REFLECTOR PIANO CONTEST.

It is Creating Excitement and is Going to be Interesting.

The announcement in Saturday's paper that The Reflector will give away that beautiful Boudoir baby upright piano at Fineman & White's has awakened great interest and already many inquiries have come in about it, dicating that the popularity contest is going to be an interesting one. Already we know of a number of persons who will enter the contest, and it will be open to all. Tuesday's paper will contain a nominating blank to be used in placing the name of your choice in the contest. A person can nominate himself, herself, or any one else desired. The nominating blank will carry with it 1000 votes to be placed to the credit of the person nominated, but only one such complimentary vote will be credited. If two or more people nominate the same person the 1000 votes will be credited only once, which starts off every contestant on the same footing. Fill out the nominating blank and mail or bring it to Manager Reflector Piano Contest. Then watch the paper closely for other announcements as to how votes will be counted. Get ready for the contest and go in to win. The prize is worth working for.

The Crowd in New York.

To an ordinary visitor New York appears to be crowded all the time and the scenes when 1,500,000 strangers pour into the town may be imagined. That is a conservative estimate of the number attending the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The hotels have been swamped. A New York dispatch says that "within the last three days the management of the Hotel Astor has sent out more than 500 messages by wire to distant points announcing that no reservation of rooms could be made. At the Waldorf-Astoria, the Plaza, Manhattan, St. Regis, Knickerbocker and many other hotels accommodations are all reserved." The transportation problem has been a big one and while the railroads have done their best to meet it, the trains have been crowded to the platforms.

It is stated that "the New York Central has more than doubled its train service. Normally 600 trains of that system enter New York daily. During the celebration the number will be more than 1,200. The Pennsylvania, the Lackawanna, Nickel Plate, Erie, Lehigh Valley, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and other lines report enormously increased passenger traffic, the percentage in some instances being 200 above normal." In the matter of attendance this celebration caps the climax. It is ahead of anything yet known in this country. These visitors will average an expenditure of $30 each, on a low estimate, so about $45,000,000 will be added to the vast bulk of New York's circulating medium by reason of the celebration.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Ice Plant Assigned.

One day last week Hill & Johnson, proprietors of the Greenville Ice Co. made an assignment, H. A. White being named as trustee. The plant will continue to be operated by Mr. White as trustee pending a settlement of the indebtedness of the company.

Life is What We Make It.

In reply to the question, "Is life worth living?" the answer has been given, "That depends upon the liver." Nothing truer was ever said. Susceptible of a double meaning, take either horn of the dilemma you may and the self same proposition holds good. If one's liver is out of order he may be the most miserable of men for the time being with a "dark brown taste" in his mouth and the skies overcast with gloom and unhappy forebodings.

If one does not live aright and get the most out of life that is coming to him, the situation is little different. He may be equally as miserable and unhappy, and yet have no one to blame but himself. After all life is what we make it and if we do not make the most of it the fault is ours—not the fates' or the other fellow's.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

How the Harrimans Get Their Wealth.

In making his will, Harriman, deceased railroad magnate, followed the course which he doubtless pursued all his life and one that contributed to his great success, he had the will so drawn as to cheat the State of New York out of the inheritance tax, which would otherwise have been collected. It is through beating the law and beating about everybody and everything with which they come in contact, that men of the Harriman type are enabled to succeed—to control more power than the government. But the glamour of success covers the short cuts which will not bear exposure and wealth-worshipping Americans do obeisance and hold up the lives and characters of these men as worthy of emulation.—Statesville Landmark.

Archdeacon Webber Coming Tonight.

Archdeacon Webber, who was to begin his mission in Greenville on Friday night, has found it necessary to change the date of his visit. He will arrive in the city today and hold his first service tonight at 8:15 at the Episcopal church. These services will continue throughout the week and until Sunday night, at which time Archdeacon Webber will conclude his mission. All are earnestly urged to attend these services.

This is an opportunity our people ought not to miss as the venerable Percy C. Webber is considered one of the greatest preachers of the day. He will open his mission at 8:15 tonight at the Episcopal church.

THE LYCEUM COURSE.

For Benefit of the Public Library in Greenville.

