BEFORE THE EVIL DAY COMES.

We Cannot Tell What the Future Will Unfold.

When we look about us and consider the happiness that exists, the families that have come to grief—some from misfortune, some from error, we are almost persuaded that those parents who die young, before the evil days comes when they no longer find pleasure in their children, are the only ones who die happy. Could the mother who fondly clasps her infant in her arms, an object of her tenderest devotion, while she prays without ceasing for his life to be spared that he may continue a consolation to her and a prop for old age; could she foresee the future of that child, which is so wisely hid from her, could she see him over-burdened or disgraced, poverty-stricken and friendless, idle or insane, a worthless vagabond, or debauched millionaire, way down in the dregs of society, or way up in the scum, would not change come o'er the spirit of her dreams, would she not more fully realize that life is only valuable as it is well spent, and while she is praying for life to last, pray also with greater tenacity for his protection from the soul-destroying things of the world?—Ex.

Friday and Saturday Nights.

Have you ever felt that life wasn't worth living? Yes? Well then, let us tell you confidentially that something quite worth living for is going to happen presently, when the Ethel Morton Opera Company appears at the Masonic Temple opera house on May 7th and 8th. This little company of players carries a supply of laughter quite sufficient to fill the most exacting demands. The offerings on their list comprise the better known standard operas as well as a few others, less familiar but equally satisfying. The company is a capable one from star to chorus, and ever aided in their efforts by Manager Courtney who has spared neither trouble nor expense to provide fitting costumes and scenery for each production. In "Mascot," Miss Morton will wear a court gown valued at several hundred dollars, while the kimono worn by her in "Mikado" was especially embroidered by hand and imported from Japan for this particular production.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

On Monday, while moving the Getsinger school house in Griffins township, Mr. Joshua H. Ellis was caught between the house and a post, and his left leg was cut off about half way between the ankle and foot. His right leg was also broken and foot crushed almost to a jelly. Drs. J. E. Smithwick and W. E. Warren were called and amputated the left leg and bound up the other limb. The unfortunate man is resting as well as could be hoped. Mr. Ellis is a man of family and is about 59 years of age.—Williamston Enterprise.

While Mr. W. F. Cash's plowmen were at work on the Leslie place, a few miles east of town, Tuesday, they unearthed a shoulder of meat weighing 18 on 20 pounds, which had been buried in the field. Recently Mr. Dan Call, of the same company, missed a shoulder of meat and it is supposed that that meat plowed up in the field was that stolen from Mr. Call, and that it had been buried for future use by the thief, who probably feared that his premises might be searched. The incident reminds one of the custom of the sensible dog which hides his surplus of food in the ground.—Statesville Landmark.

In Durham last week a young man connected with Jones' carnival was scratched on the arm by a lion, and died a few days later of lockjaw.

Rev. Thos. Dixon, Sr., died in Raleigh Saturday night. He was 83 years old and had been a minister of the Gospel for sixty years.

Use Plain Talk.

It is time the idea that advertising requires a literary genius is killed and merchants are made aware of the fact that the simplest talk is the biggest sales bringer.

In other words, the merchants of every city and town ought to understand that advertising is certainly nothing but keeping right on talking the same talk that is given to the customers in the store, except that they ought to use the advertising megaphone to reach more people.—Paul Burton in Fame.

The Show Wanted Him.

Mr. C. T. Cox, of Winterville, "Laughing Theodore," was over here the other night and took in the Adams show. He got tickled over something and let out a laugh that "shook the house." The bass drummer in the show band found out he was snowed under and let up on his beating to join in the laugh. The show folks tried to engage Theodore to join 'em and go along as a special attraction, but he concluded it was better to stay around where rations are plentiful and laugh for the home folks.

Wreck Near Bethel.

The evening passenger train on the Atlantic Coast Line was some over an hour late getting in Sunday. The delay was caused by a slight wreck on the Plymouth branch of the road, the tender and mail car of the passenger train getting off the track near Bethel. No personal injury was done, but the mail clerk was badly frightened when his car left the track.

BARACA CLASS.

Memorial Baptist Church.

Sunday was Orphans day with the Baraca class and the collection was $6.19. This class supports one orphan regularly, aside from its contribution to the Sunday school. There was present 62 members.

Dr. Bryan's dissection of the lesson was unusually fine, showing the greatness of Paul and Barnabas' work in starting the missionary work at Antioch from which has sprung the great mission cause of the present day, which is so strongly advocated and executed by Missionary Baptists of the 20th century. The secretary was instructed to buy a map showing Paul's journey in this work.

J. J. Harrington was appointed chairman of the Baraca hustlers.

At the close of the lesson a visiting Baraca, Mr. Hooper, made a few timely remarks on hustling. Thus another grand day for this Baraca class. All are invited every Sunday.

