SOLD HIS PROPERTY.

Give Money to Poor—Warning From Lord—True Story.

This morning in the sheriff's office a citizen from Patterson township related the wonderful and curious actions of a negro by the name of Ransom McClam, who sold all his possessions in order to give the money to the poor.

The story goes that the negro is a good old soul and a member of one of the churches in that vicinity. A few nights ago he had a dream in which the Lord told him to sell all his possessions, not hold back a single piece, and give the money to the poor. Acting under the direction of the Lord, as he thought, the sale was made yesterday when people in that section gathered together as purchasers. During the sale some of his best friends tried to persuade him to hold back something but they could do no good. The negro told them to let him sell as started and said to the crowd: "It is a curious thing to me dat de Lord am telling me to sell, den others trying to git me to hold back part ob my things. Let me tell you one thing, Annias held back some ob his possessions when de Lord told him to sell and he was struck dead. I'd don't neber want to be struck dead."

His property numbered about 30 acres of land, two mules, one horse, furniture, feed, groceries, chickens, hogs, and other many things that help make a home. The entire sale realized him about $700 and this amount will be distributed by him among the poor of the county. The negro's friends are very anxious now about his future, they seeing no way for him to exist unless he moves to town to work—Durham Sun.

Judge J. E. Shepherd Dead.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis received a telegram this morning announcing the death of ex-Judge James E. Shepherd, of Raleigh, which occurred this morning in a Baltimore hospital. Judge Shepherd was one of the state's ablest and most prominent men. He was at one time chief justice of the Supreme court, and held other responsible positions. His death is a great loss to North Carolina.

Revive the Club

A meeting will be held Tuesday night in the former Carolina Club rooms with a view of reviving the club. This is a matter in which not only the members of the club, but also citizens of the town generally, should feel an interest. The club during its existence was a great help to the town in many ways, and it should be revived.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

Colored Woman Loses Her Home and Contents.

A fire which started a little before 6 o'clock this morning completely destroyed the dwelling house of Mary Miller, colored, out in the western suburbs of the town known as "Perkins town." Notwithstanding the early early hour, the distance and the bitter cold weather, quite a crowd went out there but nothing could be done to save the building, and only a little of the furniture in it was gotten out.

The fire was caused by one of her sons, who got up early to go out to his work, taking a lamp into a closet to look for something, and having no chimney on the lamp. The fire spread so rapidly that he barely had time to awake the other occupants of the house and get them out, some not having time to dress or save any of their clothing.

The building was two stories and comparatively new. We could not learn the amount of the loss, or if the woman had any insurance.

Public Stenographer.

Something that Greenville very much needs is a public stenographer, one who can be engaged to do piece work for anybody and do it well. The Reflector believes there is enough work of this kind here to give a public stenographer good employment. If there is one who would like to engage in this work here we will take pleasure in helping them to secure an office.

Since publishing the above last week, enough work has been offered by different business men, who do not need a private stenographer, to pay a moderate salary.

Completed Their Work.

Foreman R. A. Woody with his force of hands that were here at work reconstructing the Western Union Telegraph lines in town and putting in a cable, completed the work Saturday and left that evening for Richmond. The lines are now in fine condition and subject to no further trouble by coming in contact with shade trees.

Notice to Cut Owners.

All owners of "dead" cuts at The Reflector office will take notice that on March 1st we will sell all such cuts for old metal if they are unclaimed at that time. We are compelled to do so in order to make room, as we have no place for keeping old and out of date cuts, etc. Please notify us if you want yours sent to you. This does not apply to cuts good for further service.

The Reflector.

Oysters at the Wharf

From now on through the season we will have oysters regularly on the Lady Grant at the wharf and will keep a boat running to bring fresh supplies. Prices 25c quart, $1 gallon. Ask for the Lady Grant when you want the best oysters. M. Robinson.

Meeting to Revive Club.

There will be a meeting of the members of Carolina Club in the club room on Tuesday night, at 8:30 o'clock, with a view of reviving the club. Those interested are urged to be present. Dr. D. L. James, Pres. W. S. Atkins, Sec.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina

Raleigh, Feb. 4.—Governor Kitchin pardons Ben Britton of Surry county, convicted of stealing a pocketbook and sentenced to 4 months on the roads. The pocketbook had been found and it seems was not stolen. The solicitor asked for the pardon.

