THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Drawing for Gold Attracts Immense Crowds.

One of the greatest crowds that Greenville has ever seen assembled at the big store of C. T. Munford last Saturday afternoon, the occasion being the awarding of the $25.00 in gold to those who had patronized the great strike sale.

The award was conducted by F. A. Springer, manager of the National Special Sales Co., who requested several prominent citizens of Greenville and vicinity to ascend to the platform in the rear of the store and superintend the drawing of prize numbers. The committee was W. M. McArthur, E. B. Thomas, J. H. Briley, J. W. James, D. J. Whichard, J. F. Pollard, Robert Smith, C. W. Haryey, W. H. Crawford, W. P. Buck and W. B. Tucker.

Duplicates of the coupons held by the purchasers were placed in a large box and thoroughly mixed by the gentlemen, after which little Miss Malene Congleton was blindfolded and directed to draw from the box a coupon. After each drawing the coupons were thoroughly shaken and mixed. The following persons held the lucky numbers:

1st prize $10:00 in gold, Mrs. Josephine Flynn, of Farmville, coupon number 8157.

2nd prize $5.00 in gold, J. H. Norris, of Greenville, coupon number 13420.

3rd prize $2.50 in gold W. I. King, of Greenville, coupon number 9899.

4th prize $2.50 in gold, Mrs. T. W. Whitehurst, of Greenville, coupon 13505.

5th prize for the greatest number of coupons, Mrs. Meeks, Winterville, who handed in 5039 coupons.

The William Todd Vaudeville.

The Wm. Todd show arrived in the city last night on the 6 o'clock train and have pitched their tent on the lot opposite the court house. The manager says that everything will be in readiness tonight. The show has the reputation of giving the best and largest vaudeville performance of any show on the road that charges twice the admission. As the admission is only ten cents to everyone there is no doubt that the management will be greeted with a packed tent during the engagement which lasts the entire week.

Good for All Vehicles.

A good road for automobiles is a good road to haul cotton or fertilizers or tobacco on, a good road to travel on when you are pressed for time. The work that the automobile people are doing is being done for the whole country, not only for themselves. They ought to have the help of all good people in their work for good roads. We do not believe that a better influence for good roads than the automobile craze could have developed and if they are a nuisance at times, their work for this improvement will more than pay for it all.—Florence Times.

School of Music.

The department of music at the Greenville graded schools will again be in charge of Miss Olive B. Gaston, of Syracuse University, New York. Persons desiring to enroll for lessons should call on or write the superintendent before the opening of the graded school. H. B. Smith, Superintendent.

An Exchange of Compliments.

A certain King's Mountain preacher has told us that no newspaper which took truth for its standard would make a pecuniary success. The Herald might return the compliment by remarking that no minister who told the truth about his congregation, alive or dead, would occupy the pulpit much longer than the Sunday afterward. The press and the clergy go hand in hand with the whitewash brush, rosy spectacles magnifying little virtues and kindly throwing little deformities into oblivion. The pulpit, the pen and the gravestone are partners in saint-making.—King's Mountain Herald.

At the Opera House.

Aronson & Brown's motion picture show in the opera house is one of the best running. These gentlemen have been giving Greenville people a good show all the summer and now they have added the illustrated song feature to the regular program. All last week they had Mr. Carl B. Armstrong, of New Bern, who has an excellent voice to sing. This week they will have Mr. Whitten, who also has a good baritone voice, to sing. This feature adds a great deal to the entertainment and the people appreciate it.

GEESSE GET ON A DRUNK.

Greensboro Witnesses a Most Novel Sight.

