THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Saturday's Session was a Splendid One.

Although we had another day of threatening weather a large number of teachers were present and the programme was an exceedingly interesting and helpful one. How can any teacher afford to miss these meetings? The devotional exercises were conducted in a very impressive manner by Rev. D. W. Arnold, pastor of the Christian church, after which the regular programme of the day was taken up.

The first topic, "Home Geography" was ably discussed by Miss Ada L. Tyson. We hope to see her paper published in The Reflector in the near future.

Primary Arithmetic was next discussed by Supt. W. H. Cale, of Grifton graded school, and Prof. J. H. Highsmith in a very interesting manner. Prof. Highsmith laid special stress on making all arithmetic concrete, that is bringing it within the practical conception of the child.

After several announcements by Supt. Ragsdale, Prof. J. H. Highsmith, of the department of education at Wake Forest College, delivered one of the strongest addresses on "The Essential Qualifications of a Teacher" we ever heard. He held his audience with the closest attention for forty-five minutes. He mentioned four essentials as follows:

(a) Knowledge of books and the pupils; (b) ability, hereditary and acquired; (c) character; (d) the spirit of humanity. A teacher must know much to teach little. The teacher must have a broad grasp of the subjects to be taught in order to beget enthusiasm, hold the interest of the pupils and inspire their confidence. So many make failures in these points—not having sufficient knowledge. The teacher must also know her pupils and this can be accomplished by contact with them on the play grounds and in the social conversations between teacher and pupil. Ability is possessed by heredity and training. So many natural born teachers come short of their possibilities on account of not training themselves. They may be successful, but think of what greater possibilities lie out before them if only trained. The teacher must feel that he is called, if he should aspire to be a leader in his profession. We must have men and women to train our children who have character and stand four square to the world. They must stand for something and be willing to spend and be spent for the cause of uplifting humanity. Prof. Highsmith thoroughly captured his audience and we hear nothing but words of highest praise of this address.

After a recess of an hour and a half the association reassembled at 2 o'clock and Supt. H. B. Smith made a very practical talk on hygiene. The next on the programme was a very interesting discussion on drawing by Miss Lewis, of the Greenville graded school. We were sorry that on account of the shortness of time she could not give a full treatment of her subject, for it was exceedingly interesting.

Thus ended another fine session of the association.

Be What You Will to Be.

If you desire to be anything in character disposition or conduct—be it.

Say to yourself each day—I am love, cheerfulness, joy, usefulness, kindness.

Sit in your room alone a few moments morning and night, inhale deep, slow breaths, and make these assertions. Then go forth every day determined to look for the agreeable trait in everyone you meet—for the pleasing or pathetic quality, and, for a chance to add a little to the world's store of happiness by some kind act.

Think of yourself as necessary to the world—say: "There is need of me or I would not be," and then look for the opportunity to prove the fact. You will find it.

There is need of each one of us every hour in the twenty-four, so help brighten the world for others less fortunate than ourselves. Your great trouble seems to be that you dwell too much on thoughts of yourself and your troubles and think too little of other people about you.

Think of yourself just as you would like to be, and insist mentally that you are that. Never mind if no change seems to come at once. Keep on insisting, and by and by the results will appear.

And all the time watch for opportunities to do kind acts.

It is wonderful what an interest we will find in people whom we can benefit.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Honor Roll.

The Arnold school near Black Jack which was taught by G. C. Buck, closed last Friday evening. Though the exercises were short, they were very entertaining. The following are the names of those placed upon the honor roll for regular attendance, good conduct, most improvement, and good lessons:

Second grade—Fronie Dixon, and Myrtle Hardee.

Third grade—Lucy Arnold, Lena Arnold, Annie Clark, Annie Gaskins, Furney Mills, Roy Mills and Gracie Smith.

Fourth grade—Lula Arnold, Maggie Clark and Bertha Gaskins.

Fifth grade—Martha Jane Clark, Lena Dixon, Stella Gaskins and Zeno Mills.

KEPT THEIR SECRET WELL.

Young People Married in December Have Just Let it be Known.

Mrs. W. T. Hunter has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Carrie Gay, to Mr. Joseph G. Godard, of Williamston, N. C.

The marriage took place December 3rd, last, in the Presbyterian manse at Savannah, Ga., the ceremony being performed by Rev. James G. Fair, pastor of the Independent Presbyterian church, of Savannah.