Eighteen Russians passed by here yesterday en route to Montgomery county, where they have purchased 600 acres of land and will engage in farming. They will lay out their plans on a large scale and if they like the country, there will be a much larger settlement. They gave $12 an acre for the land.—Greensboro Record.

Charlotte, Feb. 4.—Bessie Wilson, a white woman, of Chester, S. C., proved to be a human safety deposit vault, when arrested and searched today by a female attache of the police station. Over $440 in bags, rolls and little wads was extracted from the woman's makeup, most of the money being in her bustle. The woman is a professional beggar, the police believe. She was arrested on a charge of stealing a watch from a hotel at Mooresville. The woman is about forty-five years of age, and appears slightly deficient in intellect.

A fist fight between two negro women led to a murder this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. In the forenoon, Emma Walker and Jessie Crisp, two unmarried negro women, aged each about 20 years, got in a fight on East Gaston street. In the scrimmage the Crisp woman got the best of it. The Walker woman seemed to realize this and was heard to say, "You may whip me now, but I won't stay whipped." Then she passed on. The Walker woman then went on home on Doggett row, a street just beyond the main line of the Southern railway, and as the evidence shows, got a 32 calibre pistol. With this she went back to 122 Gilmer street, where she evidently knew the Crisp woman was to be found, called her to the door and as she came out, fired two shots at her, killing her instantly.—Greensboro Record, 5th.

A Thrilling Detective Story Free.

Another of the famous series of mystery stories in the New York Sunday World Fiction series begins Sunday, Feb. 13. The title of this story is "The House Opposite." It is, if such a thing be possible, a more dramatic story the "The House of the Whispering Pines" or "The Leavenworth Case", both of which have appeared in the book section given free each Sunday with The World. This story, "The House Opposite," begins with an instalment of about 15,000 words, and 20,000 words will be issued each week until the story is completed in five fully illustrated instalments. The plot of "The House Opposite" is laid in New York; that is, in the million-dollar apartment house district of the upper west side. The demand for copies of the Sunday World containing this story will be great. To secure a copy, order from newsdealer today.

County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale delivered an address Saturday to the teachers of Wilson county in Wilson.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

To be Held in the Graded School Auditorium Saturday, Feb'y 12th.

The program is as follows: 10:30 a. m.—Devotional exercises by Rev. B. F. Huske.

10:45 a. m.—Reading of minutes.

10:50 a. m.—Announcements and distribution of bulletins.

11 a. m.—The preparation of the lesson, by Prof. H. E. Austin.

General discussion.

2 p. m.—Drawing, by Miss Kate Lewis.

This will be one of the best meetings we have had. It will be noticed that we have only one subject for the morning, I think I can assure the teachers that this important subject will be so discussed that you will feel that you have been repaid for the sacrifices that I know you have to make to attend these meetings, and I wish also to ask the teachers to make their arrangements to be present at the afternoon session. It is exceedingly gratifying to those who have arranged to give you this work to see how enthusiastically you are entering into it. I feel that I express your sentiment when I say that your absence from either one of these sessions will be your loss. I am looking for a great meeting. Let us come together and make it such. The names of more than thirty boys have come in as contestants in the "Boys' Corn Club." I wish to request all the teachers to explain this contest to their boys between now and this meeting and give to me that day the names of their pupils who will enter. Let us have at least one boy in each school in the county to become a member of this club. W. H. Ragsdale, Co. Supt. Schools.

Died.

Jan. 25th 1910, near Bethel, Pitt county, Mrs. Leechie Nelson, the lovable wife of Mr. James T. Nelson. She leaves two bright little boys and a fond husband and a large circle of relatives and friends. She was the daughter of Mr. John R. Barnhill. Being fully aware of her approaching dissolution, she met the end with a Christian fortitude rarely witnessed. Her exemplary life won the hearts of all who met her. To sever the ties that bound her to her family seemed to be her only regret. Her remains were interred at her father's family burial ground with impressive funeral services attended by a large congregation of relatives and friends. The death angel has hovered over sea and land, A gentle spirit has a sacred call; It will return again with unerring hand And the same sad greeting will be delivered to us all. A Friend.

New Jewelry Store.

Earth to be Bombarded With Comets

Boston, Mass. Feb. 5.—That on or about May 19th of this year, the earth will probably be bombarded with meteors from the tail of the famous Ines comet, which is now tearing through space at a terrific rate and is headed in our direction, is the prediction made today by Prof. Pickering, of Harvard.

