NUMBER 5592

WITH MISS MARY LEE SMITH.

Entertains in Honor of Her Guests, Misses Willis and Hackney.

Reported for Reflector:

Miss Mary Lee Smith entertained at progressive silent dancing party Monday night from 9 to 1:30 at the home of her parents on Evans street in honor of her guests, Miss Lila May Willis, of New Bern and Miss Bessie Hackney, of Wilson.

The guests were received at the front door by Miss Mary Lee Smith and Bascom Wilson. Miss Lila May Willis and Willie Wilson ushered them to the punch bowl, which was beautifully decorated with bunches of grapes, Miss Susie Warren and Thomas Durprez presided over the bowl.

The guests were then handed cards and pencils by Miss Bessie Hackney and Burney Warren and in a few minutes every one was occupied making dates for the silent dance. The numbers for the dances ran from one to twelve and after every third dance there was an extra. The first extra, the guests gathered in the reception hall and in the midst of music and songs by the "Carolina Quartette" the folding doors were thrown open and Mr. Mrs. E. L. Daughtride were seen approaching with blanks of paper. These blanks were handed around to the crowd and every boy was told to write a proposal, consisting of no more than ten words, to his partner, which she was to answer. The stags were to write proposals to any of the young ladies. In this contest there were two prizes, one for the best proposal and one for the best answer. Willie Patrick was awarded the booby, a beautiful ivory pacfy. His proposal was: "Love me and the world is yours, yours to come and yours to be." The answer to Mr. Patrick's proposal won the other prize. It was: "Keep the world, but let me be free." This Miss Susie Warren's answer and she was presented a beautiful hand painted deck of gilt edge cards; which she let Misses Willis and Hackney cut for. Miss Willis cutting the higher was presented the prize by Mr. Daughtride in his usual eloquent manner.

The gong was sounded and the silent dances were resumed. After the sixth dance there was a second extra. In this extra the guests were ushered by Miss Vernessa Smith and Tom Hooker in the spacious illuminated dining hall, which was decorated in potted plants, American beauties and carnations. Dugh's cream, moulded in the shape of American beauties, and cakes with icing were served to the crowd by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Forbes.

After the delightful refreshments were partaken of, the gong was sounded and every one knew that the silent dances were to be resumed. During the dances, some were strolling and some were barn dancing and some were coupled off in the dark corners of the large green lawn.

The dances went on till the 9th, when there was a 3rd extra. In this extra the guests were invited in the library, where there was a large table filled with unknown drugs. Cards and pencils were passed around by Miss Hackney and William Smith. These cards numbered from 1 to 25. Miss Hackney and Mr. Smith passed the bottles without the stoppers around and everyone was allowed to smell of the unknown liquids and he was to write on this card to the co-

President Wooten read a letter from Capt. Earl R. Brown, of the U. S. Evans, was appointed to ascertain the facts and prepare a statement giving the information desired.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 11, 1909.

Our good friend of the New Bern Journal has an idea that this scribe is sixty years old. Oh, come off! You ought to know Osler's chloroform limit gets nowhere near that figure!

A Washington dispatch says that Speaker Cannon is thinking of not being a candidate for congress again. It is almost too good to be true.

You may call it road fever, or what not, but The Reflector wants to see every man in Pitt county so filled with the sentiment for good roads that he will not rest until every section of the county has them.

A good question to ask is, where were the business men of the town while the Chamber of Commerce was meeting Tuesday night? Can their absence be construed to mean that they take no interest in what is going on?

It is perhaps best not to be too severe in criticism of the Black Mountain officer who shot two men in a hotel there, from the effect of which one died. The two men were making a "rough house" of their room, disregarding the comfort of other guests and showing no respect for the presence of ladies. This they had no right to do even if they were paying their way in the hotel. True the officer might have been too hasty with his gun, but he was sent for in the dead hours of night to stop an outbreak of rowdyism.

The Reflector is glad to see that the Chamber of Commerce of Greenville is taking on life once more and again taking action in matters pertaining to the welfare of the town. For several months past no meetings have been held, and while the meeting Tuesday night had a small attendance, it will be seen from the report in our news columns that matters of much importance to the community were considered. The co-operation of every business man in the town should be enlisted in this organization, and if this was given Greenville would be seen going forward much faster.