In commenting upon the results of the work of the lyceum bureau the newspapers of several places have recently laid particular emphasis on the value of the institution as an educational force in creating a higher ideal of recreation and furnishing a course of entertainments of a character designed to sustain and foster that ideal. The result has been gradually to elevate many local standards and to develop a new and wholesome sentiment that reflects itself in many phases of the town life.

By the interest they have displayed in our recent announcement a majority of the people of Greenville have shown that they prefer high class concerts to the ordinary shows that come here and also that they appreciate the educational value of such attractions to the community as a whole. It would be well for these people to impress their own convictions upon the remaining portion of the community so that the effect of the good work may not be lost in any quarter. In this way, they would render valuable aid to the ladies of the End of the Century Club in their work for the library and thereby, with little loss of time to themselves, make certain the success of the undertaking of these ladies who are giving their best efforts generously for the benefit of the community at large. The concerts will furnish genuine entertainment to all who have the foresight to attend them and in addition will be of direct benefit to the library, which is for all the people of the town.

Those contemplating having work done should see me as far ahead as possible to insure promptness. Wells Browne. 9 23

Hudson-Fulton March Free.

Next Sunday the New York World offers its readers a real musical treat in honor of the great Hudson-Fulton celebration. The World will publish the official Hudson-Fulton Grand March, music complete, exactly as it will be played at the official grand ball to be given at the Metropolitan Opera-House Saturday, Oct. 2. There will also be another set of pictures in colors of famous stage beauties by Archie Gunn. Nobody can afford to miss getting next Sunday's World.

Electrical Disturbance.

Sunday's papers contained account of unusual disturbances Saturday that disarranged electric wires and interrupted telegraphic communication everywhere. Telegraphers were baffled as to the cause of the disturbance. The trouble was very perceptible in the local Western Union office here. All parts of the world seem to have experienced a touch of the heavy current.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

A rather crude, but nevertheless successful swindle was perpetrated in Raleigh. A young white man, to all appearances an ordinary young farmer, who called himself E. C. Jones, perpetrated the fraud on Barbee & Company, cotton brokers, there, through which the brokers are out over $600. He had one bale of cotton that he sold to one of the Barbee & Company buyers, who sent him to the official cotton weigher, whose certificate the young man proceeded to raise from one to eleven bales, thereby making the statement call for $656. The check was issued and quickly cashed at the bank, the rascal disappearing thereafter.

Mrs. Della Frasier, of Gulf, N. C., is a motherly woman with a heart that overflows with kindness and affection for all humanity, and other living things. She had a hen setting that defiantly came off the nest with a young brood, and left two eggs unhatched. Mrs. Frasier was too humane to allow these neglected eggs to go without attention, so she put them in her bosom, and they hatched out two as pretty and as sprightly biddies as any old mother hen ever clucked over and strutted away from the nest with.—Durham Sun.

Official announcements of the approaching State fair proclaim that the management is determined to reform the midway effectively so that the features of the fair will be changed from a dominating midway to a dominating display of the products of the State, representing the thrift and industry of the State. The indications are, Secretary Pogue says, for a larger number of county exhibits than in the past. He says that sensational free midway attractions are being booked that will surpass anything provided in former years, while the Virginia, Carolina circuit races leave nothing to be desired in this respect.

At the Big Store.

On next Tuesday, Oct. 5th., C. T. Munford will have his big fall opening. Millinery, dry goods, ladies suits, cloaks and furs, all of the very best styles will be seen there. Also gentlemen's clothing and furnishing goods, in fact everything new for the well-dressed man, woman or child will be seen. Watch for his announcement in Tuesday's Reflector and remember you can get things just a little bit cheaper at Munford's Big Store.

Improved Music.

By the addition of three violins, played by Mrs. L. M. Savage and Misses Essie Whichard and Ruebelle Forbes, the music at the Baptist church was greatly improved Sunday. It is expected to have the violins regularly with the choir, and the singing force has also been strengthened, so the congregations may expect good music at every service.

At Masonic Opera House.

Don't forget the moving picture show in the opera house is still in operation, with good and instructive pictures. We will start so any one can see all of the show and go to the carnival and you can see all of the show after you come back from there. Good program tonight.

Wonder is the North Pole controversy had anything to do with this weather.