Miss Gay was at the time visiting her brother in Savannah and Mr. Godard went there to see her. They had been sweethearts for sometime, and at the conclusion of her visit they were married and returned together as far as Parmele where they separated, the bride coming to her home in Greenville and the groom going to his home in Williamston. Mr. Godard came over Saturday to visit his bride, and while here it was decided to make the announcement of their marriage public.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

The seventeen-month old child of Thomas McAbee, who lives on Angier avenue died last night from a cause that was most unusual. The child was choked to death from a peanut that it had swallowed. Physicians were quickly summoned and were at the home in a short while. They could do no good and the child was dead within twenty minutes.—Durham Herald.

Southern Pines Chosen.

Fitzgerald, Ga., March 13.—The Blue and Gray Association at its annual encampment here today selected Southern Pines, N. C., for the next reunion. The following officers were elected:

Commander-in-chief, Major B. F. Dixon, North Carolina; senior vice commander, Capt. William M. McCormick, Georgia; junior vice commander, Capt. Joseph Price, Florida; chaplain in chief, Rev. W. S. Harden, Georgia; judge advocate general, O. S. Deming, Warren, O.; quartermaster general, C. H. Worth, Texas.

The True Wife.

Do you ask from whence comes the beautiful word "wife?" It is the great word in which the English and Latin languages conquered the French and Greek. I hope the French will some day get a word for it, instead of that dreadful word "femme."

But where do you think it comes from? The beautiful characteristic of Saxon words is that they mean something. Wife means "weaver." You must either be housewives or housemoths; remember that. In the deep sense, you must either leave men's fortunes and embroil them, or feed upon and bring them to decay.

Wherever a true wife comes, home is always around her. The stars may be over her head, the glow worm in the night-cold grass may be the only fire at her feet, but home is wherever she is, and for a noble woman it stretches far around her, better than house ceiled with cedar or painted with vermilion, shedding its quiet light far for those who else were homeless. This, then, believe to be the woman's true sphere and power.—Ruskin.

BAD WRECK ON SEABOARD ROAD.

Passenger and Freight In Head-on Collision.

Raleigh, March 13.—Seaboard train number thirty-three, a southbound passenger train, and a northbound freight ran together in a head-on collision this morning about 4:30 o'clock at Colon, a small station about thirty-five miles south of Raleigh. Hasey Lindsay, the colored fireman of the passenger train, was killed and engineer El Roberson, of Raleigh, was badly hurt. The engineer, M. J. Eisenhart, of the freight and his fireman jumped and neither was hurt. Captain W. C. Cox, the conductor on the passenger, had a leg broken; Ernest Duval, baggage master, was hit in the back and was internally injured; W. R. Lamb, a merchant of Hamlet, was badly bruised; John Newton, colored, of Hamlet, had his leg crushed; W. S. Rowe, the express messenger was badly cut; Sam Wicks, colored, of Charlotte, was also badly cut. Others received minor injuries.

Do Not Buy Coupons From Carrier Boys

Complaints have come from some of The Reflector subscribers that the carrier boys deliver papers with the coupons for the News and Observer voting contest cut out. It develops that some of the boys have been cutting out these coupons and selling them. They have been forbidden to do this, in fact no one connected with The Reflector is allowed to use the coupons. Of course candidates in the voting contest or their friends have a perfect right to ask subscribers for the coupons, but should not obtain them from carrier boys, as this leads to mutilated papers being delivered to subscribers which is objected to. If any carrier boy again delivers a paper with the coupon cut out, The Reflector would like for the subscriber receiving it to give prompt notice at the office.

Forgot Everything But Bride's Size.

When D. A. Lovin applied at the office of Register of Deeds Mackey yesterday for a marriage license for Ellis Williams he had forgotten the name of the girl, and did not know her age, wherefore the fond hopes of two young hearts were sadly frustrated, for the time being at least. He fished deep in the pool of his memory but not a bite could he get as to anything that would recall the name of the expectant bride. When asked what her age was, he stoutly maintained that she was eighteen, or at any rate she was big enough to be eighteen, and that was as far as he got.

The register deeds refused to issue a blank license and told him to come again.—Asheville Citizen.

Seriously Hurt.

In response to a hurry call Dr. D. T. Tayloe went to Pactolus yesterday afternoon to give attention to a young man who had cut himself seriously with an ax in the log woods. The man was employed as foreman in the woods by Mr. R. R. Fleming, and in some manner unexplained, cut himself, inflicting a severe wound on the leg. Dr. Tayloe rendered medical assistance and left the man comfortable.—Washington Messenger, 15th.

Williams Held.

