VANDERBILT ON THE JUDGESHIP.

Does Not Like to see the Legal Brethren Putting Themselves on Exhibition.

Editor Reflector:

Once upon a time there dwelt in the great eastern countries a very rich and famous king, one whom the Lord had blessed with a good understanding. A good judge of human nature, and rich to beat the band. His wisdom in all things he had to do with rendered him great among the nations of the earth in those days. He could see further in the millstone than the one pecking it. Well, this great eastern monarch, knowing human nature so well, organized a dynasty such as no other king had ever thought of. He originated it by calling in two of his best friends and the three vowed eternal fealty and allegiance to the doctrine set forth and agreed upon among themselves, of which the king was the "chief cook and bottle-washer" of the trio, or in other words, he was captain of the flat, the other two were the "first and second mates." The rules and by-laws of the craft was that they would not enlist any other seaman without a recommendation from at least two of their number, which to begin with was a two-thirds rule. That custom held good from then until now, that no man could ship aboard this craft except by ballot from the whole crew unanimously in favor of the applicant, he having first been recommended by at least two of the crew. So you see that if the applicant had any dark spots upon his character that had slipped by those who endorsed him, it could be shown by a black ball from any one of the crew who knew aught of him as a man unworthy of fellowship with this good crowd, and he would be cast overboard.

But after a while the first mate was killed by some of the men of the craft and when his place was to be filled, the candidate had to pass in review of all the crew, and as he passed around among them they would judge his qualifications, to see whether he was fit or competent to fill the position, and his fate hung upon their decision. So when they decided his case and he got knocked in the head and came to life again they would give him the right hand of fellowship and put him to work.

And now, Mr. Editor, after thinking over this thing and that, I am somewhat inclined to think that with the passing in review of so many of our legal fraternity to the succession of one of the right bowers of the administration who has lately deceased, I cannot help recalling to my mind the foregoing. It looks to me like a scramble with the dignity left out, as they pass around the inspection department of the government. One of our judges has died, and to see the flock of applicants as they go and come from Washington makes me sick on the stomach, to think they show such little respect for the party, to which they claim allegiance. Why, sir, if I were a Democrat I'd cut my throat before I would ask a Republican for an office. And wisely we say, selah. I reckon the president thinks like the two travellers who were journeying in the west and came to a little inland town about sundown. Well, during the night there came one of the most terrific thunder squalls that ever was in the United States. The next morning the two men went

GREENVILLE BANKING & TRUST CO.

Holds Annual Meeting and Elects Officers.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Greenville Banking & Trust Company was held Monday at 10 o'clock in the office of the bank. In addition to a substantial cash dividend paid, the bank added $2,500 to its surplus, making this amount now $17,500.

The officers of the previous year were re-elected, and E. G. Flanagan was made vice-president, this office having been vacant since the election of J. R. Spier to the presidency in January. The following are the officers of the bank:

J. R. Spier, president.
E. G. Flanagan, vice president.
C. S. Carr, cashier.
A. J. Moore, teller and bookkeeper.
N. O. Warren, assistant teller and bookkeeper.

It is gratifying to the stockholders and friends of this splendid institution that it makes such an excellent showing. It is admirably officered, conducts its business along conservative lines, extends every reasonable accommodation to its patrons, and merits the fullest confidence of the public.

Orphans Coming 27th.

The Oxford orphanage singing class will give a concert in the Masonic Temple opera house on Tuesday evening, 27th. Those who attend these concerts spend an evening in a delightful and helpful way. The children render an excellent program, and they represent a work that lies close to the hearts of the people.

out to look the place over, which consisted of log house hotel, hay straw stables and pinebark blacksmith shop. When our travellers came in for breakfast mine host says "well gentlemen, what do you think of our town?" "Your town?" said they in some surprise, "why, we can tell you, sir, we think it can get up the dad-dimmedest thunder storm to the size of the place we ever saw."

And so I reckon Mr. Taft must think by this time that North Carolina can get up the darnedest, hungriest set of darn fool lawyers to the size of the State than any in the union. Why don't they stand on their legal learning and medical jurisprudence at the shotheary pop, and demand the respect due their profession by looking dignified and wise, and tell the president if he has any ole judgeship lying around loose, that wants its fill of a "man" that is as full of sence as an egg is of meat, to just call on "your uncle," and say "Vanderbilt, you are a fool, that is the man I want for judge." I can tell you now, too many of that kind of folks are giving Mr. Taft the monkey show for many of them to get it. It looks to me like the president has left the matter open so long just to see how many jackasses there are in North Carolina that wants to be judge. It looks that way to a man up a tree, as he sends down here every once in a while for some of them to go before him to see how nice they can bray. Seawell or Skinner either would make a good judge, and if either one is appointed then all this talk of rotten eggs will cease. Respect will be shown all over the district to the judge named. Would write more but I'm getting sleepy.

