'HER AMERICAN HUSBAND'

A Splendid Attraction Awaits Our People.

Mr. Walter Cluxton and his company, who will tonight in the opera house present "Her American Husband" under the auspices of the End of the Century Book Club for the benefit of the public library, arrived this morning. The sale of seats for this attraction indicates that it will be greeted with the largest audience that has been in the opera house for sometime.

This musical comedy was presented in Washington Tuesday night, and the Daily News says of it:

The audience was well pleased and the laughter and applause was continuous throughout the evening. Mr. Cluxton is an accomplished actor and his recitation of the "Fallen Star" was the most finished and beautiful bit of acting ever seen in this town. Miss Bessie Brennan, too, is an elocutionist of great accomplishment, and received encore after encore to her Dago songs and recitations. The musical selections were all pleasing and the company have unusually good voices, but perhaps the best among them is that of Mr. Peitier, who as McAllister did some of the best work on the stage. His voice, both for singing and speaking, is rich, deep musical, and it is safe to say that no finer bass voice has been heard here. The violin solo by Miss Catherine Clarke was delightful and much appreciated by the house.

The following new books have been added to the library:

The Calling of Dan Matthews, by Harold Beel Wright.

The Open Country, by Hewlett.

The library is open on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 3 to 5 p. m.

All Visitors Provided For.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 4.—The entertainment of an overflow of thousands of visitors is a tax upon any city at times, but the rush of people to Wilmington Taft day, Tuesday, November 9th, will find that ample provision has been made in advance to provide them with lodgings and plenty to eat. The committee on accommodations of which Mr. Thomas H. Wright is chairman, has established headquarters in the Garrell building, at the southeast corner of Second and Princess streets, and the handsome room, which is on the ground floor at the street corner, is easily accessible. It has been equipped with two service 'phones, a long distance 'phone and a telegraph station, so that the committee and visitors can have every facility for the use of these conveniences.

The committee on accommodations has made a systematic canvass of every street in the city and has on record all hotels, boarding houses, and private residences where lodgings can be had. Those who secure rooms without meals will find numerous restaurants and cafes throughout the city. A competent force will be on duty at headquarters to direct visitors to stopping places and those who desire to secure accommodations in advance can address Mr. Thomas H. Wright, chairman, 124 Princess street. Headquarters will be designated by a big banner, at the union station there will also be a banner directing visitors to headquarters.

FINE CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

These Flowers Now in Their Glory—Editor Takes a Look.

The editor took a short while off this morning to feast his eyes on several collections of chrysanthemums. Greenville has some very successful growers of this beautiful flower who now have many magnificent specimens in their yards. Those visited this morning were Mrs. D. D. Haskett, Mrs. R. Hymn, Miss Etta Hines and Mrs. J. J. Cherry. These ladies each have beautiful collections and have shown their skill in making them grow to perfection. It was indeed a feast to view such flowers, and the ladies have cause to feel proud of their success in growing them.

Trade Report.

Richmond Va., Nov. 4, 1909. Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity. Little change is noticed in trade conditions generally as compared with last week. In most lines the tendency continues towards improvement and in some lines the demand is equal to any period of recent years. A marked activity in lumber of most all denominations is noticeable. Wholesale grocers and manufacturers of grocers' specialties and confections are beginning to feel the activity of the pre-holiday season. Retail trade shows improvement, however, the volume is small in seasonable lines on account of unusually late fall. In North Carolina most lines show improvement, the high prices of cotton has put larger amounts of money in circulation than usual, and has improved collections. Continued dry weather in Virginia has retarded the early marketing of sun cured tobacco and winter wheat is reported coming up poorly. The wholesale and manufacturing paper and paper bag trade shows activity. Building continues unusually active for the season. Railroad reports almost without exception, show gains over last year in freight receipts and fewer idle cars. A marked feature with railroads in the South is the placing of large orders for additional equipment. Trunk and bag manufacturers report active ordering. Collections show improvement in most lines.

Inaugural Ceremonies.

The Trustees of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School request the honor of your presence at the Inauguration of President Robert H. Wright on Friday morning, November the twelfth, nineteen hundred and nine at ten o'clock Greenville, North Carolina.

