STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina

The two-year-old child, son of Jener Barnes, a colored resident of Belltown, met a strange and unusual death yesterday. The father is a fisherman, and carried home among his catch, a small fish or minnow and gave it to the little fellow to play with. Childlike he at once put it in his mouth and tried to swallow it, but the fish caught in his throat and made a lodgement. The child in great agony, was taken to Dr. Syron, who removed the fish as tenderly as possible but the little sufferer's last breath went with it.—New Bern Journal.

While the northeast storm was in its fury Friday afternoon, Mr. John V. Sherard, of Stony Creek township, while returning home with a load of hay, was literally lifted from the top by the heavy wind and thrown from the wagon, sustaining painful injuries. The hay was scattered in every direction, and when neighbors brought the team home not a handful of hay could be found on the wagon.—Goldsboro Headlight.

As the mourning friends were following the remains of Mrs. Wade Smith to the grave in Conover Monday, the horses to the leading carriage suddenly stopped. This stop caused a backing of all the horses in the long procession, and the horse to the buggy in which Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Hoke were riding took fright. He darted suddenly out of line and turned the buggy over. Mrs. Hoke's arm was broken and Mr. Hoke's hip joint was sprained.—Newton Enterprise.

Improved Machinery Pays.

When you see a man begin to invest something for improved implements, instead of lending his money at 10 per cent as many do, and tell you that they are not able to pay for them, you are going to see something doing "down South in Dixie." We are on the line of improvement now. Thirty years ago we split rails and built fences; now we use wire, both barbed and netting. When I first thought of building such a fence I thought it would bankrupt me. I counted up the miles of fence at so much a rod and backed down right now, seeing I could not do it. But after awhile I bought forty rods of wire netting; and I liked that so well, and it did not break me, I tried eighty rods. That came out all right, and the next year I bought 340 rods, and this year 300 rods. Now I feel like my fencing days are over. It is the same way about buying improved implements. Don't try to get it all at once, but buy a tool at a time, and soon you will have what you need and won't know how you got them.—R. P. Wright, in Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer.

GAMES CHILDREN SHOULD PLAY.

Activities that Improve the Blood Circulation Insure Increase of Strength.

The first thing we should desire for our children is good health. Every boy and girl should participate in those plays and games which are based upon the activities that give poise of body, depth of chest, strength of heart, active blood circulation and good digestion. Every child, before and after what may be called the age of games is reached, should play at walking in difficult places, at climbing and hanging by the arms, at swinging, at digging and lifting and hauling, at running and dodging and chasing, at swimming, at jumping, at throwing and striking, at wrestling and fighting.

The next thing to a sound body that we should desire for our children is a sound mind to control it. Beginning with the lower qualities, perception, acuteness of hearing, clearing of hearing, clearness of vision, keenness of touch and the rest, and continuing through accuracy of judgment, of impressions, memory, imagination, discrimination, the plays and games of children furnish the best if not the only practicable means whereby boys and girls may, up to a certain point, take full possession of their mental inheritance. Therefore every boy and girl should play those games that tend to make the mind the perfect master of the body. These include, first of all, innumerable games of skill, beginning perhaps with the simple games of ball, tip cat, ring-toss, bean-bag board, jack stones, marbles, hop-scotch, hoop rolling, top-spinning, and concluding with the most complicated games of ball.

But there is a further need of boys and girls beyond health of body and mental control: namely the need of certain moral and social qualities, the foundation of which has been laid in generations past. Every boy and girl should know those games that develop courage, self-respect, admiration of skill, desire for efficiency, sense of justice, the love of fair play, sympathy and sociability.—The Designer for August.

The Value of Prohibition.

Oh, no, prohibition doesn't prohibit! Let the man who is fooling himself (for he fools no one else) that way, ask Detective R. H. Moore. Mr. Moore is now working for the Seaboard. He was chief of police of Hamlet when liquor was making that town a "hell on wheels." He knows Wilmington. This morning he returned from down the road where he had been officer on a negro excursion from Hamlet to Wilmington. He was surprised and elated. There were 1,200 negroes on the excursion and Mr. Moore did not see one who showed signs of having a drink or one who was mad. Last year he handled the same excursion and arrested and left at Wilmington 18 negroes and arrested 12 more before reaching Hamlet. "Don't you know" said Mr. Moore, "If liquor could have been had I would have had to fight those negroes all the way home?" Of course he would.—Monroe Journal.

