STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Greensboro, N. C., April 22.—“Doc” Simmons, a well known man about town, who was arrested in Norfolk several weeks ago for violation of the cocaine law, having in his possession several hundred dollars' worth of the drug, and who gave a five hundred dollar bond and jumped it, was arrested here this afternoon on a warrant from the Norfolk authorities as a fugitive from justice. Simmons is being held here awaiting instructions from Norfolk.

Rocky Mount, N. C., April 22.—News of the burning of the Atlantic Coast Line station at Jamesville on Tuesday night was received in this city yesterday by the railroad officials. The building was set on fire between one and two o'clock Tuesday night during a severe electrical storm, and it is known to have been either struck by lightning or else set on fire by the electric wires in the building.

The Chamber of Commerce has invited President Taft to Raleigh while he is in North Carolina on the occasion of his visit to Charlotte on the occasion of the 20th, of May celebration. It is desired to have President Taft here in the early evening of May 19th while en route to Charlotte.—News & Observer.

State Treasurer B. R. Lacy is taking the preliminary steps looking to the issuance of the $500,000 State bonds provided for by the recent legislature for carrying out the provisions of the Bickett act of the 1907 legislature for enlarging the State hospitals, the issue to be made July. He has taken up with the engravers the matter of bids for engraving the bonds and this contract will be awarded by the Council of State before a great while.

With the retirement of Dr. R. H. Lewis as Secretary of the State Board of Health, which responsible position he filled with signal ability, it is gratifying to learn that Dr. W. S. Rankin, of Wake Forest, has been chosen to that important position. Dr. Rankin has made an enviable record as Dean of the Medical Department of Wake Forest College, and no one is better qualified than he to succeed Dr. Lewis.—Mt. Olive Tribune.

An Excellent Preacher.

Thursday night in the Baptist church the subject of Rev. G. T. Lumpkin's sermon was “He came to seek and to save the lost.” It was a sermon of unusual excellence. The speaker showed on Bible authority that all who have reached the age of accountability are lost until they accept Christ, and there is no salvation for those who do not become Christians.

There were two professions at this service and others requested prayer.

Mr. Lumpkin will preach again tonight. Those who are absenting themselves from these services are missing much. The afternoon services are also very interesting.

Civil Court Next Week.

Another term of Pitt Superior will immediately follow the present one. This week was a criminal court and the term beginning next Monday will be for the trial of civil actions.

WRECK ON NORFOLK & SOUTHERN

Sparks' Circus in the Mix-up—No One Hurt.

A head-on collision occurred this morning on the Norfolk and Southern railroad at 5.20 a. m. between regular freight train No. 29 and extra train No. 33 carrying the John Sparks Circus. The wreck it is said was caused by the engineer and conductor on the freight train No. 29 over-reading their orders. The circus train, engineer Geo. R. Dunn, and in charge of Conductor Allison had the right of way. The freight train was in charge of Conductor Brandon, the engineer being Mr. Shakeford. The freight train was bound for Norfolk. The circus train was going from Columbia to Plymouth. The freight train had orders to pass the circus train at Plymouth, but in some way the orders were not obeyed and the wreck occurred between Plymouth and Mackey's Ferry. Both engines were badly wrecked, but the most fortunate part of the accident is that no one was hurt.—New Bern Sun.

WASHINGTON JUBILEE.

Our Neighbor Has a Great Week.

Washington had a jubilee all this week and it has been a gala event. Every day there were special attractions and crowds of people gathered there to witness them. The business houses and many of the residences were decorated with flags and banners and the citizens exerted themselves to make the visitors have a good time.

The industrial and educational parade Thursday was most creditable. It was very long and consumed an hour in passing. Various industries and trades were represented and hundreds of school children with banners added interest and beauty.

Out in Fleming park were exhibits of machinery and farm implements, and a carnival was also on hand.

Washington certainly acquitted herself creditably in the jubilee week.

Suckers Bite Again.

Last week The Chronicle told of how some of the people of Anson and Union counties were fleeced by a fakir who came along with clothing patterns which he sold at good prices, the bait being that a tailor would follow in a day or two and make the cloth into clothing. Of course the tailor never showed up. Right on the heels of this experience and in the same territory, a swindler last week sold a big line of mowers, reapers, buggies and other articles of like character to men and women, white and black, and then skipped with his booty, even leaving the livery stable man in the lurch. No doubt some of these victims were intelligent people. It is strange that in this day of newspapers and enlightenment these roving swindlers can find anybody with whom they might be able to drive a bargain, and yet the woods seem to be full of 'em. They would not bite twice at the same bait, but let something new come along and they fall cheerful victims. There seems to be no way of getting around the old saying that “fools and their money are soon parted.”—Charlotte Chronicle.

