REFLECTIONS OF A DELEGATE.

To the Annual District Meeting of Knights of Pythias Held in Greenville, N. C., April 15th, 1909.

Having been one whose good fortune it was to be appointed a delegate to represent my lodge, Pamlico No. 73, of that noble order Knight of Pythias, whose abiding spirit is to exemplify the friendship so great and true of him whose name we boast and point with pride, we, the undersigned, comfortably seated in that bewitching little Queen of the Pamlico, "The Red Wing," a motor racer of rare ability, and manned by her genial owners, Captain Dave Hill and son, left our mooring promptly at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, and, by the way, an ideal afternoon it was, and wended our way up the beautiful "Pamlico," and into the stream that leads on to that good old home of hospitality, Greenville. That progressive little city we'll always delight in calling sister. After a most pleasant run of two hours, viewing the beautiful scenery of an emerald hue, such as Dame Nature saw fit to bestow lavishly upon us, we reached our destination. A feeling of content crept stealthily over us, while each wore a smile of happiness realizing the significance of our mission to convey the spirit of true friendship from Pamlico Lodge No. 73 to the district and to the world, and we feel that our trust has been carefully guarded. Getting back to my subject we unfortunately failed to specify our mode of travel and thereby bewildered our friends in Greenville, among whom we especially remember Brother R. C. Flanagan, "and his younger brother," and Brother Charlie Forbes, who were so painstaking as to our welfare.

One of our party, evidently being an offspring of some good "Ole" Methodist Parson, we were not long in locating the odor of a luscious dish of spring chicken, which we partook of in a good old fashioned way, much after the style of the "Sons of Pitt" at the time honored barbecue. After this little feast we were cordially invited to the Castle Hall of Tar River Lodge No. 93, where were assembled the big hearted delegates from the several respective lodges which they came to represent.

I would not for obvious reasons go into detail as to the proceedings of the meeting, suffice it to say that the district meeting was in every respect a grand success.

After such business was transacted as came before us (pardon me) a part of same being quite a clever little "brother to brother" speech by Bro. J. E. Bonner of Pamlico No. 73, the meeting adjourned and we were than taken to the banquet hall where Loyal Knights and Ye Fair Maidens assembled to partake of the sumptuous repast, evidently prepared for us by the nimble fingers of the wives and sweethearts of those present, while the sweet melodies from the orchestra rent the air.

We wish to pay our respects to Dr. Charles Laughinghouse, who acted as toastmaster and filled the chair so admirably.

After a few short hours, as are always pleasant hours, we bade farewell to our friends and brothers and obtained the promise of quite a few of them to visit us during our jubilee week, and permit retaliation of courtesies and hospitality so bountifully bestowed upon us.

May we live to enjoy a visit

SUNDAY AT BAPTIST CHURCH.

A Day of More Than Unusual Interest.

Sunday was an unusually interesting day in the services of Memorial Baptist church.

The Sunday school started off the interest by showing an attendance record of a little above 300, the highest number in its history so far. In the Baraca class 95 were present. The lesson period for the day was shortened to give Rev. G. T. Lumpkin an opportunity to talk to the school.

Beside the talk to the Sunday school Mr. Lumpkin preached three times during the day, and it can be truly said that Greenville people have not before heard three abler sermons in one day. The afternoon service was for men only, and it was something wonderful to see such a large gathering of men as were present.

The subject of Mr. Lumpkin's sermon in the morning was "Wise and Foolish Builders;" in the afternoon "Abner Died as the Fool Dieth," and at night "I Glory in Nothing Save the Cross of Christ." While all of these sermons were excellent, the one at night was especially beautiful and impressive.

The meeting will continue this week with services each day—3:30 and 7:45 p. m.

Orphans Tomorrow Night.

The singing class of the Oxford asylum will give a concert here in opera house Tuesday night, and should have a large audience. Tickets are being sold by children, and those who buy these can exchange them for reserved seat checks at Reflector Book Store without extra charge. There is only one price for admission, 25 cents, with no extra charge for reserved seats, but those wanting seats reserved must have them checked off in advance.

The Home B. & L. Association.