An investigation of the burglar case by Mayor Stewart yesterday afternoon resulted in holding Chas. Williams, the negro boy from Greenville, there being no evidence connecting the others with the burglaries. Failing in bond Williams will cool his heels in jail until court when he will likely take a trip to Raleigh.—Washington Messenger.

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION, AND WHAT IT STANDS FOR.

It is said, upon excellent authority, that of all the numerous persons who enter the retail merchandise business, that 90 per cent are marked for failure. Considering the class of men who engage in this kind of business, the death rate, as it were, is absolutely alarming; so much so that any wise man, looking upon the numerous wrecks that strew the shores of the mercantile seas, must undoubtedly take the step with dire forebodings and anxiety.

The causes of such a large percentage of failure in this one line of business are numerous, and among them, none more apparent than the general lack of co-operation among the retailers themselves. The manufacturers of almost any commodity you may name are allied into organizations which aid the individual members, assisting them to solve the questions that daily confront them upon every hand; so that the smallest amount of capital is made to do the maximum amount of work. Among the wholesalers there has been for years mutual organization, which has fought for uniform freight rates, introduced new methods of business, and established a system of credit ratings which has saved them from the fate that has been the lot of the unorganized retailer.

The retailer has had none of these things to assist him. If a shark has fleeced one of them, he has kept the matter to himself as a matter of tending to lower his business pride; with the result that the fellow just across the street, and in fact the whole list of the local merchants has been worked out by the aforesaid shark. Without mutual assistance and aid, it has been for the retail merchant to explore the seas of bad credit and discover the island of perfidy and despair—sailing along in fair good humor in an old wooden bottomed craft called "individual effort" with bad business methods at the helm, and for charts and soundings nothing but the wrecks of other ventures scattered along the route to Nowhere.

It is this condition of affairs that has brought into existence The Retail Merchants Association, which proposes to unite the retail merchants for mutual aid. It is hoped by this organization to bring about better business methods, establish better collection laws and to protect each other against a class of people who continually live and have their being through beating the merchant by securing credit undeserved.

Surely such a project should receive the hearty accord of every one, save possibly the man

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

who dreads exposure of his perfidy and dishonest methods used in getting a merchant's goods and making no effort to pay.

Lower freight rates means cheaper food and clothing, better collections means better accommodations to the honest man, and better business methods means better merchants and a better community.

In Mecklenburg Superior court the other day in a suit for damages against the Southern railway, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. This goes to show that the time is coming around when juries are reaching the conclusion that corporations have some rights in cases of this kind. The damage suit business has been greatly overworked in North Carolina.

Surely Attorney Washington, counsel for the defense in the Cooper trial, is not a lineal descendant of the "Father of his Country." This conclusion can be reached from his speech.

Because a poor fellow has to keep scratching for a living does not mean that he has the itch.—New Bern Sun.

Yes it does. He itches for a living and scratches to get it.

Lawyers would soon be out of a job unless laws were made so as to be capable of more than on construction. Both sides must have a chance.

Such "blue blood" folks as the Coopers, of Tennessee, ought to have been above embezzling funds in their custody.

One judge may sometime reverse another to make it appear that he knows a little more than the other fellow.

There are two more March weeks in which you can put forth some good efforts for Greenville.

The opposition does not seem to be making Speaker Cannon even change the tilt of his cigar.

Pouring Prosperity Through a Puncture.

Ever see a drunken man trying to fill a bottle with the bottom broken out? It's a great waste, and it looks mighty silly.

But it's no more foolish and no more wasteful than for a sober man to expect his town to fill up with people and bubble over with prosperity when he is continually pouring his dollars into the wide world outside THROUGH THE MAIL ORDER HOLE in the bottom of his home town.

MORAL: Patronize home industries.

The Earth's Surface.

The surface of the earth can be compared to the top of a barrel of asphalt, hard and rigid through and through, seamed and cracked on the surface by the elements. For ten miles in a straight line below the surface the earth is probably dry and hard, of a rock substance. The pressure of this substance upon the heated center of the earth keeps it from getting hotter than it is, just as you can keep water from boiling by an appropriately sufficient pressure. The fact that there is steam in volcanic eruptions is the leakage of the interior pressure of heat in the earth. The character of matter in the center of the earth or its immediate environment must be something like pumice stone—spongy, porous, light—because when the earth's interior matter is melted in the high temperatures that are there it dissolves, and there is considerable water in it that escapes through volcanic craters in steam.—Professor Hallock, Columbia University.

Why He Wondered.

A certain Irish police inspector reviewing a Belfast police station, the sergeant of which was a very bad speller. Looking through the books, he came upon an entry, "Found a pig wandering on the public road."

