PORCH PARTY AT GRIFTON.

Grifton, N. C., July 21st, 1909
Miss Mana Patrick delightfully entertained her friends at a porch party at Mrs. Alice Spier's on Main street, Tuesday evening, in honor of Miss Mary Carraway, of New Bern.

The spacious porches were decorated with Japanese lanterns and a profusion of potted plants. Throughout the evening music was rendered by Miss Rosa Gardner.

About eleven o'clock the guests were invited in the dining room where a sumptuous supper consisting of a salad course and delicious ices and cakes were served, the color scheme being tastefully carried out in pink and white.

Those invited were as follows: Miss Mary Carraway, of New Bern, with William Quinerly, of Ayden.

Miss Earle Tucker with George Hellen.

Miss Rosa Gardner with Lloyd Turnage, of Ayden.

Miss Annie B. Kittrell with Heber Brooks.

Miss Sallie Gardner with Tom Dawson.

Miss Helen Chapman with Ernest Rollins.

Miss Ruth Chapman with Hinton Best.

Miss Mamie Dawson with Raymond McCotter.

Miss Rosa Quinerly with Wade McCotter.

Miss Dora Pittman with Lawrence Hellen.

Miss Lizzie Blount, of Ayden, with Jesse Brooks.

Miss Willie Freeman with Marvin Taylor.

Miss Florence Blount, of Ayden, with David Blount, of Ayden.

Miss Lena Dawson, of Ayden, with Paul Brooks.

Miss Mana Patrick with Ned McGlohon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gaskins, of Washington, D. C.

Chaperones—Mr. and Mrs. Jarrell, Mrs. Alice Spier.

Came Near Drowning.

Prof. and Mrs. R. H. Wright, of Baltimore, who have been guests at the Northrop cottage for several days, narrowly escaped drowning at Wrightsville Beach Monday afternoon. Mrs. Wright went into water over her depth and her husband in his effort to rescue her became exhausted and it seemed at one time that both would be lost. Messrs. John K. Williams and Robert E. Calder went to their rescue and after heroic efforts were successful in getting them ashore. Prof. Wright was recently elected president of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School at Greenville, N. C., and both he and Mrs. Wright have many friends here who will congratulate them upon the success of their rescue.—Wilmington Star.

Glenwood Park.

G. V. Webb, of the firm of Zirkle & Webb, Norfolk, is here in the interest of the sale of lots in that fine property, Glenwood Park, near Norfolk. If you have not read the large advertisement of this property in The Reflector be sure and look it up today.

Several in a Fight.

Early Wednesday morning several colored people had a free-for-all fight near the market house on Fifth street. No damage of consequence was done except to their pockets in settling the matter before the mayor.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Since the first of the year 125 local tax districts have been established for rural schools in this State.

The death of Dr. William Henry Harrison Cobb, one of Goldsboro's eminent physicians, occurred of heart disease this (Wednesday) morning at 2:45 o'clock, after a two weeks' illness, aged 68 years. A brave Confederate soldier and universally beloved citizen has gone to his reward.—Goldsboro Headlight.

Remarkable progress is being made in the work of ridding North Carolina of cattle ticks. The twenty United States experts now in the field are at work in the counties of Alamance, Anson, Cabarrus, Chatham, Durham, Franklin, Davie, Catawba, Guilford, Granville, Lee, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Rutherford, Rowan, Stanly, Stokes, Union, Vance, Wake, Warren, Wilkes and Yadkin.

Reidsville, July 20.—Miss Sallie Bennett, who resides with her brother, Mr. J. H. Bennett, just north of Reidsville, was so badly stung by bees yesterday that she was compelled to take her bed. Her head and face were very badly pelted, and her suffering has been intense. The bees had swarmed and been hived and in passing through the yard Miss Bennett was set upon by them and had to be taken into the house, so weak had she become from efforts to get away from them.

Raleigh, N. C., July 21.—Judge W. R. Allen rules that the $500,000 bond issue authorized by the recent legislature for the enlargement of the State hospitals for the insane is valid. The bill of complaint by the Raleigh Savings bank and interests it represented set out that the adoption of an amendment adopted on the final reading should have had separate day roll call readings. The state demurred to this on the ground that the amendment was immaterial in that it did not effect the amount of the bonds to be issued, interest, time of payment of interest, change the amount or character of the bonds imposed no tax, created no debt nor pledged the faith or credit of the State. The amendment in no way effected the purpose of the bonds and was therefore immaterial. Judge Allen found this demurrer to be the statement of facts and ruled on that finding that the bonds are valid. The case will now go to the Supreme court for final adjudication.

Drum Corps Benefit.

The moving picture show in the opera house, Friday night, will be for the benefit of Bryan Grimes Drum Corps. The corps will give a dress parade on Evans street at 8:30. The program in the opera house will be varied with songs by a male quartet.

The Cheapest Ad.

Mr. Greenville Merchant, did you know that advertising in The Reflector is the most effective you can use, and cost less than any other method you can adopt? Suppose you ask for rates and try an ad for results. The cheapest ad is in the newspaper.

The Reflector does job work.

The "laying by" of crops is followed so closely by tobacco curing and opening of the market as to almost make country picnics a back number.