Printers' ink is the best axle grease to use on the wheels of business.

SUPERIOR COURT.

April Criminal Term in Session.

The following cases have been disposed of:

Lewis Hardy, larceny, guilty, judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

Tom Gray, larceny, not guilty. C. V. York, assault with deadly weapon, guilty, fined $25 and costs.

Andrew Wilkins, carrying concealed weapon, guilty, sentenced three months on roads.

Allen Gray, larceny, pleads guilty in two cases, sentenced three years on roads in first case and two years in second case, the sentences to follow each other.

John Collins, carrying concealed weapon, pleads guilty.

John Joyner, larceny, guilty, judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

Abe Peyton, larceny, guilty, sentenced eight months on roads.

Claud Thrower, assault with deadly weapon, pleads guilty, fined $5 and costs.

Aaron May, manslaughter, pleads guilty, sentenced three years on roads.

Stand By Your Home Town.

The place that gives a man his living is entitled to his best efforts to advance everything calculated to benefit the place and the community. No man has a right to live in a town who seeks to enrich himself and not actively identify himself with its interests. To be classed a drone, or chronic kicker and opposed to every measure believed to be for the good of the citizens is a stigma that should not attach to any man in the corporation. The improvements necessary to be made and the manner of making them a monument to the enterprise and intelligence of the citizens is the duty each person owes to the place in which he lives. No man has a right to oppose progress in his town simply because he is not personally benefited by the proposed improvements or perchance may have to pay a little toward it, for in the end it will no doubt have proven a wise proceeding. Let all join in any improvement calculated to better the town and community in which you live.—Albemarle Enterprise.

Got Five Years This Time.

The negro Allen Gray, who some days ago was pardoned by Governor Kitchen and in less than a week thereafter was stealing again, and who The Reflector predicted would be back on the roads in less than another week, plead guilty on Thursday of the charge of larceny against him in two cases. The combined sentence against him in two cases he goes to the roads for five years, and it is not at all likely there will be an effort to get him pardoned this time.

Interest Increasing.

Interest increases with each service in the Christian church; and large congregations hear Dr. Colyer each night. His subject Thursday night was “The Remedy for Sin and for Sinners.” Prof. Bowles sang very sweetly “No Room in the Inn.” Everybody should attend these meetings. Go out tonight, service begins at 7:45. The subject: “The Power of Example.”

W. P. Edwards has fitted up an office and workroom for making picture frames in the building back of the postoffice.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

This World Famed Place Owes Its Existence to a Lottery.

No city in the world offers more curiosities for sightseers than London, though the places of greatest interest are miles apart, such as St. Paul's cathedral and Westminster abbey, the Guildhall and the parliament buildings.

The British museum is in that part of the capital known as Bloomsbury, which at one time was the abode of the elite, but now is the boarding house district. This institution is really the center of artistic interest, for it contains one of the richest and most costly collections in the world.

It is not generally known that the institution owes its existence to a lottery. The famous Sloane collection, worth $1,000,000, was offered to the British government for $100,000 in 1753, and parliament voted that the sum should be raised by a lottery, under the auspices of the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor and the speaker of commons. This was done and the required amount raised. Three other costly collections were obtained in 1753, and the museum was then situated on the outskirts of London. Public interest had been aroused, and from that time on patriotic Britons have emptied their purses into the institution.

The British museum has the largest library in the world. It requires forty-five miles of shelving to house its books, and there is an annual increase of 100,000 volumes.

The library has a Chinese encyclopedia consisting of 5,000 volumes and an endless amount of valuable manuscripts. In 1907, when for the first time in fifty-two years there was a general housecleaning in the palace, it took just six months to do it, at a cost of $10,000.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Stop Burning Off Old Fields.

How long, oh, how long, will our farmers burn up every spring the little fertility that Mother Nature has laboriously spent the previous twelve months trying to develop? Turn out an old field, sick, famishing, naked, and Mother Nature clothes it with a coat of grass to heal its scars, to stop the wounding of it with gullies, and to feed it with rotting vegetable matter (humus) as the only way on earth to bring it back to life and strength. And yet nine farmers out of ten will go ahead and in twenty-four hours' time burn off all the potential humus that Nature has spent a year growing for the salvation of the land.

“For the land's sake” indeed we must stop burning off our old fields. It may make the grass seem greener this season, but in the end it means that the land will become too barren to grow any grass at all.—Progressive Farmer.

North Carolina Industries.

The Chattanoga Tradesman reports the following new industries established in North Carolina during the week ending April 21st:

Greensboro—$100,000 building company; $25,000 brick works.

Mt. Pleasant—Knitting mills. Middleburg—$10,000 lumber company.

