MASKED MEN SANDBAG AND ROB.

Bandits Hold Up Farmer and Obtain $500.

Goldsboro, Jan. 29.—The bold-est robberies in the history of Goldsboro occurred tonight when three men were sandbagged by several masked men, who relieved them of their watches, money and everything else of any value.

Each of the victims was held up separately in different parts of the city. Mr. Phil Howell, a prosperous farmer of this county, was the heaviest loser, his loss being $500, and he was badly bruised about the head and otherwise severely used by the bandit. Mr. Howell states that he was on his way home, and was passing through the southern part of the city when several masked men suddenly appeared in his path and demanded that he throw up his hands, and that before he could comply with their request one of the highway-men struck him a blow behind his head which rendered him unconscious, and when he recovered found that he had been robbed of everything on his person of any value.

The second hold-up was reported from the northern part of the city, when a negro man was found in an unconscious condition by a party who happened to see him lying in the gutter, and when he regained consciousness he told about the same story as Mr. Howell, that he had been sandbagged by a crowd of masked men and robbed of his valuables.

The third hold-up is reported from near the union station, but at this hour cannot get full particulars. It is thought by the police that the robberies were committed by one band who are beyond a doubt professionals and the boldest bunch of crooks that ever operated in this city. The robberies have caused a good deal of excitement and the entire police force are now on the trail, but up to this hour no progress has been made towards landing the robbers.

Will Leave Williamston.

S. Justus Everett, of the law firm of Winston & Everett has decided to locate in Greenville for the practice of his profession. He has engaged a suite of rooms in the Masonic Temple building, and will move to Greenville with his family about the first of February. Mr. Everett is a Martin county boy and has closely identified himself with the best interests of both town and county since locating here. Whatever has stood for the moral and material uplift of the people, he has with fearlessness advocated. He has enjoyed a lucrative practice, and is a strong advocate and safe counselor. Desiring to get into a more extensive field where the training would be enlarged, he has chosen Greenville in which to settle. It is regretted that he has decided to cast his fortunes in some other save his native county. However, he will practice in the courts here and keep in touch with his people.

Friends also regret the removal of Mrs. Everett, who has proven such a pleasant addition to the social life of the town. She has been active in religious circles, is an ardent missionary worker and takes a lively interest in education. Greenville will find in her and Mr. Everett those splendid qualities which make men and women useful citizens. —Williamston Enterprise.

HELP TRAINING SCHOOL.

King's Daughters Have Given Two Thousand Dollars.

To the North Carolina Branch of the King's Daughters and Sons: The first anniversary of the opening of The Stonewall Jackson Training School at Concord, and also of the King's Daughters Cottage, the only one ready for occupancy a year ago, was celebrated on January 12, 1910. You were represented on that occasion by Miss Easdale Shaw, of Rockingham; Mrs. D. K. Cooper, of Henderson, and Mrs. Wm. H. S. Burgwyn, of Weldon. We wish that each member of our order could have been there, and have seen the grand work being done by the school. The boys in uniforms of denim made a splendid appearance at military drill, and on the march. Without care or training, previous to their entrance into this institute, they now give evidence of great pains bestowed upon them by those in authority, and we trust that they will hereafter make good citizens. Our State branch marked this anniversary, by the presentation of a check for $500, to go towards the payment, for our cottage, making $2,000 which we have paid in all, and leaving $3,000 still due by us. We earnestly beg each member of our order to make a generous contribution to this object, that we may, as soon as possible, discharge our debt of honor and love.

Miss Easdale Shaw,
Mrs. D. Y. Cooper,
Mrs. Wm. H. S. Burgwyn,

VERY QUIET SUNDAY.

Good Order is the Rule Throughout the Town.

"Captain, did you find any thing of note in your rounds Sunday?" The Reflector man asked Chief Police Smith this morning.

"Nothing at all," replied the chief. "I covered the entire territory between Front and Fourteenth streets and found no disorder of any kind. It was a very quiet Sunday."

The ordinances require the police to personally cover the town on a tour of inspection at least once a week, and the above statement from Chief Smith speaks well for the good order of the town, which is borne out by the lightness of the mayor's docket.

Prof. Wilson Talks.