Good night,
Vanderbilt.

"WHAT WE CAN DO FOR THE SOUTH."

Extracts From Speech of Editor C. H. Poe.

The poorer every man is, the poorer you are, not the reverse of this, as too many people have long believed. Every man whose earning power is below par, below normal, is a burden on the community, he drags down the whole level of life and every other man in the community is poorer by reason of his presence, whether he be white man or negro, or what not.

Your untrained, inefficient man is not only a poverty-breeder for himself, but the contagion of it curses every man in the community that is guilty of leaving him untrained. The law of changeless justice decrees that you must rise or fall, decline or prosper, with you neighbor. You will be richer for his wealth, poorer for his poverty.

And so today every man who is tilling an acre of land in the South so that it produced only half what intelligently directed labor would get out of it, every man who is doing poor work of any kind, every man who is creating and earning only 70c a day instead of $2 or $5 as intelligent labor would do, every inefficient man no matter in what line of work, is a burden on the community, is dragging down the level of life for every other man in the community. Suppose you are his fellow-citizen, then because of his inefficiency, his poverty, because of his failure to contribute to public funds and public movements, you must have poorer roads, poorer schools, a meaner schoolhouse and courthouse, a shabbier church, lower priced lands, your teacher will be more poorly paid, your preacher's salary will be smaller, your newspapers will have a smaller circulation, your town will have a poorer market, your railroad smaller traffic, your merchant smaller trade, your bank smaller deposits, your manufacturer diminished patronage, and so on and on. The ramifications are indefinite, unending.

On the other hand, every efficient man, every man trained to do good work whether by the schools or by any other method, is making the whole community richer. If by doing better work he doubles his income, does not that mean the merchants will have more trade, the banks larger deposits, the newspaper better patronage, the preacher a larger salary, the county and State better resources so that roads, schools and schoolhouses will feel and show the thrill of a new power that has come to them? Every man who comes into the community with new talent and skill, every man trained by method to the greater efficiency and dynamic intelligence, every such man lifts the whole level of prosperity for the community. No matter what you have to sell—your muscular labor, your skill, your scientific knowledge, your manufacturing product, your land—you get paid for it in proportion to the efficiency and prosperity of the average man with whom you deal, and the great masses in the community must be intelligent and efficient if the general level of prosperity is to be high.

"The farmer, the common laborer of any sort, needs no training. Educate him and you spoil him. The poorer you keep him, the richer will be the upper classes." These have been our great pet fallacies. And a long

BAPTIST BARACA CLASS ANNIVERSARY.

Some Interesting Addresses—The Class Doing Fine Work.

Sunday being the anniversary of the Baptist Baraca class a program out of the regular routine was indulged in. At the opening of the morning exercises Brother Ed. G. Flanagan, the recent president-elect of the class, made a very neat and appropriate speech of acceptance of the office of president.

After the morning lesson by the teacher, Dr. J. W. Bryan, the entire school, 290 being present, with the ninety present in the Baraca class, joined in the anniversary exercises.

Dr. Bryan was called upon and after a few words of expressive appreciation of the honor of being the teacher of such a fine, growing and working class, yielded his time to a visitor and introduced Mr. Hylton, of Norfolk, Va., formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., who holds the distinction of having been a member of the original, first Baraca class that was organized in the United States and from which has sprung the great Baraca movement of the world. Mr. Hylton gave a descriptive review of this first class organized by Rev. Mr. Hudson, of the great work it did, and made a telling hit in his talk for the Baraca movement which was well received and highly enjoyed by all present.

Prof. Ragsdale, the next on the list, made one of his characteristic good and entertaining addresses, telling of the needs and present demands of the class which will redound to the upbuilding of the class.

Then a song by members of the class, who are taking music lessons from one of the accomplished music teachers of the graded school, Miss Minor. The song was excellently rendered and reflected credit upon their teacher and bespeaks for the class and Sunday school an higher degree of music and first class singing.

The last but not least was the address of Mr. Z. T. Broughton (Uncle Zack as the boys call him.) This speech was as broad as himself and in depth greater than his height, and will tell for good in the upbuilding of the class.