Whiteville—$5,000 ice factory.

Jury Has Case.

The trial of Alfred Person and Monetta Person, colored, for murder in the second degree for killing a white man named Ed. Davenport, began Thursday afternoon and the case was given to the jury about 11 o'clock this morning. The jury had not reached a verdict up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Postponed Baptizing.

The old colored brother prefaced his sermon with the following remarks:

“I well knows dat some er you has travelled fur ter see de baptizin' today, but I has ter announce dat dar won't be no baptizin'.” Five big alligators has been seen sunnin' derselfs on five logs in de millpon'; havin' des crawled out fum der long winter sleep; an' hit stan's ter reason dat w'en a alligator sleeps all winter he's hongry w'en he wakes up. Hit may be dat Providence will protect de cander dates fer de baptizin', but hit's my opinion dat ter wade into a millpon' wid five hongry alligators playin' possum on a log, would be flyin' in de face er Providence.”—Atlanta Constitution.

Jeffries has decided that he will fight the negro Johnson.

There are said to be more than three hundred applicants after the ten positions of oil inspector. How they do run after office.

After making such piles out of his wheat corner, Patten is now trying his hand on cotton. Good place to lose what he has made.

News from Washington says that sentiment in favor of an income tax is on the increase. May it continue to grow until incomes and inheritances both bear their just proportion of the burden of taxation.

Make good roads keep pace with education in Pitt county and you will see the county prosper as never before. It costs the people more not to have good roads than to have them.

We see things often that force the impression that there should be more unanimity and working together on the part of business men of Greenville. There are opportunities of making Greenville the best town in all this section of the State, and if this is not done the fault lies with the home people.

Speaking of the educational revival that has been going on all over the South during the last few years, a gentleman who travels a good deal, remarked a few days ago that there was more evidence of educational progress in Pitt county than any county he had seen in the South. Only a few years ago, and Pitt county was regarded as indifferent to education. Today the people of every section of the county are thoroughly alive to educational needs. School facilities are today within the reach of every family in the county but the next few years will witness as great advance over present facilities as at present our facilities are ahead of the times of fifteen years ago. On this question there is no danger of the people going backwards.

Southern Development.

All modern development in the South is a revival and not an entirely new movement. The revival of manufacturers is gratifying. Its extent and the quality of it is satisfactory. In the piedmont region of the Carolinas and Georgia there are now manufactured products turned out in cotton goods alone of near two hundred million dollars in value. Other manufactured products in wood, iron, steel and other materials would probably be one and a half times as much, making a total aggregate of five hundred millions. In the early days of the republic the commerce of the South was ahead of her manufacturing interests. Charlotte, Wilmington, Fayetteville and other water points had

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

the largest cities, but not so now. Today the manufacturing interests of the South have far outstripped her commerce. Practically all the trade of the factories goes to Northern cities, while our natural points of distribution are still inactive.

Philadelphia is at the head of navigation on the Delaware, as Fayetteville is also on the Cape Fear river. Philadelphia's waterway has been kept in the best condition to do the maximum of business and the city prospers accordingly. The government neglects the Cape Fear and Fayetteville suffers. It is a prosperous city, but is prosperous by excess of activity of its people and not to the extent it ought and would be if the government would treat it fairly. Southern goods ought to be far more distributed through Southern commercial points.—Charlotte Observer.

Use of Solitude.

Do we love solitude? Do we love nature? Ask the greedy cities that are steadily absorbing the country boys and the country girls. Ask the cities that are growing at the expense of the little villages and hamlets. And all to avoid solitude, all to join in the reputed gaiety of the assembled mob that laughs at high heaven in the congested marts of men, says a writer in the Columbia State. Yet solitude hath its uses. At least a little of it is good for us all.

It is worth while to get away from men occasionally, to walk with ourselves under the high canopy, and to think upon ourselves and our deeds of commission and our sins of omission, to look upon ourselves with the frank eyes of honest introspection, to get our bearings and to locate ourselves in the little world that revolves about us. We may not come out of such a process brightened—not if we are weak men with abundant sins—we may not feel cheered by what we have seen of our failure to do and to be what we have wished; but it is better for us so. The prick of our short comings will, or should, serve to spur us on to better performances.—Durham Sun.

Protected lumber means that those who have lumber will get the rake off and those who need lumber will have it to pay. And this rule holds good on most other things with which the tariff deals. Where the south hopes to get even is through the circumstances of her having the lumber while the other fellow will need it.—Durham Herald.

SLIPS IN PRINT.

Typographical Blunders That Cause Smiles or Frowns.