"Sergeant," said he, "what was the pig wandering at?"

"I don't know, sir," said the bewildered man.

"Well," said the inspector grimly, "I do. He must have been wondering why I promoted you!"

Sarcastic.

There is a certain Wilmington business man, of a rather waggish disposition, who contends that his wife has no imagination. At dinner one night he chanced to mention a tragic circumstance he had read in the evening paper on his way home. A passenger on a transatlantic steamer had fallen overboard in midocean, and he had never been seen again. "Was he drowned?" asked his wife. "Of course not," answered the irrepressible hubby, "but he sprained his ankle, I believe."—Argonaut.

Just Her Habit.

A widower was being married for the fourth time recently. During the ceremony one of the guests is surprised to hear violent sobs proceeding from a woman in a corner of the church.

"Who is that lady who is crying so bitterly?" he asks of the bystanders.

"Oh, it's only Martha, our cook," answers one of the bridegroom's children. "She always blubbers when papa gets married!"—London Mail.

He Got the Girl.

He had gone to ask her father for her hand in marriage.

"Well, sir, what is it?" snapped out the old man. "Remember, I am a man of few words."

"I don't care if you are a man of only one word if it's the right one," replied the suitor.

He got the girl.

PARIS PAWNSHOPS.

Run by the State, They Are a Boon to All Classes of People.

The "mont-de-piété," as the French equivalent of the pawnshop is called, is a state institution. Consequently there is not that friendly communion between the lender and the client that one sees in London. There is no "private office" where the person temporarily embarrassed for money may screen himself from inquisitive eyes.

If you are in want of money and you have any portable property of the value of 3 francs or more you take it to the nearest branch office of the "mont-de-piété."

The first thing that meets your gaze is a "guard municipal" patrolling up and down the pavement outside the entrance.

With a feeling of wholesome respect for the majesty of the law, you now enter a large room, of which one side is occupied by benches (very hard and uncomfortable ones) and the other by half a dozen employees behind a counter.

Having handed your property to a clerk whose desk bears the inscription, "Reception of Articles," you receive a numbered metal check in exchange and then join the ranks of the expectant borrowers on the benches.

There are all sorts and conditions of men and women, from the work girl who brings her Sunday hat to the great lady who brings her jewels and whose motor car is waiting in the street.

But if there is no fraternity in the "mont-de-piété" there is at least equality, and no precedence is given to wealth or fashion.

When the value of your property has been estimated in another room a clerk calls out your number and the amount offered, which you can accept or refuse. It is never more than half the lowest selling price of the object, as the valuer is responsible for any loss arising from unredempted pledges. If you accept his offer your name, address and profession are taken down by another clerk, and you must produce papers to establish your identity.

The interest charged is only 7 per cent per annum, and there is no doubt that the state pawnshops render great services to all classes of French people.—London Standard.

HE HATED LONG PRAYERS.

And Well He Might After His Agonizing Experience.

"It happened," said the colonel, "that there were two colored preachers inhabiting cells in the penitentiary at Frankfurt at the same time. If I remember aright, both were sentenced for polygamy, but old Sam was a Methodist parson, while old Jake was of the Baptist faith. It seems that Sam had done something to greatly offend the warden, and the punishment decided on was an old fashioned lashing. Some weeks after the affair came off the Rev. Sam, whom I had known from boyhood, was telling me about it.

"I didn't mind de whippin' so much, Mars Jack, ef it hadn't been for de way old Jake acted. You see, de warden he said to me: 'Sam, I's gwine to whip you and 'low de whippin' will do you a whole heap uv good. I's gwine to let old Jake pray fer you, and de blows will continue to fall on your black hide while Jake's pra'r is a-goin' on. When he comes to a final stop den de punishment will likewise end."

"Land sakes, Mars Jack, I knowed it was all up wid me den, for dat ignorant old nigger never did know when it was time to get up off'n his knees! De fac' dat a po' human bein' was in distress wasn't gwine to make a bit uv difference wid him. Well, sir, it was jes' like I 'spected it'd be. Dey brought me out, and old Jake, de old villun, started in, and as fast as he prayed de warden come down on me wid a whip dat cut like a knife. I never did want to hear a pra'r come to an end so bad in my life, but it weren't any use. Every time I thought he was mos' through old Jake took a fresh hold, and down come de licks harder'n ever. Shorly it seemed to me like he prayed a month, and Mars Jack, I wants to tell you right now dat I am not againt long pra'rs for de rest uv my life!"—Washington Post.

POI IN HAWAII.