Prof. C. W. Wilson, of the Teachers' Training School of Greenville, was in the city yesterday on his way home from Durham, where he attended the meeting of county and city school superintendents of schools.

"It was the best meeting of the kind that has been held," he said, "and a notable feature of it was that not one of the speakers on the program was absent. That is a novelty in any meeting in North Carolina, and is worth hearing about. The addresses were full of interest from the beginning of the meeting on Thursday till the ending on Saturday at 12 o'clock. Durham treated us royally. It is a most hospitable town."

As to the Teachers' Training School at Greenville, Prof. Wilson said: "The work is going straight ahead and all affairs are in good shape. There are now 142 students enrolled."—Raleigh News and Observer, 30th.

Prof. Wilson was re-elected, for the fourth time, secretary of the association.

To the Public.

Hearing that a report was being circulated that the Christian church in Greenville had brought an action against Mr. Sam Flake, to recover a piano, we wish to correct that report by saying that the Christian church has instituted no such proceeding, nor authorized any one else to do so.

The Christian church has nothing whatever to do with the controversy that has arisen over the piano, and will not have.

RECLAMATION OF SWAMP LANDS.

Remarks by Representative John H. Small in Congress.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—During the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill in the House this afternoon Representative John H. Small took occasion to speak on the importance of the drainage of the un-reclaimed swamp lands of the nation, which he said contain an area twice the size of the State of North Carolina.

"These lands are of such great fertility and productiveness to the National area," said Mr. Small, "that they will go a long ways towards adding to the aggregate of food stuff and of other articles of food about which so much complaint is made at the present time as the high prices thereof."

Mr. Small has recently learned that the bureau of drainage in the department of agriculture has arranged to make a drainage survey of all the swamp lands between Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds. No survey has been made of this vast territory which embraces one and a half million acres. He showed that these lands will produce fifty bushels of corn to the acre while the average of production in North Carolina is only fourteen bushels an acre.

A strong effort is going to be made to induce the Federal government to take up the work of draining these swamp lands in the South just as it has under taken the work of reclaiming the arid lands of the west. Mr. Small produced figures to show that the swamp lands are more than twice as productive as arid lands in the west on which the government has expended some eighty million dollars.

In this connection Mr. Small said: "Whether congress shall in its wisdom at some time in the future aid in the reclamation of this vast empire of our most fertile land, may become an interesting question, one which I shall not discuss at this moment, but it may well be argued if congress may loan a part of the proceeds of the public lands for the purpose of irrigating the arid and semi-arid lands in the western states, why may it not lend some of the fund or some other fund as an encouragement and upon a perfectly safe basis of investment in the drainage of these valuable swamps and wet lands."—Thomas J. Pence, in Raleigh News and Observer.

JEFFRESS PRIZE HOUSE BURNED.

Occupied by T. W. Skinner & Co. as Storage and Leaf House.

Just before one o'clock this afternoon fire started in the tobacco stemmery building on South Pitt street, in the tobacco section of the town, and completely destroyed the building with a quantity of loose leaf tobacco and a few hogsheads.

The building was owned by R. O. Jeffress and was occupied by T. W. Skinner & Co., as a storage and leaf house. There were many hogsheads of prized tobacco in the building, but those on the first floor were rolled out and saved.

When the alarm was first given the fire department started out promptly, but some one met the hose wagon and hook and ladder truck on Dickinson avenue and told the drivers the fire was all out. They returned to the station and had put the wagons away when another alarm was given. By the misinformation much time was lost in getting to the fire, and had it not occurred the building would probably have been saved. As it was the fire gained rapid headway, and by the time the department got to work the building was a mass of flames that could not be checked. The firemen had to turn their attention to near-by property, and by hard work much was saved.

The dwelling houses of Sudie Fleming and Charity Dudley, both colored, just east of the stemmery, as well as some others a little distant, were in great danger and caught several times. The Dudley house lost nearly all the roof and was badly damaged.

It is impossible this afternoon to get the amount of loss by the fire, but all is thought to be covered by insurance.

Cause of fire is believed to be sparks from a passing engine on the Norfolk & Southern railroad, which occupies the street by the factory, and a workman said an engine that passed just before dinner set fire to the grass about the building. He thought he had put this all out and left for his dinner, and a little later the building was on fire. We mention this only as rumor heard around the scene of the fire.