Putting up the stove and getting the joints right gives some men's religion a worse strain than a carnival.

Not believing in the Trinity of the God-head to begin with, and using the Sabbath for a work day just like he would any other day, it need give no surprise that when President Taft reached Utah in his journey he extended the glad hand to the Mormons and gave them much comfort.

A wrong travels faster than a right and is sometimes never overtaken. Mr. C. L. Coon, superintendent of schools in Wilson, sometime ago went to Atlanta to read a paper before an educational meeting, and in that paper gave figures, obtained from nobody knows where, claiming that the negroes of North Carolina paid more in taxes than was expended on their schools. This statement of Mr. Coon has been taken by certain Northern papers as a ground of attack upon not only this State but the South, and a great injustice has been done. State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner has shown the absurdity and incorrectness of Mr. Coon's figures, but the papers that have used the latter will take no pains to refer to Mr. Joyner's statement and correct the wrong that has been done.

Early Frost Predicted.

Most everybody in this part of the world, who is related to a prophet or the son of a prophet, is predicting an early frost this fall. It is not known why this is the case unless it is because of the fact that there has been so much unusually cool weather during the month of September. Farmers do not fear an early frost so much on account of cotton, for the protracted drought that prevailed in this section for so many weeks has forced the cotton to very early maturity. The bolls have opened so rapidly and the plant has matured so early that the crop this year will be harvested much sooner than common. It is more on account of the large quantities of late corn in this community that an early frost is feared. A late season would be greatly beneficial to this, while an early frost would be ruinous.—Waxhaw Enterprise.

As the Durham Herald says the right kind of advertising is worth as much to a town or a community as to an individual or firm. And yet about all the advertising most towns get is what their newspapers give them—free, gratis and for nothing.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

Good Roads an Asset

Beverly is congratulating himself that one cause of its success as a summer capital is the good roads in that corner of Massachusetts. They have added much to the wider knowledge of that region as a desirable place for summer visitors. The State sets a good example in spending $200,000 a year on its roads, while the cities and towns are spending probably four times as much in co-operation with the State. It has been the State's policy in every section to build only a section of road, allowing the community to complete the connecting links, and in this way great highways or boulevards are gradually being completed in every direction. Good roads are not only beneficial to the farmer in getting his products to the market easily and quickly, but they form a strong invitation to the visitors and to automobilists.—Washington Herald.

By the death of John A. Johnson a Republican Lieutenant-Governor takes the place of a Democratic Governor in Minnesota, just as occurred in Ohio in 1906 when Gov. Pattison, a Democrat, died in office and was succeeded by Lieut.-Gov. Harris, a Republican.—New York World.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

Many a Greenville Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard.

With a back constantly aching. With distressing urinary disorders. Daily existence is but a struggle. No need to keep it up. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. One hundred thousand people endorse this claim.

Here is one case: Mrs. Joseph Fly, Jr., Rose Street Rocky Mount, N. C., says: "I am pleased to testify in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, as the results I obtained from their use proved them to be a remedy of great merit. I suffered considerably from dull, nagging back-aches and sharp pains across my loins. If I stooped, lifted or made a quick movement, the twinges were more noticeable and often it was hard for me to perform my household duties. I always felt tired and languid and was devoid of energy or ambition. Believing that the trouble arose from my kidneys, I started using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once and further use disposed of the pains in my back, regulated the passages of the kidney secretions and gave me renewed strength. I cannot say too much in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ARGUMENT BY ANAGRAM.

The Combination That Was the Undoing of Eleanor Davis.

So many Cassandras come to grief that the story of Lady Eleanor Audley, the wife of the Sir John Davies who was attorney general for Ireland in 1606, will surprise no one familiar with the prophecies of melancholy ladies. Lady Eleanor had a turn for prophecy based on Scriptural anagrams. Among other predictions she claimed to have foretold her husband's death.

"His doom I gave him in letters of his own name—John Daves, Jove's Hand—within three years to expect the mortal blow, so put on my mourning garment from that time; when about three days before his sudden death, before his servants and friends at the table, gave him part to take his long sleep, by him thus put off: 'I pray, weep not while I am alive, and I will give you leave to laugh when I am dead.'"

