RECEPTION AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Cook Greeted by a Host of Friends.

The reception held Wednesday night by Rev. J. B. Cook, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, and Mrs. Cook, in the basement of the church, was an occasion of much pleasure to all who were present.

Even those who have been regular attendants upon the Sunday school had no idea that the rooms could be transformed into such a place of beauty. The committee of ladies in charge of the arrangements certainly performed their duties well. The pews were removed from the assembly room, the folding doors of the class rooms were opened throwing all into one large room, rugs, tables, ferns and potted plants were placed at convenient places, giving the appearance of a large hall in a palatial home.

Rev. and Mrs. Cook met the callers as they arrived and gave each a cordial greeting. A number of young ladies served light refreshments. A large number of people attended between the hours of 8 and 10, and the time was spent most pleasantly.

At intervals there was excellent music, Mrs. W. L. Hall singing several solos and a double quartette of young men giving a number of selections.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Louisburg, March 24.—A serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon in the suburbs of the town. About sixteen convicts were at work on the road, when there was an unexpected explosion of dynamite, which had been used in some rock a few days ago. Four of the men were injured, two seriously, one in the face and eyes, another, it is feared, will lose four of his fingers.

Washington, D. C., March 24.—President Taft is going to Charlotte May 20th to attend the celebration in honor of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. An invitation to be the guest of the city was extended today by a large delegation from Charlotte, which was made very happy by reason of the president's prompt affirmative reply.

The North Carolina Teachers' Assembly will hold its 26th annual session at Morehead City June 15-18, 1909. Secretary R. D. W. Connor announces that the program is nearly completed. It will be devoted to a discussion of practical problems with which teachers are daily confronted in their work, and will include many of the most prominent educators and teachers in North Carolina and other States.

Commissioner Lang Dead.

County Commissioner A. V. Lang, whose illness was reported a few days ago, died Wednesday at his home near Farmville. He was about 32 years of age and leaves a wife and two small children, one of them an infant.

Mr. Lang was elected a member of the Board of County Commissioners at the last election and had been serving only from the first of December, but in that time had proven himself a valuable member of the board. He was an excellent man and his death is indeed a loss to the county.

The Reflector does job work.

GENERAL NEWS.

Some of the Happenings Over the Country.

Milford, Mass., March 24.—Archie Thomas, 16, of Upton, Mass., after an examination at the Massachusetts general hospital in Boston, was yesterday found to have leprosy, and was sent to the state leper colony on Penikese Island. He was born in Barbadoes and lived in Upton with his mother. He attended the high school.

Simsbury, Conn., March 24.—The bodies of Mrs. Amos Miller and her two children were found in the Farmington river this morning. The children had been tied together before drowning ensued and through a note left by Mrs. Miller, she apparently took their lives and her own, while mentally depressed.

New York, March 24.—Miss Anna Magano, teacher in public school 103, on 103rd street, was shot and killed today by her father, Philip Magano, half a block from the school. The street was crowded with school children, who fled in a panic. The father, after firing two bullets into the girl's head at close range, tried to kill himself, but was prevented and arrested. The man had been acting strangely for some time, and a month ago, after a quarrel, his daughter had him arrested and put under bond. She then left him, as did his wife, and went to live at St. Celia's Working Girl's Institute.

Havana, Cuba, March 24.—Three reputed witches have been convicted of murdering a white baby in order to procure the blood and heart wherewith to heal the sick. The women have been sentenced to death and four others, convicted as accomplices have been sentenced to from 14 to 20 years imprisonment. This is the second case of the kind, three women having been put to death in 1904 for a crime.

The Chickens Deserved It.

Gladys, aged six, would never eat pie-crust, but would slyly hide the crust under the edge of her plate after having eaten the filling. One day her mama saw her putting away the crust as usual, and thought to reprimand her by saying: "Oh, Gladys, mama doesn't like little girls who do such things."

Whereupon Gladys said: "Well, mama, I am saving it for the chickens. They like it and I don't, and they ought to have it, for they are better than I am; they lay eggs and I don't."—The April Delineator.

Methodist Revival Services.

Interest in the revival services which are being held every afternoon and night at the Methodist church continues to increase. There were large congregations at both services yesterday.

The subject in the afternoon was "Religion which is Love." Religion is what God sees in our hearts and our course of conduct.

At night the subject was "Judgment." There are three things that are in front of every person looking them in the face—death, judgment and eternal destiny. Are you preparing to meet these?