Greensboro, Sept. 4.—Twenty geese owned by a neighbor of Mr. C. M. Vanstory on the corner of North Elm and Church streets, got drunk Thursday night and kept the whole neighborhood awake with their wild cacklings, fights, flying contests and other all-night orgies. Mrs. Vanstory had squeezed a large quantity of grapes out of which she had made grape acid (not wine) and the neighbor who owned the geese told her to throw the refuse hulls, seed and pulp, which had fermented, into the goose lot. The geese apparently enjoyed them, helping themselves all the afternoon, with the result that they got biling drunk, and cavorted around all night, not even pretending to go to sleep, but intent only on keeping every body in the neighborhood awake. All efforts to make them behave themselves only added fuel to the flame of their riotous revelry. It was such a plum sight, the whole police force went around to witness it, soon finding they were unequal to the task of quieting the disturbance. Mr. Vanstory was so tickled at the sight, after his anger at not being able to sleep had subsided, he called up several friends on the 'phone, who came around and were shocked at such carryings on in sober prohibition Greensboro. The geese never sobered up until daylight, and yesterday they would not go in fifty yards of the garpe hulls. That speaks well for a goose.

How Farming Pays.

Twenty years ago the farm of Mr. W. S. Cobb, of Lumber Bridge, Robeson county, could have been purchased for two thousand dollars. This year, under his expert management he has already grown crops worth $23,213 on that farm and on a part of the land he has second crop of cotton which gives promise of making a bale to the acre. He has also grown enough wheat, oats and corn to run the whole farm. Mr. Cobb believes there is money in farming—in fact he knows it—and he is of the opinion that the supreme need of North Carolina today is expert agricultural education and that the schools should more and more train the boys and girls for living on the farm. He wishes to see the chief emphasis at the A. & M. College placed upon agricultural rather than mechanical education. What Mr. Cobb has done every graduate from the A. & M. College and every other young man who will mix brains and expert knowledge with industry determination can do in farming in North Carolina.

Messrs. John and Samuel Wilkinson, who were born on a farm near Pantego, Beaufort county, have made a fortune by farming and in the lumber business. They say they have made more money in proportion to the capital invested in farming than in the lumber business, and they are devoting all their time to draining and cleaning land to be used for growing crops.—News and Observer.

Pleased Him.

W. E. Proctor, of Grimesland, sold a lot tobacco at the Star warehouse today, and received a check for $1,004. He expressed satisfaction at such a good sale.

SIX-YEAR-OLDS TOO YOUNG.

Children Who do Not Begin to Study Until Eight Make Rapid Progress.

As a matter of fact, it seems to me to be very unwise to send a boy or girl to school until the age of eight, at least, says Leonard Keene Hirshberg, M. D., in The Delineator for October. In America, six is the common age for beginning with the three R's, and four and a half the age for kindergarten mummery, but it is entirely improbable that this early start is an advantage, even if the mere accumulation of knowledge be accepted as the sole aim of education. The child which begins school at eight is far more capable of learning quickly than the child which begins at six; and at ten the former is almost certain to know as much as the latter, despite the fact that one has had four years of schooling while the other has had but half as much. And after that there will begin to appear a noticeable difference between the two. The one will bear some permanent mark of its too-early bending over desk and slate; the other will be a healthy animal.

The healthy boy of six displays little or no inclination to dally with books. His yearning to be up and doing finds outlet in purely physical activity. He eats plain, wholesome food and he spends at least ten hours of the twenty-four in sleep. Between meals he is in the open air, galloping, marauding and fighting his fellows. He is a savage, true enough—but that touch of savagery will be worth more to him than Greek, when he is a grown man doing the hard work of the world.

Against this tough and uncultivated boy place the typical young pundit of his years. This last is a master, not only of the spellingbook, but also of the works of Oliver Optic. He is studious, and his parents are proud of him. Instead of way-laying little girls and pulling their pigtails, he studies the Golden Text. Instead of chasing three-baggers in the outfield, he traces the course of the river Amazon. He is quiet, reserved, polite, obedient—and has a touch of mild vanity. He has no liking for the barbarous sport of other boys.