Meeting Continues to Grow in Christian Church.

Yesterday was a glorious day and one that will be long remembered in the Christian church revival.

During the morning service Dr. Colyer spoke from the subject "First Sit Down and Count the Cost." This was undoubtedly the most unique sermon Dr. Colyer has preached during the meeting. His subject last night was "Repentance."

One man remarked this morning, "since hearing Dr. Colyer last night on repentance I see myself in a different light than ever before. It surely means more to repent than I thought."

This is the kind of sermons that are needed to help us, those which make us think. There were two additions last night.

Mr. Bowles sang for the morning service "O Jesus, Thou art standing." For the evening service we were favored with two special numbers arranged by Mr. Bowles. One coming from the Sunbeam chorus title "Little Ones of God are We." It is unfortunate that every one in Greenville could not have had the pleasure of hearing this song by the little girls. They showed remarkable training in every respect. If Mr. Bowles could do no more while here he would live long in the hearts of those little ones and all who saw them last night. The other special number was "I shall be Satisfied Then," a duet by Mr. Bowles and Mr. Settle.

Children service at 4 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. Subject tonight: "As your Faith, so be it Unto You."

No Ads—No Business.

A nervous looking man went into a store the other day and sat for half an hour or so, when a clerk asked him if there was anything he could do for him; he said no he didn't want anything. The clerk went away, and the stranger sat an hour or so longer, when the proprietor went to him and asked if he didn't want to be shown anything. "No," said the nervous little man; "I just wanted to sit around. My physician has recommended quiet to me and says above all things I should avoid being in a crowd. Noticing that you do not advertise in the home paper, I thought this would be as quiet a place as I could find, so I dropped in for a few hours."—Bourbon (Mo.) Standard.

HEAT OF THE BODY.

Climatic Variations Do Not Affect Internal Conditions.

MAN'S NORMAL TEMPERATURE

It is 98.6 Degrees When Taken Under the Tongue Whether One Lives in the Arctic Regions or in the Tropics. Some Record Fever Temperatures.

The normal temperature of a human being is generally given as 98.6 degrees, but the statement must be slightly qualified. It is the normal temperature when taken by placing the thermometer under the tongue or in the armpit or the groin.

The surface temperature of the head, hands or abdomen varies from 96 degrees to 98 degrees or even lower. That of the internal regions may go up to 102.2 degrees, that being the average heat of the blood circulating in the liver and some other organs.

But 98.6 degrees is called the normal temperature of a human being, and it doesn't matter whether he lives in the desert of Sahara or in Greenland, according to a writer in the Technical World. Awake or asleep, at work or just loafing, a man's temperature remains practically at this level.

When it varies more than the fraction of a degree it is because the heat regulating mechanism is disarranged by disease or by abnormal conditions of some sort. Excessively high measures of heat may be borne for several minutes by an individual without raising his temperature more than a fraction of a degree. Persons who sometimes are styled human salamanders have given exhibitions of their ability to stand high temperatures.

There is an authentic case recorded of Martinez, the so called French salamander, a baker by trade, who exposed himself to high temperatures from boyhood. He remained in an oven erected in the Tivoli gardens for fourteen minutes when the temperature in it was 338 degrees. His pulse on entering was seventy-six a minute and had reached 130 when he came out. He often duplicated this performance.

Chamouni, a celebrated Russian salamander, who called himself "the incombustible," used to go into an oven and stay while a leg of mutton was roasted there, not coming out until the meat was well done. He eventually lost his life in one of these performances.

Fever is a rise of temperature above the normal level. This rise is seldom beyond 106 degrees. Mental and nervous influences may so act for a time as to disorder the control of the thermotaxic nerve center and cause fever.

It is interesting to note some of the high temperatures which are on medical record as having actually occurred in certain diseases. Guy's hospital in London records the case of a hysterical woman afflicted with tuberculosis of one lung who showed 120 degrees.

At a meeting of the Association of American Physicians in 1895 Dr. Jacob of New York reported a patient in whom fever reached the almost incredible figure of 148 degrees F. This case occurred in a hysterical fireman who had suffered a severe injury from a fall.

In the discussion which followed the report of this case among the members of the association Dr. Welch of Baltimore referred to a condition of hyperthermia that had come to his knowledge in which the temperature was recorded as 171 degrees F. Of course such exceedingly high temperatures are of only short duration or death would ensue.

Fever is not the only disturbance which may alter temperature. Certain conditions, especially those due to diseases like tuberculosis, acute alcoholism, melancholia, convalescence from fevers, poisoning from various drugs, and so forth, may cause the bodily warmth to become subnormal. Injuries and surgical shock also originate the same effect. Starvation originally induces a gradual fall.