Between the cries of "ice," "cantaloupes," "milk," "vegetables," etc. of the early morning vendors, the late sleepers get little chance to finish their after-sunrise nap.

In Warm Weather.

The business woman must take extraordinary care of the health, or the long summer work will tell on her.

The one form of precaution that pays better perhaps than others is to take plenty of sleep.

The time to take a good part of it is before midnight. Two hours before midnight, they say, are worth double the time after.

So take your recreation in the evening, if you must but take it early.

It is just as easy to start out on a trolley ride or a trip to the park a little earlier, coming home early and vastly better, where such trips are frequent, for one's health and one's looks.

If every business woman could have an average of nine hours sleep for the next two months, there would be fewer breakdowns at the end of the summer than ever before.

Nine hours seems like a good deal perhaps, but it is merely going to bed at 10, or rather being in bed by 10, and getting up at 7.

Even the eight-hour regime, rigidly adhered to, will do wonders in keeping one in good health.

If it is the habit of your family to go to bed late, make an effort to break through the habit for one summer. It will more than repay you.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sand Clay Streets.

The sand-clay street improvement on Ninth street has stopped for the time being at the corner of Evans street. The work the town has done makes Ninth a good street from Dickinson avenue to Evans. It is to be hoped that before long the work can be resumed on Evans street from Five Points to Twelfth street and then continue as rapidly as possible over other principal streets.

Our Greenville, yours if you come.

ROCHDALE ITEMS.

Rochdale, N. C., July 21, 1909.

Mrs. C. E. McLawhon and children and Miss Lou Crawford were visitors at B. P. Willoughby's near Farmville Thursday.

We had nice showers Thursday evening and heavy rain Friday.

R. E. Willoughby went to Farmville Friday morning.

Mills Smith went to Greenville Friday evening.

Mrs. Pattie F. Smith, who had been visiting at B. P. Willoughby's for a few days returned home Wednesday evening.

Mills Smith took out a very fine barn of tobacco Friday morning.

Mrs. E. A. Nichols, of Pickett, and daughter, Miss Genie, were visiting at Mills Smith's Saturday.

Jas. L. Smith, of Maple Cypress, came up Wednesday to visit relatives in our section and returned home Sunday evening.

Miss Rosa D. Smith went to Morehead on the excursion Sunday.

Rev. G. H. Crumpler filled his regular appointment at Smith's school house Sunday and preached very good sermons morning and night to large congregations.

We had a very good Sunday school Sunday morning. There were people here from Standard, Maritown, Grimmersburg, Farmville, Fountain and other places, to make up a large crowd.

There were two wagon loads made up Sunday evening, including the preacher, that went down to the river on a pleasure trip.

Claude Smith, of Fountain, spent Sunday night at F. M. Smith's and returned home on Monday.

The tobacco men just as well conclude that they won't get but a half crop of tobacco this year, and go to paying for what they get at first.

Miss Gertie Smith who has been visiting at A. J. Flanagan's for a week, returned home Sunday evening.

I will now give you all a very slight description of our towns. Rochdale is considered the center. It is on the Stantonburg road 8 miles west of Greenville, and 5 or 6 miles east of Farmville. Cobbdale is only a large farm occupied by B. P. Cobb about 1 mile north of Rochdale, and Arthur is 1 1/2 miles south. Smithtown is 1 1/2 miles northeast, Maritown 3 miles south, Pickett or Nicholstown about 4 miles southeast and Grimmersburg about 4 miles south. All of these towns are only neighborhoods except Arthur, and that is a railroad station, at which place we think the road ought to build a shelter if nothing else, for there are many goers and comers to and from that point, and when it rains they have to wait in the rain.

The Ice Man.

Now the ice man comes along, languid like and lazy, with his old-time summer song—isn't he a daisy? Now his strident yell of "Ice!" echoes down the alley, and if you scare up the price he will be with you daily. You will call for 50 pounds, say that is a plenty, and the fellow makes the rounds and deposits twenty. If you make a single kick, or put in a holler, or say you've a bone to pick and sweat at the collar, that is all the good 'twill do—'tis a woeful blunder, for next day he'll say to you: "You can go to thunder!"—Los Angeles Express.

Charming House Party.

Captain and Mrs. J. S. Barr are entertaining this week at a house party at their beautiful appointed home on Third street, an even half dozen of as pretty and charming young ladies as the good Old North State has ever produced, and Weldon has opened wide her hospitable gates to these fair visitors and greets them with a welcome smile.

The young ladies are, Miss Norma Banck, of Wilmington; and Misses Rubelle Forbes, Arlene Joyner, Mavis Evans, Myrtle Warren, and Hilda Critcher, of Greenville, the former home of Mrs. Barr, who was before marriage, Miss Helen Forbes, a leader in the social life of the beautiful town of Greenville.

Young ladies, we bid you not only twice, but six times welcome to our city, and when you return to your homes, may you realize that all that was done here for your pleasure and happiness was Weldon (e.)—Weldon News.

If something will just hurry along to help pay bills it will lighten the burden on not a few shoulders and make sleeping much easier.

When a stranger comes to town look after him and show him the best we have. No town has better advantages than Greenville to offer the home seeker.

If a calm precedes a storm, possibly the recent lull in business is the forerunner of brisker times soon to come. Let us all take that view of it and hope for prosperity.

