NUMBER 5587

THE RED FLAG OF ANARCHY.

Raised by the News and Observer—
Mr. E. B. Ficklen Speaks Wisely.
Editor Reflector:

From the News and Observer of August 4th, editorily, I see that paper makes the following statement concerning your report of the opening of the Greenville tobacco market:

"The Greenville Reflector says the tobacco market started off at prices ruling from 4 to 12½ cents. It would be interesting if it would print how many pounds brought 12½ cents, and how many less than five cents. At Winston-Salem the number of pounds bringing the high price was very small and most of the new tobacco went for a song. The trust will take the crop for nothing unless a fire is built under it."

I beg to call the attention of that paper which prides itself upon being called the "Old Reliable," to the great wrong it is doing our State and the good citizenship of North Carolina in the last sentence referred to, "The trust will take the crop for nothing unless a fire is built under it." This sentence should have a double meaning, and I would like to know if the "Old Reliable" is advocating a fire under the tobacco held by the farmers and owned by them, (in that event I will concede that the farmer would be as well off, if he had only one half the quantity of the stuff the market is showing at this date,) or if the "Old Reliable" is advocating a fire under the trust. If this is what is meant, I call upon you, one who should give good advice to the people, and caution them to obey the laws of the land, therefore, burn the red flag of anarchy, and teach them instead that prices on all commodities of the world are governed by the law of supply and demand.

Suppose some one having a sorry crop of tobacco should take the advice of the News and Observer. What would be the result to that poor farmer living in a civilized land, with the strong arm of the law thrown about each individual's and corporation's property? He would find his home for years to come enclosed by high walls on the outskirts of the city of Raleigh with the tramp of the sentinel marching to and fro day and night, ready to shoot him down, (in which he would be obeying the law) if he attempted to escape, will the author of the lines quoted then volunteer to take his place in the penitentiary, or will he furnish to his starving wife and little ones bread and clothes during his absence?

Mr. Editor, I have called your attention to the fact that the supply and demand is the factor in setting the price of commodities, wheat, corn, cotton and tobacco or anything that is used by mankind. A short crop of wheat will bring the farmer as much or more money as a crop that is called a bumper crop, likewise tobacco.

Having been in the business for 20 years, a few years before the formation of the trust, I have seen tobacco lower before the trusts were formed than I have since.

Taking the tobacco in Eastern North Carolina, in which section I have made my home and cast my lot, I realize that thin primings of this section is the most undesirable raised in the United States.

I have ever advocated through your paper the importance of less acreage and better production, and the most essential of all, priming off the lower leaves and topping to a uniform height, thereby securing body and ripeness. When the thin primings of Eastern North Carolina is eliminated, as it can be if these instructions are carried out, you will see tobacco with body that will sell at satisfactory prices, and there will be no need for fires to be built except in the homes of the honest toiler, where they can gather their loved ones about them and smoke the pipe of peace, instead of hearing the sentinels march outside his prison cell, with the memory of loved ones held from the strong arm of the law.

The 1908 crop of bright tobacco taken from statistics furnished by the president of the Independent Tobacco Association of the United States amounts to 213,000,000 lbs. dark tobacco 248,000,000, Burley tobacco 310,000,000 lbs. making a total of 771,000,000. This does not include the cigar tobacco, which is made in the north and north western States.

Of the above about 331 million pounds was shipped to foreign countries, leaving 440 million pounds to be manufactured in the United States.

According to the government report just out, the acreage for the United States for 1908 was 93 per cent. as compared with 1907; acreage for 1909 is 126 and 6-10 per cent. as compared with the crop of 1908 showing an increase of 33 and 3-10 per cent. in acreage for 1909. These are facts and I have been told that facts are stubborn things.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am no defender of the trusts, if they are guilty of wrong doings, but a firm believer in fair play and conservatism, which is never recognized by one of our State papers. Being an independent tobacco buyer I have found the trust to be a fair competitor, liberal buyers if they have offered them such class tobacco as the consuming public demands. I have seen tobacco raised in Eastern North Carolina that was almost a gold brick in the hands of the trust, or independent, and the farmer should leave it in the fields to enrich their land.

