COUNTY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Saturday's Meeting Very Helpful and Instructive.

Reported for The Reflector.

The meeting of the Pitt County Teachers' Association held in the chapel of the graded school, Saturday morning, was very well attended considering the cold weather. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. D. W. Arnold.

Mr. Austin came first on the program. He made an exceptionally clear and helpful talk on the "Essentials of the Recitation." In a skillful introduction he prepared his hearers and led them up to his subject with the ease of one who knows how. In brief, he said that the purpose of a recitation determines its essentials and that this purpose should be the mastery of the gem, principles of the subject, and the application of them to the end that we may lead happier, healthier and more useful lives. To teach, test and train is the opportunity of the teacher in a recitation; to learn and to apply is the opportunity of the pupil. Then he asked the question, "What is the process of learning?" and in a simple and clear way explained how sensations reach the brain by means of the nervous system. In the stream of consciousness that constantly flows before the mind we may arrest a certain subject, hold it up before consciousness and examine it until thoroughly acquainted with it. This is attention, the first essential of the recitation. By what means may the stream of consciousness be stopped so that what we wish may be held up before the minds of the pupils? Interest will do this. Interest is a feeling of value, a sense of the worth of knowledge gained. There must be a kernel in the nut to help the appetite of knowledge. Then lastly the teacher must make things real to pupils. Much of the stuff given pupils always remains stuff and does not get worked up into real boy or real girl. The things taught must be a living reality to the teacher and must be brought into close and vital contact with the pupil.

Miss McKinney then read a paper on "How to get and hold Attention." She spoke in a helpful and practical way, saying that thorough preparation on the part of the teacher is the fundamental principle of getting and keeping attention. That help may be found in using illustrations, maps, pictures and various devices; and that often ventilation, change of position and change of the plan of the recitation is of incalculable assistance.

Mr. McLean from a psychological point of view discussed the "Art of Study," reviewing briefly the stage of apprehension when a subject is seen in its unity, that of comprehension when its parts are viewed. By the process of synthesis the old and new knowledge is reorganized. Last he spoke forcefully of the application, saying that the world is not helped by knowledge itself, but by knowledge applied.

Miss Gray concluded the program with a discussion of the "Power of Study." After giving a clear cut view of real study, she discussed the bearing of this kind of work upon the school-room and gave many good reasons why those pupils who can prepare their lessons fail to do it, and explained how it is that some who would do their work cannot. The eternal question of

FIRES DURING PAST YEAR.

Report of Insurance Commissioner as to Number and Causes.

Raleigh, Jan. 8.—Insurance Commissioner Young says under the law requiring the commissioner to have all suspicious fires investigated, there have been investigated during the past year 136 fires. In all these cases special investigation were made by a representative of the department and 22 prosecutions were commenced. There were nine convictions during the year, combined sentences of which aggregated about 50 years. Five suspects left the state pending investigations. In 30 cases no clues could be obtained. In 13 there were strong suspicions and such as to satisfy the officer in regard to the causes of the fires, but the evidence was not sufficient upon which to justify convictions.

Commissioner Young says it was found that in 26 cases the fires were the results of over-insurance. Ten were accidents, four were caused by boys with cigarettes, one by a crazy woman, one by carelessness of a house-keeper and the burning of three school houses were results of factional fights in regard either to the location or management of the schools. In one case the fire was caused by the carelessness of carpenters.

Commissioner Young says under the law every fire is required to be reported to his department by either the building inspector or the chief of fire department or chief of police in every city or incorporated town of the state, and where fires occur outside of cities and towns it is made the duty of the sheriff to report fires. These fires are required to be reported whether there is any insurance upon the property burned or not.

From July 1, 1909, to January 1, 1910, says the commissioner, 2,033 fires were reported to the department with causes as follows: 480 unknown; 1,167 cause not given; 49 exposure; 12 incendiary, internal; 30 incendiary, external; 32 lightning; 5 ashes; 1 chimney; 7 carelessness of adults; 3 carelessness of children; 5 carelessness with matches; 70 defective flues; 5 electricity; 22 explosion; 5 fireworks; 4 friction; 4 gas; 4 gasoline; 1 kerosene; 8 rats; 101 sparks; 11 stove pipes; 4 spontaneous combustion; total, 2,033.