The above is an exact copy of the invitations which are being sent out to the inaugural ceremonies of President Wright, November 12th. As the citizens of Greenville and Pitt county, in keeping with their proverbial hospitality, have indicated their desire to take part in these ceremonies, no invitations will be sent to any person in the town or county except to teachers. But it is expected that every citizen will feel that this is his school and his occasion, and that he will be present if possible. If any citizen of the town or county has friends to whom he would like to have invitations sent, this will be done, provided he will send a list of the names with post-office address, to C. W. Wilson, chairman of the invitation committee.

Evils of Cigarette Habit.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Prof. J. W. Jenks in a lecture at Cornell today, said:

"The evils of cigarette smoking from the physical side, as illustrated by careful medical investigation in a large Eastern university during a period of nine years, were made clear. It was shown that non-users of cigarettes gained physically about 25 per cent. more than cigarette smokers.

"The habit, especially in early youth, leads to excesses in other directions that are even more deleterious. A similar effect seems to be felt on scholarship. As a rule, with, of course, individual exceptions, the all-around scholars of the highest attainments, like the all-around athletes of the highest grade, abstain totally from the use of cigarettes."

Greenville Lady Takes Part.

In publishing on account of the annual meeting of the Door of Hope Association of Rochester, N. Y., the Evening Times of that city makes this mention of the part taken in the program by a Greenville lady, which will be of interest to Reflector readers:

"Songs were given by Mrs. William Price, which added much to the programme, and Mrs. James B. Cherry was thoroughly artistic in her negro dialect recitations. As she is a Southern woman, she has a perfect accent and brings her knowledge of the old Southern darkies, both before and after the war to bear upon her clever impersonations."

Another Good Farmer.

Mr. J. B. Speight, of Contentnea, is another farmer who does things, and believes in making his farm show results. He does not think he is doing much in the way of cotton unless he makes over a bale to the acre, and when it comes to potatoes he raises them on a large scale. Mr. Speight tells us that he has just dug a little over one-fourth acre of yams and got 110 bushels of fine marketable potatoes besides about 25 bushels of slips. He brought The Reflector six of these yams that weigh 17½ pounds and more than fill a peck measure.

Box for Missionary.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Baptist church will pack a box for one of our State missionaries at the home of Miss Annie Lawrence, on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All wishing to make a contribution will please send their offering to Miss Lawrence by the time mentioned. Let every member of the society and all others who wish to do so, be present at the packing.

They could not pull off the election in Kentucky without killing somebody.

That four armed men could enter a camp occupied by fifty workmen and bind, gag and rob the whole bunch of them, sounds fishy, but that is what a news item says took place near Patterson, N. J.

Since both ends of the earth, the North Pole and the South Pole, have been the subject of so much discussion by explorers and scientists, another fellow has expressed a desire and determination to explore the interior of this mundane sphere. His plan is to make the investigation by boring, and the country will likely be bored before he gets his job finished.

No matter what sort of work you are doing, try to do it a little better than the other fellow. Emerson says somewhere that if a man can do anything supremely well, no matter if he live in a wilderness, the world will make a beaten path to his door. And this is very true. I rode the other day to see a farmer who lives not many miles from where I am writing and found that the governor of the State had just been there to see his corn crop, and a great number of other men had come miles and miles to see this man's farm. And why? Simply because he had done more with an acre than any other man in the county.—Progressive Farmer.

The American people spend over a billion dollars for automobiles and over a billion for physicians, it is estimated. They probably haven't stopped counting what is spent for ambulances and hearses.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The Progressive Farmer reports that "North Carolina is pushing right ahead in the matter of investigating the Torrens System of registering land titles. The committee appointed by the last legislature held its first session last week, and the matter will doubtless be prominently before the public when members of the next legislature are chosen." It would be a good idea to commit all candidates for the legislature to the support of a law similar to the Torrens system. An improved system of registering land deeds is a necessity in this State.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THE VICIOUS PECCARY.

A Fierce Creature Is the South American Wild Boar.