The attention of every reader is directed to the advertisement of The Home Building & Loan Association in this issue. The seventh series of shares will open on next Saturday, and it should be a large one. The association has made a fine record during the three years of its existence and is doing the town great good. Besides the benefit it is to the home-builder, it should appeal to the investor. See the secretary and take some shares in the new series.

Attention Odd Fellows.

Conenat Lodge No. 17, I. O. O. F. will hold anniversary exercises on Wednesday night, April 23th, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Every member is requested to be present. Refreshments will be served.

AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

One of the Greatest Services Ever Held, Sunday.

The Sunday school broke all records of the past, and the interest was great.

From the announcement that the male quartette of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N. C., would sing Sunday and Sunday night, all looked forward to the time with anxiety and were perfectly captivated by the music which it rendered.

Before the hour for service, the church was full and as the moments went by the hearts of the whole congregation were praising God for such great opportunity.

Dr. S. D. Colyer had announced his subject for the morning which was "The Resurrection of Dead." Dr. Colyer handled this subject perhaps as no preacher of the gospel ever did, and in his philosophical, logical and psychological presentation of the subject, he made the greatest impression upon his hearers. His reasoning is wonderful; his presentation clear; his heart yearns for men to reach the place where they may see the reason for believing in the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The subject for the evening "The Value, Dignity and the Immensity of the Soul." It is a pleasure to listen to Dr. Colyer on this subject. People who claim to know men, and who have been in the Lord's work for a long time, say: "That Colyer gave out the best and most logical sermon on this subject that has ever been delivered in Greenville."

The quartette surpassed anything that has been heard for a long time, here, during the evening service. They returned to Wilson this morning with the blessing of God's people upon them. One accession to the church during the service last night.

Baptist Baraca Class.

Sunday morning was the anniversary day of the organization of the Baptist Baraca class. The report of the secretary shows a steady increase in the growth of this class, there are 104 on the roll and there were present 95. The room presented an inspiring sight to President Flanagan and J. W. Bryan, teacher, with every chair filled with beaming and bright faces, representing the manhood of Greenville seeking the truth and the light of the better side of life, all pulling together to elevate his brother and neighbor.

It was decided to run the annual excursion of the class, and a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the railroads and make an early report as to the place, fare and date of the excursion, which will very likely be in the early days of June. This occasion will give an excellent opportunity to the class and citizens of Greenville to spend a pleasant and enjoyable day away from the cares of business.

From the large attendance Sunday the little band of hustlers are evidently hustling.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

Recommendations to Superior Court.

At the April term of Pitt Superior court, held last week, the grand jury made the following report:

Hon. C. M. Cook, Judge Presiding.

We, the grand jury, submit the following report: We have diligently inquired into conduct of the people and have presented all violators of the law that have come to our knowledge.

We have visited and closely inspected the court house, the several offices in it, and find them all well kept. Also the jail, convict camp and the county home. We found them in good sanitary condition, the inmates well cared for.

It has been recommended by former grand juries that book-cases be put in the clerk of the court's office sufficient to keep the books belonging to his office. Realizing the great need of them, we ask your Honor to order the commissioners to have them put in.

We learn that the county home contains about 218 acres of good land with only about 20 acres cleared. We recommend that about 30 acres more of this land be drained and cleared, and that the keeper be provided with team and tools to cultivate this land. We make this recommendation because we believe by carrying it out the place can be made in a great measure self-sustaining. We believe it should be made a reformatory farm for young violators of the law.

Respectfully submitted,

L. A. Mayo, Foreman.

Attend the Meetings.

People of Greenville should not be so occupied with the things pertaining to this life as to fail to make any preparation for the life to come. "What doth it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" There are two revival meetings in progress here, and it a time to give heed.

Services will be held each day this week in the Baptist church at 3:30 and 7:45 p. m., and in the Christian church at 7:45 p. m. "The call is to you."

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds W. M. Moore has issued the following licenses since last report:

COLONEL SKINNER SHOULD BE JUDGE.