As I have stated, ninety were present and indeed it was a joyous occasion, not to be forgotten soon. A hearty welcome to all our friends to join us in this great work.

A MOONLIGHT RIDE.

It is easy enough to be pleasant,
The girl you surely can find;
But the buggy, be careful in choosing,
Be sure it is the "Flanagan Kind."

The back just right for your comfort,
To insure a most pleasurable ride;
And your arm seems to naturally fit it,
As the girl nestles close by your side.

You forget all the hardness of living,
You're ahead, your rival's behind;
And you chuckle and hitch a bit o'er,
In the four wheeled "Flanagan Kind."

Fifty years from today if you live it,
This sonnet will come fresh to you mind;
As you gaze on the still perfect buggy,
That is branded the "Flanagan Kind."

MR. J. J. LAUHINGHOUSE.

The appointment of Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse as superintendent of the State prison will come as near giving general satisfaction as any man in the State. He has been in many ways peculiarly fitted for the duties of this position by his life experience and especially is he prepared to assume the task, for since early youth he has carried heavy responsibilities.

At the age of sixteen he left school and joined the Confederate army and was soon thereafter elected captain of his company. Returning to his home after the war he witnessed the sale of his father's entire landed estate under execution to pay for slaves bought prior to the Civil war. He arranged with the creditors and bought the plantation, giving notes and security on the land which by industry and the practice of economy he succeeded in liquidating in a few years. Subsequently he bought two other plantations and up until the last year or two managed himself all his affairs.

He is one of the most successful farmers in Eastern North Carolina, having probably raised more tobacco under his direct supervision than any man in the State. He was elected to the legislature four years ago and to him more than any other one member is largely due the agitation of reduction of passenger rates, and while his efforts did not result in accomplishing all he desired, it was probably due to his vigorous stand that the reduction of railroad passenger rates came.

The old adage that "A prophet is not without honor save in his own home and among his own kin" does not hold in the experience of Mr. Laughinghouse. He is better known and appreciated in his own township and among his own people than any where else. He has never failed to get anything he asked for from his own township, and the people they believe in him and stand by him. He is a benevolent man and has won the love and respect of his neighbors by his open handed generosity and willingness at all times to come to their rescue. During the many years when he was magistrate in his township, he settled many petty cases rather than have them carried to court, with the result that many hundreds of dollars were saved and the public welfare protected.

He was sought for his advice and counsel, and his general information was such in innumerable instances he has saved his people from paying attorney's fees in such simple matters as writing mortgages, deeds, etc. The State is to be congratulated on his appointment to this position, but many of his friends con-

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

dole with him, for in accepting the place there is no doubt that it is a great personal sacrifice of his own interests.

The city fathers might with good effect give the streets a little cleaning up before the visiting Pythians come to town Friday, and make things look better than when the teachers were here last Saturday. We heard some visitors here that day remarking upon the filthy appearance of Evans street. The Reflector believes this hint is all that is needed to bring a cleaning up for Friday.

A man at Spencer gave up the postmastership paying a salary of $1,500 to become mayor at a salary of $300. He must either have thought there was near danger of losing his first job, or that there was pretty big honor in holding the last one. Anyhow, there are queer things in politics.

Every day adds new attractions to President Taft's judgeship menagerie. If the audience will stand for it the show might be kept up as a summer attraction.

The tariff bill in congress has got through the house and the senate will now take a turn at it.

Florida and Mississippi both indulged in Easter Sunday lynchings.

The Kinston "Muddle."

And Kinston has got a muddle on her hands, the citizens holding a mass meeting and denouncing certain of the aldermen who were seeking to oust the superintendent of schools in the town.

The above from The Greenville Reflector is only a partial diagnosis of the case. The board's attitude toward the city superintendent is, of course, incidental. But it is the attitude of a certain clique of officials toward the expressed desire of a majority of the people. This clique has shown itself intolerant of the wishes of the people as expressed by petition, and unwilling to entrust to them the decision of local questions. People have become incensed over this rule or ruin attitude of a few. And that is the whole trouble. As long as the people at large tolerate this intolerance in official life we will have a "muddle."—Kinston Free Press.

Curious Prayers.
Of curious prayers a writer says: "I have heard a layman utter this petition during his prayer: 'O Lord, be thou with us in our upittings and our downrisings'—a variant of the text in the Psalms, 'Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising.' A minister occasionally introduced a Latin sentence into his prayer and forthwith proceeded to translate it. Another minister in his early days experienced considerable difficulty with the long prayer before the sermon. In nonconformist churches this usually occupies a quarter of an hour, but long before this period had been reached he was wound up. On one occasion, while in this dilemma, he startled his hearers with the words, 'And now, O lord, I will relate unto thee a little anecdote!'"