HE IS SMALL, BUT FEARLESS

Will Attack Man or Any Animal in Existence on the Slightest Provocation and Will Fight to the Death—A Battle With a Jaguar.

During one of his journeys into Mexico Edward W. Walton, a mining expert, had a close call from being sliced to shreds by the fierce little South American pig known as peccaries. He told the story of his escape to a Denver Post reporter.

"I wished to secure some plumes from a number of the beautifully plumaged birds," said Mr. Walton. "I went into the jungle and came to a small opening in which there were dry leaves, probably a foot in depth, covering the ground, and hundreds of beautifully colored tropical birds in the air and in the trees. I fired at one of the birds in flight, when it seemed to me the whole area of these dead leaves arose in front of and all around me. Being a stranger, naturally I was much frightened, especially when I saw the animals which raised up the leaves apparently ready for an attack. The older animals opened and closed their mouths, showing their big, sharp tusks, formed much like a dirk knife, and some of them started toward me. Impulsively I commenced firing my gun in the air and turned around, which seemed to stop most of them momentarily, and as I had lots of cartridges I kept up the shooting, and they turned and ran away. I found afterward that I had saved my life by so doing and by not shooting any of the animals.

"These animals proved to be peccaries. They are most ferocious and will attack any animal in existence on the slightest provocation. When I got back to headquarters and told my companions my experience I was informed that had I shot one of the animals and made him squeal the whole bunch would have been on me and would have torn me to pieces quickly. They have been known to kill bears, jaguars, cattle, horses and any number of dogs. Although in the fight scores of their number might be killed, they seem to have no fear when once aroused.

"I was told the peccaries burrow under the dry leaves to protect themselves from mosquitoes and other winged pests of that hot country. My friends had many exciting experiences to tell in regard to these ferocious little animals. One of this party, while traveling with a companion in a wagon, stopped for lunch under some trees and turned their horses out to graze. While at lunch a large bunch of peccaries appeared, and they thought it would be nice to shoot among them and get one or two for meat, so they fired into them, wounding several, which commenced to squeal. Then the whole bunch made an attack. The men climbed quickly into the wagon and kept on shooting so long as the ammunition which they had in their pockets lasted. As they were opening their bags to get out more ammunition the peccaries climbed up the tongue of the wagon and jumped into it, and the men saved themselves only by jumping on to the seat and then on to limbs of the trees, the peccaries taking possession of the wagon and tearing things to pieces. They remained in possession for hours, the men watching them from safety in the trees."

The peccary, or South American wild boar, is the smallest of his species, averaging about three feet long, nor is the animal possessed of any unusual degree of strength. To make up for the natural individual deficiencies in combat with the more powerful animals of the jungle the peccaries always travel in large herds. When once attacked by a herd of peccaries the outcome is nearly always death to their enemy. The little pigs are armed with short sharp tusks, and no matter how great the slaughter of their own number during the melee the herd stay on the job until the work is finished.

Travelers in tropical and South American countries tell of fierce encounters between the peccaries and the jaguar, the monster cat which is lord of the forest. The jaguar has a fondness for a dinner of pork, but a wholesome respect for the power of a herd of wild pigs. When he wants to satisfy his cravings for a pork diet he drops from a limb of a tree on to the back of a straggler in the peccary herd. The jaguar slays his victim and then retreats hastily to his tree before the herd can get at him. When the herd grows tired of waiting for him to come down and moves along the jaguar descends and enjoys his meal at leisure. Frederick Selous in his romance of the animal world has an interesting account of a fight between a jaguar and a herd of peccaries. The peccaries had the jaguar treed on the limb of a tree from which the park had rotted away. He was only a few feet above them and by harassing and jumping at their enemy finally succeeded in bringing the conflict to the ground. After the fight was over there were eleven killed and wounded peccaries, but the jaguar was literally torn to pieces.

Same Thing Now.
"You know woman was once the head of the family," she said.
"No need to speak of that in the past tense," replied her husband meekly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The most sublime act is to set another before you.—William Blake.

A TRAGIC MOMENT.

Two Famished Men and Their Last Fifty Cent Piece.