According to the Winston Journal report says that District Attorney Harry Skinner has the best chance of being appointed Federal judge in the eastern district. "If an eastern man is to be appointed," says the Journal, "we have no hesitancy in saying that Colonel Skinner looks as good to us as any other man. We expressed the opinion on Judge Purnell's death that the colonel would land and we have never abandoned our belief that he will eventually be appointed." And for all anybody knows, Skinner may be even slated for the place. He has made less noise than some of the others, and if that fact is considered for a moment, it will be taken as a mighty good sign so far as Skinner is concerned.—Charlotte Chronicle.

This coincides with the views of The Reflector. From the beginning of the agitation for the judgeship this paper has held that Colonel Skinner should have it. Under existing conditions the position belongs to a Republican, and we have had no patience with the scramble Democrats have been making for it. President Taft would do himself no credit to appoint a Democrat, and we believe his consideration of men of a different party has only been to reconcile divisions in his own party.

DON'T GIVE UP.

It is a pity that some men who profess love for wife and children grow so despondent over the imagination of inability to make a support for these that they deliberately commit suicide in order to get relieved of this responsibility. Yet such tragedies are read about almost daily. The man who under such imagination takes his own life does himself a great wrong and at the same time throws those whom he should love and provide for upon the charity of others. Men show a weakness when they give up to despondency. There may be difficulties, but a man should show his love for those dependent upon him by braving these and doing the best he can. It may not be possible to provide luxuries for wife and children, but it is a rare exception when a true, brave man can not make a living for his family.

The Carolina Union Farmer says that "corn is produced by some farmers in North Carolina at a cost of ten cents a bushel," which explains why the the corn farmer does not need to borrow money, while the all cotton farmer is buying corn at $1.10 a bushel.—Charlotte Chronicle.

And yet there are farmers un-business like enough to think it is cheaper to buy corn than to raise it themselves

If all the gentlemen think they are going to get it, there is a big bunch of them doomed to disappointment.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

If Woman Should Get the Ballot.

The men don't know it all. The proceedings in the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution show that the women are well up on politics and parliamentary tactics. Some of the rulings of the president-general indicate a thorough knowledge of parliamentary laws and some of the moves made by the women on the floor prove that they have not followed the proceedings of the big political conventions for nothing. From this Washington convention one is to draw an inference as to what would happen were women given the right to vote. She would be in full charge of the political machine in less time than it could take to tell it and in the political conventions Mere Man would be relegated to the back seats, unless crowded out altogether. Give women the ballot and man's rights vanish from the face of the earth. Man knows it and that's why he keeps the doors so closely guarded.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The following item appeared in the Charlotte News of last Saturday:

"By the explosion of a can containing kerosene oil which the girl was using in starting a fire in the stove, Hester Tilley, the 9-year-old daughter of John Tilley, a prosperous farmer of Stokes county, was fatally burned last week was sent to jail."

Now what we want to know is, who or what was sent to jail? The oil can, the stove, the girl, or the prosperous farmer? We have been greatly puzzled ever since reading this item.—Durham Sun.

THE RAPACIOUS EEL.

He is an Omnivorous Feeder With an Enormous Swallow.

Quite apart from the peculiar and mysterious characteristics of eels at their spawning season, there are few more interesting fish than the snake's maritime cousins. A writer in the London Outlook describes how he has seen young eels—"elvers" they are called at this stage of their existence—coming from the sea to the rivers in countless multitudes. They move in masses, he explains, overcoming every obstacle, and are anything up to eighteen months old, six inches or so long, of the thickness of a shoestring. As retribution for the damage they will some day do to trout and salmon spawn, as well as to newly hatched fish, the elvers are greedily eaten by almost all other kinds of fish. Still, their numbers are so large, they move forward in such battalions, that millions dodge the attentions of their enemies and reach the upper waters in safety. This wonderful migration is one of the marvels of nature.

At home the eel thrives rapidly. He soon puts on flesh. He is an omnivorous feeder, and nothing comes amiss that he can take into his gullet. He preys upon the young of every sort of fish. He burrows into their nests and eats ravenously of the newly deposited spawn. In fact, experts declare that pike are not half so destructive to a trout water as eels are, for the pike eats mature fish or those that are maturing, whereas the eel takes his fill of the eggs as well as of the perfect fish.