If they bring it to market they have no just cause of complaint, if it is sold at what they call starvation prices, for if this tobacco was manufactured by anyone, independent or trust, and put up in pretty packages, I guarantee the author of the article referred to would never buy but one package, and would probably take but one smoke from that. Now, is it reasonable to suppose that tobacco would be manufactured, paying 8cts. tax with all other necessary cost, unless there was some demand for same?

Mr. Editor, I have said more than I intended, but if the author of this article herein referred to should desire to carry the controversy further, I can give him facts and figures for the past 20 years in proof of statements contained herein.

Your very truly,
E. B. Ficklen.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Salisbury has developed a young chicken thief who applied new and original ideas to the business. His thieving was all done in daylight and with the aid of a bulldog who would nab the unsuspecting fowl and make for his master, who would be in hiding nearby.

Mr. William Helms died of pellagra at his home north of Monroe Saturday. He has been sick several weeks and having been told that he was "conjured," sent for a man named Thompson, who claimed to be able to take off the "spell," but who did him no good. When a local physician was summoned, the disease had advanced so far that his efforts to save the man were fruitless. Thompson has been arrested on the charge of mal-practice and will have to tell the court something about it. There have been reported several cases of the new disease, "pellagra," in this county.—Monroe Journal.

A Cinch for Blind-Tiger Agents.

Is a man who is entrusted with money by another person for the purpose of procuring whiskey, guilty of embezzlement? This was the question Judge Coker was called upon to decide this morning in police court. George Hopewell, of color, who had been working out on the Cowee tunnel, blew into the city last night, and being seized of thirst, proceeded to hunt around for something with which to quench it. He found Frank Matthews, also of color, a one legged man. The two met near the passenger depot and Frank entered into an agreement with George to procure for him some whiskey.

Having nothing smaller than a $5 bill, George gave it to Frank to secure for him whiskey. Frank became sleepy after walking a short way, and took himself to his house and got into bed. Hopewell's patience finally became exhausted, and seeking out an officer, they aroused Frank from his slumbers and procured from him the $5. He was indicted for embezzlement, and at the hearing this morning, Judge Coker, following a ruling of Judge Ward in the Dave Slagle case, tried here recently, ruled that giving money to another to procure whiskey was an illegal trust, and discharged the defendant.—Asheville Gazette-News.

Important Meeting.

There will be a very important meeting of all the ladies of the Baptist church on Friday afternoon at five o'clock at the home of Miss Hennie Ragsdale. Plans for the improvement of the inside of church will be decided upon at this meeting, also the carpet. Every lady of the church is earnestly requested to be present at this most important meeting on Friday afternoon at five o'clock.

Distinguished Citizen Dies Suddenly.

A message from Washington today states that Mr. James L. Fowle, a prominent business man of that town and president of the First National Bank, died suddenly Wednesday night. Mr. Fowle had been out to attend church, remained up some time after returning home, then told his son good night and started up stairs to retire. He died before reaching his room.

CAROLINA CLUB OFFICERS.

An Institution the Town Should Be Proud Of.

At the annual meeting of Carolina Club, held Wednesday night in the club rooms, the following officers were elected, Dr. D. L. James, president, W. L. Hall, vice president, W. S. Atkins, secretary, A. J. Moore, treasurer, Dr. E. A. Moye, R. Williams, D. M. Clark, O. C. Gregory, E. S. Gates and Jesse Speight, board of governors.

The foregoing shows how well the club is officered, and these gentlemen will look well after the interests of the organization and of the community. While Carolina Club is a social organization, it is one in which Greenville should feel much pride and encourage in every way possible. It serves not only the pleasure and moral uplift of its members, thereby having a good effect on the community, but also generously aids in the matter of entertaining visitors, always tendering its rooms for public receptions and banquets. In this way it helps the town far more than people are ordinarily aware of. Strangers coming here who are invited by some member to visit the club rooms, are impressed with the elegance and convenience of the quarters, and thus the reputation of the town is advanced. So looked at from any standpoint, the club should have your encouragement.

World's Largest Pipe Organ Sold.

