ABOUT MARKETING TOBACCO.

Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Co. Offers Good Suggestions

Greenville, N. C., June 26, 1909.

To the Tobacco Growers of Eastern North Carolina:

As the time approaches to begin curing the tobacco crop, The Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Co. being desirous of aiding and serving the interests of the tobacco farmers, begs leave to submit a few suggestions which we hope will be of some service to them. In calling attention to these matters, we want it understood we are not giving advice, but simply making suggestion that farmers may think about them, and if approved, where practical, adopt such of them as they see proper.

In the first place, we would call the attention of the growers to the fact that it now seems certain that the tobacco crop in Eastern North Carolina has been increased in acreage this year something like 10 per cent. This estimate of the acreage is based upon information obtained from almost every section of the east. We believe the impression of the tobacco trade at large has been that the acreage was increased much more than 10 per cent, but in this, we think the trade mistaken. The condition of the crop up to June 1st was excellent, but since then the heavy and almost incessant rains have in large sections ruined the crop, while it has been seriously damaged almost everywhere in the east. Unless there is miraculous recovery from the wet weather, which has been followed by several days of scorching sunshine, it certainly looks at this date (June 25th) as if the crop in all sections will be a much lighter one even than last year. It therefore behooves farmers to take advantage of every opportunity presented to them to get the most out of the crop, and to do this, they must consider the influences under their control which tend to advance or lower the price of tobacco. We know of but one way of controlling the price, and that is to control the production. The production during the last few years has been only a normal one, while the increase this year would probably have resulted in a considerable increase in pounds if the seasons had been propitious and a normal yield saved. However, it does not seem probable now that the crop in the east will be a large one.

The unnecessary haste to market the crop early in the season when weather conditions are bad for handling large quantities of tobacco, has resulted, we believe, in a direct loss to the farmers of the east during the last two years, of several hundred thousand dollars. The determination to market the bulk of the crop during August and September cannot but result in loss to the farmers. We realize in making this statement that many will say that in the past those who sold early received more than those who sold late. This is true, but it was due to the fact that practically all the tobacco was sold during the first few months, and there was not enough left of the crop to justify buyers in staying on the market, consequently, the remnant of the crop has sold as well the bulk of the crop. If farmers had acted in concert during these past few years, and marketed only a small per cent of their inferior tobacco during the hot months, and sold the bulk of the crop during October, November, December and January the condition would have been reversed, and those who sold during these later months would have received much more than those who sold early.

The lack of system in marketing the crop is the trouble. Every one seems to think the time to sell is now, and without regard to the condition of the market, or the quantity of tobacco being sold, prepares the crop as hastily as possible and markets it. It would be better to market the crop during eight months, but reformation should be gradual, and not revolutionary, and we suggest to the farmers the advisability this year, of marketing the crop in a systematic manner, and not to glut the market during the hot summer months. If the farmers will hold their tobacco off the market, and employ system in selling it, this situation is easily controlled, and the price which they receive will be more satisfactory and profitable to them, and all concerned, than the manner in which it has been sold for the past few years.

The practice of pulling off and curing the ground leaves, not only is not profitable to the farmers, but the six or eight million pounds of this stuff that has been annually saved for the last several years, is just that much production for which there is not a demand, and in order to get it used at all, this tobacco has been mixed with other tobacco that had merit, and it is bought at a price that will not pay the farmer even for housing it. The buyers get blocked up with this quality of tobacco, which frequently damages on their hands and causes them to be less active on the market for other grades, and the manufacturer has to blend it with other tobacco, and is put to no end of trouble to get it consumed; consequently, it is a practice that should be abandoned, as farmers have had sufficient experience with this class of tobacco to be sufficiently satisfied that there is not any profit in it for them. If the law of supply and demand operates to affect the price of a commodity, then it follows that the supply of this non-descript, no account tobacco operates just that much to depress the market. It should therefore be thrown away, and thus taken out of the production, which, of course, to that extent reduces the supply, and it follows that the demand for the remainder will be greater, with a correspondingly better price.

The farmers of Eastern North Carolina have it in their power to very easily control the production of bright tobacco, for we make a very large per cent of this quality of tobacco. The Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company desires to aid in every way it can, to assist the farmers in intelligently understanding the situation, to the end that the production of this type of tobacco may be controlled, and the price kept at a profitable and satisfactory figure to the farmers. We have no hesitancy in saying, under normal conditions, the price of our bright tobacco can be maintained at a profitable and satisfactory figure if the production is held within the limits of the law of supply and demand. If farmers will act in concert on these suggestions; market the crop more systematically, and let the bulk of it be sold during the fall and winter months, and

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Greenville vs Farmville at Munford's Park.