If the extra session of congress adjourns by the close of this week, as has been predicted, there must be some getting together of the tariff conference committees.

Some of the paragraphs continue to poke fun at the airship experimenters, but they are yet going to fly all right. For one we have faith in the ultimate success of air navigation.

A New York physician is advising to leave 'em off entirely, winter and summer, that is the inner part of our apparel. That would hit the underwear manufacturers a lick for sure.

You create interest in your town by having faith in it yourself and letting your enthusiasm spread to those with whom you come in contact. Let no opportunity pass to talk up your town.

Every time we read of the business men of other towns getting together and securing large cotton mills, it makes us wonder why Greenville does not get busy along that line. There is every advantage here for such factories, and the town certainly needs them.

The summer cry is coming from the West for laborers to help harvest the big crops the farmers of that section have raised. And next winter the Southern farmers will be buying those same crops, at least the corn and hay part of it, which they should be raising themselves in abundance.

former wife, Mrs. Alice Webb, hence he was denied license to marry in this State.

Importance of Jury Duty.

In a few well chosen sentences Judge Allen entered a strong defense of the jury system. He said that there was at times much criticism of the verdicts of juries, but that he had found in his long experience that juries were generally correct with their verdicts. Criticism, he declared, nine times out of ten when investigated, comes from the man who does not go to the court room at all, but who stays at his place of business and bases his criticism on rumors; and generally the man who criticizes is a man who shirks jury duty. The judge raked the shirkers of jury duty without mercy. He said that the average business man, when summoned for jury service, took it as a joke. As the time drew near it gets serious and he consults his lawyer, begging him to have excused, and on the first day of court he falls back on the family physician and is afflicted with some chronic disease. —Raleigh Times.

At last the esteemed government has found a way, it thinks, of swatting the tobacco trust. The War Department orders that the commissary general shall enter into no contract with the American Tobacco Company or affiliated corporations, each of which was held by the United States Circuit Court in New York last December to be a combination violating the anti-trust law. Soldiers will smoke no tobacco manufactured by the octopus. It is stated that the independent companies expect a large increase in their business with the government. This expectation, we have no doubt, will be realized. "Independent companies" are the tobacco trust's long suit. —Charlotte Observer.

"Our Greenville—Yours if You Come," is the attractive slogan of the little city of Greenville, N. C., and it ought to help the city to grow. There isn't a better town in Eastern North Carolina, and it is sincere in its offer to give itself to newcomers, for such are most heartily welcomed and aided in doing business. —Charlotte Real Estate Record

MANY SUDDEN DEATHS FROM POISONOUS RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism has for years been regarded as an exceedingly painful disease but it has only been discovered within the last few years that it is this terrible trouble that is either directly or indirectly causing thousands of deaths yearly throughout our country. Rheumatism of the Heart, Neuralgia of the Heart, Paralysis, Uric Acid Poisoning are among the most dangerous forms of the disease. If Uric Acid is allowed to stay in the system sudden death can scarcely be averted. If any sufferer will go at once to J. W. Bryan and get a bottle of "Blood-ne" the guaranteed remedy for Rheumatism. They will positively be cured. Bloodine in large bottles cost 50 cents. In old chronic cases where there is acute pains, "Bloodine Rheumatic Liment" should be used with "Bloodine." Also for sale by M. M. Sauls, Ayden, N. C.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia. Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol. When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do. Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much as the fifty cent bottle. Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

THE MAN'S OUTFITTER

WANTED TO MAKE HAY.

A Dominant Parish Clerk With Little Regard For the Dead.

Unfortunately a very young clergyman came to the parish, and then John, the parish clerk, did just, and only just, what he liked. A leading dissenter had died and his wife had named a day to the vicar for the funeral. One fine day in July the funeral procession duly arrived, and the vicar advanced in full canonicals to meet the corpse at the churchyard gate. To his amazement the widow advanced toward him in a perfect fury, shaking her fist in his face and shouting: "Do you call this religion? Where's the gravie? 'Tis shameful to a poor lone widow. Where's his gravie (grave), I tell you?"

The vicar then, for the first time, perceived that John, the clerk, was missing and that no grave had been prepared. Upon inquiry he was told that John was haymaking in the park. A messenger was dispatched to bring him, and shortly John appeared, limping along with a prong in his hand, his shirt sleeves rolled up to the elbow, his coat upon his arm and a large straw hat upon his head. He advanced with perfect composure, and when the vicar began to say, "This is very disgraceful, John," he replied:

"You bide a bit. I sees what it be. You let me talk to she. She knows me, and I knows she." Then, addressing the widow, he proceeded: "Now, I tell ye what it be. You listen to reason. Now we've had rain, rain, rain, and now we've got a fine day we must make our hay. Now your corpsey he won't hurt. Comes a wet day, 'tain't no odds to you. You bring your umbrellas, but our hay 'd spile. Now, you take he home and listen to reason. Your old man he'd 'a' listened to reason. Hay's a thing as can only be made when 'tis fine. 'Tain't no odds to corpseys whether 'tis wet or dry."

So completely was the woman convinced by the irresistible logic of John's argument that she was completely subdued, and if the vicar had not insisted upon some of the hay-makers being called in to dig the grave the funeral would have turned home again.—Cornhill Magazine.