A group of old time journeymen printers the other night were describing their wanderings up and down and across the map of the United States and pointing the descriptions of their journeys with little hard luck stories of their own experiences here and there. A little gray man with a high forehead who had been listening meekly all evening to the reminiscences of the others finally was moved to speech.

"I've worked in newspaper offices and printshops in nearly every kind of a burg in this country from Father Knickerbocker's town to the shacks in Red Gulch, and I have had to 'batter gates' once in awhile for a little broken grub," said he.

"I have been a little more than hungry at times, and I used the side door Pullman in most of my little journeys. But I believe the saddest and most hopeless moment of my life was in Chicago late in the fall of the year of the big Columbian exposition. Me and a pal of mine had drifted in there from the wide southwest somewhere, and we were both just about broke. Our clothes were getting thin, and the October breezes coming across the lake were beginning to chill us to the bone. But we clubbed together one day and raised enough to pay our admissions into the fair. We were bound to see it, although it left us one lonesome half dollar between the two of us.

"All day we tramped, feasting our eyes on the marvels of the big show, and late in the afternoon we landed back uptown, with our heads full of Venetian lagoons and white palaces. We still had the half dollar, and in the intervals of recalling this and that exhibit to each other we were planning how to spend the 50 cents to the best advantage. We were nearing the Rush street bridge when we began to laugh over the queer antics and mannerisms of a group of single eyeglassed Englishmen we had run across that afternoon in the British exhibit.

"My pardner was mincing along, giving an imitation of one of their 'ludships,' and, suddenly thinking of the fifty cent piece, ran his hand into his pocket and, lifting it to his eye, began using it as a monocle. Just at the height of his antics the half dollar slipped from his eye, bounced and rolled a few inches and slipped through a crack in the bridge floor down into the sluggish waters of the Chicago river. It was tragic. There was nothing to be said. We just looked at one another for a minute and tramped on across the bridge."—St. Louis Republic.

Startling Instance of Longevity.

One of the most curious instances of longevity is found in Miss Louisa Courtenay's "Notes of an Octogenarian." A witness in a will case in which Bellenden-Ker, the great English conveyancer, was engaged was asked if he had any brothers or sisters. He replied that he had one brother who died 150 years ago. The court expressed incredulity, and documentary evidence was produced in support of the statement. This showed that the witness' father, who married first at the age of nineteen, had a son who died in infancy. The father married again at the age of seventy-five and had a son who lived to appear in the witness box at the age of ninety-four and made the above startling statement.

So Sudden.

Young Smith (who has mustered courage at last to ascertain his fate)
—And you will be my bride, dear Nellie?

Nellie—I will answer you, Mr. Smith, when we are alone.
Young Smith—When we are alone?

Nellie—Yes. Eject my young brother. He is under the sofa. (The young brother is ejected.) Now open the cupboard and tell my sister, who is listening, politely, but firmly, to depart. (The sister departs.)

Young Smith (wiping his brow)
—Now, darling, the coast is clear. Will you be mine?

Nellie—No! (Collapse of Smith.)
—London Tit-Bits.

A Fatal Funeral.

An extraordinary series of fatalities occurred at Madrid. An old lady died suddenly, and when the hearse came to convey her body to the graveyard the coachman fell from the box in a fit of apoplexy and died immediately. A woman among the mourners was so upset at this that she fell dead, as though struck by lightning, and a child in her arms was dashed against the stones with such violence that its skull was fractured. Instead of one death four had to be notified to the authorities.

PATTI'S GIFT.

Hidden in a Basket of Flowers She Found a Tiny Dog.

During one of the most admirable performances that Donizetti's opera ever received in this country an incident occurred that lent momentous interest to Patti's appearance.

Mme. Diaz, wife of the president of Mexico, had heard of the death of Patti's pet dog Ricci and had sent her another, which was presented to the diva in a novel way. The tiny animal was buried in a basket of roses, but an usher discovered it, and the manager refused permission.

At the next act, however, Mr. Abbey relented and allowed the usher to convey the gift. The basket in which the dog was hidden was a triumph of floral art, and Mme. Patti, attracted by the beauty of its design and the gorgeous bloom of its roses, chose to carry it personally off the stage.