Low temperatures are always dangerous, and unless a reaction quickly ensues, by aid of relief measures, a fatal termination may be expected. The lowest recorded during life that may be regarded as reliable is one reported by Duffy in which the thermometer registered 84 degrees F. Death ensued the following day.

The body, however, can withstand extreme cold more readily than it can extreme heat before the regulating center becomes disordered, and so, other things being equal, freezing to death is not as common in cold climates as sunstroke is in warm.

The Reflector has received a unique post card, sent by the Greater Charlotte Club, of Charlotte. It has a picture of a possum rigged in gay attire carrying a grip labeled "Charlotte, N. C., May 20, 1909, Billy Possum." Underneath the picture is this catchy verse:

May the twentieth is the date.
Come and join us, if you will,
We'll entertain you—me and Bill."

And yet the judge is not named.

May is Miss Charlotte's month, and may she make the most of it.

Whenever you mention Greenville, people sit up and take notice.

If the president goes as slow about other appointments as he is about the judgeship, his term will be out before he gets around.

Congress is taking a long time in the extra session tariff reforming business but will likely wind up with nothing done worth the price.

The starting up of Republican papers again means that ere long there will be more calls on the job holders for contributions to keep them going.

The press dispatches from Africa credit Hunter Roosevelt with good sport Saturday. He bagged three lions that the "beaters" drove up in front of him and Son Kermit shot down one. And the hunter's are delighted.

A Newspaper Pioneer.

The Charlotte Observer, under the direction of Mr. J. P. Caldwell, accomplished more for the "liberty of the press" than all other agencies combined. It flung defiance at public opinion and took its way alone. It would have gone down in defeat and disaster but for the fact that Mr. D. A. Tompkins had plenty of money and furnished it freely as it was needed. Year after year the paper lost money and year after year the deficit was made good and the policy of the paper was not changed by a hair's breadth to suit any man or any party. Ostracism, abuse and slander it met calmly and without a murmur. It had a goal and it kept steadily in its appointed course. At last it has had its triumph, and stands today with few peers in Southern journalism. On many questions we believe the Observer has been wrong. We disagree with it on some vital matters and would not be understood as endorsing its policy; but the point we are trying to make is, that it was not frightened from its course by the fear of losing patronage and conquered public opinion instead of being conquered by it. The columns of the Observer have always been a refuge for the oppressed. Any man who has a real grievance can get a hearing. Any cause that is worthy can get before the world through the Observer, no matter what influence it may have upon "the party." In fact "the party" has been pitched headlong from the throne of authority through the courageous course of the Charlotte Observer, and conscience has come into its own in our civic life. To be a pioneer in the cause of freedom always involves suffering, misunderstanding and reproach, but to open wide the way for it is worth all its costs, and more. The Charlotte Ob-

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

server, guided by its great editor, has broken the shackles from the hands of a hundred country editors and set them free.

There have been many excellent papers published in the State that have done valuable service, but only one that has dared to stand squarely against the public thinking of the time because it thought that thinking was wrong, and through all its history it has been so consistent, so candid and so amazingly brave that those who once abused it have come to love it and trust it. Since the Observer has conquered the fierce and furious opposition its course provoked, many other voices are lifted that otherwise would be silent, and so we have in North Carolina a free press that dares to speak its honest convictions in the face of the world, the flesh and the devil.—Charity and Children.

The proprietors of some of the hotels at Southern Pines have been arrested on charge of selling liquor. Moore has been a dry county for a long time, but by some sort of an arrangement, the hotels were permitted to supply their guests with liquor, or at least it was known that they were doing so and no objection was made. The State is now under a prohibition regime, however, and conditions have changed. Even the original package hotels will no longer enjoy the discriminative advantage that was given by the legislature. The arrests at Southern Pines may be taken as an indication that the prohibition forces are going to keep an eye on the resort hotels.—Charlotte Chronicle.

It has been our experience in the newspaper business that the biggest kicks come from those people who expect something for nothing.—Durham Herald.

HE STOLE A CORPSE.

And That Is Why the Joke Was on the Thief.

"There are people in this town who will steal anything," said a thin man with a string tie as he rolled a fresh cigarette and asked his friend for a light. "Yes, sir; they will take the buttons off your coat if you don't watch 'em. I was 'touched' twice during the past month, and last winter some one copped out my overcoat at a restaurant while I was getting lunch.

"But it's all right. I got even the other day in a small way, and I've been laughing ever since. We had an old cat over in our flat which had been a pet of my wife's ever since we were married. Elvira—that's the cat's name, not my wife's—was so old she had lost nearly all her teeth, and we had to feed her on milk and soft stuff. This got tiresome, because I had to do the feeding, and I decided that Elvira was about due to die.

