THE EDITOR'S WIFE HAS WOES.

She Can't Be Really Stylish Unless the Right Stores Advertise.

Amusing side lights are thrown upon journalism in a small town in an article, "I Married An Editor," by the Wife of One, in the April Designer. Actual coin of the realm was a scarce commodity. I discovered, says the writer. The Banner-News "traded ads." for all useful, and some useless, things of the editor's household, and even the one printer and the printer's "devil" left often on Saturday nights with an order upon some store for shoes or sugar, as the need might be, in lieu of wages.

My jackets and hats, perhaps, were not of style and quality to equal those displayed by the "Parisian Bazaar," but then the Banner-News, with all the enterprise of its editor, had not captured the "Parisian Bazaar's." Always as the first of a month approached there were visions of jingling sums of money when subscribers would pay up. But often the jingle of silver resolved itself into the beat of a wobbly-legged calf, a grunting little pig, a heap of golden pumpkins, a bushel of potatoes, or a peck of onions offered in lieu of specie.

The larder burst with "garden truck" as the subscription list of the Banner News grew apace. But the editor was sanguine. No matter how subscribers paid, he explained, the main thing was to get subscribers, for getting subscribers meant getting advertisers.

But there are more serious problems in the life of the country editor's wife than those bearing merely upon clothes and food. There is, for example, the social side of things. Her husband's position in the community and the popularity of his paper in a manner depend upon this. In addition to tactfulness, there also rests upon her the responsibility of giving an "atmosphere" to her husband's home; an atmosphere that savors of learning—one, at least, that should be assumed to be literary.

At dinner in the editor's home the visiting celebrity must be entertained. It may be "our constituent" during the exciting days of town or county politics; the orator who will address "our fellow-townsmen," or the educator, or the "talent" that comes from the near-by but mysterious "city" to aid in acquiring funds for some particular church or charity. Upon such occasions the country editor's wife must have at least the appearance of having "a soul above buttons."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Inspect Plans for Additional Buildings.

State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, of Raleigh, and Senator Y. T. Ormond, of Kinston, were here today with ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis, the other member of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Eastern Training School, looking after matters in connection with the school. Architects Hook, of Charlotte and Simpson, of New Bern, were also here with the committee and together they went over the plans for the power house and infirmary buildings which are to be erected as early as possible. The last legislature made provision for these two additional buildings and also for furnishing all of the buildings in readiness for the opening of the school next fall.

The Reflector does job work.

SURVEY OF TAR RIVER.

Washington, D. C. March 23. Editor Reflector:

The river and harbor act approved March 3rd, 1909, authorized an examination and survey of Tar river from Washington to Tarboro, "with a view to obtaining greater depth and width." Purposely no depth or width was specified, but it was left to the sound discretion of the district engineer, based upon commercial necessities and the engineering limitations, having also in mind a reasonable cost.

I respectfully request that the Chamber of Commerce of Greenville, North Carolina and Tarboro, and such other persons as are interested in the improvement of this river, shall communicate at once with Capt. Earl I. Brown, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., Wilmington, North Carolina, giving him their views as to the respective depths and widths to which this stream should be improved along its length, and that they will also be in readiness to respond to any request for commercial data as to the commerce of this stream existing and prospective. I also request that such citizens as communicate with Capt. Brown will also advise me of the nature of their communications.

Very respectfully,
Jno. H. Small.

RAIDED A GAMBLING JOINT.

Unlucky Thirteen Landed in Jail.

Saturday night Deputy Sheriff W. S. Tucker went out across the Norfolk & Southern railroad to serve a warrant on a colored man who was thought to be in a certain house near the town limits. Night Policeman W. H. McGowan and Mr. G. A. Jackson went along with the deputy sheriff, and upon arriving at the house they found a great deal more than they went out to look for. A rap on the door by the officer was followed by a considerable scurrying and noise within, and when admission was gained a regular gambling den was found. When the officers completed the round-up of the bunch they had just thirteen, and some one or two got away.

The thirteen, one woman and twelve men, all colored, were given a preliminary hearing before Justice C. D. Rountree Monday, and were all bound over to Superior court. Only about half of the crowd were able to give bond and the others went to jail.