Such a boy, I believe, is as abnormal as a boy with an obvious physical deformity. Instead of being encouraged in his unhealthy studiousness, as is commonly the case, he should be taken from school and, to borrow a lowly term, "turned out to grass." That is to say he should be led, willy-nilly, into the savage mode of life of the normal boy, in the hope that it will awaken in him some spark of the savage.

Saccharine Sacraem.

They were at luncheon. One had a very sweet tooth. He was inserting into his demi-tasse a surprising number of lumps of sugar. His companion watched the operation quizzically. "Say," he observed at length, "why don't you eat your sugar straight instead of saturating it in coffee? It's much more healthy."—Exchange.

He Was Perfectly Willing.

Artemus Ward and a friend were one day discussing sacrifices when the friend asked the humorist, "Don't you think, for instance, that if a war should break out we should be willing to sacrifice our relations for the sake of our country?" "Yes," said Ward. "I'll be willing, for the sake of my country, to sacrifice all my wife's relations if need be."

MONDAY, SEP. 6, 1909.

There is a disposition on the part of scientists to make Dr. Cook prove it.

Teddy in Africa pales into insignificance along side of Cook at the North Pole.

Now listen out for somebody to say the North Pole had already been discovered hundreds of years ago.

The only observance Greenville made of Labor Day was those who usually labor going right along with their usual labor.

A colored undertaker of Greensboro was arrested for running a blind tiger. He used a coffin for a storage place for his bottles of whiskey.

Sunday's News and Observer says there are fully a thousand cases of pellagra in North Carolina, and only one county in the State, Onslow, is free from it.

The Greensboro Record puts it up to the Raleigh News and Observer to quit so much talking on the trust law and do a little acting. If The News and Observer is consistent the suggestion of The Record opens the way to show it.

When We'll Raise Sheep.

"Not even our children are allowed as much liberty as the worthless curs that make sheep farming impossible." This is a declaration by the Board of Agriculture of Massachusetts. The "official farmers" have taken up the fight of the sheep against the dogs and have declared war on the latter. So it seems there are States outside the South where there is an outcry against the curs being given preference over sheep; where the legislators either neglect their duty in the protection of an important industry or are afraid to do it. But if the farmers who want to raise sheep will go on agitating the matter the sheep will have their day some of these times. General Atlas Jones Dargan, "of the Pee Dee river country," used to say there would be big money in sheep raising in this State if the farmers could only devise some means whereby to keep the dogs from getting all the mutton and the briars all the wool.—Charlotte Observer.

Free Advertising.

No one not directly interested in running a daily paper, in this State at least, has the least idea of the amount of free advertising done year in and year out—advertising that is paid for in other States—in fact in the larger towns of this State. Such being the case, we have been expecting to see something like this, which is now kept standing in some of the daily papers of this state: "In future, 'obituary notices', 'in memoriam sketches', 'cards of thanks', 'communications espousing the cause of a private enterprise or a political candidate' and like matter, will be charged for at the regular advertising rates.

There will be no deviation from this rule." Of course there is going to be a howl, long, loud and continuous but as a matter of fact it is just. We realize that one does little enough of charity in this world and we have tried to do our part through The Record, but at times we have been sorely tempted to kick out of the traces. Since the advent of the phone the matter has grown worse. Instead of writing notices of this kind and sending them in, the phone is resorted to and we are asked to sit quietly by and take down a long item about this or that thing to be pulled off, which is nothing but a paid advertisement. It is surely enough to ask the publication of such notices gratis when written and sent in; to ask that we take them over the phone is quite enough to break the camel's back. However, we are still hanging on, but we ask in all earnestness that we be accorded a little more consideration.

P. S.—There is a vast difference between a free advertisement and a news item.—Greensboro Record.

HANDICAPPED.

This is the Case With Many Greenville People.

Too many Greenville citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently.

The following statement should convince every Greenville reader of their efficiency.