It was certainly a stubborn fire, fanned by a high wind, and it gave the department some hard work.

When Traveling is Bad.

The telephone has an added value, because it affords the one method of communication not affected by road conditions. When snow or rain make walking difficult or impossible a telephone in your residence proves not only a means of social intercourse, but also a means of transacting much of your business that would otherwise be neglected, and five cents a day will put a telephone in your residence.

Another $10 Prize.

Mr. C. R. Townsend, manager of Peoples' Warehouse, branch of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco Co., authorizes The Reflector to add $10 in gold from himself to the list of prizes for the largest yield of corn per acre in the boys' corn growing contest in this county. Let others come along with their offer of prizes to make the contest interesting for the boys.

If Greensboro has 42,000 population, as claimed, they ought not to have so much trouble finding enough to organize a chamber of commerce.

The County Paper.

Like most every other town in this State, Troy in Montgomery county is forging ahead and becoming a center of thrift and progress and with commendable spirit its town paper is doing what it can to attract attention to the town and to help the development which is in evidence. Of its town the Montgomerian says:

"In the last fifteen years Troy has advanced from a hamlet to a hustling, modern business town. In the next five years she is going to become a city with paved streets, sidewalks, electric cars, water and sewer plant, factories making music with their whistles and the hum of machinery, elegant modern stores and skyscrapers for office buildings. This is no visionary dream, it can be accomplished fact. As we say elsewhere 'Keep your eye on Troy.'"

Much of the development and new life which the small and isolated towns of this State have recently taken on is due to the progressive action of their local papers. The latter have done a great deal of good; in fact, have been a power of influence in bringing about the wonderful changes which have taken place and are still going on. The man in the village or country who thinks his country newspaper has no influence or that its voice is not heard outside the immediate community is greatly mistaken. A county newspaper properly conducted is a powerful factor and has a wide circle of influence. The good such papers do is beyond calculation, and the greater financial support they have at home the greater and the more widespread is their influence for good to the community in which they are published.—Charlotte Observer.

Cruelty to Animals.

The Greenville Reflector rejoices that there were two convictions at the last term of Pitt Superior court of men charged with cruelty to animals. It says this fact is evidence that "the time is passed when people can abuse dumb animals without being liable to prosecution." We agree with the Reflector that this State law has been enforced too seldom in the past. More attention should be paid to this matter all over the State, but what is everybody's business is nobody's, and though there are many local societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals little is heard from them in the way of carrying out the purposes of the organizations. In most communities where there are such societies they amount to nothing. It is the duty of all good citizens to see that this law is enforced, and that those who violate it are punished, and people who take the right view of their duties and responsibilities will aid in bringing to punishment violators of this law.—Charlotte Observer.

A Pointer for Retail Dealers.

The retail consumers of today can not be held long in any section of the country by past favors or accommodations. People are too prosperous and independent, and "all debts canceled" comes pretty near meaning they will go where they please next time, and where they please means to the man who gets the nearest to them through wide-awake methods (advertising) and plain talk which tells of goods together with an up-to-date way of showing them.—Merchants' Journal.

The Greenville Reflector wants a park or a playground for its city. It sees the need for such a park, but it seems to be having quite a hard time in getting the people to take enough interest in the matter to take it up and make the park a reality. The Reflector is right in urging the need of the city for a public park. Of course it does not need it now as badly as it will need it later. It doesn't realize the need, perhaps, because it is so easy to reach the country and because there are still plenty of open places in the city. But as the population increases and spreads and the open places build up the need will become more apparent and also the matter of securing a suitable and convenient site more difficult.—Raleigh Times.

Player Pianos,

In fact, with either of these Player Pianos as a companion, you have the advantage of playing the music yourself--the music you best like, and playing it in that rich, full manner, bringing out the delicate beauties of the melody which even many skilled pianists fail to develop, and this, possible with the veriest novice, without your knowing one note from another.

We will take your deaf and dumb piano in exchange.

VERBAL MISHAPS.

Dickens Once Made Two Bad Breaks the Same Evening.

Charles Dickens once wrote to a friend: "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately. I took a young lady, unknown, down to dinner and talked to her about the bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. Later I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, thinking him to be an Irish member, on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and the Marylebone representative."

