A BETTER TYPE.

Mr. O. L. Joyner Gives Some Good Suggestions.

In this week's Progressive Farmer Mr. O. L. Joyner, of Greenville, who is admittedly an authority on tobacco, makes this interesting comment on the culture of tobacco in Eastern North Carolina:

Messrs. Editors: For the last few years it has been perfectly apparent to every close observer of the sales of tobacco on the western North Carolina markets that thin white tobacco was growing less and less in demand. During the first few years of tobacco culture in this section of the state, white, or what is known as lemon colored tobacco, was in greatest demand and sold for fancy prices, but for some cause the demand for the manufactured product made from this type of leaf began to drop off. In the meantime, stimulated by the higher prices of white tobacco, farmers devoted their chief attention to the production of this type of tobacco, with the result that more of this type of tobacco was made than there was demand for and consequently the price fell off.

Farmers learned from experience that the highest type of white tobacco was made by priming off the tobacco early and curing it a peagreen color which changed after lying in bulk a few weeks to a very beautiful light color. This method was practiced to such an extent that since 1900, although the crop is now not transplanted much, if any, earlier than it was then, yet it is taken off the hill and cured from fifteen to thirty days earlier. This type of tobacco for the last two years has hardly paid the cost of production and as most of our farmers made this type of tobacco, it will be seen that it has been, to say the least, an unprofitable crop.

We must change our methods. The manufacturers tell us they want a heavier, richer and riper tobacco. The have paid good prices for such of this tobacco as we have made.

A change from present methods certainly cannot harm us, for we are making nothing by growing the thin, white, chaffy tobacco.

It is easy enough done. When the tobacco is about knee high it should be primed high and the primings thrown on the ground. Then top low in accordance with growth and vigor of the plant, let it stand on the hill until thoroughly ripe, and cure. The result will be an utterly different class of tobacco from that we are now making and a class the manufacturers say they want. Let's make what they want and a little bit less than they want. Grow all our home supplies. Market the crop in a seasonable and reasonable way and not throw it all on the market in three or four months. Do this and in my opinion it will be the medicine that will produce a cure.

Tobacco is selling much better now on the Kinston market than was the case at the beginning of the season on August 1st. There is not so much change in sand lugs, but the better grades are now freely marketed and while possibly the sum realized is not so great, in some cases, as in former years, farmers are generally satisfied and in some cases gratified at the outcome.

But it has become more and more apparent that considerations such as referred to in the

The students of the M. E. Sunday school here had a picnic Thursday. They went on wagons to Corey's school house, the place where the fun was to be. There they had a short lecture by Mr. Snow, a Bible salesman. After a bountiful dinner they went to the county home and enjoyed going there very much. The day was a pleasant one and all greatly enjoyed the trip.

above clipping must receive greater attention. If our farmers want to make the most out of tobacco they must study the demands of the market and produce such an article as is demanded. Tobacco men—warehousemen, buyers and manufacturers—knowing just what the market demands, are uniformly ready and willing to advise farmers both as to the culture, the curing, the care of tobacco and its preparation for the market.

These are exceedingly important points. Tobacco is not so peculiar as to over-ride all laws of the commercial world. Tobacco of a grade that manufacturers do not want will stand no better show on the market than the miller gives wheat or corn that he cannot use to advantage or than the manufacturer gives cotton that is below grade. Then, too, if tobacco is not suitably graded and put up attractively it will suffer just as does truck or fruit that is put on the market under like conditions.

Mr. Joyner's suggestions above noted, like those of other tobacco men, are intended to urge farmers to produce a better, a more marketable type of tobacco. When this is done, and we cease to waste so much time on undesirable types, there will not be so much room for disappointment. As it is the disappointment is not all along the line; but it is pronounced only as to "thin," "chaffy" lugs and primings.

The only salvation for the farmer lies with the farmer—which is a rule that works throughout human affairs generally.—Kinston Free Press.