Borrowed Plumes.
Quiller—I am constantly writing for the periodicals.
Pogum—That so? I never noticed your name as author.
Quiller—Oh, I always write under the nom de plume of "Anonymous."
Pogum—That explains it. I remember now to have read many of your productions—some of which are very fine. Let me congratulate you.

AN UNSOCIABLE LOT.

What Mr. Thomas Thought of the Crowd in New York.

Mr. Thomas crammed a fresh stick of birch into his little stove and closed the door, which John Arnold had left ajar on his entrance. The tiny shoe shop thus became air tight. Then the proprietor replied to John's question of what he thought of New York.

"I can tell ye in 'mazing few words," he said. "It's considerable of a place. Lots doing an' splendid big buildings an' schools an' churches an' all that they think they're some punkins too. An' I ain't saying that there ain't plenty of real smart ones there. Spite of all that, though, I call 'em kind o' ignorant, besides being cold in their manners."

"I want to know!" commented John, visibly impressed by this recital.

"I'll tell ye," continued Mr. Thomas. "Brother Tom's boy's office is down near the big Brooklyn bridge, and I used to go down there and set a good deal while my wife visited with his wife up in Harlem."

"When it come what they call rush hour I used to go down an' stand on the bridge an' watch 'em passing by, hundreds of 'em, on their way home, an' I got to feel real friendly an' to know lots of 'em by sight. But"—

Mr. Thomas paused impressively—"but, although I didn't miss an afternoon whilst I was there, an' that was two weeks, nary one o' them men ever give me a single glance of recognition."

"It wa'n't my place to speak first, me being a stranger an' they home, so to speak. I wa'n't going to push myself; but, I tell ye what, John, two or three times I had to hold on to myself to keep from telling of 'em just what I thought of such onfriendly ways."

"Why," says I to Brother Tom's boy, 'how long do you s'pose one o' them would be at Tunkett Corners before we knew him well enough to nod to an' found out his name?'—Youth's Companion.

Monster Nests.

In Australia are to be found the largest, heaviest and most peculiar nests in the world. These are the nests of the jungle fowl, so called, and are built in the form of great mounds, the average measurement in height being fifteen feet and the circumference 150 feet. The nests are erected in secluded, sheltered spots, and, as in the case of the small nests of birds, they are skillfully interwoven with leaves, grass and twigs and such other suitable material as the fowl may be able to procure. A similar system in the construction of nests is followed by the bush turkey, whose home is, however, more comprehensive in design. Its shape is pyramidal. It has been asserted by Australian naturalists that the nests of the bush turkeys, which live in colonies, are so large that to move them requires the services of six or seven men.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The City of Ispahan.

No city has a happier name than Ispahan—the "rendezvous." When visited by the traveler Chardin in the early part of the eighteenth century it contained 173 mosques, 48 colleges, 1,800 caravansaries and 273 public baths. But the Afghans, the local vandals, who did not care for bathing, destroyed the aqueducts and slaughtered the bathers. In the matter of great public squares Ispahan can easily outrival any European city. The Meydan, or great square, is a third of a mile in length and about half that in breadth. It was once encircled by a canal, bordered by fine plane trees, but these have long since vanished along with the canal.

Work of the Rivers.

The annual rainfall on all the land surface of the globe amounts to 29,000 cubic miles. Only one-fifth of this, or 6,500 cubic miles, drains off through rivers. The rest is absorbed and evaporated. But each cubic mile of river water carries in solution on an average 762,000 tons of dissolved foreign matter. By all the rivers 5,000,000,000 tons of solid substance is thus carried annually to the sea. Suspended sediments, or silt, the enormous mechanical load of streams, are not included in these figures. Only the dissolved matter is considered, representing the chemical work of rock and soil which the percolating waters have accomplished. The Mississippi carries past New Orleans each year 98,369,000 tons of dissolved salts, the product of chemical erosion.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Economical.

A lecturer, talking of economy, cited the case of a leading lady as told to him by her manager.

The manager one Monday night entered a leading lady's dressing room with a huge bouquet in his hand.

"The florist just sent this over, with the bill," he murmured confidentially behind his hand. "I'll have it—er—thrown on at the end of the trial scene, eh?"

"No, don't throw it on," said the leading lady. "Let an usher hand it up. I want to use it all this week."