It is wonderful, considering the size of an eel, what an enormous swallow it has. A fish of two or three pounds will easily make away with a bait of a quarter of a pound, and there are authentic particulars of an eel about two and a half pounds which was choked at King's Lynn attempting to swallow a full sized rat. Eels scale up to seven or eight pounds and occasionally even more. They have tremendous strength, and, as for their vitality, it is not recorded in the proverbs and folklore of the people?

"As slippery as an eel" is a saying centuries old, and everybody is supposed to know that an eel requires more killing than any fish that swims. When you have got him on the bank and have put your foot down hard upon his head ready for the coup de grace he will lash his tail over your foot and around your ankle, and it is a feat of dexterity to hold him tight while you get in the final blow. But you do not always get him as far as that stage. An angler once testified in the sporting papers that, having hooked a big eel, he was trying to land it, and in its struggles to resist it took hold of a passing bream and coiled around it. As the tackle was good, both eel and bream were landed.

He Just Couldn't.

Shortly after the cherry tree episode little George was taken to see a new relative that the stork had left at the home of his aunt a few days previous.

"Well, George," said his aunt, "don't you think your new cousin is a beauty?"

"You know, aunt, that I cannot tell a lie," replied the future Father of His Country. "I think the kid is about as pretty as a mud fence in a rainstorm."—Chicago News.

A HEROIC STRUGGLE.

The Fight For Life of the Crew of a Wrecked Whaler.

The story of the crew of a whaling vessel wrecked off Cape Parry in a drifting fog is given in Mr. A. H. Harrison's book, "In Search of a Polar Continent." The Alexander at the time was steaming at full speed, and when first it struck the crew, not seeing anything in front of them, thought they had collided with a piece of drifting ice. But on striking again the vessel immediately filled with water, so they hardly had time to rush to the boats, which they had great difficulty in lowering.

It was then that Captain Tilton nearly lost his life. He was the last man to leave the ship, and just as the boats were being pushed off he jumped from the vessel, but missed the stern of the boat and fell into the sea. Luckily, however, he managed to catch a rope that was thrown to him, but it was not without difficulty that he was pulled into the boat when he was dragged alongside.

The mist was so dense that they had no idea of their locality, but on reaching the shore they saw the rocky headland of Cape Parry looming over them, and then they knew that they had at least 400 miles to travel before regaining Herschel island, this, too, along a barren and deserted coast line in open boats and probably in a raging sea.

This wreck occurred on Aug. 16, yet on Aug. 26 they arrived at Herschel island, every one of them strong and well and no whit the worse for his adventure. They made the whole journey through rough seas and through gales of wind. Every stitch on their backs was constantly drenched.

Of supplies they carried only that scanty portion which a whaleboat always has on hand for an emergency. Nor are the emergencies contemplated of such duration.

Every now and then they had to put ashore to find fresh water and to snatch a few winks of sleep, and I can answer for it that putting ashore here is no easy matter, for there are many miles of coast line along which it is almost impossible to find a place for landing in a strong wind.

These men doggedly held on their course, crossing two large bays, Franklin bay and Liverpool bay, until at last they reached the Mackenzie delta, and, keeping well to seaward of this, they arrived in a storm which prevented ships from putting to sea.

They had made a fine, heroic effort. It had been a case of do or die with all of them, and they had carried on a desperate and unceasing struggle and had accomplished an average daily journey of forty miles in an open boat.

Her Pawing Neighbor.

The woman was half in hysterics when her friends went over to her where she sat in her delicate pink party dress on the long divan.

"It's that girl who just left me," she lamented. "I'll never sit by her again if I see her first, she pawed me so. I was flattered when she came to talk with me until she began to paw me. Everything she said she would emphasize by hitting me a blow somewhere, on the shoulder or the arm or the hip. I believe she's an ex-pugilist. I feel all broke to pieces. Why do they let such people come to parties?" she finished, with a sob.—New York Press.

Picking 'Em by Their Tunes.