Prof. C. W. Wilson, burser of the training school, has brought his furniture in and is preparing for housekeeping in the Parker house, in South Greenville. His family will come in a short while.

Forest Area of the South.

The South, with twenty-seven per cent of the total area of the United States, contains about forty-two, per cent of the total forest area of the country. The forest area by states is as follows: Alabama, 20,000,000; Arkansas, 24,200,000; Florida, 20,000,000; Georgia, 22,300,000; Kentucky, 10,000,000; Louisiana, 16,500,000; Maryland, 2,200,000; Mississippi, 17,500,000; North Carolina, 19,600,000; South Carolina, 12,000,000; Tennessee, 15,000,000; Texas, 30,000,000; Virginia, 14,000,000, and West Virginia, 9,100,000.

The South, it will be seen, has still much of the virgin forest of the country. This forest must be used of course, in order to meet the steadily expanding wants of this section. It must be used in such a manner, however, that the very most may be made from its annual cut, while at the same time this cut is being replaced by new growth. In this way its timber will remain a source of perpetual wealth.

The importance of forest conservation to southern interest is clearly understood by the people of the south. The future of the south is more nearly bound up in the plan of forest preservation, with its accompanying protection to water sheds, power-streams, and wood-working industries, than is anything now before the people of that part of the country. Not only is the protection of the watersheds, which will some day furnish the power to run all manufacturing establishments in the entire south, an important matter to the south, but the industries depending upon the forest products will also be benefited by the protection thrown about the remaining timbered area.

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1909

Near beer ought to be ruled out of a prohibition State.

The fellow who is not called on to pay bills now has something to be thankful for.

The president gave the tariff conferees a White House dinner and reached their hearts through their stomachs.

The fellow who predicted that the comet was going to cause a frost in July must be happy, as he struck it right. A telegram from Boone, this State, to the Charlotte Observer, says there was plenty of frost in Watauga county Thursday morning.

The man Dannenburg, who is making a fight in Greensboro and Charlotte against the near-beer license tax imposed by those cities, is not having altogether as easy sailing as he looked for. He was arrested and in Charlotte appeared before Judge Webb for a writ of habeas corpus which was denied, and in the city court of Greensboro he was fined $25. In both instances appeal was taken to Supreme court and that tribunal will decide whether the cities have a right to levy a high license tax.

The Harpoon "a magazine that hurts," is the name of a publication that comes from Denver, Col., and it bids fair to reach rapid prominence throughout the country. The motto of this magazine is "For a return to law in the civil service," and it goes for the abuses of this law with gloves off. The Harpoon specially champions the cause of the railway mail clerks of the country and is doing a good work in calling attention to hardships surrounding the labor of this army of government employes and the little provision made for their comfort and health in mail cars. There is a good field before The Harpoon, and it bids fair to stick deep enough to fill it. U. A. Walter is editor and proprietor.

Much anxiety was felt over the country the last few days over the report that a severe gulf storm had swept down upon Galveston, Texas. The mind run back to the destruction of that city by a similar storm nine years ago and a repetition of that disaster was feared. While the storm itself was almost as severe this time as before, the damage was small, the dispatches bringing the gratifying information that the city was protected by its 17-foot seawall and escaped disaster. A part of the island was submerged to a depth of seven feet or more, but the people in the flooded section had ample warning and escaped to places of safety so that there was no loss of life. Some other portions of Texas along the coast suffered considerable damage

Fix it by Statute

Many of the newspapers are protesting against the unjust expense incurred in settling receiverships and other matters of a similar nature. The way to correct the evil is to fix the percent receivers should get, by the legislature. Take away some of the power of the superior court judge, who by the way is the most powerful official in the state if he wants to be. Don't leave these things with the lawyers and judges. They are all square, more or less, but an amount that seems small to them looks large to the average North Carolina citizen.—High Point Enterprise.

Finally, brethren, when the trough gets to overflowing with protection swill we want to see the South's nose in it along with New England. We don't want the South content to sit on its haunches and look gaunt while New England's paunch fairly drags the ground after deliriously gorging herself by herself for herself.—Wilmington Star.