Two such mishaps in one evening were enough to reduce the most brilliant talker to the condition of the three inside passengers of a London bound coach who beguiled the tedium of the journey from Southampton by discussing the demerits of William Cobbett until one of the party went so far as to assert that the object of their denunciation was a domestic tyrant, given to beating his wife.

Much to his dismay the solitary woman passenger, who had hitherto sat a silent listener, remarked:

"Pardon me, sir. A kinder husband and father never breathed. And I ought to know, for I am William Cobbett's wife."

Mr. Giles of Virginia and Judge Duval of Maryland, members of congress during Washington's administration, boarded at the house of a Mrs. Gibbon, whose daughters were well on in years and remarkable for talkativeness.

When Jefferson became president Duval was comptroller of the treasury and Giles a senator. Meeting one day in Washington, they fell to chatting over old times, and the senator asked the comptroller if he knew what had become of "that cackling old maid, Jenny Gibbon."

"She is Mrs. Duval, sir," was the unexpected reply.

Giles did not attempt to mend matters, as a certain Mr. Tuberville unwisely did. Happening to observe to a fellow guest that the lady who had sat at his right hand at dinner was the ugliest woman he had ever beheld, the person addressed expressed his regret that he should think his wife so ill looking.

"I have made a mistake," said the horrified Tuberville. "I meant the lady who sat on my left."

"Well, sir, she is my sister." This brought the frank avowal, "It can't be helped, sir, then, for if what you say be true I confess I never saw such an ugly family in the course of my life."—Youth's Companion.

A SMALL WORD.

It Has Only Two Letters, Yet It Is Not Easy to Define.

To define one word in the English language one modern dictionary takes eighteen columns of small type. And this solitary word upon which the dictionary bestows such a wealth of elucidation is one that hardly anybody except a dictionary maker can define at all. The ordinary educated, English speaking person's knowledge of it could be expressed in about half a single line.

This fecund word is "of." If you were asked to define it—unless you are a dictionary maker or of an allied trade—probably you would have to reply: "Of? Why, of just means of." You might add defensively, "I always comprehend perfectly what it means when I see or hear it and can use it correctly in speech, so what do I want to define it for anyway?"

But if you were a child your actual mastery of "of" would stand you in no stead whatever. You would be set to digging out and memorizing the things the dictionary had to say about it, or the driest and least informing of them, as, for instance, that in some cases it is such a kind of preposition and in other cases some other kind and that prepositions have such and such properties when they don't have some other, every bit of which you would absolutely and mercifully forget at the first possible moment. Look over a child's grammar or "language" lesson, with its ghastly array of useless bones.—Saturday Evening Post.

"What is the oldest form of literature?" "I dunno, but I guess some of the musical comedy jokes must reach back pretty nearly that far."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A SAVAGE WITCH.

His Life Was Saved by the Chief of the Quiah Tribe.

The author of "Heroes of Modern Crusades," the Rev. Edward Gilliat, M. A., at one time master of Harrow school, says in his book that he had years ago the privilege of meeting the king of the Quiah country, Teti Agamason, at Harrow. The Quiah king had been educated at St. Augustine's college, Canterbury, and was able to lecture to the Harrovians in good English. In his lecture he told a quaint story which brings one nearer to the weird lives of the Quiahs, a small agricultural and trading tribe of inoffensive characters on the west coast of Africa.

"In my country," said the king, "we have no prisons; therefore if a culprit is brought to me I must chop off something—an ear or two, a hand or a foot—and he goes home a sadder and a wiser man. Just before I left for England a chief came to my hut, bringing a prisoner.

"What has he done, friend?" I asked.

"He is a dangerous witch, O king. He can turn himself into an alligator."

"Pooh! Nonsense! I don't believe that old fashioned stuff."

"Oh, but we saw him do it down by the big river."

"Indeed! Well, chief, tell me all about it. You saw him yourself?" "I did. We were hunting by the banks of the river with our rifles when all at once we saw a big alligator lying on a rock in the river. The witch man was lying asleep in a hammock some fifty yards away. Oh, the dangerous creature he is!

"Well, king, do not laugh with your eyes like that, for I am speaking the truth. I put up my rifle to shoot the alligator; but, to our great fear, as soon as I fired this fellow rolled out of his hammock and fell on the ground and rubbed his back and swore he was hurt.