Sir John was made chief justice of England, but died on the day he would have taken his seat on the bench.

It was given to another than her husband, however, to give Lady Eleanor a keener dart. She was brought into the court of high commission on charges arising out of her claims to prophetic powers, which she grounded on an anagram of her name, Eleanor Davis—Reveal, O Daniel.

"And, though," writes an old chronicler, "it had too much by an L and too little by S, yet she found Daniel and Reveal in it, which served her turn."

"Much pains were taken by the court to dispossess her of this spirit, but all would not do, till Lamb, the dean of Arches, shot her through and through with an arrow borrowed from her own quiver. "For whilst the bishops and divines were reasoning the point with her out of Holy Scriptures he took a pen in his hand and at last hit on an excellent anagram:

"Dame Eleanor Davys—never so mad a lady!"—Youth's Companion.

A Reminder.

"Do you think," O'Beetle asked McFee, "that there's anything to these advertisements in which you read about a system of remembering?"

"I don't. But I do think a man can acquire the habit of making everyday affairs remind him of others."

O'Beetle poohpoohed. "Unless one thing relates closely to another it would never remind me of anything," he said.

"Well, I've known pretty brainy men to have the same idea as myself," averred McFee. "There's Jenks, the author, for instance."

"Jenks is certainly brainy," agreed O'Beetle. "He's a man of letters." He started suddenly. "And that reminds me! I've just remembered a letter my wife gave me to mail. I'll take care of it."

And while he was mailing it McFee chuckled at the quick change of opinion which had come over his friend.—New York Times.

The Monument Dwindled.

The widow of a French deputy came the day after the funeral to consult a great sculptor on the subject of a monument for her husband's tomb. The sculptor suggested a portrait bust. "Only a bust!" she cried indignantly. "I wish at least a statue with allegorical figures."

A week later, when the sculptor had the model of the group well in hand, came a note saying that she had decided that the bust, after all, would be in better taste. For some weeks the artist worked on the bust. At length the young widow arrived on the arm of an attache of legation. She opened her lorgnette and inspected the bust. "It is very like him," she said finally, "but a bust is so commonplace. A bronze medallion would be in far better taste."

The monument actually bears a medallion in bronze under the niche intended for the full length statue of the deputy.

Princess Nila's Fan.

M. Jules Claretie tells a pretty story about the first use of the fan in France as an implement of coquetry. In prehistoric days, he says, when France was peopled by fire worshippers, the king of what is now Paris was the father of a princess of great beauty, Princess Nila. It was her duty to watch over the sacred fire and coax it into flame with her fan when it was dying down. One day she had forgotten her fan and blew upon the cinders of the fire. It leaped up toward her and ever afterward refused to brighten except when the princess blew upon it. On the day when she discovered this the princess used her fan to hide her blushes, for she understood the secret of the holy fire, which had become enamored of her charms.—London Express.

MEET ME AT THE CARNIVAL!

BEING SICK IN CHINA.

What Happens When a Devil Jumps Down a Patient's Throat.

It is the custom for a Chinaman to visit the barber every week to have a general overhauling. First, the head and face are shaved; second, the ears are scraped and cleansed with a small brush made of duck's hair; third, the upper and lower eyelids are scraped with a dull edged knife, all granulations being smoothed away, and then an application is made with a duck's hair brush of salt solution.

This is the reason why you will find so much blindness in China. They take no antiseptic measures whatever.

Finally the patient's back is massaged, and after paying a fee of 3 cents and no tip he leaves the shop, feeling clean outside, but now must consult his regular physician.

After going through the usual examination, which is a form of military inspection, the doctor diagnoses the case and treats it unless a devil happens to jump down the patient's throat. If this has happened the doctor can do the patient no good until he promises to set off a hundred firecrackers and to make a daily visit to the joss house. This done, he receives the usual pills for those vacated by the devil.

These pills may consist of spotted rhinoceros horns, said to be a wonderful cure for intestinal troubles. The spotted rhinoceros horns come from southern China, and in the market at Singapore a single specimen will bring $25.

Tiger bones when ground to a powder and mixed with Chinese wine make a great blood tonic which is used by all classes of Chinese in northern China. The recipe is held by a firm in Shanghai that has become very wealthy by the sale of this tonic.