Milk and Milking.

Many people believe that milk is ready made and stored in the udder of the cow, simply awaiting the milker. This impression is corrected by the statement of the well known scientist, John Burroughs, who says: "Most persons think that giving down or holding up the milk by the cow is a voluntary act. In fact, they fancy that the udder is a vessel filled with milk and that the cow releases or withholds it just as she chooses. But the udder is a manufactory. It is filled with blood from which the milk is manufactured while you milk. This process is controlled by the cow's nervous system. When she is excited or in any way disturbed, as by a stranger or by taking away her calf or any other cause, the process is arrested and the milk will not flow. The nervous energy goes elsewhere. The whole process is as involuntary as is digestion in man and is disturbed or arrested in about the same way."—Indiana Farmer.

George Washington No Sailor.

A Baltimore schoolteacher had encountered such a degree of ignorance and mental obtuseness on the part of one of her boys that she became disheartened. So it was with considerable sarcasm that she said to the youngster:

"I wonder if you could tell me whether George Washington was a soldier or a sailor?"

The kid grinned. "He was a soldier, all right," was the reply.

"How do you know?" asked the weary teacher.

"Because I seen a picture of him crossin' the Delaware," explained the boy. "Any sailor 'd know enough not to stand up in the boat."—Shipping Illustrated.

A Mysterious Visitor.

New Servant—Please, mum, there's a strange lady downstairs, and she didn't have no card. She took off her things, as if she intended to stay, and she looked around the room with her nose in the air, as if things wasn't good enough for her, and she rubbed the winder to see if it was clean, and she peeped in the dark corners and then looked at the dust on her fingers and sniffed.

Mistress—I can't imagine who the creature can be. My husband's mother and sisters are away.—Exchange.

Teacher and Tommy.

Teacher—Tommy, can you tell me what shape the world is? Tommy—It is round. Teacher—How do you know it is round? Tommy—Because you told me yourself. Teacher—Yes, but my telling you the world is round doesn't make it round. How do I know it's round? Tommy—I suppose somebody told you.—Munsey's Magazine.

DROPPED THE "TUB."

And Like a Good Girl Pronounced the Word Correctly.

W. S. Gilbert contributed an amusing article on "Actors and Authors" to a program of the London Drury Lane theater. The following extract will be read with appreciation:

The author's greatest difficulty lies in the necessity of directing an actor's attention to an obvious mispronunciation—a feat that must be achieved without humiliating the actor in the presence of his professional brethren.

Many years ago I was engaged in rehearsing a burlesque, and a very clever young lady had to sing the couplet:

Indubitably if you do
It will be the worse for you.
The clever young lady, whose pronunciation was not always beyond reproach, delivered the lines thus:

It will be the worse for you.
This, of course, would not do, so I determined to alter the word to "inevitably." The young lady agreed that the alteration greatly improved the verse, but she was not to be deprived of her "tub," so she sang it:

Inevitably if you do
It will be the worse for you.
This was just as bad, so I made it "unquestionably," and, of course, it came out:

Unquestionably if you do
It will be the worse for you.
I could think of no other word that would answer the purpose, so, as a last resource, I said to her:

"Do you think it advisable to give the word its French accent?"
"How do you mean?"

"Why, 'unquestionably'—that's the way it is pronounced in Paris. In addressing an English audience perhaps the staple English version of the word would be better. Try it, at all events, 'unquestionably,' 'a' instead of 'u.' 'Unquestionably' would be all very well for the stalls, but the gallery wouldn't understand it."

"Of course," she said, "the English accent would certainly be more appropriate."

And she sang it "unquestionably" like the good girl that she was.—Argonaut.

Aroused Her Curiosity After All.
"Don't want any," said a housekeeper from her second story window to a street vender whose covered wagon was standing a few steps away and who had just pulled the bell.

"Don't want any what?" gruffly asked the vender, who hadn't had even a chance to tell what his wares were.

"What have you got?" asked the housekeeper, whose curiosity was getting the better of her annoyance.

"Oh, never mind. You don't want any. Git up, Bob!"

"Now, I wonder what that exasperating man is selling, anyhow!" she exclaimed as the wagon disappeared around the corner.—Exchange.

Silenced Him.
The young man in the barber's chair had been annoyed by suggestions of the white coated artist, although he had said clearly enough when he sat down that he wanted only a hair cut and a shampoo. Singeing, facial massage and hair tonics had been offered vainly.

Finally the barber perpetrated what is with barbers the crowning insult. Passing his hand over the young man's face, he said contemptuously:

"Shave yourself, don't you?"
"Sure," said the young man. "Don't you?"

And there was silence.—Washington Post.

Poor Man!
She—I'm never going to speak to your wife again.

He—What's the matter?
She promised to write to me two weeks ago, and I haven't heard from her since.

"Oh, well" (feeling in his pocket), "here's the letter. She gave it to me a fortnight ago."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Poor Man's Gym.
"Would you mind telling me," asked Mrs. Bourdaloit, glancing admiringly at the athletic shoulders of the prospective boarder, "how do you keep in such splendid physical condition?"

"I go through a few gymnastic exercises every morning," confessed the young man, flushing.

"Well, I'm sorry, but we can't board you. I've had the bathroom monopolized that way before."—Kansas City Times.