"The earth is due to pass through the tail of this comet on May 19th, said Professor Pickering, and at that time the earth will probably be pelted with flying meteors, as it has been several other times when comets have approached it."

Professor Pickering does not believe that the meteors, which fell in Illinois, were parts of the comet's tail.

"I attach no significance to those meteors which fell at Peoria," he said. "The tail of the comet is now many million miles away from the earth and the fact that the tail is turned from the earth discredits any belief that those meteors were part of it."

Twin Apples.

Mr. J. S. Smith sent The Reflector a twin apples that is quite a curiosity. It was found in a barrel of Albemarle Pippins that he was opening in his store.

NORTH POLE NOT DISCOVERED

Major William A. Guthrie, of Durham, has published a book that is a valuable addition to the works of science, and will be received with more than ordinary interest just at this time because it treats of matter that throws light on the Cook Peary contentions as to the discovery of the North Pole. This book of Major Guthrie is a tribute to the late David G. McDuffie, of Fayetteville, whom he says "was the greatest mathematical genius, the most learned surveyor and the best and most expert woodsmen in finding landmarks" he ever saw. It gives explanations by Mr McDuffie as to the calculation of variations of the magnetic needle, and deductions made from these bear strong evidence that neither Cook nor Peary reached the North Pole as claimed by them, but only reached the North Magnetic Pole which is a long distance from the North Pole of the axis of the earth. The Raleigh News and Observer of Sunday gave long extracts from Major Guthrie's book that was very interesting reading.

A church in St. Louis has added a motion picture outfit to their Sunday school to attract the children. We never saw a child that did not like motion pictures and no doubt this Sunday school will have a full house.

When it comes to advertising, The Reflector, through its largely increased circulation, offers the business man an opportunity of reaching the attention of more people in Pitt county than can be reached in any other way.

By getting up an expedition to hunt for the South Pole, Peary may think he can work as big a fake about discovering that as he did of the North Pole.

We are hoping the spring vegetable crop will be early and large. If this hope is realized the meat problem will be solved to some extent.

The experience of those farmers who sold their cotton in advance last year, may make them a little shy about repeating it this year.

One great trouble with aviation is that the finish is worse than the start.

It is not easy to corner the egg market if the hens get busy.

Major William A. Graham, Commissioner of Agriculture, is doing more for North Carolina than any commissioner of agriculture the state has ever had. Good men preceded him, but as commissioner he has surpassed them all. The department has been sleeping; he woke it up. His subordinates are on the jump; they earn their pay. Although he has something like three score and ten years to his credit, he is the youngest man in the State. Were he not more than forty, we doubt if anybody could stay in North Carolina for the noise which growing crops would make. He is a live wire and during his first year as commissioner he has accomplished much. Commissioner Graham and Mr. Clarence H. Poe are doing more for this State than any dozen men. The Dispatch wishes them both unlimited strength to labor for North Carolina. —Lexington Dispatch.

"You Owe Me."

Well, do you? A statement of account is not necessary to remind you of the fact that you owe any one, and it is in order to pay it if you can. This applies to every one alike, no matter who the debtor or creditor may be. A business man in another town runs the following as an advertisement in his local paper:
"You owe me, and I owe the other fellow. You pay me, then I can pay the other fellow. If you have not the money, bring produce; I will take almost anything to aid you in getting your account settled." —Henderson Gold Leaf.

There will be an International Exhibition of Industries and Labor in Turin, Italy, April to October, 1911. Buildings have already been contracted for. The grounds will cover 247 acres, 64 of which will be covered by buildings. —Consular Report.

Give the Kidneys Help and Many Greenville People Will be Happier
"Throw Out the Life Line" — The kidneys need help. They're overworked—can't get the poison filtered out of the blood. They're getting worse every minute. Will you help them?
Doan's Kidney Pills have brought thousands of kidney sufferers back from the verge of despair.
Will cure any form of kidney trouble.
Mrs. Robert Williams, 317 S. Washington street, Rocky Mount, N. C., says: "I willingly give my name in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as they benefited me greatly. I suffered for a long time from a dull, nagging backache and rheumatic twinges in my kidneys. I was restless at night and arose in the morning unfit to commence the day's duties. I obtained no relief from the various remedies I used and had about 'dispaired' of ever being cured when Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me. I began their use and could soon see that they were helping me. They soon disposed of the backache and improved my health in every way."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