This Peculiar Food Is to the Native as Bread Is to Us.

What bread is to the American or European poi is to the native Hawaiian. No meal is complete without it, and for the great majority of the natives it forms the principal article of diet. While they probably could at the present time live without this accustomed dish, the time once was, before the advent of the whites to the islands and the introduction of new foods, that life without it would at least have been precarious.

Poi is made from the tuberous root of the taro plant, a species of the caladium family, of which the well known elephant ear plant is also a member. The tuber, which averages in size that of a large sweet potato, is baked and afterward pounded up with water until a smooth white paste is obtained, much resembling a wheat flour paste, except that the color is a pale pink or purple, dependent upon the variety of taro used. This paste is allowed to slightly ferment, or sour, when it is ready for use. In olden times each family prepared its own poi, the work being done by the men, as in fact were most other cooking operations. At the present time poi factories in which machinery grinds the taro and mixes it on a large scale have largely supplanted the old hand method. The Chinese of the territory have come to be the leading manufacturers of the product.

Many of the white residents of the islands eat poi to almost the extent as the natives, but the taste is largely acquired, and strangers seldom care for it. Poi has a high food value, and, since it formed the principal article of diet of the old Hawaiians, some persons have credited it with the splendid physical development of the race.

Poi was always eaten from wooden bowls, or calabashes, and was conveyed to the mouth by the fingers, one, two or three being employed, according to the consistency of the food, which also establishes a designation of one, two or three finger poi. White poi eaters now usually employ a fork or spoon in lieu of fingers, although it is still common even in the highest families to give native dinners, or luau, at which knives and forks are tabooed and fingers only used. There is as much etiquette among the Hawaiians in eating with the fingers as with modern table implements, and the graceful motion by which a portion of poi is twisted upon the fingers and transferred to the mouth would not shock the sensibilities of the most refined. An invitation to a real luau, at which poi, baked pig, fish baked in leaves and coconut in various forms form the principal part of the menu, is something that is always looked forward to by every visitor to Hawaii and always pleasantly remembered afterward.

Grubworm Races.

An odd form of animal contest used to be practiced by office clerks in London some years ago. It was known as grub racing, and nearly every younger clerk had his stable of racers. These worms were bred in nuts or apples and carefully stabled between two walnut shells. They were selected by placing them in the center of a piece of paper, and the one that proved most adept in making a speedy bee line to the edge of the paper was matched against the pick of a rival stable. Some of the fastest could not be induced to travel in a straight line. In racing parlance, they bolted and were bad betting propositions. But when two came together that showed a disposition to run straight and true the betting on the result was lively enough to stir up the anti-gambling enthusiasts.—New York Tribune.

SECOND HELPINGS.

A Nice Calculation in Beans and a Dose of Ginger Tea.

It is told of an old time boarding mistress of Marblehead, a shrewd dame who kept her boarders under admirable control, that once, on Saturday night, a daring man broke the unwritten law of the establishment and asked a second time for beans. At once several others, who had not dared, but were ready to follow a leader should he succeed, looked up expectantly.

The landlady promptly ladled into the plate of the rash innovator a last spoonful, scraped from the deepest interior of the dish, and, sweeping the table with a beaming smile, declared triumphantly:

"There! I calculated on just enough to a bean!"

Second helpings were otherwise discouraged by a boarding mistress of Old Norley. A young schoolteacher, late to dinner from a skating party, ate little of the half cold and unappetizing first courses, but ventured a second request for hot mince pie. It was served without comment, but a few minutes after dinner the maid tapped at her door.

"Missus is afraid all that pie won't set well," she announced,
"and she says shan't she make you some ginger tea?"

The kind offer was declined. But a half hour later the maid appeared again.

"Missus says she's sure you must be needin' ginger tea by now," she stated. "She'll send some right up the minute you say so. It's all ready."

Somewhat less graciously the offer was declined again. But in a few minutes the maid reappeared with a tray and "Here's your ginger tea; missus says you better be on the safe side and take it."

Rather sharply the tray was repudiated. Five minutes later the maid knocked once more.

"Missus says she's got to go out,
but she ain't just easy in her mind to leave you. She's put your ginger tea on the back of the stove, keepin' hot, and you'll find the extract bottle on the second shelf of the pantry if you want any more. She says she hopes you'll be all right, but that pie was awful rich, and two pieces was enough to upset an ostrich."

They did not disturb the digestion of the healthy and hungry young schoolmistress. But she never risked incurring her landlady's solicitude by more second helpings.
The ginger tea had cured her of that.—Youth's Companion.