The largest pipe organ in the world, erected in Festival Hall, on Art hill, at the Louisiana Purchase exposition, in 1904, by a Los Angeles (Cal.) firm at a cost of $110,000, and which has been in storage here since the close of the world's fair in the warehouse of the Handlan Warehouse Company at Eleventh and Gratiot streets, was sold recently by Eugene W. Handlan to John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who will have it erected in his big department store in that city, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Some idea may be gotten of its immense size when it is realized that a pony may be driven through its largest pipes and that it will require 10 large freight cars to remove it to Philadelphia.

Notwithstanding its gigantic size, it was pronounced by thousands of musical critics who listened to its tones a most perfect instrument. Many of the celebrated organists of this country and of Europe played upon it, including Alexander Guilman of Paris.

Does it Pay?

If you don't just like everything you see in your paper, go around the streets and howl. The editor is never supposed to make a mistake and of course could not do so. Other people can but not the editor. If you can't see a good point, do not fail to see a bad one. If a thousand pleasant things are said of people hunt for something unpleasant. If you don't find it, howl some more; if you do, howl anyway. Never mind your own business; watch for something to find fault with in some other man's business; this will make you great.—Ex.

Candy as Food.

An article quoted in the Literary Digest says that candy may be advocated as an article of food, as it is not a mere indulgence, for sugar in proper proportion to the amount of other food is a normal supply for hunger. It is stated that at the present retail price of about 5.5 cents a pound the average consumption of sugar represents about one and one fourth cents a day. If other food were equally cheap, the total daily cost of raw food material would be 6.2 8 5 cents per capita. In general, sugar is less expensive to prepare for eating than most other foodstuffs.

Even the higher grades of candy could be prepared with no greater trouble than many other recognized desserts, if cooks took the trouble to learn this branch of their art. The point has recently been impressed on us by inspecting the extremely simple equipment of a candy kitchen, whose output is retailed at 80 cents a pound, including considerable paper.

Looking to Drainage.

Engineer D. M. Clark has prepared a drainage map of the town, showing the present and needed lines of sewers, for submission to the Board of Aldermen with suggestions as to the proper drainage of the town. There is no question before the aldermen of greater importance than this, and it is a matter that should be considered well. The surface drainage up to now has been improperly constructed and has many defects which should be corrected, and future work in this direction should be done with some system and a view to permanency.

The Board of Aldermen meet tonight and will likely have a busy session, as taxes are to be levied and other important matters looked after.

There is much that the town needs. At the same time the aldermen should be careful in the matter of levying taxes. It is hard times and the people already feel much burdened.

The editorial comment of the Raleigh News and Observer on our report of the opening of the tobaccos market here, is unworthy the editor of a great State daily. Such language can have but one result, and no one better knows this than the distinguished editor of the News and Observer. When the editorial columns of a paper are constantly filled with inflammatory utterances, the average reader of average intelligence will soon come to the conclusion that there is some other motive besides public duty that puts them there, and then the purpose of such a paper as the News and Observer ought to be is defeated.

In a communication elsewhere in this paper Mr. E. B. Ficklen so completely answers an editorial expression of the Raleigh News and Observer as to make it unnecessary for more to be said about it. The Reflector was indeed surprised to see such an utterance in a paper of the standing and influence of the News and Observer. It brings a shudder to think what would be the consequences if the advice of that paper should be taken literally. It is not a time to engender passion and it pains us to see anything in print having that tendency. The Reflector thinks the farmers make a mistake in saving their common tobacco primings and putting them on the market, thereby depreciating the value of their whole crop, and the advice Mr. Ficklen gives along that line is timely.

The Progress of Invention.

The first decade of the twentieth century has not been rounded out, yet inventive genius has perfected the submarine boat, which can travel under water like a fish; discovered wireless telegraphy, by which messages may be sent to vessels in mid-ocean; and now the dream of the centuries, to be able to fly like a bird, has come to pass. The achievement of the Frenchman who flew from France to England, across 23 miles of water, almost makes one's hair stand up. People have become so accustomed to wonderful things that they are scarcely surprised at anything, but this achievement marks the beginning of a new era. It is said that the machine can be made for $2,000, which is less than a great many pay for automobiles. —Webster's Weekly.