THE "BREAK" IN THE GAME.

Baseball Almost as Much Psychological as Athletic.

Nearly every baseball game is won and lost on one play—a play that comes at the psychological instant. Among the players who do not study psychology the crucial moment is known as "the break," a phenomenon which no one has analyzed and which the players themselves do not understand.

Twenty men on the bench are watching closely and intently every move of the pitcher, every swing of his arm. The tide of battle rises, ebbs, and then suddenly at the start of some thing something happens. What it is no one outside the psychic sphere of influence ever will understand, but the silent, tight lipped, watchful, alert fellows on the bench see something or feel something, and the mysterious "break" has come.

"One ball!" The players on the bench suddenly stiffen and prepare for action.

"Two balls!" Two players jump for bats and begin swishing them; the coaches, who have yelled only because it was their duty, suddenly begin raving, screaming and paving the dirt, and the manager, who has appeared half asleep, makes a trumpet of his hands and leads his men, bawling loud orders and wild taunts.

The spectators do not understand anything has happened. Other batters have had two balls called many times, and it looks the same to the spectator who is beyond the mysterious "break" sphere. In two more moments the players' bench is a madhouse, with twenty men shouting, screaming, ordering, moving. "Three balls!" and a madman rushes out to the "deck."

"Four balls!" and the spectators join the players in the demonstration. The madness is spreading. Crack—a base hit, a bunt, a wild throw; another base hit, screams, shouts, imprecations, a roar of frantic applause, a final long fly. The manager reaches for his glove, spits into it and says quietly, "Four runs—we've got 'em." The "break" is over, and the players' bench is again the quietest part of the grounds. The surge of enthusiasm, confidence and noise subsides, and the game is won.

Baseball is almost as much psychological as athletic. Why one team can beat a stronger one regularly and lose to a weaker with the same regularity, why one batter can hit one pitcher and is helpless before another, why one pitcher is effective against a strong team and at the mercy of another that cannot bat half as hard, are psychological problems.—American Magazine.

A MISER'S END.

Meanness of M. Vandille and the Way He Hastened His Death.

M. Vandille was chief magistrate at Boulogne and by miserly habits left a fortune of $4,000,000. His usual diet was bread and milk. The bread cost very little, and after eating his loaf at home his habit was to become his own public milk inspector, whom as chief magistrate he had the right to appoint. And so, as he declared, to protect the inhabitants from being imposed upon by an inferior quality of milk he took his walk immediately after eating his loaf and demanded to taste the milk of every salesman he passed, thus saving himself from purchasing any. Misers are generally strong men—they have to be so in order to live a life of privation—but eventually Vandille, like other misers, was seized with illness, and the surgeons had to be called in. In those days they bled their patients. The surgeon asked Vandille half a livre for the operation, but the millionaire ordered him at once out of his sight and sent for the apothecary. The apothecary refused to cut the price down, so Vandille sent for a poor barber, who undertook to open a vein for three sous a time.

"Aye, but," said this worthy economist, "how often, friend, will it be necessary to bleed me?"

"Three times."

"And what quantity of blood do you intend to take each time?"

"Eight ounces."

"Well, but why can't you take the whole twenty-four ounces at once? You want to make a job of me, you scoundrel! Here, sir; there are your three sous. Take the twenty-four ounces immediately." The barber was generous to obey. M. Vandille lost the twenty-four ounces of blood and died in a few days, leaving all his vast treasures to the king, whom he made his sole heir.—Standard Magazine.

The Oldest Bridge in Paris.
The Pont Notre Dame is the oldest bridge in Paris. It was first built in 1413 in the reign of Charles VI, but it was carried away, together with the houses which lined it, by the flood when the first bridge in 1439. A new bridge was begun at once under the direction of Jean de Selve of Verona and was ready for traffic in 1597. On that bridge stood the famous picture shop of Horatio, which had a sign-board specially painted for it by Watteau.—Western Gazette.

Telling Him.
Pashful North—Miss Della, does your mother object to my coming here so much? Fair Charm—Oh, I think not! I heard her telling papa the other evening that you merely came to pass away the time; you didn't mean anything serious.—London Tit-Bits.

The Division.
"What?" exclaimed Mrs. Flatteigh. "You don't mean to tell me you pay a girl $10 a week for cooking?"
"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Flatteigh. "I only pay her $2 a week."

Good news sweetens the blood.—German Proverb.

THE CAPITOL STATUE.

Heroic Figure That Surmounts the Dome in Washington.

THE MODEL WAS CHANGED.

Jefferson Davis Objected to the Original as Designed by Crawford, and It Was Altered to Symbolize "Armed Liberty," as It Now Stands.

"Armed Liberty," the splendid statue that crowns the dome of the capitol, is by far the most symbolic of all the statues in Washington. Beautiful and reposeful, yet with an air of vigilance, it is perhaps the least appreciated of the city's statues, possibly because of its being placed at such an altitude that it cannot easily be studied. The original plans of the capitol called for a statue to surmount the dome, but no title was then given it, and comparatively few people know the real name of the statue.

Seeking this information, a Post reporter interrogated a number of persons whose daily occupations keep them almost constantly beneath the shadow of the great statue. To the question "What is the name of the statue above the dome of this building?" came these widely different opinions:

"The name of that statue? Why, it's the Goddess of Freedom."