As she lifted the basket and kissed its flowers the little dog, which was badly frightened by the experience it had had, gave a feeble cry. The diva started, looked curiously into the mass of flowers, gave a purely feminine scream of delight and, running down to the footlights, whispered gleefully to the audience, "I declare if it isn't a lovely little dog!"

No one who has not been at a Patti performance can realize the enthusiastic volume of applause that greeted this announcement. Men jumped up on the chairs and yelled "Brava, brava, Patti!" and women waved their fans and handkerchiefs and cried hysterically. Suddenly Patti dived her curly head into the basket and kissed the dog, whereat a fresh storm of cheers rang through the house. Then she tried to extract the little animal from the flowers, so that she could show him to the audience, but he was tied in securely with ribbons.

Whereupon she said in dumb but eloquent pantomime, "I can't get him out." Finally, as the applause showed no signs of abatement, she ran off the stage, gave the dog and his basket to an attendant, came tripping back and whispered, "Home, Sweet Home," to Signor Arditì, and the ballad was sung as only Patti could sing it.

There were tears in her eyes as she finished, and many a man in the auditorium choked down a sob and many a woman wept silently as the pathetic strains of the old song floated in mournful cadence through the auditorium.

Working Round to It.

A north country collier, anxious to pop the question to a girl whom he honestly admired, but unable to sum up courage to ask her the question outright, adopted a method of sounding her as to her idea of matrimony.

"Jenny, ma lass," he said nervously, "Ah've insured ma life."

"Has ta, lad?" said Jenny indifferently.

"Ah, and Ah'm a silly for doing so."

"How's that?"

"Why, supposin' Ah get killed 't pit, where dost t' think t' money'll go?"

"Why, to thy feyther, for sure."

"True enuf. An' it isn't fair. It ought to be paid to ma wife."

"To thy wife! Why, tha hasn't got one!"

"That's just it," said Bill. "But thou's a nice lass, Jenny, and I want thee to hev that money."

"Why couldn't tha say so at first?" cried Jenny joyfully. Then the couple embraced.—London Tit-Bits.

Lost Temper.

"Lost temper does great harm," said a politician. "I once knew a man who held thirteen trumps at whist, and on account of his partner's temper he took only one trick with that ideal hand."

"Impossible!" sneered a reporter who conducted a weekly bridge column.

"Impossible? Not at all," was the politician's reply. "You see, as soon as this man trumped his partner's ace on the first play his partner in a rage jumped up and kicked him out of the room."

Accounting For Patrick Henry.

It is related that Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase on stopping at the birthplace of Patrick Henry in Virginia exclaimed: "What an atmosphere! What a view! What glorious mountains! No wonder that Patrick Henry grew here!" Whereupon an honest native dryly remarked that the atmosphere, the view and the mountains had been there for ages, but that only one Patrick Henry had been produced.—Macon Telegraph.

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia. Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.

When it is recalled that—Apoplexy, Heart Disease, Cancer—and even Consumption—are due to poor digestion and poisons thus transmitted to the blood, and throughout the system—the importance of maintaining good digestion is at once realized.

We knew what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly harmless.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2 1/2 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CURIOUS MEDICINES.

Prescriptions Which Were Used in the Eighteenth Century.

The following prescriptions, which were published in 1731, show a degree of credulity hardly to be excused from "the father of modern chemistry and brother of the Earl of Cork." The book is said to be written by "the Honorable R. Boyle, late Fellow of the Royal Society," for the benefit of "those Upholders of Families who not find or see a Surgeon or a doctor." Here are a few specimens:

For Convulsions, Especially in Children.—Take Earth-Worms, wash them well in White-wine to cleanse them, but so as that they may not die in the Wine; Then up-hollow Tiles or between them, the Worms with a moderate heat, and no further than that they may be conveniently reduced to water; to one Ounce of which add pretty Number of Grains of Am-grise, both to perfume the Powder (whose Scent of itself is rank) to make the medicine the more acious.