Old deer horns are balled down to make the medicinal glue which binds the fifty ingredients composing the average Chinese pills. As in these you may get anything from a pinch of gunpowder to powdered cobra tail dust it is not the fault of Wong Yik Chee if just the right kind of specific escapes the patient.

Equal in medicinal efficacy to the above are three high grade tiger remedies, the eyeball, liver and blood. As may be imagined, tiger eyeball, the genuine article, can be prescribed for only the exceedingly wealthy Chinese. Similarly the liver, when dried and reduced to a powder, is worth its weight in gold all over China. Tiger blood, when evaporated to a solid at a temperature of 110 degrees and taken as a powder, is believed by Asiatics to transform a craven into a hero.—Medical Record.

The Political Millennium.

Two Kansas farmers, one of them a Republican and the other a Democrat, were quarreling over their political beliefs. The more they argued the further apart they drifted. Finally they called in a neighbor to settle the dispute. This neighbor was a man who seldom said anything, who went about his business, was a good citizen and substantial in every way.

"Well," he replied after both had stated their sides, "my son and I have been hauling wheat nearly forty years now. There are two roads leading to the mill. One is the valley road and the other leads over the hill. But never yet has the miller asked me which road we came. He always asks, 'Is the wheat good?'"—Kansas City Journal.

THE MAN IN THE STAGE.

A Tragedy of the Olden Days in New York City.

A good many years ago, long before skyscrapers and rapid transit were thought of and New York was just a big growing town, they used to tell a story that was ghastly enough to curdle the blood of the most skeptical and to keep people of nervous temperament awake at night.

The tale went that of a summer night a husband and wife, returning home from the theater, entered a Fifth avenue stage far downtown and for many blocks were the only occupants. A little above Fourteenth street, however, the stage came to an abrupt stop, the door was opened, and three young men entered. One of the three had evidently been drinking heavily, for his companions were obliged to help him to his seat. The door was closed behind them, and the stage continued its journey northward.

About ten blocks farther on one of the young men rose and, bidding his friends good night, stopped the stage and alighted. A few minutes later the second of the three said, "Well, good night, Dick," pulled the strap, stepped to the sidewalk and walked off through one of the side streets. There remained in the stage only the husband and wife and the young man who was obviously under the influence of liquor and who sat in a crouching attitude in a corner of the stage under the dim flickering lamp.

After a time the husband noticed that the young man's head seemed to be drooping as if in sleep, and, fearing that he might be borne beyond his destination, he rose, tapped him on the shoulder and called attention to the number of the street they had just passed. There was no response, and the husband repeated his words, leaning over as he did so. Then he suddenly straightened up, turned to his wife and said quickly, "We will get out here."

She began to protest, but he simply repeated the words, pulled the strap and helped her to alight. As they stood under the corner lamppost she turned questioning and asked him why he insisted on their getting out of the bus so far below their destination.

"Because," he replied, "that young man's throat was cut from ear to ear."

HORSESHOE LUCK.

An Old Myth That Goes Back to the Greeks and Their Sea God.

Of all the emblems for good fortune the horseshoe stands among the first. Everybody knows it is unlucky to pass a horseshoe on the road without picking it up. It is a lucky emblem of the greatest power. We are indebted for this statement to old tales centuries in age that have descended from father to son, from mother to daughter, through the years.

The old myths repay research. The luck of the horseshoe has a most respectable beginning. It is traced to the religion of the old Greeks and their sea god, Poseidon, who was identical with the Roman sea god Neptune.

To Poseidon horses were sacred, and to him they were sacrificed. Poseidon was believed to have created the first horse when he struck the ground with his trident and a horse sprang from the hole, which afterward became a spring. The sea god was the lord of springs. To him all springs were ascribed. In the shape of a horse he sometimes wandered by the shores of his ocean domain, and where he struck his hoofs deeply there the waters gushed out and permanent springs were found. This is the reason why horseshoes are reckoned lucky. Going to the root of the matter, one sees a nature myth as the root principle. From the sea all rain comes, and to the sea all springs owe primal origin, and to the rain and the fresh waters, sea derived, we owe all fertility on earth.