A. C. L. ROBBERY.

Friday morning when Agent E. L. Brown, got to the railroad office he found that it had been broken open during the night. He wired to Greenville for Hines' dogs. They could not do much with the track as it is thought that turpentine was on the feet of the robbers. While the dogs were coming a negro named James Whitfield heard of what was doing up town, went to the ditch morgue and complained of having the toothache. He made himself very suspicious during the morning in and around the depot. Late in the evening Whitfield was arrested and taken to trial. The officer found on Whitfield's person two quarts of whiskey which is the same brand of that lost at the depot. While on trial Whitfield turned state's evidence and gave the names of others and also told where his part of the money was. They went with him to his house and found money to the amount of $27.61. Whitfield says that this is his third. The names of the other two are George Smith, white, and John Staton, colored. Smith is under arrest, and denies the charge. The evidence was very strong against him. John Staton, the negro with the wooden leg, has skipped. The others are held here till they find Staton. Mr. Brown says that his loss was about $75 or $100.

No Need to Go West.

We have frequent illustrations of the fact that farming in Caldwell county with intelligent management can be made an exceedingly profitable business. One of our farmers began ten years ago with no capital and on a poor farm. During this time he paid for the farm in addition to making a comfortable living for himself and family.

He recently sold his farm and personal property for nearly $10,000, which means that he cleared $1,000 a year, after paying all operating expenses. What this young man did others can do. It is not necessary to go West to make money farming.—Lenoir Topic.

Airship pictures look tame now along with North Pole scenes.

The discovery of the North Pole has made a fertile subject for the cartoonists. "Tige" should get in the push

If the big ocean steamers keep on lowering record trips across the Atlantic, flying machines will be able to cut no figure with them.

As long as her husband did not find the North Pole, Mrs. Peary does not believe Dr. Cook's story about it. Nice bit of jealousy, that.

The Supreme court of the State this week licensed fifty new lawyers. There were sixty-two applicants for licenses but twelve failed to pass.

If the North Pole is ours wonder what we can do with it. There seems to be little there but ice, and it is too far away to haul a crop of that home

Floods, wrecks, fires, automobile accidents and other casualties have largely filled the news columns of the papers the past week. Verily we have an age that kills people faster than war.

A government expert gives out the information that the supply of oysters for this season will be abundant. If the price of the bivalves is not out of reach, they will help folks knock the beef trust.

The North Carolina pie hunters who failed to land on the census enumerating list might hurry along their application to Uncle Sam for a job guarding the North Pole against foreign invasion.

There are people who pick out and magnify a few bad things that exist in a town or community, and overlook the many good things therein. Just like the buzzard that is never attracted by the beauties to be found on the face of the earth, but will pass all these unnoticed and pounce down with relish on a putrifying carcass.

Treat Your Husband Kindly.
 Of course, husbands don't expect much consideration, and they are only put here to do the work and make the money for the family to spend. They understand that, or they should understand it by this time. They realize that it is their duty to work ten or twelve hours a day in the office or the factory and to bring back the envelope every Saturday night and hand it to the madam. But now and then they should be allowed a day off for a little recreation and amusement.
 Lady, it pays to treat your husband kindly, as it does all the rest of your servants. He doesn't get his day off in every week. — Baltimore Sun.

Inconsistent Us.
 A man will kick like a bay steer when he comes to pay three dollars a year for road tax, but he smiles like a young widow when he coughs up four plunks once every four months during the hot season for a case of the stuff "that makes Milwaukee famous." He will roar like an untamed lion with Roosevelt on its trail when he pays his city water tax but he is the most lamb-like of a man when he goes off on a fishing trip to the mountains at a cost of a hundred dollars or more. He will throw seven kinds of fits when he pays twenty-five dollars taxes once a year on his eight thousand dollar farm, but he is as calm and peaceful as a milk-fed kitten when he writes his check for fifteen thousand dollars for an automobile. He is delighted to enjoy luxuries, comforts and generous prosperity of the state or community in which he lives, but he is ground down like a slave when it comes to paying a small portion of his income for the public welfare and the privileges that make him rich and happy. He grudgingly parts with the portion due for the protection of government under which he lives and greedily demands all that a government can give. Man is a queer freak of inconsistency when it comes to paying taxes—whether it is state tax, county tax, city tax, road tax or dog tax.—Dunn Guide.