Services at the Methodist Church.

Sunday Rev. J. H. Shore, pastor of the Methodist church, commenced revival services, with preaching every afternoon at 3:30, and night at 7:45. If you are a professor of religion and are trying to serve your Saviour, and are willing to do what you can to oppose the works of the Devil, and want to see sinners converted and brought to Christ, you should attend these meetings. There were two good services yesterday. God's spirit is at work among His people. Go and carry your friends. God wants your help.

Singing Class.

The Baraca class of Memorial Baptist Sunday school has organized a singing class and will begin lessons tonight. Sight singing is something needed in Greenville, and we are sure this class will result in much development in that particular.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Mr. J. E. Boswell, agent of the Norfolk & Southern railroad, lost a pocket book containing $600, this morning in the ladies waiting room. The money was railroad money, which had been collected since the banks closed Saturday, and which Mr. Boswell had been forced to carry on his person, because the N. & S. officials fail to provide the office here with a safe. A search was made and Mr. Boswell was getting anxious when Mrs. D. Stadiem, of East Gordon street, reported having found the pocket book, while in the station awaiting the arrival of the mail train. When she learned to whom the pocket book and money belonged she promptly returned it to its owner.—Kinston Free Press.

Bert Harris, a colored employee of the Goldsboro Lumber Co.'s plant at Dover, died Saturday night, from injuries received about two weeks ago, when a heavy piece of timber became dislodged and fell striking him forcefully on the head, crushing his skull.—Kinston Free Press.

Weldon, N. C., March 22.—Fire Saturday night completely destroyed the handsome country dwelling, known as the Whitehead place, near Weldon, and owned by fr. W. B. Drewry. The occupants of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Will Carroll, and their four-weeks-old baby, barely escaped with their lives and a colored boy, who slept in the barn was burned to death.

Rocky Mount, N. C., March 22.—While waiting at the railroad station yesterday for the noon southbound train, and while conversing with several friends, General Superintendent W. H. Newell, of the first division of the Atlantic Coast Line, accidentally stepped upon a dog which happened to be lying behind him, whereupon the dog seized hold of his left leg just above the ankle, giving him a severe bite, breaking the skin in several places.

It was a pity Raleigh did not have an auditorium last night to accommodate the biggest mass-meeting ever held in the city. Hundreds of people could not get into the court house, which was packed and jammed, people standing in the aisles and windows, the crush being so great. And it was as enthusiastic as it was immense. Its object was to endorse men for the various city officers who will give the city a clean and efficient government. The key-note of the assembly was struck by Mr. J. W. Bailey in his speech explaining the purpose of the meeting, when he said: "A city government that will not trust the citizens of Raleigh ought not to be trusted by the citizens of Raleigh."

How to Succeed.

Business today is a science, and strife and individual quarrel must cease.

Remember, the world's labor is done from day to day, and, since you must do your share, do it well. Bear in mind, no progress is made without effort, and see that no worthy effort is lost.

You are only useful to yourself when you are making yourself useful to others.

Harmony and unison underlie all successful undertakings. Good comes only by working for—not against—and the most good by working with.

Therefore "shake it up" and move lively, and every department in the house will be a big success.—Ex.

The letter of Congressman Small, published elsewhere, should have the attention of all who are interested in deepening Tar River and keeping the stream navigable to up the river points. To have the river a sufficient depth for the passage of boats at all times, means much for the towns located along its course. The water competition thus provided will secure to these towns a much lower freight rate and effect a saving of thousands of dollars annually. Greenville is one of the towns interested in this matter, and our people should act upon the suggestion of Congressman Small at once.

The Greensboro Telegram thinks the proposition of Congressman Sission, of Mississippi, for the government to raise revenue by levying a tax of $2 on each deadly weapon manufactured and sold in the United States, has merit and that its adoption would help solve the deadly weapon carrying problem. Not much. About the only effect it would have would be to add $2 or more to the price of every weapon. Perhaps the best suggestion to check the weapon carrying is to make every person carrying one pay a license and be registered, and make the penalty for being armed without license so heavy that the offense would not be repeated.