Tomorrow afternoon at Munford's Park, the Greenville and Farmville teams will again meet on the diamond in a contest to decide which is the stronger of the two. It will be remembered that last week Greenville triumphed over Farmville on Farmville's grounds by the score of two to one. The Farmville boys are coming resolved to wipe out the stain of their former defeat, and determined to snatch the laurels of victory from the home team. The Greenville boys, while they realize that they have worthy opponents, are confident that they can add this game to their already long list of victories.

The game will be called promptly at 4 p. m. The price of admission will be 15c and 25c. Ladies free, and everybody will be expected to contribute his part, as it costs something to pay a team's expenses.

A Party in Honor of Miss Russ.

On Wednesday evening of last week Miss Lee Brown gave a porch party in honor of her guest, Miss Bettie Russ, of Raleigh, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown, on Fourth street. Many of the young social set of Greenville attended and were delightfully entertained by Miss Brown. Mrs. Zeno Brown, Miss Gaines, of Virginia, and Miss Russ rendered several solos during the evening, which added a great deal to the pleasure of the guests. Punch was served in the hall to the guests as they entered, and ice cream and cake were served in the dining room about eleven o'clock. The house, porch and lawn were beautifully lighted.

Died.

The infant son, aged about three months, of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Moye, died Sunday night. The funeral will take place at 6 o'clock this evening, interment in Cherry Hill cemetery, services conducted by Rev. J. H. Shore.

The pall bearers are Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse, Messrs. J. B. Little, W. C. Vincent, J. S. Congleton, J. A. Ricks, A. E. Tucker, J. A. Andrews, J. L. Little and T. S. Norman.

Back Home

The editor reached home Sunday evening from Hendersonville where he had been attending the State Press Association, with side trips to Toxaway, Asheville and Blumont. Having his time pretty well occupied in sight seeing and trying also to take some needed rest, he wrote nothing for the paper while away, but in other issues this week will have something to say about his trip.

will throw away the ground primings and make the quality of the yield better, they will, in our opinion, get good prices this year. If they will act intelligently in the production of future crops in accordance with the demand for bright tobacco, they will continue to get profitable prices so long as they do so.

Yours truly,
Farmers Consolidated Tob. Co.

"CONFUSIONAL INSANITY."

Will S. Biggers, who deliberately shot and killed J. Green Hood on a crowded thoroughfare in Charlotte last winter was acquitted by a jury of his peers in that city Saturday on the ground that Green was insane at the time of the murder. The Charlotte Observer prints the following remarks by a citizen on the case:

To the crowded court room the verdict gave immense and unqualified satisfaction but not so in like degree the public. While perhaps the great majority favored acquittal and would have been shocked to learn of conviction, there was a deep undercurrent of sentiment that all the ends of justice had not been met. So far as the particular case was concerned, there were sufficient extenuating circumstances to make conviction impossible but the broad measures of civic welfare were not all satisfied. "I am confident that W. S. Biggers killed J. Green Hood in an insane passion over matters which had preyed upon his mind until he was not himself," said a Charlotte man on the streets yesterday afternoon. "He was not himself at the time and was not able then to distinguish between right and wrong. Green Hood had doubtless imposed on him, and Biggers, handicapped as he was and with a family dependent on him he loved as he loved his own life, he pondered upon the injustice done him until he became a maniac on the subject. Finally he took matters in his own hand and slew his enemy, killing him on a crowded thoroughfare and in the heart of the city. He was arrested; he was tried; and now he has been acquitted. The jury held that he was insane at the time he killed his enemy, the man that had sought to defraud him. No one will say that he is still insane. To-day he walks the street just as free as any other man in Charlotte. 'Will he go insane again?' you ask me. I don't know. I do know, however, that the public welfare should be considered. I do not hold that Biggers should be sent to the penitentiary or anything like that but I do believe that the general safety should be looked after. A commission in lunacy should be appointed to pass upon the case if for no other purpose than to assure the citizens of Charlotte that there will be no repetition of the tragedy of February 9."