"One night I sneaked home a bottle of chloroform, and after my wife went out to one of the clubs or something she belongs to I wet a sponge with the chloroform and went out in the kitchen looking for Elvira. There she was, curled up on a chair, and before she knew what was going on I had her fixed. Didn't hurt her, you know, and she really was a burden to herself.

"When my wife came home I looked solemn and told her Elvira was dead—went off in a fit. There were tears, of course, and the remains had to be viewed. My wife insisted that Elvira should have a decent burial and would not listen to my suggestion that the body be disposed of in the usual way. Finally I consented to take Elvira out in the country the next day and bury her myself and was called a 'dear old boy.'

"Early next morning, after a lot of tears from my wife, I started out with Elvira neatly done up in a couple of sheets of wrapping paper. I took a car which connects with a suburban line and deposited my bundle on the rear platform next to the gate, while I went inside to read the paper. I was deep in the sporting page when the transfer station was reached, and the conductor had to offer me a transfer twice. I went out on the platform, and bless your soul if Elvira hadn't disappeared! Some guy thought the package contained my morning marketing and had swiped it.

"I was a bit put out at first, but when I realized that for once I had the laugh on the thief I felt good. Laugh? Well, I should say yes. People on the street must have thought I had a giggling jag on. I did not advertise for the return of Elvira and no questions asked for several reasons, but I'd give $5 to know what that fellow said when he opened the package."—Washington Star.

The Last Straw.

"Every time I give a party," cried the discouraged hostess, "I vow I'll never give another, but I've decided this time. No more for me. It's the red cheeked man. I don't mind their taking up the rugs and dancing until after midnight and getting dispossessed notices served on me the next morning, or leaving cigarette ashes all over the place for me to clean up, or scattering the Welsh rabbit from one end of the flat to the other, but when the red cheeked man sits on my piano keys when he gives an imitation of something or somebody and I have to pay $4 to have my piano tuned the next day that'll be about all."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Her Admiration.

Big Brother—I should like to know what you have been flirting with that lunatic Saphead for?

Pretty Sister (indignantly) — I haven't.

"Yes, you have. He told a friend that you stood before him ten minutes as if entranced, and you looked straight into his eyes as if you could read his very soul, and he said if ever ardent admiration shone in a human face it did in yours."

"The idiot! I was looking at my own reflection in his eyeglasses."—London Standard.

A Financial Shake.

"Good morning Mr. Toney. On the sick list today?"

"Yes, sir; got the ague."

"Do you ever shake?"

"Yes."

"When do you shake again?"

"Can't say when; shake every day. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, nothing in particular, only I thought if you shook bad I'd like to stand by and see if you couldn't shake the 15 shillings out of your pocket which you have owed me so long!"—London Standard.

The Fear of Thirteen.

The fearful grip which this No. 13 superstition continues to have upon the hearts of men and women in all walks of life is incomprehensible, says O. S. Marden in Success Magazine. Yet every intelligent person knows that nothing in this world can possibly take place without a cause and that the cause must be sufficient to produce an effect. The most ignorant person, it would seem, should know that the arbitrary No. 13 has no more power to produce any effect, to cause any calamity, than a drop of ink. The fact that the ink or paint instead of being in the shape of a round drop is put into the form of a numeral 13 does not add any force or power to it. A drop of ink or paint on the door of a hotel room would have just as much power to produce harm as it would if formed into the figure 13.

Absolutely Hopeless.

"But you might learn to love me," he urged.
She shook her head.
"You've no idea," she said, "what I mean?"
"I am," she said, "the only girl."

TRUTHFUL REPORTS.

Greenville Reads Them With Uncommon Interest.

A Greenville citizen tells his experience in the following statement. No better evidence than this can be had. The truthful report of friends and neighbors is the best proof in the world. Read and be convinced.

John G. Latham, 907 Cotanch St., Greenville, N. C., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills in my case far surpassed any other kidney remedy I had previously used. For some time my kidneys were disordered, the secretions being too frequent and painful in passage. When I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was so much impressed that I procured a box at John L. Wooten's drug store. They seemed to go directly to the seat of my trouble and gave me relief in a short time. My kidneys were restored to their normal condition and I felt better in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Balzac by the Yard.

A well known author not long ago stepped into a bookstore, but for some little time could not attract the attention of a clerk, all interest being centered in a stout gentleman who was jotting down figures on a pad. The author strolled over in that direction and heard the head clerk remark:

"And now, sir, you have almost completed a library of which you will be proud; but, of course, you will want Balzac?"

"Waal, I don't know, now. You see, we've only got two feet and seven inches space left," the old gentleman replied. "Go ahead and measure him, though, and if he isn't too wide I'll take him, too," he added.—Success Magazine.