Changeable Weather.

There was another hard rain before day this morning, but pretty weather followed until about noon when a hard wind and cold rain came to make things disagreeable again.

WOMEN BAPTISTS AT HIGH POINT

Three Hundred Delegates Attend the Convention.

High Point, N. C., Mar. 24.—Three hundred or more delegates are here in attendance upon the Baptist Women's Missionary convention at the First Baptist church. On account of ill health, Miss Fannie Heck, the beloved president, cannot attend and a beautiful bouquet of flowers was presented in behalf of her by the Rev. Livingston Johnson.

The convention sermon was preached by Dr. J. W. Lynch, of Wake Forest. Devotional exercises were held this morning, led by Miss Upchurch, of Raleigh. Mrs. O. L. Powers welcomed the guests and Mrs. L. J. Jenkins, of Gastonia, responded.

Miss Anna B. Hartzell, returned missionary from China, made a highly interesting talk.

At the devotional exercises this evening Miss Ethel Pickett, of this city, extended greetings on behalf of the N. C. Y. W. A. A big reception was tendered this afternoon at the home of Mayor M. J. Wrenn. Dr. Porter, of Richmond, Va., delivered an address tonight.

Free postcards, free rides, free soft drinks and about everything free is being extended the 300 delegates from all over the State.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

J. R. Whitehurst Wins Damage Suit Against Town of Bethel.

The suit for damages brought by J. R. Whitehurst against the town of Bethel, which began Tuesday in court, was ended today, the decision of the jury being against the town and giving the plaintiff damages in the sum of $300.

The cause for the suit was that Whitehurst was arrested for being drunk on the evening of January 4th, 1908, and was placed in the guard house and kept all night. The plaintiff claimed that the weather was cold, the prison in which he was confined had no glass in windows, no means of having fire, no bed to sleep on and insufficient covering to keep him warm, and because of this he suffered much from cold which was followed by sickness and impairment of health from which he has not yet recovered.

The amount sued for was $2,000 which the jury scaled down to $300.

The case was warmly contested on both sides. An appeal will be taken by the defendant to Supreme court.

From One Bond to Another.

A negro who had a case in court the other day seemed to step "out of the frying pan into the fire." This particular son of Ham was suing his wife for divorce. The defendant wife put in no appearance and no answer to the complaint, hence the man had it all his own way in getting the divorce. When the jury handed up a verdict freeing the man from the bonds of matrimony he was about to take his departure from the court room when Deputy Sheriff O. W. Harrington advised him to wait, as there was other business for him. The officer produced a warrant against the man and he was placed under another bond, this one being to appear for trial and answer a charge for trespass.

I wish to say to my friends and customers that I am still in the millinery business at the same old stand. Mrs. L. Griffin.

THE RIGHT OF THE CHILD.

How President Roosevelt Reminded the Nation of its Duty to the Unfortunate.

There can be no more important subject from the standpoint of the nation than that of the child; because, when you take care of the children you are taking care of the nation of tomorrow; and it is incumbent upon every one of us to do all in his or her power to provide for the interests of those children whom cruel misfortune has handicapped at the very outset of their lives. I believe that we all of us have come to the conclusion that, where possible, the thing to be done for the child is to provide a home for it; and that where that is not possible we should make the conditions as nearly as possible like those which the child would have in a home.

There is ample room for all existing institutions, but the work of extension should, so far as possible, be a work of extension in home-placing; and, where that is not possible, to make the conditions surrounding the child that can not be put in a home as nearly as possible like those which would obtain were the child in a home—From President Roosevelt's Address published in the April Delineator.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., March 25, 1909. Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:

Trade conditions generally show little deviation from report of last week. A decrease in both the demand and price for most grades of lumber is noted. This is attributed to tariff agitation which also appears to have had its effect on other lines. Cotton continues firm, but no advance in price is noted. Tobacco manufacturers are active and prices for loose leaf are maintained. Dry goods and shoes are quiet. Produce is in fair demand. Movements of early spring vegetables from southern territories are noted. Cold weather is reported to have injured the fruit crops in some sections of Virginia and has retarded farming operations. Retail trade is quiet. Collections are reported not as good as they were the first two weeks of this month.

The South Pole has been reached. Now for the North one.

There is no intimation that the tariff will be taken off the Easter hat.

A man in Michigan went crazy over beefsteak. The price must have had something to do with it.

Wonder what they are going to do with the South Pole, now that Shackleton is reported to have found it.