That New Commodity.

If you have a good but new article that you can't sell because there is no demand for it, place an ad in The Reflector and create a demand by telling our readers about it. You can do it. We often see in the show windows of our merchants goods that could be sold "like hot cakes" by intelligent newspaper advertising. We know this from experience.

Huylers' candies at Coward & Wooten's, always fresh. There is nothing better. 11 3 tf what to do with the unprepared concluded her paper. She suggested frequent study recitations the teacher guiding the efforts of the pupils and showing them how to study. Outlines or helpful suggestions for getting up a recitation should be given a large place in the assignment of lessons.

After a few announcements and some words of encouragement and help from Mr. Ragsdale the meeting adjourned.

THE LAYMEN'S MEETING.

Interesting Occasion in the Methodist Church Sunday Night.

A very large audience gathered in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Sunday night, on the occasion of the meeting in the interest of the laymen's movement. All other churches of the town were closed for evening service, all our people showing their interest in a great work for evangelizing the world by coming together in one place.

The program as previously published was carried out with the exception of the address of Mr. Joseph G. Brown, who was prevented from coming. Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis presided over the meeting and threw much life into it with appropriate remarks in presenting the speakers. Col. J. R. Young and Mr. N. B. Broughton, of Raleigh, both spoke with much interest on the laymen's missionary movement and the need of business men giving themselves to the work. They referred to the splendid work the women are doing—nearly every church having its women's and children's missionary organizations—but showed that the men were not coming up to their opportunities, and that God wanted them to heed the Great Commission and come up to their duty in helping to spread the Gospel throughout the world.

Special emphasis was laid upon the importance of the meeting to be held in Greensboro this week, 12th to 14th, the speakers stating that the purpose of their coming to Greenville was to interest people in that meeting and get many of them to attend and catch the inspiration that will result from it. Greenville should be well represented at the Greensboro meeting.

The Ad Found the Goods.

Some days ago the Greenville Wholesale Co. sold a bill of goods to a country merchant who directed that the goods be placed in his wagon in the rear of Baker & Hart's store. The draymen in delivering the goods placed them in the wrong wagon. The company placed a small ad. in The Reflector calling attention to the error, and Saturday Mr. J. B. Speight, who had seen the ad, informed them that he had the goods. Mr. Speight sent a wagon to town the same day and was surprised to find the goods in it when it got back home. He took care of the goods and was on the lookout for an owner when he read the ad in The Reflector.

Will Locate in Greenville.

Mr. Justus Everett, of Williamston, who has for some years been practicing law in that town associated with ex-Judge F. D. Winston, has engaged a suite of offices in Masonic Temple building and will soon locate in Greenville to practice his profession here. Mr. Everett is a son of Mr. Justus Everett, of Palmyra, one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Martin county, also a brother of Mr. R. O. Everett, of Durham, one of the best young attorneys in the State. Greenville will give him a cordial welcome.

A representative of the Monumental Tailoring Co. with a splendid line of sample is at C. T. Munford's store for a day or two taking measures for suits for the customers of the big store.

BARLOW & WILSON'S.

Merry Minstrels at the Opera House on Wed. Night, Jan. 12th.

This big minstrel company will be the entertainers at the opera house on Wednesday night, Jan. 12th, and the engagement promises to be the big theatrical event of the season. The company is one of the largest and best known organizations of the kind on the road and the one big reason of the success year after year is that the management always tries to keep it in the front ranks of amusements and have always lived up to their motto "That the best only was good enough for their patron."

Not since the days of the famous Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West minstrels has there been such a bright cluster of minstrel gems and fun and laugh producers seen in one company as are to be seen with the present Barlow & Wilson company. A rich treat is store for our theatre-goers and amusement lovers. Seats go on sale at Reflector Book Store Tuesday morning.

Remembered.

Saturday in the late afternoon, while we were driving the wood-saw, a cheerful voice from the street was heard, saying "come out." We obeyed, and to see what we did was enough to make glad the heart of any one who had begun to wonder where the remainder of the "ravens" were. But they came, bringing everything good to eat. I believe that about expresses it, for there were too many things to mention. In thanking the members of my congregation, and the many friends thereof for the pounds, five pounds and up to twenty-five pounds, and for their kind remembrance of me. I will say to one and all, that the fellowship of kindred minds and hearts fill the space and the aching void which nothing else can fill. May your portion be a great share in the Spiritual food which our Heavenly Father says "He will give to them that ask it of Him." We rejoice to know that we be brethren, and trust that we may prove ourselves worthy of the brotherhood of the blessed Christ.