"Now, O king, if this witch had not been inside the alligator how could he have been hurt when I fired?" "Gentlemen," concluded the king, "I see you are laughing with your eyes, but it is very difficult to rule over a people untaught and given over to superstition.

"What did I do? Why, if I had left him free they would have killed him as soon as I had gone on my ship, so I saved his life by chopping off his left ear."

MODERN CHESS.

The Game Vastly Different From That of the Ninth Century.

Chess is but a game, a pastime, a relaxation, but it has at times absorbed the faculties of the intellectual in every clime. Perhaps the greatest eulogy on the game was the remark of Sir Walter Raleigh, "I do not wish to live longer than I can play chess." It is certain that those who do not play the game are quite unable to form any conception of the high intellectual delights experienced by the chess enthusiast.

The origin of chess has been sought in vain. The fact is the game has so changed, developed and improved down the course of centuries that in its present form it would not be recognized by its inventor, if there ever was one. The oldest chess problem on record is thought to be that contained in an ancient Persian manuscript attributed to Caliph Kalifen Mutasin Billah, who reigned in Bagdad A. D. 833 to 842. But the reader would have to learn the old rules before it was intelligible. For example, the queen could make a move of only one square at a time and that on a diagonal, but a queen promoted from a pawn was allowed to make a move of two squares diagonally. The bishop had no power over any square except the third from which it stood on its own diagonal line, but it was allowed to vault over any piece that happened to be between. In short, it was a totally different game. Chess in the precise form in which we know it and play it today is a comparatively modern game.—London Strand Magazine.

Amending a Proverb.

There are a lot of silly proverbs knocking about. Take, for instance, "If pigs had wings they would fly." Now, this is absurd if you like. Do you know what sized wings a pig weighing eighty pounds would require in order to fly? They would measure about thirty yards from tip to tip. A nice state of things to keep pigs in an aviary with wings of that size! The proverb would run much better:

If pigs could fly, Pork would be high.

—London Scraps.

THE WRECK MASTER.

He Does Some Tall Hustling When the Line Is Blocked.

When a wreck blocks the line the wreck master is the biggest man on the railroad. Even the president, if by unhappy chance he happens to be there, steps aside and keeps silent after the wreck train halts with a jerk of grinding brakes and hissing air before the indescribable confusion of shattered wood and twisted steel which clutter the tracks. The wreck master's feet are on the ground before the shrieking wheels have ceased turning. There follow at his heels a half score of men, all experts, but of less degree than their leader.

He shouts an order that seems as unintelligible as a drillmaster's command, then another and another. There is instant action. At one end of the train a locomotive begins to creep cautiously away with the coaches that have stayed on the rails. An express car up toward the forward end of the passenger train is tilted tremblingly on its trucks. It is loaded with bales of silk perhaps or with other costly merchandise. The wreckers do not stop to inquire. To them it is simply an obstruction that has to be removed immediately. There is a heaving chorus, and it plunges down the embankment. A hundred yards away a loaded freight car in the opposite train is hanging over the edge. Fifty crowbars give it a tip that sends it down to the foot of the hill. As it lands there is a crash of discordant, tortured strings, an inharmonious outburst as though half a hundred cats had landed simultaneously on half a hundred keyboards. "Pianos" remarks one of the panting workmen to another standing at his shoulder. They do not pause even to grin. An instant later they are heaving away at something else.—Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

SEED CORN DAY.

The Reflector Offers Two Prizes for exhibits.

Pitt county is to have a seed day in Greenville on Tuesday, Feb. 8th. At that time farmers are asked to bring some of their best corn for exhibition, and an expert will examine it and show how to make seed selection from it. In this way every farmer who comes will be helped. The Reflector wants to see this seed corn day a great day for Pitt county and great good to come from it. As a small stimulus for exhibits on that day we are going to offer as a premium one year's subscription to The Daily Reflector to the farmer who makes the best all round exhibit of corn that day, and one year's subscription to The Eastern Reflector to the farmer exhibiting the five best ears of corn. The award to be in accordance with the decision of the examiner.

If any others want to offer premiums for exhibits The Reflector will take pleasure in mentioning it.

The Reflector does job work.