If the Coopers stay in Europe and escape the penitentiary Tennessee will be rid of them, and that may be some consolation.

If the real kidnapers of the Whitla boy are found, such punishment should be meted out to them as will make any others contemplating a like crime take warning.

If you get your support out of a community, you owe the community something in return. It is not a good citizen who gets all he can from a community, and then kicks and growls and hinders progress.

The news coming from Washington is that congress will make a determined effort to reduce public expenditures to such a figure as will be within government receipts. About the best place to begin reduction is the pension list.

A bill has been introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature making kidnapping a felony punishable only by death by hanging. Kidnapping should be made a capital crime and those guilty of it given the severest punishment.

North Carolina is to have a visit from President Taft, as he has accepted an invitation to attend the 20th of May celebration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. The "Queen City" will do herself proud on the occasion of the president's visit.

There are a great many things we do not understand and never try to get through our brain; there are others where we "hadn't ought" to butt in and try to fathom, but sometimes we can't help it. One of these is this new fashion of the waist line among the dear women. It is given out that it is to be made lower this season—down about the knees for instance. We do not know how the dear creatures will look, but this is not what is bothering us; what we cannot understand is how they are to get this waist line down so low. Women, in some respects, are supposed to be made like men, but imagine a man shifting his waist line so much as a sixteenth part of an inch! It stands to reason, therefore, that if a woman can accomplish the job she is not made like a man by up-

The man that has nothing to offer the public is perfectly willing—and so he should be—to keep quiet about it. He doesn't advertise. The man that has something that you want is the man who has an ad in the local paper. He's doing business, because he has what the people need, and has the wisdom to tell the public about it. People have not the time to hunt for things. They want to know just what you have and, if the local paper has an ad telling them that you are doing business, they are going to patronize you.—Kinston Free Press.

Speaker Cannon is not going to fool with absent members of the House hereafter. He has let it be known that he proposes to dock every man who does not show up daily. This power is vested in the speaker and has been exercised under Republican and Democratic speakers. The old gentleman is very emphatic about it and has given fair notice. No work no pay is his ultimatum.—Greensboro Record.

News comes that the citizens of Mississippi have decided upon a very gracious tribute to the immortal Jefferson Davis. ### ENGLISH BEAUTY CUP.

Weak Tea Invites Sleep and Improves the Complexion.

I advise those who consult me upon the tired complexion to indulge in what is called the English beauty cup. Mr. Gladstone took it each night of his life as long as he had health, and it is the cup which keeps many an English beauty going. It is simply tea, but tea made without the nerve destroying attributes. If properly made it invites sleep.

You take half a small coffee spoon of tea, and you scatter it in the bottom of a very large cup. The German coffee cups are best for this purpose. Over this you pour as much boiling, bubbling water as the cup will hold.

The saucer is placed on the top of the cup in Chinese fashion. Now comes the big wadded tea cozy, which must be thrown over all. It is an oddly shaped cozy, made to cover cup and saucer. It stands for five minutes to steep.

Now comes the scientific part of the cup. You take three very thin slices of lemon, and you lay them in a big hot cup. On top of the slices of lemon you place a big maraschino, and then on top of all you pour in the tea, putting it through a strainer.

The result will be a fine, weak, hot, but healthful cup of tea with just the right flavor of lemon. You can have sugar if you want it, and Gladstone's rule of three big lumps will do you no harm, for sugar is a great builder up of the muscles.

By the way, if you are fagged out, day or night, try eating a little sugar. A lump of sugar will restore the stomach and take away that tired feeling. Sugar is recommended to women whose cheeks are hollow. It has a way of building up tissue.

A big cup of tea at night is excellent, but the trouble is that most persons make it too strong. The weaker the better. The same is true of coffee, which, if taken weak enough and with plenty of good sugar, acts as a nightcap. Not one person in a thousand can make it right. In Paris the French beauty takes her foaming cup of whipped chocolate after the theater with a biscuit, or she sips her cafe au lait, which is mostly milk. — London American Register.

And Went.

"When I leave you tonight?" began Mr. Stoplate.
"Goodness!" interrupted Miss Ter-sleep. "Are you coming again tonight?"
"He glanced at the clock and apprehended her meaning.—Exchange.

IT SHOOK HIS NERVES.

An Incident That Made a Man Feel Queer For Awhile.