D. W. Arnold, Minister.

Baraca Celebration.

The Baraca class of Memorial Baptist Sunday school will hold its annual celebration and banquet tonight. The class exercises will take place in the auditorium of the church, beginning at 8 o'clock, and for this an interesting program has been arranged. Following the exercises in the church there will be a banquet in the city hall.

Pinchot has been pinched off.

The print paper trust is now taking its turn in court.

The lick "Uncle Joe" got below the belt by the president's corporation message has given the speaker a jolt that made him dizzy.

The Florida boy who killed two safe-blowers who were trying to rob the postoffice of which his father was postmaster, certainly used his gun well.

It is a good time of the year to put in bank any money you may have on hand. The bank is the safest place to keep it, and you get interest on it also.

The Durham Herald suggests that Peary be sent out to find Cook. One trouble about that would be pinning Peary down to the truth about it in case he found him.

With the corn growing prizes that are offered to farmers and their sons, many of them should be enthused to make special efforts in that direction this year. There is no better corn growing county than Pitt, and The Reflector wants to see some of our farmers' boys getting prizes for large yields.

The laymen's meeting to be held in Greensboro this week, 12th to 14th, is a matter of great interest. People of all sections of the State will be there taking part in the great movement to evangelize the world. Similar meetings are being held this week in nearly every State in the Union.

Why does a public speaker or preacher think it necessary to repeat so much? Is it because he thinks the audience can't take in his ideas, or does he do it to kill time. To one who follows a speaker closely repetitions become monotonous. A great many speakers get up before an audience with nothing to say and keep repeating what they have said until his hearers are worn out. Perhaps this is the reason it is so hard to get people to come out to preaching and public meetings. Brevity and conciseness should be the watchwords of everyone who tries to hold the undivided attention of an audience.

B. & L. Home Insurance.
 The building and loan associations of this city, and generally speaking, those of the State, have been so useful in their present form, as savings and home-building institutions, that any proposition to add new features or subtract old ones ought to be approached with extreme conservatism. But in view of the United States Building & Loan League's convention here next May, the local building and loan people might well be considering some questions of importance which the league will discuss and perhaps act upon.

One of the most important subjects for consideration will be life insurance for the building and loan stockholder, and especially the stockholder who is a borrower. At present if the owner of a house built with building and loan money dies, in most cases the family has to move out of the house because of inability to keep up the payments. If the owner's life could always be insured for the deferred payments, the home would be saved for his family.

We believe that the best way to accomplish such protection is for some safe life insurance company to issue a suitable policy and let the premiums be paid in weekly or monthly amounts exactly as the building and loan dues and interest are paid. Let the secretary of the building and loan association act as agent for the insurance company. Such insurance might properly decrease year by year down to the last deferred payment, or it might be a regular life policy, which could be continued after expiration of the building and loan debt. In the latter case the borrower would not only have a home but the family would be further protected.

This plan of insurance for building and loan home-owners is already employed in Massachusetts and is growing in favor with all building and loan people. It has the decisive merit of being exceedingly cheap.—Charlotte Observer.

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make you ill, Languid and Depressed

Sick kidneys weaken the body thru the continued continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Great Greenville cures prove it.
 James Hardison, 319 E. Fifth St., Greenville, N. C., says: "My kidneys were weak and the secretions passed too frequently, especially at night, when I was forced to rise several times. In the morning my back was very lame and I was subject to pains through my loins. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wooten's drug store, restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I am now able to sleep well and the lameness and soreness across the small of my back has entirely disappeared. I have found Doan's Kidney Pills to live up to representations and I have no hesitation in giving them my endorsement."

KILLED THE COBRA.

Methods of a Mongoose in Attacking the Big Snake.

I had the good fortune to witness a fight between a four foot cobra de capello and a mongoose.