Prevent the Toothache and the Teeth Sound.—Let the patient frequently rub his Teeth gently with the Ashes that remain in Tobacco-Pipes, after the use of the Body hath been con-sin in Smoak; some time after, gargle (if need be) his Mouth with Water not too cold.

Uncommon but Experienced Remedy For Dysenterical Fluxes.—Take the Bone or the Thigh of a dead Man (perhaps another may serve), catch it to whiteness, and having purg'd the Patient with an antimonial medicine, give him 1 Dram of this White Powder for one Dose, in some good Cordial, whether Conserve or Liqueur.

A Choice External Remedy for a Sore Throat.—Take Millepedes alive, and sew them up between the foldings of a piece of Linnen; and apply them to the Throat in the form of a stay, which is to be kept on all Night.

For an Ague.—Take of the Bone called "Platella," of the Knee of a dead Man, and having reduced it to fine Powder, give of it as much as will lie upon a groat or a six-pence for one Dose, in any proper Conserve, or fit Vehicle.—London Lancet.

The Line He Carried.

Bishop Watterson of Nebraska was never at a loss for an answer to impertinent questions. One day he met a man on the train who mistook him for a traveling salesman and started in to quiz the bishop.

"Do you represent a big house?" he began as an opener.

"The very biggest on earth," replied the bishop, with a twinkle in his eye.

"What's the name of the firm?" continued the questioner.

"Lord and Church," smiled the bishop pleasantly.

"Hum! 'Lord and Church!' Never heard of them. Is it boots or shoes?"

"Oh, yes, indeed—branch houses anywhere?"

"Oh, yes, indeed—branch houses all over the world."

"Hum! That's queer! Never heard of them. Is it boots or shoes?"

"Neither."

"Oh, I see—dry goods, I suppose."

"Well, yes; they do call my sermons that sometimes."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Parable of the Pebbles.

Once upon a time a very wise lady saw a chicken eat a pebble. Then the wise lady told what she had seen, with additions.

"A strict pebble diet is the only thing for chickens," affirmed she.

Not until the poor birds had died by thousands did the people realize that because one chicken eats one pebble once all chickens do not want their entire diet to consist of pebbles.—Puck.

UNITED STATES MONEY

There Are Ten Kinds on Uncle Sam's Official List.

ALL ARE NOT LEGAL TENDER.

Some of the Most Imposing of the Paper Currency May Be Lawfully Refused When Offered in Payment of an Obligation of Any Kind.

Officially there are just ten kinds of money in circulation in the United States. Could you name them all off-hand? Do you know which of those besides gold coin are legal tender and in what amount? It may be that "all money looks alike to you," but there's a difference, and below is the list:

Gold coins, standard silver dollars, subsidiary silver, gold certificates, silver certificates, treasury notes (1890), United States notes (greenbacks), national bank notes, nickel coins and bronze coins.

Looking upon this formidable classification of United States money as made by the treasury department, it becomes more formidable when it is considered from the highly technical point of view as a legal tender. Some of the most imposing of the paper currency is not a legal tender at all, while, as to the minor coins, they are legal tender in such small amounts as to startle the average layman. It may be well to recall to this layman that the term "legal tender" owes its significance to the fact that in payment of debt or obligation of any kind it can be forced upon the creditor "in full of all demands."

Gold certificates, silver certificates and national bank notes, of which such enormous numbers circulate everywhere, are not legal tender. If you have plenty of money and if you have forced Jones to sue you in order to get judgment, Jones can turn down every one of these bills tendered in payment and force you to dig up something better.

Should Jones do such a thing you might conceive the idea of fixing him by unloading a whole lot of silver coins upon him. But you want to know what you're doing there, too, for he'll take only $10 worth of halves, quarters and dimes, while of nickels and copper cents only 25 cents value is legal tender.

But as to the standard silver dollar, there's no limit upon your shoveling them out to Jones. This old "dollar of our dad's" still is the real thing in all business transactions unless some clause in a contract has provided otherwise. Jones may refuse the silver certificate, but when you dig up the metal dollar they go unquestioned at their face value. And 1,000 of them weigh 68.92 pounds.