When a leading London newspaper, in noticing the floating of a new commercial enterprise, spoke of the issuing of "100,000 snares at £1 each," a statement which, however true, was hardly intentional, the splendid fury of the promoters of that enterprise was fully balanced by the large satisfaction, not to say glee, of its enemies, and no one stopped to think that the innocent fact of the close juxtaposition in which the letters "h" and "n" stand to each other on the typewriter of today or a slip on the part of the typesetter in the composing room fully accounted for the "error." A typographical error may be an evil thing. It is sometimes a very serious thing, but it never fails of being, from some point of view, funny to the last degree.

The presence of the typewriter in the newspaper offices of today has done much to make easier the lives of the author, the editor and the compositor, but the typewriter, with all its advantages, has no automatic punctuating device, and the virtue of the comma is amply illustrated by the story of the Scotch divine, an extract from whose sermon as it appeared in a local paper reads:

"Only last Sabbath, my friends, a young woman died in this parish very suddenly while I was endeavoring to preach the word in a state of beastly intoxication."

And over a poem printed in a weekly appeared the startling comment:

"The following verses were written more than fifty years ago by a gentleman who has for fifteen years lain in his grave for his own amusement."

Unusual handwriting, however, has more to answer for than the vagaries of the typewriter. "The greater the author the greater the scrawler" is only too frequently true, and it is not always fair to put the blame for this sort of blunder on the shoulders of the compositor. Carlyle and Balzac were two whose copy few printers could read and none would handle for more than an hour at a time. Victor Hugo and Byron were impossibly bad penmen, and Sydney Smith is quoted as frankly saying:

"I must decline reading my own handwriting twenty-four hours after I have written it."—Washington Star.

"TWENTY-THREE."

An Old Circus Term That Originated in a Gambling Game.

We had two shell games, a "cloth" and a "roll out" team. I don't have to explain the shell game, I guess. "Cloth" is an easy money dice game. The operator has before him a sheet of green felt, marked off into figured squares—eight to forty-eight. The player throws eight dice, and the dealer compares the sum of the spots he has thrown with the numbers on the cloth. Certain spaces are marked for prizes, five or six are marked "conditional," and one, No. 23, is marked "lose." The dealer keeps his stack of coins over the 23 space, so that it isn't noticed until the time to show it.

These spaces marked "conditional" are used in a great many gambling games, such as spindles. They are the most useful thing in the world for leading the greenhorn on, for when he throws "conditional" the dealer tells him that he is in great luck. He has thrown better than a winning number. He has only to double his bet and on the next throw he will get four times the indicated prize or, if he throws a blank number, the equivalent of his money. He is kept throwing "conditionals" until his whole pile is down—and then made to throw 23, the space which he failed to notice and which is marked "lose."

You may ask how the dealer makes the greenhorn throw just what he wants. Simplest thing in the world. The man is counted out. The table is crowded with boosters, all jostling and reaching for the box, eager to play. The assistant dealer grabs up the dice, adds them hurriedly, announces the number that he wants to announce and sweeps them back into the box. If the greenhorn kicks a booster reaches over next time the dice are counted, says, "My play," and musses them up. The player never knows what he has thrown. I don't need to say that "23," as slang, comes from this game.—The circus used it for years before it was ever heard on Broadway. — Saturday Evening Post.

An Eye to Business.

"Bigsbee is a terribly melodramatic fellow, isn't he? He said he'd drain his heart's blood for the woman he loved. Do you think he meant it?" "Why, I guess so. Bigsbee is agent for a drain and sewer pipe concern"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Too Tight a Squeeze.

John Fiske, the historian, was a man of enormous stature and extremely sensitive about any reference to his unusual size. On one occasion when he was visiting a friend at his home in a beautiful town in Connecticut the hostess and her daughter invited Mr. Fiske to drive with them one morning. The road is a picturesque one, which winds along the river at the foot of the mountains. At one point the hostess suggested that the party alight and walk a short distance through the field to get a particularly attractive view. Around this field was a high fence with no opening but a narrow stile. The ladies passed through and turned to wait for their guest. For a moment he contemplated the opening. To squeeze through was impossible; to climb over was equally impracticable. Finally his deep bass voice broke the silence, "Ladies, I think we would better continue our drive."

Both Wanted Bites.

A sportsman went out fishing on a highland loch, his companion being the estate keeper, Sandy McKay. The gentleman proved rather unsuccessful with his rod, and after persevering for a couple of hours he said: "I think we may as well go home now, Sandy. The trout won't bite today."

When they went ashore the sportsman offered the keeper some sherry, which that functionary declined.

"I've got no whisky," said the gentleman. "What is your objection to a drop of sherry?"

"Weel," replied Sandy, "if ye maun ken, it's the same objection as ye hae tae the trout the day—it wianna bite."—Dundee Courier.