On first catching sight of the cobra, rikki tik (as Rudyard Kipling calls the Indian mongoose) quietly smelled its tail and then hung around awaiting events with curiosity, but he had not long to wait, for the cobra spread its hood, hissed out its death sentence and prepared to dart from its coil at its natural and hated enemy.

Now commenced a most interesting and deadly battle of feint and counter feint by the mongoose and strike and lightning-like recovery by his adversary, who was also on the defensive, all the time watching for the opportunity to get in his properly aimed bite.

Time after time rikki tik squirmed slowly up to within reach of those terrible fangs, belly on ground, with every gray hair of his body erect with anger and excitement, his eyes glaring from his head, which, by the way, he invariably held sideways during this approach and attack, but the moment the cobra struck in a flash back sprang master mongoose, and, although often it appeared as if impossible that he could have escaped the dreaded fangs, ne'er a scratch harmed him, and there he would be again wearing the cobra out and pressing his advantage inch by inch. At last, with a growl and sharp rikki cry, the plucky little beast flew in, avoided the strike and seized the snake behind the head, never for a moment getting under his mouth, but right at the nape of the neck and head, which he scrunched with a loud cracking sound despite the struggles and twisting and turning of the cobra. Again and again rikki returned to the now writhing reptile and bit its head and body until it lay dying.

Finally he ate three or four inches of his mortal foe, but carefully avoided eating the fangs and poison glands, which I picked up by a stick and found them broken, but with the venom sacks attached.

Contrary to popular belief, I am of opinion the mongoose is not immune from snake poison, else why should he so particularly and carefully avoid being bitten? It is only by his marvelous activity that he escapes the spring and darting strike of his deadly enemy, the cobra de capello. - Ceylon Times.

Henry Ward Beecher's Wit.

On one occasion Mr. Beecher was in the midst of an impassioned speech some one attempted to interrupt him by suddenly crowing like a cock. The orator, however, was equal to the occasion. He stopped, listened till the crowing ceased and then, with a look of surprise, pulled out his watch. "Morning already," he said. "My watch is only at 10. But there can be no mistake about it. The instincts of the lower animals are infallible."

There was a roar of laughter. The "lower animals" in the gallery collapsed, and Mr. Beecher was able to resume as if nothing had occurred.

French Convicts.

Convicts who are sent to the French penal colony in French Guiana are punished in exactly inverse ratio to their crimes. The murderers and the most dangerous convicts are sent to the Island of Salvation, where they lead lazy and healthy lives, but the men convicted of lesser offenses work and die in a terrible climate on the coast. In the settlement of St. Jean de Maroni the mortality is from 40 to 50 per cent. The average life of a convict is two years.

Linen Tobacco Pouch.

A tobacco pouch that is easily made by the girl who embroiders only a little is of gray, tan or dull blue homespun linen embroidered with a conventional design of crossed pipes on one side of the pouch and with the monogram of the owner on the other side.

Out the linen in two pieces, with a rounding bottom and bulging sides, narrowing to a neck and widening again above it. Stitch the two sides together to the neck, where there is a casing, and leave the upper part or ruffle open at each side.

Line the bag with oiled silk if you can find it in a color that looks well with the pouch; if not, with a heavy waterproof silk.

Embroider the pipes in Kensington stitch in a dark brown silk, using a lighter tone of brown in center of bowl for high lights. The mouthpiece and rim of the pipes can be worked in gold thread or, if you fear that may tarnish, in an old gold silk.

The monogram on the other side of the pouch can be done in the same shades as the pipes. The letters should be heavily padded and worked in satin stitch.

A cord should be used as a draw string rather than a ribbon, which is too feminine for such a bag. If a cord cannot be bought in the right colors one can be twisted by using several shades of brown and dull coppery red rope silk.

High Class Suicide.

In China suicide has been a fine art for several centuries. If a mandarin is guilty of misconduct he is requested to put himself out of the land of the living. There is a distinction, too, in the manner in which the oriental may die. If he is of exalted rank and entitled to wear the peacock feather he is privileged to choke himself to death with gold leaf. This is regarded as a distinguished manner of ending life. If the mandarin is only of the rank that is entitled to wear the red button he must be content with strangling himself with a silken cord. Such are the distinctions of caste.

MAKING A WINEGLASS.

It Takes Many Processes and the Work of Four Men.