Treasury notes of the act of 1890 are legal tender to their face value in payment of all debts, public and private, unless expressly stipulated in the contract.

Strictly speaking, the United States notes or greenbacks are legal tender, with the exception of duties on imports and interest on the public debt. Practically, however, since the resumption of specie payment in 1879, greenbacks have been received freely and without question by the government, though the law respecting them hasn't been changed.

While the gold and silver certificates are not legal tender as between individuals, both issues are receivable for all government dues of whatever kind. In this respect legally more acceptable than is the greenback.

National bank notes, while not legal tender and not receivable for duties on imports, still may be paid by the government for salaries and all debts of the government except interest dues and in redemption of national currency.

By special enactment no foreign coin of any kind or denomination shall be a legal tender in the United States, so that if some time the street car conductor does balk at the chance Canadian dime fished from your pocket keep cool and dig for something that is United States. It's your move.—Chicago Tribune.

Fun For the Boy.

"So you tried to convince your son that he was not too old to be subjected to corporal discipline?"

"That's what I did," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "I gave him a good old fashioned dressin' down in the woodshed jes' the same as if he had been ten years younger."

"What did he do?"

"He jes' laughed an' said it reminded him of the good times he had when he was bein' initiated in his college fraternity."—Washington Star.

Where Courtesy Prevails.

"The South Americans are very polite," said the man who travels.

"Naturally," answered Miss Cayenne. "In some of those republics it is not safe to slight the humblest citizen. There is no telling what moment he may become president."—Washington Star.

Marriage.

"Marriage may be compared to a tram car," said a confirmed bachelor.

"Why?" asked his fair partner.

"Because some people are just as anxious to get out of it as others are to enter!"—London Telegraph.

Foresight.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is foresight? Pa—Foresight, my son, is the faculty of bring around when there is a melon to be cut.—Chicago News.

Giving Him Her Trade.

There was a new clerk at the corner drug store.

"Will you please let me have a stamp?" smiled the woman.

The clerk laid one on the counter and took the money.

"I wish," said she, "that you would weigh this letter. Maybe it takes more than 2 cents." He weighed it.

"Only 2 cents, madam," he said. Then, taking the stamp up from the counter where she had left it lying, he added politely, "Allow me to put it on for you," and he did.

"You are so nice," said she, "that I'm going to begin to buy my postcards here too."—New York Press.

The Flying Idea.

The first man who got the theory of the flying machine right was no less a person than the painter Leonardo da Vinci. He pictured it as heavier than air, provided with wings and uplifter, in spite of its weight, by the rapid revolutions of a propeller. Leonardo had an idea that the propeller might be turned by clockwork or by setting a number of laboring men to turn a handle, but in that respect he was mistaken.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Logical.

"A disease should be attacked at its source."

"Then if a man's disease is hereditary I suppose you'd doctor his father for it, eh?"—Exchange.

As the births of living creatures at first are ill shaped, so are all innovations, which are the births of time.

LINCOLN TRIED IT.

And That Ended the Naval Sweatbox Punishment.

On one of Mr. Lincoln's excursions to Fortress Monroe on the steamer Hartford in 1863 his attention was directed to a narrow door bound with iron, the use of which he was anxious to learn.

"What is this?" he asked. "Oh, that is the sweatbox," was the reply. "It is used for refractory and insubordinate seamen. A man in there is subjected to steam heat and has very little ventilation. It generally brings him to terms very quickly."

President Lincoln's curiosity was aroused. "This," he said to himself, "is treatment to which thousands of American seamen are probably subjected every year. Let me try it for myself, and see what it really is."

Taking off his hat, for he was several inches over six feet in height, he entered the inclosure, which he found to be little more than three feet in length or width. He gave orders that at a signal from himself the door should be immediately opened. It was then closed and the steam turned on.

He had been inside hardly three minutes before the signal was given. President Lincoln had experienced enough of what was then regarded as necessary punishment for American seamen. There was very little ventilation, and the short exposure to the hot and humid air had almost suffocated him.