In the matter of the insanity plea the North Carolina courts seem to be falling in line after New York. It seems to us that if we are going to turn our murderers loose on this ground we had just as well do away with the courts entirely, as one who commits a crime of any kind is insane to that extent. No sane man will walk deliberately up and shoot his fellow being down. Such an act is directly against the nature of a normal man, but that is no reason they should be turned loose on the public to possibly do the same thing under similar circumstances.

Those who are in position to know say the evidence against Biggers would not justify his conviction. As for that we know nothing, but we know the insanity plea is no plea and think our lawyers are carrying things too far.

Mr. O. L. Joyner, president of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Company, writes in today's paper some good suggestions for the tobacco farmers on how to market their crop.

Greenville has a corps of preachers she has cause to be proud of. They are every one good preachers, pastors and men—and that is saying a great deal.

Governor Kitchin, in a letter to Rev. W. B. Oliver, of Florence, S. C., in response to inquiries upon the effect of prohibition in North Carolina, says: "Business in this State is as sound and progressive as in any adjoining State. Prohibition has not demoralized labor. It is true that some negroes and some white men, too, as for that, are violating the prohibition law, and our courts are constantly sending them to the roads for it. Considering the profits, the violations are not beyond what prohibitionists expected. The law is supported by public sentiment and is a great benefit to the State, though, of course, there are many good citizens who opposed prohibition and who still doubt its efficacy and wisdom. It is, however, doubtless working as well as as satisfactory in this State as in any other. It has not worked corruption and evil, though some men have engaged in corruption and evil under it. It never made a good man a bad one. It is not true that drunkenness is more common and prevalent than before prohibition. In my judgment there is not a county in the State that is spending as much money for or consuming as much whiskey per capita as before prohibition. There is not the slightest probability that the next legislature will repeal the law. I think the prohibition sentiment is sounder and stronger than heretofore."—Charlotte Observer.

WHY SO WEAK? Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Greenville People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffer backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, kidney weakness may be the cause of it all. Keep your kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Can Greenville readers demand further proof than the following statement: Jos. Savage, Church St., Tarboro, N. C., says: "For some time my kidneys were disordered, the passages of the secretions being scanty and at times painful. I had sharp pains across my loins and if I stooped suddenly, sharp twinges caught me across my back, making it hard for me to straighten. After using a number of remedies without obtaining relief, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. They removed the aches and pains in my back and regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the benefit I have derived from them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Useless Implement.

It is not always safe to meddle with the unfamiliar. Mr. James Russell in "Reminiscences of Yarow" gives the following story as illustrating the simplicity of the Scotch farmers of the vicinity: A well to do tenant bought a barometer at a public sale. Soon after the minister asked him how he liked it. "Not at all," returned the honest farmer. "It's no' the thing." "In what way is it not the thing?" "Well," replied the worthy parishioner, more at home with sheep than science, "it was nae casting up sic weather as I wad have liked. So, thinking there was something wrang, I took it doon and examined it outside and in. "At last I discovered a lang glass tube wi' a hole in the end o' it. Niver dooting that was the matter, I stopped up the hole. But if it did ill before it did naething at all after that!"

The Way She Writes.

"My wife is unique," remarked a proud husband. "Unique, I said. That is the word. It fits her even if it is misused as a general rule. Well, I'll tell you what she does, and then you can judge for yourself if you ever heard of anything like it." She writes letters on ordinary note paper and follows the regular folds of the paper, and you can read her letters without puzzling for ten minutes trying to find what page comes next. Besides following the regular order of the pages, she numbers them to make sure. And I never knew her to underscore a single word. Now, then, did you ever hear of a woman like that?"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Indigo Blue Waters Run Deep.

The mean depth of the sea is from two to three miles. This figure, however, is often passed, and soundings taken off the island of Guam, one of the Ladrone group in the Pacific, extended to 31,614 feet, or just about six miles, the greatest depth known. The land average is 2,300 feet, while the highest summits of the Himalayas are little more than 28,000 feet, which means that the sea bottom has depths greatly exceeding the elevation of the loftiest pinnacle above its surface. Seas of this profound depth, it may be added, are generally indigo blue in color.—London Answers.

The Resemblance.

Miss (making an unexpected raid on the kitchen)—Who is this, Mary? Mary—M-me brother, please m. Mistress—Indeed! But he doesn't resemble you in the least. Mary—No'm! But we was remarkable alike before 'e ad 'is beard shaved off.—London Sketch.