Farm Values and Good Roads.

It is said that in Jackson county, Alabama, the price of farm lands has risen from six to fifteen dollars an acre and in Bradley county, Tennessee, it has doubled since the building of good roads in those localities. Men seeking farms prefer those that are located on good roads and will pay higher prices for them. With the progress that is being made in the establishment of good roads and in the knowledge of their advantage to the owners of farms the time will soon come when it will be difficult to find purchasers, at any decent price for farms which are not so located. Intensive farming, the greatest yield possible per acre, is the order of the Kidney Troubles Attack Greenville Men and Women, Old and Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old. Come quickly with little warning. Children suffer in their early years—Can't control the kidney secretions. Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.

Women worry, can't do daily work. Men have lame and aching backs. The cure for man, woman or child. Is to cure the cause—the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys—

Cure all forms of kidney suffering. Greenville testimony proves it.

Miss Susan Kai-sul, 53 N. Fifth St., Greenville, N. C., says: "I derived great benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills and take pleasure in recommending them. For some time I suffered from dull, nagging backaches and had distressing pains through my loins. My kidneys were very weak and the frequent passages of the secretions caused me great annoyance. My back pained me severely and when first arising in the morning I was so lame and sore that I could scarcely get around. I at length procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Wooten's drug store and through their use I was entirely relieved of these troubles. The fact that my kidneys have given me no trouble since leads me to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills most highly."

day with intelligent farmers, and it is spreading so rapidly that in the near future the man who does not follow this plan will be left so far behind that he will not be considered in the class of producers. Hand in hand with these new farming methods go easy access to markets and cheaper transportation of farm products to centres of trade. These can be secured by those farms only which have access to good roads. Great highways between widely separated sections of the country over which there can be easy and rapid travel is a condition greatly to be desired, but such roads will not add nearly so much to any section of the country through which they pass as will a number of well-made roads leading from the centres of trade into the surrounding farming territory. The latter are the roads which will build up the towns and add to the prosperity of the rural districts.—Charlotte Observer.

HE MADE HIS KICK.

The Man Who Had Long Ago Bought an Eight Day Clock.

"You don't remember, I reckon," said the sour faced man, putting his arms on the showcase, "that I bought a clock of you twenty-five years ago?"

"I certainly do not," answered the elderly jeweler, "but I'll take your word for it if you say you did."

"Well, I did. It was twenty-five years ago last Monday."

"Remember what you paid for it?"

"Yes. I paid you $10."

"Ever had to get it repaired?"

"No."

"It's a pretty good clock, then, isn't it?"

"Oh, yes. The clock's all right, but I've found out something about it that you didn't tell me."

"So?"

"Yes. When I bought it I asked you how often I'd have to wind it. You said once a week."

"Well?"

"Well, I've just found out that it'll go eight days without winding."

"Certainly! Most clocks are eight day clocks. That's to allow for your forgetting to wind it sometimes."

"I never forgot to wind it, sir. Regularly every Monday morning for twenty-five years I've wound that clock. That makes fifty-two times a year. If I had known it would go eight days I would have wound it on the eighth day, and I would have had to wind it only forty-six times a year. It takes me about two minutes to wind it up. I've wasted twelve minutes every year on the thing. See! In twenty-five years I've put in 300 minutes, or five hours, the half of a man's working day, standing on a chair and winding up that blamed old clock when it didn't need winding!"

"Well," said the stupefied jeweler, "what do you want to do about it?"

"Nothing, sir. I only wanted you to know it, that's all. When you sell an eight day clock to a man you ought to tell him it's an eight day clock. Good day, sir!"

Straightening himself up and pulling his hat brim down in front, he turned on his heel and stalked out of the store with the air of a man with a grouch who had freed his mind.—Chicago Tribune.

How to Learn.

"The best way to study nature is to go right up to it."

"I suppose so."

"Oh, I know it. I was once disposed to doubt the industry of the ant, of which so much is said."

"And you learned better?"

"I did. I had a controversy with a naturalist over the question, and I thought I had him beaten until he gave me a demonstration."

"Took you out and showed you the ants at work, did he?"