"Marked copy" on a newspaper wrapper is sure to make the receiver open and read. Last year a Southern man bought fifty copies of his local paper containing a suggestion for a factory location, marked them and mailed them to fifty individuals or concerns that might be interested. Result: Twelve immediate inquiries, three propositions for the factory site, one thriving factory located which today pays wages to 175 persons living in that town. —Mt. Olive Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Spirit That Makes a Town.
Here is a Lynchburg dispatch of the 18th:
"At a rousing meeting of Lynchburg citizens last night a chamber of commerce was organized and $50,000 of stock was subscribed to carry on the work of advertising 'greater Lynchburg.' As a jobbing center Lynchburg is now taking front rank of the cities in the south, and as a shoe manufacturing center it has no peer outside of the shoe making towns of the New England states."
It is just this spirit that has made Lynchburg what it is, one of the leading cities of the south, and the same spirit will produce similar results in every instance. We can name two North Carolina cities that owe their development and prestige to co-operation and public spirit, and we can name a half dozen others that are at a standstill by reason of lack of these necessary factors.—Salisbury Post.

The national Union Bank, of Rock Hill, S. C., has been offering to farmers money at 6 per cent, to be used in making the coming crop. Commenting on this, The Herald says: "It is rather an unusual thing to offer money to farmers at 6 per cent, when they have been in the habit of paying from 8 to 10 per cent. We understand from the bank that their idea in doing this is to get the farmer in the habit of doing all of his business through the bank." All businesses, large and small, should be conducted through a bank, and all efforts to induce the farmers to "open a bank account," should be encouraged. Correct book-keeping is the basis of success in all business, and the bank pass book is the most correct of all forms of book-keeping. The farmer who gets the bank to help keep his monthly business straight, is on the road to success.—Ex.

THE WILY COMEDIAN.

His Mixup With a Contract, a Legal Fee and an Opinion.

There was a certain comic opera comedian who made no end of money and who scorned anything like ostentatious recklessness in the spending of it. He was almost morbid on the subject, in fact, and there were those who said that he went to evening instead of morning service so that he might have the use of the money he dropped into the box a little longer. This is by way of explaining the grief which once befell him in Cleveland.

Somebody had played an engagement at a certain theater and had received a frigid reception, which stage people call a frost. The comedian wasn't going to run any risks. He wouldn't play at the theater unless a certain amount of money was promised him. The manager of the theater offered a very large percentage of the receipts; but, oh, dear, no, the wily comedian wasn't going to be caught by such chaff as that. He insisted upon a lump sum regardless of receipts. The sum was guaranteed, the contract signed. The comedian came to town and, strolling as if by chance into the box office, asked how the house was selling.

"Oh," said the ticket seller, "we sold every seat in the house ten days ago!" The comedian's blood boiled. "Would," said he to himself, "oh, would that I had accepted the percentage! It would have been double what I get now."

It was too late, however, to rely on simple wounding to change matters, so he sought the foremost attorney of the town, showed him the contract and expressed his desire to break it and abide by the customary percentage plan. Before the attorney would consent to express an opinion the question of fee came up, and the comedian handed him $500. The man at law then took the paper and examined it.

"My dear sir," said he, "that contract can't possibly be broken. I drew it up myself."

It is not told what the temperature of Cleveland according to the government report was that day, but in the neighborhood of that comedian things fairly sizzled.—Washington Star.

COAL AS FUEL.

It Was in Use as Far Back as the Time of King Solomon.

The first mention of coal in the annals of mankind occurs in the Bible, Proverbs xxvi, 21, as follows: "As coals are to burning coals and wood to fire, so is a contentious man to kindle strife." This was written about 1016 B. C., at the time King Solomon came into power. Part of his dominion was Syria, and ancient coal mines are worked in that country today. There are several other references to coal in the Bible, all of a later date. Tools and cinders have been found near the Roman wall, indicating that the Britons were familiar with the use of coal prior to the Roman invasion in 54 B. C.

The first actual record of a coal transaction is the receipt for twelve cart loads of coal written by the good abbot of Peterborough, A. D. 852.