"Employers have their own ideas about the sort of man that will fit into a certain job," said the manager of a local employment bureau. "Not many days ago I sent an able-bodied, capable looking young man around to the office of a big contractor who had a position he wanted filled. I thought I had found just the man for him. But the young man came back here disappointed and said he didn't get the job for some reason—he couldn't figure out why. I called up the contractor, and he explained how it was. 'The fellow kept whistling a lot of tunes such as 'Auld Lang Syne' and 'The Suwanee River' while he was waiting to see me,' said the contractor, 'and I decided that he wouldn't do before I even saw him. He must be a slow moving, slow thinking man or he would whistle livelier tunes. Send me around a man who likes to whistle 'A Hot Time' or 'Hiawatha' and I'll take him.'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

John, Thomas, Richard, Etc.

The popularity of John is believed to be due to the supposed suitability in baptism of the Baptist's name, just as Jordan was a name usually given to children who were baptized in water brought from Palestine by pilgrims or crusaders. The prevalence of William is due to William the Conqueror, that of Robert to sympathy with the misfortunes of his son: Thomas came in with the murder of the great archbishop. The crusading exploits of Richard I. made the name popular, while to the adventures of the paladins we owe Roland, Roger and Reginald. In the fourteenth century Charles, James and George are almost unknown. Charles only became popular after the execution of Charles I., and George came in with the Hanoverian dynasty.—London Notes and Queries.

His Shrewd Idea.

"Who is that sour looking girl with the heavy underjaw?"
"That is the only daughter of old De Milyuns."
"And who is the dainty bit of sweetness with the blue eyes and golden hair?"
"That's the chaperon."
"What's the explanation?"
"Why, it's old De Milyun's clever idea. He thinks his Jane will be perfectly safe as long as Miss Blossom is around."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MONEY OF THE RICH.

Of More Use Foolishly Spent Than Hoarded or Lying Idle.

A great reservoir of water undistributed leaves men and women to perish of thirst and growing crops to parch and die. So also vaults bulging with stagnant money leave men and women to perish in abject poverty and ripened crops to rot within the fields and orchards that grew them. Therefore what happens to the dollars of the millionaire is a question of the first importance.

Those of us who believe in praying for material blessings will do well to pray long and earnestly that rich women will never cease to buy $100 hats and $1,000 gowns, with diamonds and other jewels to match; that they will continue to give balls and teas and entertainments of the most expensive kind; that they will be recklessly extravagant in gawgaws and folderols of every description, because it will be good for us who depend upon an income drawn from the multitude of operations involved in producing, merchandising and transporting all those gawgaws and other gimcracks that go to keep extravagance at a high pitch.

Let us hope that rich men's sons will continue to spend their fathers' money as foolishly as they are reputed to do—not because it will be good for them, but because it will be good to have the money poured into the wage earner's money channels.

Let us doubly hope that the rich men may be prospered in their money getting, because they will not let it lie idle. Whatever their wives and children do not spend they put into stocks and bonds and thereby turn it into the wage earner's money channels. Let us be thankful, too, that neither the dollars of the rich nor the dollars of the poor are of any value save as they go into the wage channels of active circulation.—F. W. Hewes in Harper's Weekly.

The Way She Dieted.

The fat girl of this story is not a myth nor a show person, but a solid, private reality. Her fatness weighed upon her, so she went to a physician to get rid of some of it. He drew up a careful dietary. She was to eat dry toast, plain boiled beef, etc., and to return in a month to report reduction. At the end of the month she could hardly get through the doctor's doorway. He was aghast.

"Did you eat what I told you?" he asked.

"Religiously!"

His brow wrinkled itself. Suddenly he had an inspiration. "Anything else?" he asked.

"Only my ordinary meals."—Exchange.

AN ENGLISH HOLIDAY

How East Side London Plays on Boxing Day.

ROUGH SPORT IS THE RULE.

All Cockneyland Flocks to Historic Hampstead Heath, Where Hilarity, Fast and Furious, Rules From Early Morning Till After Midnight.