J. Frank Powell, West Tarboro, N. C., says: "I suffered from a severe attack of La Grippe, which left my kidneys disordered. Standing so much greatly aggravated the pains in my back and frequently I was forced to sit down. A dull ache across my loins kept me in almost constant misery and wherever I attempted to stoop or lift, sharp, shooting pains darted through me. I at length procured Doan's Kidney Pills and that they gave me relief in a short time. I have not suffered from backache since and my kidneys have been normal. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A SNAKE IN THE ROOM.

The Tale of an Odd Adventure in Northern Brazil.

Mr. Edward H. Cooper's article on South America and his reference to its poisonous snakes remind me of an interesting adventure of a friend of mine in northern Brazil.

My friend was making a collection of the poisonous snakes of the neighborhood, and as every one round us was aware of the fact many gifts of the kind were offered to him. One evening he was writing at a table in our hut when a local person brought him a small living specimen of one of the most deadly poisonous snakes of the neighborhood. My friend, who was very busy, asked him to put it in a glass jar on the table, which was accordingly done.

Unfortunately the hot night and other soporific influences proved too much for my friend's waking powers. He went to sleep with his head on the table and slept peacefully till awakened by a fearful crash. He had knocked the table over, with the lamp on it; the lamp had naturally been put out, and, as his senses slowly returned, the awakened sleeper remembered that the glass jar also had fallen to the floor and the snake must now be loose.

Obviously the best thing to do was to jump on the bed and shout for help and light. But the hut was empty, and no help came. One could not spend the night standing on a bed roaring for help; so, as there was only a space of about eight feet between him and the door, the snake collector jumped down from the bed, resolved to make a rush for it. He had taken his boots off at an early part of the evening, and as he jumped he felt a sharp, vicious nip in the heel of his right foot.

My friend was a person with plenty of cool presence of mind. A servant entered the hut at the moment. He summoned him, told him curtly that he had not five minutes to live and proceeded to dictate a will and various directions to his traveling companion and one or two other persons. But death tarried an unaccountably long time, and presently the reason of this became apparent. The snake was curled up in a far corner of the room, swaying and hissing angrily, and my friend had jumped off the bed on to a piece of the broken glass with which the floor of his room was liberally strewn.—London Saturday Review.

Pat's Narrow Escape.

During the South African war an Irish trooper on outpost duty one night felt so desperately tired that he thought he would have a five minute nap. Placing his helmet on a rock, he lay down and was soon in a sound sleep. Waking suddenly, he mistook his helmet for one of the enemy, drew his sword and dealt it a severe blow.

Perceiving his mistake, the trooper picked up his helmet, which he had cut in two, and gave thanks to heaven that he had taken it off before lying down, "for," he soliloquized, "had my head been inside that it's 10 to 1 a dead man I would have been seeing meself at this moment!"

Kerosene.

"Kerosene" seems to have been first used in United States patent No. 12,612, of March 27, 1855, granted to Abraham Gesner of Williamsburg, N. Y., and assigned to the North American Kerosene Gaslight company. In the preamble to his specifications Gesner states that he has "invented and discovered a new and useful manufacture or composition of matter, being a new liquid hydrocarbon which I denominate 'kerosene.'" "Coal oil" was the term in general use before "kerosene" was invented.

The Mean Thing.

"Why are you mad at her?" "I met her on the car today, and she said, 'Oh, let me pay your fare,' and I said, 'Oh, you mustn't,' and she didn't." —Houston Post.

A CULINARY MASTERPIECE.

When You Go to Paris Don't Turn Up Your Nose at Mussels.

You will find in Paris a small restaurant just inside the street entrance presided over by a waiter who has apparently been forty years of age for the last twenty years. He has a friendly, alert air, and anything in the world that you want he will promptly provide.

You will naturally order some sort of potage or something that your fancy suggests; but, whatever else you do be sure to call for mussels. I can see you turning up your nose at this. In America who eats mussels except at rare times—perhaps some pickled mussels? They are with us in the same category as tripe.