Years before the Christian era coal was in common use in China. Anthracite coal is powdered, mixed with wet clay and rolled into balls. These are dried in the sun, and the poor use this fuel in little hand furnaces precisely as they did centuries ago. Marco Polo speaks of seeing in 1275 "a kind of black stone in Cathay that is used to burn better than wood." Marco Polo's countrymen refused to believe the traveler's tale.

The earliest historic mention of coal in the United States is by the French Jesuit missionary father Hennepin, who in his journal in 1679 speaks of traces of coal appearing on the banks of the Illinois river and makes the site of a "coal mine" on the James river, near Richmond, the first mine opened for the market. In 1766 anthracite was discovered in the Wyoming valley and a sample of the coal sent to Thomas and William Penn in London.—Carlington Phelps in Metropolitan Magazine.

How Germany Deals With the Waster.

Germany has a law that provides that if it can be proved that a man is earning a sufficient wage to support those dependent on him, but that he is dissipating that wage by vicious habits, he can be declared a minor, and he is then treated as a child. His employer is told that the wage must be paid not to the man, but to a guardian appointed by the magistrate of the district in which he lives, who uses it for the support of the wife and children. In England a man who could not get his wage might refuse to work. In Germany the police would see that he did his work.—Progress.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

Horrors Incidental to Old Time Execution by Drowning.

Execution by drowning was abolished in France by Henri Quatre, only to be revived by one of his successors. It was finally abolished as a statutory method of execution by the earliest decree of the great revolutionaries.

As late as the eighteenth century death by drowning was decreed to a felon in Edinburgh, and in the middle ages it was a common enough mode of doing a convicted criminal to death. That execution of this nature was considered as humane as any other, so far as the victim was concerned, is shown by the fact that it was not unknown among the early Jews, who varied the punishment of stoning adulteresses by drowning them. Among the Egyptians it was common. The Roman lex cornelia sanctioned the method by placing it on the statute records. Tacitus tells us that the Germans copied the practice from the Romans. The Teuton termed it the "last baptism," and he did not allow his powers of imagination to sleep when he set about devising additional varieties which should add to the excitement attending upon the doomed person's departure from life. The convict was sewed up, Monte Cristo fashion, in a bag, and with him were inclosed a vicious dog, a hungry cat, a violent rooster, a venomous viper, all very much alive and presumably kicking.

For what reason it is hard to see, but death by drowning was by many peoples considered preferable for criminal women. In the case of very debased or very mean offenders the Romans had a more or less pleasant fashion of drowning the doomed ones in marshes, first incensing them in elaborate crates.

For refined cruelty in killing off their female criminals the earlier Albanians were certainly the most inventive in the matter of ingenuity. It is commonly known, of course, that even the modern Albanian has less respect for womankind than any other known male in the human catalogue, not even excluding the Chinese. The approved method of doing a criminal or even a displeasing woman to death prevalent among them up to rather less than a century ago was to chain her in a tank into which the water was allowed to flow gradually. As the water reached her breast it was allowed to recede, sometimes back to her ankles, when the refilling of the tank began anew. If the woman had children the torture was varied by the drowning or mutilation of them before her eyes. To various parts of her body was attached such food as attracts rats, of which a number would be let loose.—New York World.

Fog Filters in London.

"All London public buildings are now erected with fog filters," said an architect. "They are essential. London's yellow brown fog, made of the smoke of a million soft coal fires, smells of sulphur, irritates eyes and throat and causes headache. It penetrates houses. Waking on a winter morning, you can't see across your bedroom for it. So now all public buildings filter it. The air is drawn in one orifice only, and fans hurl it against curtains of cotton six inches thick. It is forced through these curtains. It comes out on the other side for distribution through the various rooms a fairly clean, pure, transparent air. But the white filter curtains! Every day they must be changed. It takes only an hour to gray them, and by nightfall they are as black as ink."

Scottish Impartiality.