The old Greeks therefore worshiped Poseidon as the fortune giver through his springs. They gave him horses, his precious beasts, and they adored the footprints of horses when they found them, for they might be the very footprints of the god himself.

When the horses came to be shod the transition of the luck emblem from the footprint itself to the shoe mark, practically the same thing, was easy.

Pegasus, the winged horse, from whose hoofs the water springs gushed copiously when he came to earth, has been credited with the origin of the horseshoe luck.

The horseshoe was a specific against earthquakes. It would keep a house safe from harm by earth shaking. Again one perceives the sea myth—Poseidon was the shaker of the earth.—Team Owners' Gazette.

Speaking the Truth.

The parson arrived unexpectedly to remain for supper with a large colored family in Kentucky. Immediately the cabin was in commotion, and mammy swept away the swarm of little pickaninnies with a few well timed warnings and reminders as to table manners. When supper was ready the possum and taters were tempting, and little Susie watched with despairing eyes the delectable viands diminish and fade away into nothing ere her turn came. When the parson had almost finished mammy turned to Susie and said:

"Have some mo' possum, honey?"
A pair of indignant eyes flashed.
"Mo'! I ain't had some yet!"
Exploded Susie.—Judge.

Hudson-Fulton Celebration--Excursion Rate of $18.15 Via. A. C. L. to New York and return

This historic celebration will take place from Saturday, September 25th, to Saturday, October 9th. The principal events during the first eight days will occur in greater New York and in the Hudson River opposite the city. The following week the celebration will continue at the Hudson River cities and villages from New York to Troy.

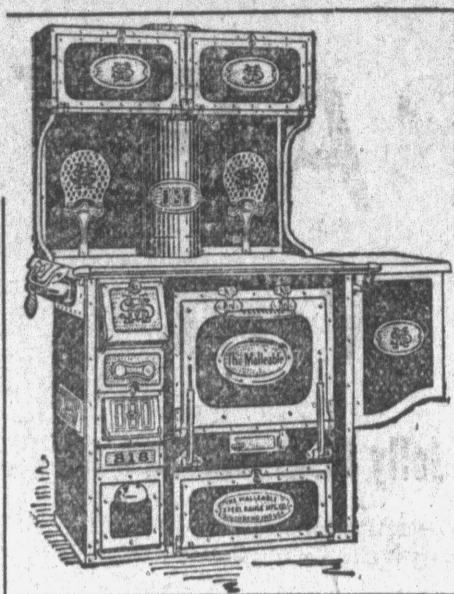

This event, commemorating the 500th Anniversary of the navigation of the Hudson River by Hendrick Hudson and the 102nd anniversary of the operation of the first steam boat by Robert Fulton, will present a spectacle on land and water, parades and illumination such as the world has never witnessed.

All the great navies of the world will be abundantly represented, which with other craft, including replicas of the historic "Halfmoon" and "Clermont" will go to make up a water parade of a thousand or more vessels, and on land there will be gorgeous spectacles in floats, parades, reviews, exhibitions, decorations and a thousand and one object lessons in our 300 years progress.

Every day will be a picture of a veritable fairyland and millions of electric lights of all colors and sizes will fairly turn night into day.

For this occasion the ATLANTIC COAST LINE will sell on September 23rd to 30th, inclusive, round trip tickets to New York at the low rate of $18.15 from Greenville. The tickets will be limited returning to leave New York any time up to and including October 10th. Mr. W. H. RIVER ON A RIDGE.

Bed of an Oklahoma Stream Higher Than Surrounding Country.

Save one other, the Yukon in Alaska, the North Canadian river in Oklahoma is the only stream in the United States whose bed has a higher altitude than the country on either side of its course. Throughout almost its entire course in Oklahoma this stream flows in a groove on the crest of a ridge and has no important tributaries. Generally flood water in the country adjacent to the North Canadian would have to run uphill to find outlet into its channel.

The watershed of Oklahoma slopes from the high plains country of the extreme western part of the state eastward to the Arkansas river and in some portions of the state southward and southerly to Red river which separates Oklahoma from Texas, the decline in altitude being from about 5,000 feet in the west to much less than 1,000 feet at the eastern edge of the state.