"One night," said a lawyer, "I was preparing some tedious pleadings which had to be submitted to court the following morning, and, knowing that I would need every moment of my time, I locked myself in a small private consultation room in the rear of my suit, where no chance caller could interrupt me. The room is very diminutive, with only one window, looking into a court, and no furniture except a table and two or three chairs. Well, I worked on steadily hour after hour long after the city had settled into sleep and silence. The building was so still I could hear even an occasional mouse scamper across the floor alone. At last I concluded the task and, sitting erect in my chair, began to stretch my cramped limbs.

"As I did so my eyes happened to fall on a lighted cigar stump lying on the carpet not four feet away, and I stopped stock still, frozen with amazement. I do not smoke. I had been sitting for hours in that little locked room. I could swear that no one had entered. The window was tightly closed, yet there right at my feet lay a half consumed cigar with a great live coal still glowing at the end. It seems ridiculous to confess, but a thrill of horror ran through me like a galvanic shock. A hallucination of any kind is an appalling thing; it makes no difference how grotesque or homely the subject. It carries such frightful suggestion of breakdown in one's mental engine room.

"Well, I finally summoned up enough nerve to stoop down and examine the stump, and what do you think it was? Why, a tin foil capsule from the top of an ordinary quart bottle of muceilage. In stripping it off it had assumed the circular twist of a cigar and, the foil being brown, was just the right color. The red seal at the top formed the coal, and a yard or so away the illusion was perfect. I drew a deep breath of relief, but it was actually several days before my nerves resumed their normal tension."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bright as the Fire.

When Crewe Hall was burning the late Lord Crewe, father of the present earl, displayed a humorous equanimity which St. James' Budget deems worthy of preservation in print.

When the historic mansion, with its works of art, rare manuscripts, armor and other treasures, was blazing away Lord Crewe ordered a footman to place a table on the lawn and bring him an inkstand and some telegraph forms. He then sat down and composedly wrote this telegram to Street, the Royal academician:

"Dear Street—Crewe is burning. Come and build it up again."

To his sister he sent another message by wire:

"You always used to say this was a cold house. You wouldn't say so if you could see it now."

Spoke Well of Her.

A preacher in the reign of Charles II. was to receive £10 if in his sermon at the funeral of Mme. Creswell he said nothing but well of her. She was rather a bad character and herself had dictated the clause in her will. So, after a general address on mortality, he thus concluded: "By the will of a deceased sister it is expected that I should mention her and say nothing but what was well of her. All that I shall say of her, therefore, is this: She was born well, she lived well, and she died well, for she was born with the name Creswell, she lived in Clerkenwell, and she died in Bredwell."—Minneapolis Journal.

Expensive Education.

"Do you think you could learn to love me?" asked old Gotrox.
"Oh, I don't know," replied Miss Youngblood. "How much are you willing to spend on my education?"—Chicago News.

THE WAYS OF JAPAN.

You Are Never Sure of Privacy, Even While Taking a Bath.

As one steps before the wide open doors of the reception room or into the court or the kitchen, as the case may be, the host approaches and greets with a low bow, followed by the hostess and usually one or more of the maids, who, kneeling, bend to the floor. The salutations are returned, a word is exchanged perhaps about the rooms or the meal that is to be prepared, and the guest seats himself on the low porch or platform that surrounds the entrances and removes his shoes or sandals, leaving them on the ground. If one wears the Japanese cloth shoe and straw sandal, as I did some of the time, the feet are always washed in a wooden basin of water brought by a maid, who comes clattering around the outside of the house on wooden clogs to bring it and sets it down before one on the ground. A little towel is brought, too, unless one, as usual, has this most useful of articles about his person.

Then the guest steps in, in stocking feet or barefoot, and, preceded by a servant, passes through the open rooms, often between a double line of all the people of the house, who are bowing to the floor. He enters the room allotted to him and there seats himself cross legged on a cushion on the matted floor before a tiny charcoal fire in a brazier and rests—at least pretends to rest if he is a foreigner—until disregard for ceremony gets the better of him and he adopts an easier position. Presently comes a demure or smiling little maid, with rosy cheeks and fancifully colored silk kimono, who kneels outside and slides open the paper door, enters, kneels and closes it, brings tea things to the center of the room and, kneeling, pours out a wee cup of tea to the guest or each of the guests. This done, she bends her forehead to the floor and patters out, opening and closing the door, as before. If the guest is an honored one some daintily, such as bean jelly or cakes or raw dough rolled in pink and green powder, is brought with the tea. Then the guest steps out to the porch to wash, and as he dries his face he looks at the little cultured garden or off to the distant valley or forest or mountain or sea.