Color sergeant of highland company (in which were one or two English) calling the roll:

"Angus Mackay!" No reply. (Loudly) "Angus Mackay!" Still no reply. (Sotto voce.) "I ken ye're there. Yer aye at yer jooty, decent mon, but ye're ower modest to speak before sae many folk. I see ye fine." (Marks him down in the roll.)

"John Jones!" Squeaky voice replies, "Ere." Sergeant—Oo, aye, ye're here or say ye're here, but ye're sic a muckle leear I canna believe a word that comes out o' yer mooth, sae I'll jist mark ye doon as absent!"—London Answers.

Art.

Friend—What! You pawned your one good coat to get canvas for your painting? Artist—Yes, Friend—And how much did you get for the picture? Artist—Nearly enough to get my coat out.—Cleveland Leader.

Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men, but there is no gulf stream setting forever in one direction.—Lowell.

Why He Lost His Friends.

He was always wounding their feelings, making sarcastic or funny remarks at their expense.

He was cold and reserved in his manner, cranky, gloomy, pessimistic.

He was suspicious of everybody.

He never threw the door of his heart wide open to people, or took them into his confidence.

He was always ready to receive assistance from them, but always too busy or too stingy to assist them in their time of need.

He regarded friendship as a luxury, to be enjoyed, instead of an opportunity for service.—Ex.

Business Conditions.

About the most sensible deliverance we have yet seen on the tariff question, is that made by President Brown, of the New York Central Railroad, who has just returned from a Western trip. He is quoted as saying: "I do not look for decided change in the business conditions until we know more about the crops." And he adds: "Any revision of the tariff will be amply prepared for the business interests of the country and will not affect our future prosperity one way or another." He is right. The farm is the lever that moves the country.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Power of Enthusiasm.

Enthusiasm is one magnet of power. You must fire every event with it, touch thoughts and acts with it. It will transmute dross into gold, drudgery into delight. What matters if the soul which lives beside you is cold and selfish? Set him a good example! Joy is sunshine, and he will feel it. Every irksome task is a chance for power, for the qualities which they bring out are God's gifts which fit us to enjoy better things. Easy things will come if you have spent your heart's blood on gaining strength, for the very goal of power is the ease which comes from strength. We laugh at things and people who used to cow or annoy us. We do gracefully and swiftly the tasks once so hard. One by one we have unriveted our chains. We are free!—Nautilus.

Good News For the Editor.

When Kitty sings my muse takes flight. I sit entranced; I cannot write.

Such was the refrain of the budding poet's latest production, and when it reached the hands of the weary editor, who had been bombarded by bushels of unavailable outpourings from the same source, he promptly sent it back, with the following terse and businesslike indorsement:

"Glad to hear it! Keep Kitty right on the job! Any time that she strikes for higher wages let me know, and I will make up the difference myself rather than have her stop."—New York Times.

Getting a Line on Prospects.

"Sir, I have a very personal business proposition to make to you, but before approaching that would you care to make a statement of your financial condition?"

"Certainly. I have been established in this business for more than twenty-five years, my yearly income is well into the hundreds of thousands and constantly increasing, I have unlimited credit and also have real estate valued at a couple of millions. Go ahead!"

"That is quite satisfactory. Now, may I ask for the hand of your daughter?"—New York Herald.

His Mean Way.

"Henry asked you if you had made that cake, did he? Well, what was there in that to wound your feelings, child?"

"It was the—the way he said it, mamma. He—he didn't ask me if I'd made it. He—he said, 'Darling, did you perpetrate this cake?'"—Chicago Tribune.

A Wonderful Bird.

One day a wonderful bird tapped at the window of Mrs. Nansen's (wife of the famous Arctic explorer) home at Christiania. Instantly the window was opened and in another moment she covered the little messenger with kisses and caresses. The carrier pigeon had been away from the cottage thirty long months, but it had not forgotten the way home. It brought a note from Nansen stating that all was going well with him and his expedition in the polar region. Nansen had fastened a message to the bird and turned it loose. The frail courier darted out into the blizzard air. It flew like an arrow over a thousand miles of ocean and plain and forests and one morning entered the window of the waiting mistress and delivered the message which she had been awaiting so anxiously.—Truth, Buffalo, N.