"Yes; I can tell you the name. It is the Goddess of Liberty."

Several declared it to be the statue of Independence. Others said, "It is an Indian woman."

"It is the God of Justice and Freedom," declared a portly man in a tone that defied questioning.

"It represents an American woman, but I am not sure of her name."

"Well, now, I never inquired what lady that statue commemorates," remarked a politician from a not very distant state, "but it is a fine work of art."

"It is a statue of the god of war, Mars."

"Can you tell me something about that statue above the dome?" was asked a man whose knowledge is well known.

"Why, certainly. It is a woman of colonial days. Can't you see the trimming around the mantle and the curls about the face? And the features are delicately molded. You see, I have studied the model at the museum. It surely is a woman. I think you can safely say it is an American woman."

One who always tries his best to help others said: "Now, all statues, as you know, bear the names of the people they represent, and if you will just step over to the library of congress I think you can easily find some book on statues that will tell you all you want to know. It is a woman, I am sure, so look for the female statues."

A younger member of the house replied to the question about the statue most suavely and confidently. "It is the god of progress; you know his name." Several of the colored men in the various parts of the building were nearly all quite sure it was the Goddess of Freedom. One of them knew the year, 1863, when it was placed above the dome, and he affirmed, "It is the Goddess of American Liberty Before the War."

"You want to know the name of that statue? Well, just wait a minute, and I will get it for you first hand." And a most accommodating guide passed into the senate chamber. Directly he returned.

"That is a statue of Pocahontas." Every one had a different name for the statue, not one giving the real name, "Armed Liberty."

The statue was modeled by Thomas Crawford, father of the novelist, the late F. Marion Crawford. It was cast at a Maryland foundry. Jefferson Davis was secretary of war when the model was first presented in the war department. The statue then wore a liberty cap and carried a bundle of rods as being emblematic of the emancipated slaves, while Americans were freeborn. He also thought the bundle of rods, suggesting the functions of the Roman dictator, had lost its symbolic character. Because of these criticisms of Secretary Davis the model was changed, and "Armed Liberty" was evolved.

The statue is nine feet six inches tall and weighs 14,985 pounds. It was put in place on Dec. 2, 1863. The head is thrown back and adorned with eagle's beak and plumes. The right hand rests on a sword, and the left holds an olive branch and a shield. The mantle is gracefully draped and is held by a brooch bearing "U. S." on its face. The helmet is encircled with stars. The supporting globe bears the legend "E Pluribus Unum."—Washington Post.

The Emu's Kick.
An emu can kick as hard as any donkey. The bird stands on one leg and with the other delivers at will a quick and generally very accurate blow. "I never would have believed that a bird had such power," says a recent Australian traveler, "had I not had ocular evidence of it during our trip. After two or three of our men suffered from the terrible kicks of these birds we did not venture near them, but after running our horses until we got close enough, would bring them down with our rifles. We killed them for their feathers and also hunted for their eggs, but we took good care not to go within kicking distance."

THE IMPOSSIBLE.

It Lies Just Beyond the Limit of Our Own Understanding.

Here is a striking parable by Miss E. Fox Howard, which we take from the "Friends' Fellowship Papers."

"A dog tried to open a door. He scratched it, threw himself against it, struggled to get his nose under it and burrow his way out, but at last he decided that the door would not open and never could open, so he lay down before it and went to sleep.

"A child was watching the dog, and he laughed and turned the handle with his small fingers, and the door was open. Then he took a book, and, sitting on the floor, he turned over the leaves one by one and gazed at the queer black marks upon them without knowing what they meant, for he was a very little child and he could not read. As there were no pictures to be found he tossed it away.

"But a boy picked up the book and laughed and read page after page of a wonderful fairy tale. Then he went to school and puzzled his head over a sum which had to be brought to the class that morning. Try as he might the sum would not prove, and the boy said: 'I can't do it. I'm sure it can't be done. There must be a mistake in the book.'

"But the pupil's teacher laughed, and, taking the blotted exercise book from the boy, he quickly worked out and proved the sum. Then he turned to his own studies and went into the laboratory, for he was learning chemistry. All the morning he labored among the gases and the acids, but he could not get the right combinations and only succeeded in making a loud explosion. 'It's all rubbish to say that potash and carbon form potassium,' he said. 'They simply explode, and I defy any one to say they don't!'

"But the master, who had heard the noise, came and took it into his own hands, and soon the metal was dropping from the condenser. After school was over the master, who was getting an old man, sat in his study reading a paper on modern scientific thought. As he read his brow darkened, and at last he flung it down and said: 'It is a monstrous idea. How can the creation of the world have taken millions of years? The good old Bible account of the six days of creation is good enough for me.' And he wrote an angry letter of remonstrance to the great professor who had sent him the paper.

"But the professor only smiled, for he was a geologist and had read the message of the rocks. He himself, one of the deepest thinkers of the day, sat late into the night among his books, trying to fit some newly discovered laws of physics into his schemes of things and to bring his mind nearer to a solution of the great why of the universe. At last he bowed his head and said: 'It is impossible. Facts are too conflicting. I cannot explain them, and I doubt if there is any explanation.'

"Just beyond the limit of our own understanding lies the impossible."