Returning to his room, he is most of the time alone until the coming of the meal or, if it chances to be afternoon or evening, until the announcement comes that "the bath is ready." One is never entirely alone. Access to the room is always free on several sides, and host, visitor or servant may come in at any time. One becomes used to this and learns to like it in most ways. There is nothing hidden. It makes life simple and informal and more natural. We found it a disadvantage sometimes when we had too many visitors whose curiosity got the better of them, but we always took it in good part, finding it amusing rather than annoying.—Robert Van Vleck Anderson in Popular Science Monthly.

He Would Get Over.

"If he's as good as he looks," said Lord Archie, "he'll do."

"Thry him, yer honor, thry him," said Delaney confidently. "I've a grand field and plenty o' jumps."

The colt was saddled, and Lord Archie mounted. He first galloped around the field, about twenty acres in extent, and then took him over a couple of hurdles, a wide turf fence and finally a stone wall quite five feet high. King Brian jumped like a stag, he could go a good pace, and his mouth was perfection.

"How about water?" asked his lordship.

"Wather, is it?" said Delaney, with supreme disdain. "Sure, if ye put him at the river Shannon he wouldn't balk."

"Do you think he'd clear it?"

"Well, no, yer honor," replied Delaney thoughtfully. "I wouldn't go as far as that. But, bedad," he added, with an air of conviction, "what he didn't jump he'd swim!" —London Answers.

DISTANCE OF THE STARS.

How Astronomers Set About the Task of Measuring It.

With the exception of a hundred stars at most, we know nothing of the distances of the individual stars.

What is the cause of this state of things? It is owing to the fact that we have two eyes that we are enabled not only to perceive the direction in which external objects are situated, but to get an idea of their distance, to localize them in space. But this power is rather limited. For distances exceeding some hundreds of yards it utterly fails. The reason is that the distance between the eyes as compared with the distance to be evaluated becomes too small. Instruments have been devised by which the distance between the eyes is, as it were, artificially increased. With a good instrument of this sort distances of several miles may be evaluated. For still greater distances we may imagine each eye replaced by a photographic plate. Even this would be quite sufficient for one of the heavenly bodies—viz. for the moon.

At one and the same moment let a photograph of the moon and the surrounding stars be taken both at the Cape observatory and at the Royal observatory at Greenwich. Placing the two photographs side by side in the stereoscope, we shall clearly see the moon "hanging in space" and may evaluate its distance.

But for the sun and the nearest planets, our next neighbors in the universe after the moon, the difficulty recommences.

The reason is that any available distance on the earth, taken as eye distance, is rather small for the purpose. However, owing to incredible perseverance and skill of several observers and by substituting the most refined measurement for stereoscopic examination, astronomers have succeeded in overcoming the difficulty for the sun. I think we may say that at present we know its distance to within a thousandth part of its amount. Knowing the sun's distance, we get that of all the planets by a well known relation existing between the planetary distances.

But now for the fixed stars, which must be hundreds of thousands of times farther removed than the sun. There evidently can be no question of any sufficient eye distance on our earth. Meanwhile our success with the sun has provided us with a new one distance, 24,000 times greater than any possible eye distance on the earth, for now that we know the distance at which the earth travels in its orbit around the sun we can take the diameter of its orbit as our eye distance. Photographs taken at periods six months apart will represent the stellar world as seen from points the distance between which is already best expressed in the time it would take light to traverse it. The time would be about sixteen minutes.

However, even this distance, immense as it is, is, on the whole, inadequate for obtaining a stereoscopic view of the stars. It is only in quite exceptional cases that photographs on a large scale—that is, obtained by the aid of big telescopes—show any stereoscopic effect for fixed stars. By accurate measurement of the photos we may perhaps get somewhat beyond what we can attain by simple stereoscopic inspection; but, as we said a moment ago, astronomers have not succeeded in this way in determining the distance of more than a hundred stars in all.—Scientific American.

There is always reason in the mas for his good or bad fortune.—Emerson

Bobby's Unfortunate Delay.

He was five years old. On this particular day mother had dressed him with unusual care and was very much displeased to have him come in with clothing dirty and torn.

She had so often told him he must take his own part in the boys' scraps—fight should the occasion demand it. This he would not do. And now she intended to punish him.

Bob became very indignant and said, "Well, mamma, I just told the boy I wasn't ready to fight, and when I got ready he was settin' on me."—Delineator.