Boxing day is a great institution in England. The day after Christmas is Boxing day, so called because in the old days it marked the occasion of the actual giving of Christmas boxes. Now it is a national holiday. Besides being the last in the year, it has to suffice Londoners, at all events, until Easter Monday. It's a great day in Cockneyland, and the east end crowds to Hampstead heath, the picturesque open space in the northwest of London.

All roads lead to the heath. Soon after daybreak the procession begins. Fully loaded traps and donkey barrows are the principal items in the vehicular traffic, but the majority are on foot, singing and shouting for the holiday.

"Ere yer are, Sir 'Enery," shouts a woman, pushing a tin squirt filled with water into your face. "Ere yer are, Sir 'Enery; all the fun of the fair. Two-a penny. 'Ave a couple, will yer, m'lud?"

The London street merchants have the habit of giving prospective customers a title, presumably on the theory that a Londoner likes to have you believe that he is some well known man.

"Should you be persuaded into buying 'a couple' the chances are a moment later you will be face to face with 'Arriet. She wears a large hat trimmed with large feathers of brilliant hue, has a hair fringe down over her forehead and a bright colored velvet dress. Probably several will be in a line, each with an arm around the other's neck and a mouth organ in the other hand.

There is battle in their eyes, and before you are aware of it a stream of water will be running down your face. The best thing to do is to retreat, for if you should give battle you are sure to retire, defeated, with your collar like a wet rag and a most uncomfortable feeling of dampness down your back.

Once on the heath the cocoanut pitches will first claim your notice.

"Ere yer are, kernel; seven shies a tanner. Every one yer knocks damn yer 'ave. They're all milky. Loidies and kids 'arf way."

Then this scene will meet your eye: Outside a large tent stands a raised platform. On it are half a dozen men stripped to the waist with arms folded across their chests. One of them, evidently the proprietor, twists a large rattle, which gives forth a most deafening noise. At last it stops, and he begins:

"Loidies and gents, I wants ter hinderduce to yer notice some of the best boxers in the world. 'Im at the end is Felix Scott of Liverpool. 'E'll fight any man in the crabd, and if he don't put 'im aht in three rabnds 'e'll give 'im a quid. Nah, then, who'll 'ave 'em on with the champion?"

Some one accepts the inviting offer, and a rush is made to pay the admission fee and get into the tent.

A company of traveling actors is assembled on the platform outside the next tent, all made up in their war paint. The piece to be performed is "Othello." The price of admission is a penny. A reserved seat, an empty box, will cost you another penny. And the house soon fills.

Outside you will find every form of outdoor amusement in full swing—"Aunt Sallies," swings, roundabouts, skipping and donkeys. The latter are greatly patronized. Young men and maidens, old men and women; all have "a pannorth of donkey ride." A fat woman clings to one poor beast's neck shouting:

"O'er, I'm sure I'm falling. Don't make 'im go so fast. Ho, look at me 'at. Lemme get off. I'm sure yer 'ittin' 'im."

When the dust has cleared away she is seen lying in the road panting:

"I know'd yer done it on purpose!"

At last the journey home is begun, everybody happy and tired, yet not too tired to link arms, the men wearing the girls' feathered hats and pearl buttoned coats and the girls wearing caps and hats and wondrous masculine jackets. All are singing different songs, but every now and then they break forth in unison with popular songs of the moment. In the saloons they drink beer out of one pewter and swear undying love and friendship till the voice of the proprietor, it now being 12:30 in the morning and closing time, is heard calling, "Time, gents, please," and a final start is made.

This may answer the question why the average Cockney worker always wants a second day off to get over Boxing day.—New York Times

Settled the Surgeon.

The surgeon of a military station during the civil war was noted for his flowery language, which never failed even under the most trying circumstances. He was not popular, and the officers treated him at times with scant courtesy. On one occasion the colonel appropriated the surgeon's tent for a mess table without the formality of stating his intentions. The surgeon sent a complaint to the general in command, in which he said, "I have not so much as a fly to interpose between my head and the star decked heavens above me." This document went through the usual routine and was at last returned to the surgeon with the following indorsement: "Colonel B. will cause a fly to interpose between the head of the complainant and the star decked heavens above him as soon as possible."