It is not the purpose of an education to enable one to be a money-maker? Not primarily. For example: It is said that a certain editor started twenty years ago with fifteen cents and is now worth $100,000, his accumulation of wealth being due to his frugality, strict attention to business and the fact that an uncle died and left him $99,998! And yet the money value of an education is not to be overlooked. It has been shown that the average earning of the uneducated man is $450 a year while that of the educated man is $1,000. That is, allowing forty years of active life, the value of a life of uneducated labor is $18,000, while that of educated labor is $40,000, thus leaving a difference of $22,000 as the value of an education. This is a low view of education, but it nevertheless stands the test. —Biblical Recorder.

Under prohibition laws which prohibit intoxicants, if it is right to license near-beer saloons, why is it not right to license near-whiskey, and near-wine saloons? If near-beer produces drunks, we do not see why it should be sold under a license, and other intoxicants prohibited. Have the authorities any right to license it under the prohibition law? —Durham Sun.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.
 Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.
 When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.
 Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.
 Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.
 Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

NORFOLK FIRST COAL PORT NOW IN THE WORLD

Norfolk is beginning to take rank as the world's foremost coal port. Captain B. Bune, master of the German steamer Adelheid, who came to the Customs House to clear his ship, said that he arrived off the Virginia Railway coal piers here at six o'clock this morning, put the Adelheid under the chutes there at seven o'clock, took 286 tons of coal into his bunkers, finished at eight o'clock and was ready to sail. If there is any other place in the world where coal can be put aboard ship so fast as it now may be at this port, men in the trade do not know of it.

At the general offices of the Virginian Railway today a letter from the Secretary of the Eastern Coal Company, of Providence, Rhode Island, James A. George, was shown. In this letter which related to the loading of cargo, not bunker coal, the writer said that he wished to congratulate the railway company upon their recent performance in loading the company's steamer Ravenscroft, which was, he said, "a record breaker," adding that the Virginian dumped into the Ravenscroft 3,447 tons of coal in four hours.

The Adelheid is from New Orleans and Pensacola and proceeded for West Hartlepool and Horsens. Her master cabled his owners from here reporting the wonderfully quick dispatch he got. The steamer came to C. J. McRae for coal.

Glenwood Park is the nearest high class resident property to the terminals of the great Virginian Railway, and the approved location for homes of its best paid employes.

The Above Clipping appeared in the Ledger-Dispatch of last Saturday and refers to the largest and longest coal pier in the world, being that of the great Virginian Railway at Sewall's Point built at a cost of $2,000,000.

The plans of the Virginian Railway show that 3 more piers costing $2,000,000 each are to be built at Sewall's Point for the handling of coal, also 3 large merchandise piers and 2 large lumber piers are to be built on their terminals, thereby preparing for what will soon be the greatest industrial section in the South.

Many hundreds of high class and well paid employes at these terminals must have homes near to their work, and to meet this requirement

The Genesis of the Cravat.

Cravats date from the incursion of the Croats into French territory during the Thirty Years' war. The French termed these invaders "Cravates," and a freak of fashion made their somewhat clumsy neckgear popular about 1636. The fancy must have spread very rapidly, for we find lace cravats with broad ends hanging in front replacing the wide collars of the cavaliers during the earlier stages of the civil war in England. Charles II. made white cravats a part of the uniform of his life and dragoon guards. The palmy period of the cravat was early in the eighteenth century, when these articles were made of the very finest lace and were so expensive that even the richest of fashionable young men could not afford to have more than two of them in their wardrobes.—London Standard.

Sausage.

Sausage has even from very early times been a popular table delicacy. Aristophanes was familiar with it, and in Roman days the sausages of Lucania were in high esteem. They were made from pork and the nuts of the stone pine, flavored with bay leaves and other things more familiar. Bologna was celebrated for its sausages long before the German sausage had even thought of invading the rest of the world, and until quite lately it was commonly called in England a "polony."

Explaining It.

We were moving a 4,000 pound safe from one office to another, says a writer in the Saturday Evening Post. George, the negro janitor, with a 4 by 4 pine stick was pinching the safe along. The boss man said, "George, why don't you pick that safe up and carry it instead of monkeying with that scantling?"

George replied: "Boss, I hain't feelin' very pickish dis mawnin', suh. I's feelin' a leetle duplicate."