But behold the genius of the French! When the waiter brings in an enormous silver bowl with a domelike silver cover and when he removes the cover, then you forget everything in the world except the delicious savory smell of the steam which rises from the myriad shells that open lovingly for you to extract from them the dainty sea flavored mussel that turks with-in.

Mussel, did I say? No; these are not the ordinary mussels that Americans know. French gastronomic genius has transformed them into moules mariniere. In some deftly magical way the French chef has imparted a delicious suggestion to the moules, just that indefinable, evanescent memory of garlic-garlic which in the hands of the ordinary cook is an offensive and deadly weapon, but which in the hands of a cook of high degree—an artist in fact—is a means for achieving some of the supreme triumphs of his art.

After the moules you will have anything you care for—dainty slices of galantine or sliced capon nestling amid watercresses and then perhaps some peaches in a little basket where the fruit is infolded in leaves from its own tree and ripened to precisely the right turn on some ancient wall in the sunshine of an old French garden, then perhaps some pulled bread and a bit of Camembert and a Cafe Mazagan in a long glass. No one remembers now the battle that gave its name to this particular preparation of coffee, which shows that men may come and empires may fall and armies may be dashed into fragments upon the battlefield, but the genius of cookery remains triumphant and its achievements are never lost.—Bookman.

Juvenile Logic.

Norman's mamma was something of a stickler for propriety, and she was not a little annoyed that it seemed impossible to make the boy give his uncle's name the customary handle. One day after the little fellow had met with a severer reproof than usual for this shortcoming of his he said:

"I mean to be good, mamma, but I don't see why I should say Uncle Harry. I don't say Uncle Papa, do I?"

Mercy turns her back to the unmerciful.—Quarles.

A Winning Compliment.

The beautiful girl shook her head in the negative.

"No," she said after a moment's deliberation, "I can never—no, never—be your wife. But I'll tell you what I will do. Just to show you that there is no hard feeling on my part I will be present when you marry some other girl and bombard you with my shoes for luck."

Ah, here was an opportunity! Quick as a flash the young man responded:

"Please don't. If you must throw old shoes, borrow them."

"And why not use my own?"

"Because they are so small we could never detect them from the rice."

Flattery won. The beautiful girl decided then and there that the young man was altogether too clever for any other girl, so she reversed her decision, and the cards are out.—New York Times.

Not Exempt.

An evangelist was exhorting his hearers to flee from the wrath to come. "I warn you," he thundered, "that there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth!"

At this moment an old woman in the gallery stood up. "Sir," she shouted, "I have no teeth."

"Madam," returned the evangelist severely, "teeth will be provided."—Success Magazine.

Back Numbers.

"William," said Mrs. Van Gelder to the man of all work, "I want you to clean out that large closet in the hall just outside the parlor. Burn all the old newspapers, waste paper and any other rubbish you may find there."

After a short time she met William in the hall carrying in his arms a huge pile of sheet music, the property of her eldest daughter.

"What are you going to do with Mabel's music?" she asked.

"Why, burn it, sure, as you told me to. It was in the closet there with the other rubbish."

"But I didn't mean the music. Put it back at once."

Noting his mistress' displeasure, William inquired in surprise:

"Why, hasn't she played it all?"

Banana Pudding.

Beat together the yolks of four eggs, four ounces granulated sugar, one ounce butter and a teaspoonful vanilla essence briskly for five minutes. Add four ounces of sifted flour, three bananas peeled and cut in thin slices and the beaten whites of the four eggs, with a pinch of salt. Pour into a buttered pudding mold and bake for three-quarters of an hour. Unmold when serving and have whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla as a sauce.—Boston Transcript.

Fernapa.

"My wife is getting so she can cook."

"You are prejudiced in her favor."

"No, I am not. She gave a tramp a piece of pie last week, and he has been back for more three times."

"Perhaps he is after a hero medal."