The making of a wineglass is a fascinating sight to watch and a revelation to many. It requires the services of four men, and the processes are numerous. Inserting his hollow iron blowpipe into the mouth of one of the pots or crucibles, the blower collects sufficient "metal" to form the bowl of a wineglass.

This metal is a lump of hot, soft material and is, of course, molten glass. It is made from white sand, red lead, refined ash and saltpeter mixed in certain proportions, and then it has been resolved into molten glass, technically known as metal. The lump of material on the end of the pipe is rolled to and fro on a polished table to obtain the desired smoothness and evenness of surface.

After swinging the hot glass rapidly through the air for some moments the worker then blows down the pipe until the lump of soft material has expanded to the required size and shape, when he gauges it with his callipers to see that the dimensions are correct. It is now passed to a second man, who casts on sufficient metal to form the stem, while on to this again is added material for the foot. The processes now follow one another rapidly, the glass being passed from workman to workman and back again as each fulfills his particular task.

Over and over again the partially completed object is inserted into the furnace where there is a heat of 3,000 degrees F., held there for a few moments and then quickly withdrawn to be further treated. With a precision that only comes of long training, one man trims the bowl of the glass to the required size by cutting the superfluous material away with a pair of shears. The bowl then has to be opened out to the desired dimensions and measured to see that it is perfectly correct in size, when it is finally lifted by a boy from the workman's holder on the end of a forked stick, a finished article, and placed in the oven to be annealed. - Philadelphia Inquirer.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Plain Terms.

Dorothy, the small daughter of a busy farmer, had gone out to help her sister keep a large herd of cattle from a cornfield adjoining the meadow. Shortly before dinner she came into the house flushed and excited.

"Oh, mamma," she exclaimed breathlessly, "I got so mad at that old cow that I just swore at her!"

"Why, Dorothy," said the shocked mother, "you shouldn't have done that. What did you say?"

"I called her an old brute!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Embarrassed.

"Your wife always says she is afraid something has happened to you when you are away from home longer than usual."

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "I'm getting positively ashamed to go home with the same old truthful explanation about being detained by work instead of having something interesting to talk about."—Washington Star.

SHOE SIZES.

How the Standard of Measurement Was Established.

It is most difficult for many persons to remember the sizes of their different articles of wearing apparel. Collars, shirts and gloves are easy enough, because in the case of these it is a matter of actual inches. But the hat and shoe numbers are what puzzle most people, to say nothing of the mystery why a No. 11 stocking goes with a No. 9 shoe.

This last puzzle is, however, easily explained. Stockings have always been measured by the inch from heel to toe, but the numbering of shoes was fixed a long time ago by a Frenchman.

The Frenchman permanently fixed the numbers of shoes for all Europe and America. He arbitrarily decided that no human foot could possibly be smaller than three and seven-eighth inches. So, calling this point zero, he allowed one-third of an inch to a size and accordingly built up his scale. It follows therefrom that a man cannot find out the number of his own shoe unless he be an expert arithmetician. Even then he is likely to go wrong, because all the shoe experts allow for the weight of the individual and the build of his foot before they try to determine what size shoe he ought to wear.

As far as women's shoes are concerned the problem is still more difficult, because many of the manufacturers instead of keeping to the regular scale have marked down their numbers one or two sizes in order to capture easily flattered customers. For this reason most dealers ask out of town customers to send an old shoe with their orders.

The system of measuring hats is much simpler. Any man can tell what size he wears simply by adding the width and length of the inner brim and then dividing by two. Orders can also be sent to the shopkeeper by stating the circumference of the head. —Boston Globe.

Pope as a Witness.

Pope, like Garrick, made but a poor figure in the witness box. He was cited to appear in defense of Bishop Atterbury when that prelate was tried for high treason in the house of lords in 1723. "I never could speak in public," he told Spence afterward, "and I don't believe that if it was a set thing I could give an account of any story to twelve friends together, though I could tell it to any three of them with a great deal of pleasure. When I was to appear for the bishop of Rochester in his trial, though I had but ten words to say and that on a plain point (how the bishop spent his time when I was with him at Bromley), I made two or three blunders in it and that notwithstanding the first row of lords (which was all I could see) were mostly of my acquaintance." —London Standard.