The North Canadian river, sometimes called the north fork of the main or South Canadian river, is formed by the junction of Wolf creek and the Beaver near Fort Supply, in Woodward county. It runs parallel to the Cimarron, the Salt Fork, the South Canadian and for a considerable distance the Deep Fork, the waters of all of which finally find their way to the Arkansas. Though the streams comparatively are close together, the North Canadian practically is 200 feet higher than the Cimarron and 180 feet higher than the South Canadian.

None of the tributaries of the North Canadian extends farther back than five or six miles from its channel. In several instances, notably at Oklahoma City, it is only about two miles northward from the channel of the river to where the watershed of the Cimarron begins. At Shawnee, thirty miles east of Oklahoma City, two miles south of the North Canadian, begins the watershed of the South Canadian. In the Creek Nation, in the neighborhood of Lenna, the Deep fork and the North Canadian, are only about three miles apart, the former being a mud stream and the latter filled with dangerous quicksands.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Result of an Accident.

Talleyrand was the greatest diplomatist of his day. His father was a military officer, and the boy would no doubt have been educated to the same profession but for an accident which befell him in childhood. After the fashion of the time, he was entrusted to the care of a woman some miles away from home. While in her charge his foot was dislocated by a fall. It was not properly cared for, and his parents did not become aware of the fact until it was too late to correct the error. The abnormal strain brought upon the other foot soon induced a lameness in that also, and the boy thus became a cripple for life. This seeming misfortune determined a change in the plans of his parents for him, and as a result the name of Talleyrand has become one of the most familiar among the great ones of modern history.

Pitcher Plant.

One of the most remarkable carnivorous vegetables in the world is the pitcher plant of the tropics. It is safe to say at least that no other plant in its kingdom is more ingenious in catching its prey and in disposing of it afterward. The plant is shaped very much like a pitcher, with the mouth, of course, at the top. The pitcher is, moreover, perfectly water tight and is usually well filled with rainwater. The sides are very smooth and inviting. The plant, thus equipped, lies in wait, if the expression may be used, until some fly or small insect enters or falls into the water compartment. So smooth are the sides that when the prey is once in the water it has great difficulty in getting out and, as a rule, quickly drowns. The insect is then devoured by the plant.

A laugh costs too much if it is bought at the expense of propriety.—Quintillana.

A NOBLE REVENGE.

The Boy Who Was Cuffed and the Man Who Struck Him.

The coffin was a plain one—a poor, miserable pine coffin. No flowers on the top; no lining of white satin for the pale brow; no smooth ribbons about the coarse shroud. The brown hair was laid decently back, but there was no crimped cap, with neat tie beneath the chin. The sufferer from cruel poverty smiled in her sleep; she had found bread, rest and health.

"I want to see my mother," sobbed a poor little child as the undertaker screwed down the top.

"You cannot; get out of my way, boy. Why doesn't somebody take care of the brat?"

"Only let me see her one minute!" cried the hapless orphan, clutching the side of the charity box, and as he gazed upon the rough box agonized tears streamed down the cheeks on which no childish bloom ever lingered. "Only once; let me see my mother only once!"

Quickly and brutally the heartless monster struck the boy away, so that he reeled with the blow. For a moment the boy stood panting with grief and rage—his blue eyes distended; his lips sprang apart, fire glittering through his eyes as he raised his little arm with a most unchildish laugh and screamed, "When I am a man I'll be revenged for that!"

There were a coffin and a heap of earth between the mother and the poor forsaken child. A monument much stronger than granite built in the boy's heart was the memory of the heartless deed.

The courthouse was crowded to suffocation.

"Does any one appear as this man's counsel?" asked the judge.

There was a silence when he had finished until, with lips tightly pressed together, a look of strange intelligence blended with a haughty reserve upon the handsome features, a young man stepped forward with a firm tread and kindly eye to plead for the erring friendless.

He was a stranger, but at the first sentence there was silence. The splendor of his genius entranced, convinced.

The man who could find a friend was acquitted.

"May God bless you, sir; I cannot," he said.

"I want no thanks," replied the stranger.

"I—I believe you are unknown to me."

"Man, I will refresh your memory. Twenty years ago this day you struck a broken hearted little boy away from his dear mother's coffin. I was that boy."

The man turned livid.