"Well, not exactly that, but he took me along on one of his scientific expeditions and then maliciously pitched my tent over an ant hill. By the time I discovered what was happening the conviction was forced upon me that ants are really and truly industrious. They are small, but they made me move, and some of them went right along with us to the next camping place."

—New York Times.

Insects Have Thousands of Eyes

The eyes of insects present several peculiarities. Often in the same individual we shall find two sets of eyes, the simple and the compound, these latter having a large number of minute hexagonal facets, each of which is in reality a cornea, and the marvel is that every single facet belongs to a distinct eye, with pupil, iris, lens, all complete. The number of these corneas varies very considerably. While the ant possesses fifty only, the ordinary housefly has 4,000, butterflies have no fewer than 17,000, and some beetles rejoice in as many as 25,000.—London Chronicle.

Biblical.

An Alabama man tells of an old darky in Birmingham who became possessed of a seedy and forlorn looking dog, to which he promptly assigned the name Moreover.

"Jefferson," the aged negro was asked, "how did you hit upon such a name as Moreover for the dog?"

"I gits it outen de Bible," said the darky.

"The Bible?"

"Sure, sah. Doan' yo' member where it says, 'When Lazarus lay at de rich man's gate Moreover, de dog, come an' lick his sores?'"

—Harper's Weekly.

A SALE OF ANTIQUES.

The Trick a Shrewd Dealer Played on an Astute Banker.

A story told in the "Memories of an Old Collector" makes clear the tricks in trade to which an unscrupulous dealer in antiquities will resort in order to get a large sum for his wares. The two parties were Alessandro Castellani, the clever dealer, and Baron Adolph Rothschild of Paris.

Castellani had managed to get hold of a superb enameled ewer, together with the dish on which it stood. He knew that Baron Adolph had a fancy for objects of this kind, but he also knew that Rothschild was never so carried away by his fancy as to pay more than was reasonable for anything that pleased him. Castellani devised a bit of strategy.

The baron on arriving in Rome visited Castellani's shop and was shown the best things the dealer had except the enameled dish and ewer. When everything else had been inspected Castellani drew from a hidden cupboard the dish, but not the ewer. The baron was so pleased with the dish that he agreed to buy the lot of which it was a part, for one of the customs of the shop was not to sell a rare specimen apart from the group of which it formed the principal object. The baron paid heavily for the whole, lamenting that there was no ewer to stand on the dish, and departed for Florence.

There he was visited by an agent who told him of an old lady who wished to sell several beautiful majolica pieces. He visited her house in the country and was disappointed. As the majolica lady, seemingly chagrined, left the room to order refreshments the baron saw through the open door of a bedroom a ewer covered by a glass shade on which rested a wreath of immortelles.

When the lady returned the baron asked permission to examine the ewer. It was brought out, and the baron saw that the enamel was of the same work as that of the dish he had bought, but he wished to be certain that the foot of the ewer would fit into the hollow of the dish. He inquired the price of the ewer and was told by the lady that it was not for sale, as it was the only souvenir she possessed of her husband.

The baron went back to his rooms, had the dish unpacked and found that the foot of the ewer fitted it perfectly. The next day the baron sent the agent to offer the old lady a princely sum for the ewer. He brought back a refusal to sell. But at last the widow's scruples were overcome.

Castellani, with his Italian cunning, had planned the whole affair. The agent who called and the old lady who was sentimental were his aids in making the baron pay a much larger sum than he would have given had ewer and dish been sold together. The Italian shopman's scheme had taken in one of the most astute of business men.

What He Wanted.

The old man turned from his desk as his son-in-law entered the office.

"Well, what is it now?" he asked. "I—er—have been thinking," answered the new member of the family, "that you ought to give me a pension."

"A pension!" exclaimed the old man. "What in thunder do you mean, sir?"

"Well, it's like this," explained the other. "Ever since I did your daughter the honor to marry her I have been dependent on you for support, and I want to be independent. See!"—Chicago News.

Spoiling the Show.

Showman—I don't know as we can give any kind of a show, this afternoon. Assistant—What's the matter? Showman—That fresh kid's been in the cage of the man eating lion having a romp, and the critter is as playful as a kitten. The farmer we rented the sacred cow from India from says the money ain't payin' him for the loss of his milk route, and the wild man of Borneo says he's got to have a day off to register and see the police parade.—Washington American.
