fact, he preferred to throw out his chest with pride, as if in defiance of all the unwritten laws of British sport.

"Now, custom from time immemorial has decreed that the fox shall be as safe from gun and trap as if he were sacred. He belongs to the hounds and must be allowed to roam through the covers and farmyards at will, devouring what may happen in his way. Custom, too, demands that the hunt shall pay the damages. The hunt generally pays, though in innumerable cases the secretary is well aware that he is being swindled.

"But this particular farmer said he had hunted for many years himself and had never made a claim for lost hens. A year or two ago, however, a fox had paid a nocturnal visit to his fowl yard and had played havoc with the feathered denizens. A night or two after it happened again. A third time the fox came around and made a most deplorable mess of a lot of fine Wyandottes and some expensive Buff Orpingtons.

"Then the farmer wrote to the hunt secretary and asked for damages. The reply was that the claim would be attended to shortly, and at Christmas the settlement came in the form of—a ham. Thereupon the farmer declared war on all foxes and killed them ruthlessly. And this was the point which puzzled the farmers on Saturday night.

"Jim Crawford shot a fox last year," said one of the men, "and no good has come to him since. It ain't lucky and it ain't sportsman-like. Let 'em kill your hens. That's what they are there for, and if one hunt secretary is mean there are a hundred who are generous."

"There you have it. Sport is sport and its rules are adamant. It must, however, be put to the credit of British hunt clubs that they spend millions of pounds a year in England, Wales and Ireland for the upkeep of the sport.

"Think of the hunters that are bred and sold annually, the packs of hounds, the huntsmen, the stable people, the dozens of hangers on who make a living out of it! Without the hounds certain districts of England would be depopulated. Leicestershire and the midland counties would be almost impoverished if a law were suddenly put in force to make an end to the rich man's pastime. Country houses in nonhunting districts may be had almost for the price of a cottage in Leicestershire, whereas in the Quorn and Pytchley country a country house is as expensive, if not more so, than a London mansion. Instead of diminishing, hunting has grown in popular favor."

The Prince of Grumblers.

When Mr. Beeton asked if he did not find many unreasonable people among his summer boarders Farmer Joy quickly assented.

"Lots an' lots are never satisfied anyway," he said. "No matter what's done for 'em there'll always be something wrong somewhere.

"Now, last summer," he went on, with a gleaming eye, "we had a man here that was so fond of grumblin' that one day he actually called for a toothpick after he'd had a glass of milk!"—Youth's Companion.

HE GOT BIG PAY.

An African Salary That Commanded Respect and Obedience.

Makuba and Oblanga were two Africans, the one the captain of a boat crew and the other subordinate to him.
Oblanga was an independent fellow, not in the least lazy, who rather resented "bossing." In a book entitled
"The Jungle Folk of Africa" R. H.
Milligan tells of an altercation between the two men. Makuba, the diplomatic, came out of it with flying colors.

The worst disputes between Makuba and Oblanga took place when they supposed that I was asleep. The native when he lies down anywhere sleeps immediately. Whenever I was lying in the bottom of the boat they always thought I was unconscious and that no conceivable noise could awaken me.

Captain Makuba orders Oblanga to "haul away on the peak haliards," to which Oblanga promptly replies:
"Do it yourself."

"I won't do it; you will do it!" says Makuba in a threatening tone.

"Are you my father?" says Oblanga.
"No," answers Makuba, with infinite scorn. "How could a Kombi man be the father of a creature like you?"

"Then stop giving me orders!" says Oblanga, with rising wrath. "It is not the first time you have tried it, and one of these days you will find out that it won't do."

"One of these days you will find out that I am captain of this boat and that you will have to obey me," says Makuba.

"Not as long as I carry a gun," answers Oblanga.

By this time they are standing up and looking hard at each other. But Makuba would not think of striking a man in a mission boat. He therefore becomes diplomatic. Suddenly in a tone altogether different he says:

"Oblanga, the trouble with you is that you are just a bushman. You don't know anything about civilization.
On every big ocean steamer there is a captain, and every man on board, no matter what tribe he belongs to, obeys the captain."

Oblanga becomes instantly curious and asks, "Is he rich?"

"Yes," says Makuba; "he gets big pay, and so do I get big pay."

"How much do you get, Makuba?"

"How much do you think?"

Oblanga thinks as well as he knows how, his countenance distorted with the effort, and at length answers reflectively, "Two dollars a month." He himself gets a dollar and a half.

A broad smile engages Makuba's features as he slowly answers, "Five dollars a month."

Oblanga gives expression to his surprise in a long, low whistle. It is quite evident to him that no ordinary person could command such wages, and in a tone of utmost compliance he says: "What was it you told me to do, Makuba? I forget."

"I forget, too," says Makuba. "Oh, yes," he adds, "I told you to haul on the peak haliards."

Maryland Lotteries.

A Baltimore man interested in antiquarian research made a collection of old lottery tickets which gives interesting testimony as to the development of public morals. Most of the tickets were given out by Maryland lotteries, but quite as large a collection could undoubtedly be made in other states.
Four of the tickets are in the Washington monument lottery, which was authorized by the legislature and was not given up until 1824. As early as 1753 a lottery was advertised to build a wharf. The drawing took place April 30, 1754. Ten years later one was undertaken to build a market house in "Baltimore Town" and for "buying two fire engines and a parcel of leather buckets." In 1782 a yearly lottery was authorized to aid the city expenses. Other objects for which money was raised in this way were parsonages, church bells, circulating libraries and gristmills.