"Have you rescued me then to take my life?"

"No; I have a sweeter revenge. I have saved the life of a man whose brutality has rankled in my breast for the last twenty years. Go, then, and remember the tears of a friendless child.

The man bowed his head in shame and went from the presence of magnanimity as grand to him as it was incomprehensible.—Anonymous.

Washing Pink Garments.

An old laundress took a great deal of pride in all her work, but especially in the fact that she kept the color in the clothes. She used to say, "When a man buys a blue shirt I think he wants to wear a blue shirt, so I never fade it." This was her little scheme for keeping pink in garments that were of that extremely perishable color: She poured boiling water over a piece of red cheesecloth, let it stand for a few minutes till the color was all out of the cheesecloth, then poured the dye into a bucket of cold water and after washing and thoroughly rinsing the garment put it into the dye water and allowed it to remain for perhaps an hour. Then she wrung it out and hung it to dry. No matter how old and faded the material, this method gives it a perfectly even coloring.—

OUR PIANO WAREROOM Now Open.

WITH the exception of two makes which have not reached us yet, the most of the makes which we intend to handle are now on our floor, next to Carr & Atkins Hardware Co. The grandest display ever shown. In this magnificent group of pianos can be seen, the artistic Lester. This strictly high grade piano is used in the leading Conservatories of the U. S., among them in the New England Conservatory, Boston, largest musical institution in the U. S. The East Carolina Teachers' Training School, Greenville, N. C., has also equipped its music departments with these famous instruments. The renowned Henry and S. G. Lindeman Pianos, this concern is one of the most noted of the pioneers in the piano industry in this country. Of this piano we quote from the music trades:

"Mr. Henry Lindeman is considered to be one of the few really scientific and expert piano makers we have living today. He is also recognized as an expert scale drawer and his reputation for developing the same is second to none in the trade. He stands pre-eminent as a maker of scales of pianos." Six other makes are all standard and legitimate. Among those "the Boudoir pianos" known as the smallest high grade, upright, ever manufactured "Nothing ever like it" A truly artistic little piano and is the artists' favorite of the little pianos. We thus quote the celebrated Madam Emma Calve: "Relative to the Boudoir Piano, which I purchased for my private use last February and used by me in my Trans-Continental Tour. I desire to say that this piano has certainly proved itself to be a little jewel. To state the whole truth, I am enthusiastic over this little piano. It possesses a quality of tone that is sweet and sympathetic, being practically well adapted to accompanying my voice, and a volume that is the equal of, if not surpassing, pianos of usual size. It is truly a wonderful little piano, and I would not dispose of mine for any consideration."

We invite the public to visit our wareroom. Are you considering the purchase of pianos, or have you one in your home on trial? Come and look at ours, and your home will be made happier and your pocket book will remain decidedly in a healthier condition. Terms to suit your convenience. Not Guilty.

Martin Gosford's hens received so much blame to which they were justly entitled that when their owner could prove them guiltless of depredations he hastened to their defense. "My flower beds are in a terrible condition, Mr. Gosford," said one of his summer neighbors one day.

"I know they be; I know they be," groaned Martin. "But my hens didn't do it this time, Mis' Gage!"

"Are you sure?" asked the lady in a tone of chill doubt.

"Yes, ma'am, I am," said Martin, with emphasis. "There was only one chicken, Mis' Gage, and it hadn't but just went into the front bed when I sot my dog after it, and he chased that chicken through every last one o' them flower beds till he got it headed for home, an' there wa'n't nary another chicken nor hen dast go nigh 'em."—Youth's Companion.

Thoughtful Husband.

Parting is hard to bear, and the young man who endeavors to soften its pangs for his bride of a month certainly deserves commendation.

"And now that our honeymoon is over and we are settled in our own home must you leave me for three whole days for the sake of business, Henry?" asked the clinging wife in a tone of reproach.

"I must, dear Mabel," said the young husband. "But to make the separation seem less abrupt I am going on the accommodation train instead of the express."

All the Time Improving!

"Every time I come to Greenville I see new improvements" is the way a recent visitor expressed himself. That is what we are here for, never stand still but keep improving all the time.

The bad weather cuts down both tobacco and cotton receipts, with a corresponding shortness in all other business.