This is a golden age for the farmer. Most everything produced on the farm is high in price, some things higher than in many years. The farmer who diversifies his crops and raises his home supplies has opportunities hardly dreamed of a generation ago. — Rich Square Times.

TOWER OF LONDON.

The Perfect System by Which Its Treasures Are Guarded.

The Tower of London has the most perfect system of burglar alarms that has yet been devised.

From Scotland Yard, from the governor's headquarters and from other places known only to a few responsible officials the whole Tower can be closed electrically within a few seconds. Even the ponderous gates at the middle tower, which weigh some tons and through which visitors pass, swing to automatically, and the escape of every one within is instantly barred. At the same time an alarm bell rings to warn wardens, police and soldiers.

In particular the precautions in the apartment containing the crown jewels are of a most scientifically elaborate kind. One of the beneficiaries on duty in the room has merely to press a button, whereupon the heavy door closes, the alarm bell below rings, the other gates slam to and lock, and every person within the tower is instantly cut off from the outer world.

"The man who can get away with any of the crown jewels deserves them," observed a Tower official. "From where I am standing I could close every important door and gate in the Tower in as short a time as it takes to utter these words."

It was mainly to insure the safety of the crown jewels that the system was installed.

No order had been issued for the closing of the Tower on a recent Saturday when, greatly to their alarm, the visitors found doors locked, bolted and barred against them for about ten minutes, preventing any one leaving the Tower.

"The Tower simply closed—that is all," remarked an official. "Who caused it to do so we do not know. It might have been Scotland Yard, where the pressing of a button would imprison every soul within the Tower until the police gave the signal for their release, or it might have been the governor, anxious to learn whether we were all at our posts. At any rate, it was none of the minor officials. "In fact, who closed the Tower and why is a secret known only to the highest authorities. There was no alarm, no attempt to seize the crown jewels."—London Mail.

Clever Tactics When William Quit Using Tobacco.

An excerpt from Doris' letter: "And, oh, Will, if you weren't the dearest boy! You often told me that you would do anything in the world for me, and now you write for my sake you've quit smoking. I'll have to wait until I see you to tell you what a dear I think you are."

From Janis: "You write that out of consideration for me you have stopped smoking for good. That was just lovely of you, William, and you may depend that I greatly appreciate it."

From Phyllis: "Billy, boy, it's just ripping! You're the dandy kid! Just to think that you would swear off using the weed just for me! It was mighty dear of you, Billy, and it makes me all the more keen for you."

From Marjorie: "To think that you've quit smoking, William! I was so surprised! Of course I always knew that you care for me, but to think that, as you say, you've made this sacrifice on my account—why, it's positively noble of you!"

From his mother: "Will, my son, this proves your love for me. Father is inclosing a check to show that he appreciates the fact that you think enough of your parents to give up smoking for them."

From his doctor: "Your letter advising me that you have obeyed my orders and stopped the use of tobacco is at hand. As I said, your compliance * * *."—Puck.

Wouldn't Hang the Jury.

An old negro named Ephraim, having been sworn on the jury in a murder trial, for some time resisted a verdict of guilty for no other apparent reason than his strong aversion to capital punishment in general. Finally the foreman explained to him that it was a question either of hanging the prisoner or hanging the jury and that it all depended on him. "Fo' gracious, sah," replied Uncle Ephraim, "on dem reasonments de pris'ner am sho' guilty."