Passing by the coarseness of the figure of speech employed by the Star (for which we ask pardon of our readers) we desire simply to illustrate a sentiment that is taking deep root in certain sections of our beloved Southland, namely that because New England has grown rich robbing the people we shall go to robbing too, and thus grow rich ourselves. Such a sentiment, in a reputable newspaper, is as surprising as it is unworthy.—Charity and Children.

We do not believe the people of the United States approve any such robbery as the Aldrich tariff bill will be; but the people are amazingly patient and forbearing. It is surprising how much oppression they will stand.—Charity and Children.

A New Back for an Old One. How it can be Done in Greenville.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the pains are so lame to stop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You can not reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Greenville residents would do well to profit by the following example:
"Thomas Moser, 109 East St., Kinston N. C. says: 'Several months ago I had a severe attack of kidney trouble, at which time Doan's Kidney Pills proved their merit. My back ached severely, I had pains through my hip and felt generally miserable. I heard so much in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box and used them according to directions. They soon dispelled the aches and pains and improved my health in every way. I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills.'

Singer Talks

Singer First Cost is the Whole Cost

Of course you can buy a sewing machine for less money than you would pay for a Singer—all the world knows that. But consider this: When a Singer is bought and paid for, it is paid for—it lasts a lifetime. A cheap machine is never paid for. Every cent expended for repairs must be added to the original cost—it's an endless system of instalments. These instalments, added to the first cost of the machine, soon exceed the cost of a Singer, and after each successive repair (if you can get another part) the cheap machine grows more and more second-hand—one step nearer the junk heap. The time lost, the trouble and the worry outweigh many times over the difference in the cost between the "cheap" machine and the Singer. There are two kinds of machines—good and bad—and the good kind is the Singer.

TROPICAL INSECTS.

The Tarantula is the One Most to Be Dreaded.

Excepting only the tarantula, the crawling insects of the tropics are not really dangerous, though they are more than unpleasant, sufficiently so to make every one wary, and an instinctive watchfulness becomes after a time habitual. It is only a matter of being careful and dangerous stings can be avoided. The sting of a scorpion is sharp and painful. Rapid swelling follows till a great lump is formed at and about the wound, the glands often become swollen and painful, and the tongue swells so that speech may become difficult. The pain lasts from two to twenty-four hours, usually about a day, and it is exceptional if any serious effects follow.

The centiped attacks by burying its sharp feet in the flesh and then biting with its jaws, inflicting deep wounds. Often it goes on crawling rapidly over the flesh, puncturing it with burning, needlelike feet, biting continually, its jaws buried deep in the flesh with vigorous rapidity. This is a serious affliction. The sores, like burning blisters, are open for days, and where a centiped has walked and bitten the flesh a livid sore develops, leaving a deep scar witness to the pain inflicted. Sometimes even gangrene may set in, and then death is apt to follow in a few days. Thus a wound from a centiped unattended easily becomes serious. The centiped's back is so smooth and its muscles so supple that to check it under one's clothing requires fortitude which could press a red-hot iron against the naked flesh. Relax the hand for an instant and the centiped slips away to continue its course over the body. The result is not easily described. The screams of a person so attacked attest the pain, and we dread the centipeds. I have seen them in the jungles over a foot long and about three inches broad. Usually they are less than half this size, and fortunately their attacks are rare. There are smaller centipeds, and bad enough it is to be bitten by them, but it is the big fellows in the woods which we dread.

Of all the insects which crawl about in the tropics the tarantula is most to be dreaded. It sinks its fanglike jaws deep in the flesh, and a poison which oozes out around them is carried into the wound. The soft body of the spider permits it to be easily killed, and if there is a way open for escape the tarantula will take it, perhaps not biting at all. One bite it gives, seldom more, and this is sufficient. Days of suffering must be endured, and death may occur. Violent swelling follows the bite of a tarantula and afflicts all that part of the body which has been bitten. At times the flesh becomes discolored, and with the intense pain a form of paralysis develops which may result in death. If, however, the person bitten is enjoying fair health no evil effects result, but where the blood is in poor condition, the heart weak or other organic troubles are present then stings or bites from creeping insects, not only tarantulas, but all of them, are apt to be fatal.

Naturally one crawls out from under the toils with feelings of trepidation and usually finds that some creeping thing has made the outer folds of the toils a resting place for the night. Forest and Stream.