Turning to Secretary Welles of the navy department, the president ordered that no such inclosure as the sweatbox should ever after be allowed on any vessel flying the American flag.

It was not an hour after this order had been given before every sailor on every ship in Hampton Roads had heard of it. The effect was most remarkable on the older sailors, many of whom had themselves experienced the punishment of the sweatbox. Some of them wept for joy.

But the good results of this act of President Lincoln were not confined to the American navy. Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries heard that the sweatbox had been abolished in America as inhuman. One and all of these nations in turn fell into line, and today the sweatbox is not to be found on any vessel flying the flag of a civilized nation throughout the world.

RAN THE BLOCKADE.

Putting Through a Risky Piece of Business at Santiago.

Some naval officers at a dinner party the other evening were discussing the efficacy of the Cuban blockade in 1898. That many vessels ran the blockade at Havana, Cienfuegos and elsewhere was admitted.

"But only one vessel ever ran the Santiago blockade," said one of the speakers, "and that was one of our own vessels, the little Gloucester."

He then described how the Gloucester ran the blockade, while commanded by Dick Wainwright, then a lieutenant commander, who had previously been executive officer of the Maine when it blew up.

"We had been sent down to Asseraderos to communicate with the insurgents," said the raconteur, who was on the Gloucester at the time. "Upon our return it was quite dark, and we were proceeding slowly to our station on the inside line of the blockade when the electric signaling apparatus broke down. We could not give a signal, particularly the private identification signal of the night. Had we been discovered by one of the blockading vessels it would at once have flashed the signal, and if we did not immediately respond it would have promptly opened fire. We would have been blown to pieces in a minute."

"It was a risky piece of business, but Dick Wainwright was perfectly cool, and the Gloucester actually picked its way without being discovered through the whole blockading fleet, took up its station on the inside line, under the Morro, and as soon as the signaling apparatus was repaired reported its arrival. It was a clear case of blockade running, but it was mighty ticklish while it lasted."—San Francisco Call.

A Real Consolation.

Little Molly's father can't quite see where Molly got her information. One day when her unmarried aunt was visiting at their house Molly became impressed with her aunt's solitary state. "Haven't you any husband, Aunt Molly?" she asked. Aunt Molly's pretended grief over the fact that she, was husbandless was so real to Molly that she undertook the task of consolation. "Never mind, dear Aunt Molly, husbands scold."—Definitor.

THE CROCODILE.

Terror of the Stealth of the Cunning Brute's Approach.

One of the reasons given by old writers for the crocodile being worshiped in Egypt was the somewhat cryptic one that it "laid threescore eggs and lived for threescore years," but from twenty to thirty is the common number of eggs found in a "munch." In the reptile's easy ease of times, however, its parental responsibilities end with the act of depositing, for, having covered the egg with a layer of sand, it leaves the hatchling to rest (whence the name "munch") in the mud and the operation of sun and leaves it to its own devices to do its worst. In some instances it seems that water tortoises incubate crocodiles' eggs, but the incubation is the real desolator of crocodile homes, scratching up the nests and eating or breaking the entire "sitting" at a meal. Crocodiles' eggs, however, are absurdly small, a mother twenty feet long being content with an egg no larger than that of a goose, and the newly hatched young hardly more formidable than a common newt, are preyed upon by birds, which a little later the rapidly growing crocodile would like nothing better than to get within its reach as well as doubtless by many other things, including old crocodiles themselves.

The real horror of the members of the crocodile tribe lies in their usual nocturnal habits. They swim with great silence, making scarcely even a ripple on the water," says M. du Chailin, and the terror of the stealth of their approach is well conveyed in Rudyard Kipling's "Rippie Song."

"Wait, ah, wait," the ripple saith.
"Maiden, wait, for I am Death!"

"Could I sell you an imported Persian cat for $1,000?" ventured the cat and dog fancier.

"What!" exclaimed the multimillionaire in surprise. "Why, I just bought a $5,000 bulldog from you the other day."

"Yes, but I thought you'd want a $1,000 cat for that swell bulldog to chase. You surely wouldn't allow a $5,000 bulldog to chase a common cat, would you?"—Pittsburg Press.