Reward of Industry.
Faithful Housewife—Mrs. Candour, is it? I can't stop my sewing now. Tell her I'm not at home.

Ann—Please, mum, I've been telling so many you're not at home I wish you'd see some uv 'em.

"Why, Ann?"

"I don't like the way they act. They look at each other and snicker so."

"Mercy! Do they suspect I am at home?"

"No, mum; I wish they did. I heard one uv 'em say they wouldn't like your husband to know uv your goin's on."

"Get up! What do they mean?"

"They think, mum, you're the worst gadabout in town!"—Exchange.

With Reservation.
Here is the story of covenanting times in Scotland, of which an old laird of Galloway was the central figure:

Learning that he was about to be raided by Claverhouse, whose dragoons were coming in search of him, the old laird effected his escape disguised as one of his own plowmen. As he was leaving the house he was stopped by the dragoons, who asked if the laird was at home.

"Well," said the old covenanter, "he was there when I was there."

The dragoons went their way, and the old laird went his and lived to tell the truth another day.

His Mite of Sense.
"Well, gentlemen," said Tompkins to a couple of his friends, "you can talk as much as you please about the inferiority of women, but there are lots of them that can discount most of us for brains. Take my wife, for instance. She's got twice as much sense as I have, and I ain't ashamed to acknowledge it, either."

"But don't you think," said one of his auditors, "that you put rather a low estimate on your wife's intellectual powers?"—Liverpool Mercury.

More Interesting.
"At the last meeting of our club, we were scheduled to discuss Henry VIII, and his numerous divorces."
"And didn't you?"
"No; one of the members knew of an impending divorce right in our own set."—Kansas City Journal.

A Possible Reason.
"I can't understand why Brown should have failed."
"Nor can I. I always thought he was doing finely. He often came to me for advice."—Detroit Free Press.

A FATAL FRIENDSHIP.

Devotion of Princess Lamballe to Marie Antoinette.

SLAIN BY A PARISIAN MOB.

The Assassination of the Princess, Who Escaped and Returned to Comfort Her Friend, Was One of the Worst Acts of the Reign of Terror.

It was in the historic Carignano palace at Turin that the Princess Lamballe was born. Her father was Louis Victor of Carignano, of the royal house of Sardinia and Savoy.

Her childhood was spent in Turin during the period that followed the defeat of the French through the brilliant military tactics of Prince Eugene of Vienna. At eighteen she was married to Stanislaus, son of the Duke of Penthièvre of France.

The chief place of this duchy was the town of Lamballe, about fifty miles from Rennes. The Prince de Lamballe died in one year, and as soon as etiquette allowed a marriage with Louis XV. was contemplated. This did not go into effect, however, and the princess withdrew from the court.

She met Marie Antoinette when that princess first came to Paris, and they were mutually attracted and became friends. The Princess de Lamballe saw the dangers to which this young foreigner was exposed, and when Marie Antoinette became queen of France in 1774 and appointed the princess superintendent of the royal household she entered upon her duties with the sympathetic understanding of a loyal friend. The closest ties of affectionate regard drew these two young royal personages together. Through the careless gaiety of court life the Princess de Lamballe was the judicious friend. When illness came to the queen she was faithful and devoted.

When the storm of adversity broke over the royal family and it was arranged that an escape should be effected Mme. de Lamballe got safely to England, going across from Dieppe, but the royal family were arrested at Varennes and declared traitors to France.

Mme. de Lamballe's devotion was so true she at once hastened back to Paris to be with the queen. Her friends urged and implored her to think of the danger to herself and pointed out that she could be of no real service at such a critical time. But she knew better than they did what a comfort her presence would be, and her heart was entirely occupied with the sorrows of her sovereign. She was allowed to become a prisoner with the royal family in the temple, and for one week she was a cheerful and helpful companion, full of affectionate arts to make the hours less bitter and giving to Marie Antoinette the loving, devoted care that only a friend so loyal could give.

When those about the prison saw what an influence of joy Mme. de Lamballe brought to the royal prisoners an order was issued for her removal to the prison of La Force. From here she was taken for a mock trial and offered her life if she would take oath against the monarchy. With scorn she refused to do this.

Then came one of the most terrible acts of the period of the reign of terror. She was delivered to the people, wild with the desire for blood, and was killed in the courtyard of La Force prison. They stabbed her with sabers, cut off her head, tore her heart from her body while it was yet palpitating and then dragged her body through the streets to the temple.

On the way there they stopped at a hairdresser's and made him rouge the beautiful face and friz and powder the hair. This man nearly died with fear while at this awful work. When it was done and the head set on a pike, the long, fair curls of her pretty hair fell about the neck. Those of the mob who suggested this hideous work upon the head said, "Antoinette will now recognize her friend."

The heart was also put on the end of a pike and the route to the temple resumed. The royal family were together, and Louis was reading to them, when they heard the sound of the mob and loud, high voices. Suddenly the door was opened violently, and as they all started to their feet some men pushed themselves past the guard and shouted to the king: "The people have something to show you. If you don't wish them to bring it up here you had better go to the window."

With the deadly fear in their hearts they did as directed and looked into the dead and painted face of their devoted friend and also saw her tender heart and her poor body, hacked by the sabers of these wretches.

With a cry of horror and despair Marie Antoinette fell into a state of stupor. Mme. Elizabeth forced her into a chair, and her children clung to her and cried with fear. Louis tried to control his voice as he said with pathetic dignity, "You might have spared the queen the knowledge of this frightful calamity."—Boston Globe.

Limitations of Money.
Money can't buy everything. There are no admission tickets to a sunset; you wouldn't trade the look in your boy's eyes when he greets you at night for a million dollars of anybody's money, and if you keep a well furnished mind you can go into it any time you like as you would into a child's playground and amuse yourself watching your thoughts play leapfrog with one another.—Success.

Too True! Too True!

The baby was being questioned playfully as to his senses.

"What are these for?" touching his eyes.

"To see with," he answered.

"And this?" touching his nose.

"To smell with."

"And your mouth?"

"Oh, to eat."

"What are your ears for?"

This was a puzzler, but after a moment he said with firm conviction, "To wash."—Delineator.

Pop's Answer.

Tommy—Pop, a man is a bachelor until he gets married, isn't he?

Tommy's Pop—Yes, my son.

Tommy—And what does he call himself afterward?

Tommy's Pop—'I'd hate to tell you, my son.—Philadelphia Record.

DELIGHTFUL NORTHERN TOUR

Personally conducted to Washington, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, four days in New York City, at very attractive rates, via SEABOARD AIR LINE.

Mr. C. H. Gattis, D. P. A., and Mr. Jas. Ker, Jr., C. P. A., SEABOARD AIR LINE, are arranging what will certainly be the most popular and delightful Tour of the season, especially this so as the party leave the Carolinas on September 1, 1909, the most delightful time in the whole year to go on your Summer trip, and they will visit all of the principal points of interest of the North: Washington, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, Saratoga, Ausable Chasm four days in New York City, and Philadelphia, and all the New York Theatres will be open for the fall. An attractive feature of this Tour will be the Historic Pointe-aux-Les, Passing the Grand Old Palatine of 'The Father of His Country.'

The tickets to be made at the lowest possible figure consistent with the first-class hotels and other things connected with the Tour, which will include railroad fare, pullman, hotel accommodations, meals, sight-seeing trips, transfers and in fact everything, with the exception of meals in New York, and a few other minor expenses, nearly all the sight-seeing trips are included. This last feature is a very good one as it will enable the party to spend their time seeing the sights without the bother of the details, which will be looked after by Mr. Gattis and Mr. Ker, both of whom have had wide experience in this branch of the passenger service. Time will be spent in Toronto during the Canadian Exposition and stops will be made at all points of sufficient length to enable the party to see all points of interest without hurrying. Mrs. Gattis and Mrs. Ker will chaperone the Tour, and ladies should not hesitate to go alone. The Tour will prove a most interesting one. A very attractive illustrated booklet containing detailed information can be had upon application by letter or in person to the undersigned, and those interested should write at once as the party will positively be limited, and those applying first will get the lower berths, so it will be to your advantage to book early. Every detail has been arranged with the view to making this a most delightful and comfortable tour for all.

ORCHID HUNTING.

The Terrors and the Dangers of a Tropical Forest.

It is not a pretty story, this narrative of a trip up the Orinoco, but you may understand orchid people better if you read it.

"It began unluckily," said he. "I took a partner because I'd learned that the dark places of earth are hard upon a man by himself. I met him at Port of Spain, and he was eager for the adventure because he had just absconded from a British mercantile house in Havana and the Orinoco sounded to him like a haven.

"We hired a few negroes. Our real guides we would pick up at Angostura. One day while waiting for the stores to be packed I took my partner out to show him what an orchid was.

"Near the Pitch lake I saw one in a tree and ordered one of the negro boys to climb up and get it. He would not. A deadly snake dwelt in that tree, he declared. He was afraid of snakes! Nice, efficient, helpful boy to take into tropical forests, wasn't he?"

"It was insubordination before the expedition had even started. So I cuffed him and handed him my hunting knife. 'Bring down that flower and also the snake's head,' I ordered, and, whining, trembling, he went up the trunk. He was detaching the orchid from where it clung when a thing like a spear, as black as his own skin, suddenly struck at the boy's wrist. He screamed with terror and, toppling down, writhed with pain. He died, and I felt a gloom settle on my spirits.

"Well, at Angostura we took rafts and six guides upstream. First one guide died of fever; then another was bitten by poisonous insects. One fell in with—or into—an alligator. We needed meat, and the skin was worth a good deal, so half in revenge, half in curiosity, we went out and plugged holes in the monster. When the guides cut it open they stooped and drew things out—the bones and the cotton clothes of the guide this cannibal reptile had swallowed. The very knot was still in his sarong. Oh, don't squirm! This is orchid hunting.

"We had three guides left at the end of the second month, when, paddling along one day where the vines overreached and let snaky tendrils draggle down, we came to a fifty yard clearing. We saw there the sides of three canoes, half smothered with rapid growing vegetation, and 1,500 alligator skins well salted, but decaying. Hanging to the roof of what had been a kind of lean-to were 100 orchid plants—withered and dead. On the floor lay two rusty rifles and two skeletons. Out by the ashy place where the fire had been was a third skeleton. Up between the ribs were cheerfully growing some gay weeds."—Everybody's Magazine.