AN OBSTINATE QUEEN.
Her Encounter With the Mentone Road Mender.
Xavier Paoli, whose duty for a quarter of a century was the safeguarding of royal visitors to France, found the late Queen Elizabeth of Austria a recalcitrant charge. He said:
"I was never easy so long as she obstinately refused to permit one of my men to follow her, even at a distance. Once, however, having learned that the Italian laborers who were mending the road to Mentone had spoken in a threatening way of the sovereigns who were always coming to the country, I begged the empress to be kind enough not to walk in their direction. She was much displeased.
"Always afraid!" she exclaimed. "I say again that I have no fear of them—and I will promise nothing." I was as determined as she. I doubled my watchfulness and took it upon myself to send over the Mentone road one of my Corsican agents, dressed like a road mender, but thoroughly armed beneath his clothes, with directions to mingle with the Italian laborers. Wearing a pair of velveteen trousers and a cotton jumper and 'made up' to look old and wrinkled, he was quite unrecognizable. As he spoke Italian fluently, he disarmed all suspicion, his companions taking him for a newly hired comrade.
"He was breaking stones as well as he could when suddenly a well known figure appeared at the turn of the road. Darkness had begun to fall, and the empress, with her reader, was returning to Cape Martin. The false road mender waited anxiously. When she came opposite his group she stopped, hesitated a moment, then singing him out, no doubt because he seemed to be the oldest, she approached him, saying gently:
"That is a hard trade of yours, my good fellow."
"Not daring to raise his head, he stammered a few words in Italian.
"You do not speak French?"
"No, signora."
"You have children?"
"Yes, signora."
"Then here is something for them," and she slipped a gold piece into his hand. "Tell them it is from a lady who loves children very much."
"And the empress walked on.
"That evening at the hotel she came to me with laughing eyes.
"Well, M. Paoli, scold me! I have disobeyed you. I have been on the Mentone road. I have talked with a road mender, and I am still alive, you see!"
"I never dared to confess to her that the worthy road mender was my faithful Corsican." —McClure's.

PUMPED THEM DRY.

It's instructive Half Hour With Two American Marines.

The Marquis Ito was always eager to acquire information about western civilization. During his four terms as prime minister of Japan his country residence at Oiso, near Tokyo, was at all times open to the foreigner, and his ready command of six languages gave him many opportunities of pumping his "barbarian" visitors.

Two American marines on shore leave several years ago were doing Tokyo, and the course of a walking trip took them into the suburbs. Stopping to rest under a tree, they lighted their pipes and were surveying the passing coolies and rickshaws with lazy interest when an open carriage, with outriders and other evidences of Japanese opulence, came along the road. Seeing a jolly looking, bewiskered Japanese sitting alone in the vehicle, they saluted in military fashion and smiled back at him. Suddenly the carriage stopped, and the occupant beckoned the marines to approach.

"If you're traveling my way there is room in my carriage for three," said the bewiskered Japanese in English.

The Americans shook the ashes from their pipes, stiffened into dignity and marched into the seat offered them with all the aplomb of experienced globe trotters. Then followed a catechizing such as they never underwent before. In the language of one of them:

"The old guy asked us all we knew about civilization down to who killed Billy Paterson, and he pumped us as dry as a battleship three months in drydock. He was a wise nut all right and a good judge of a cigar. He was especially interested in the service, and his questions upon the treatment of men and chances for promotion in the United States marine corps showed knowledge of foreign military and naval affairs."

"Now," he remarked as the carriage turned into a private driveway, "this is where I live, and as I have an engagement on hand I will have to part company. You can have my carriage for the ride to Tokyo. I've had an instructive half hour with you, and I appreciate your forbearance in submitting to so long a cross examination. Goodby, and good luck to you both."

With these words the Japanese handed two cards to the marines, shook hands, got out of the vehicle and disappeared behind a party of bowing servitors, while the carriage started for Tokyo.

"But he was a big gun, all right, all right," observed one of the marines reflectively, leaning back among the cushions and taking the card out.

And he was. In English script upon the card were two lines of print, which read: "Marquis Hirobumi Ito, G. C. B., Prime Minister of Japan."

A Lack of Language.

A lamentable gap in the English language and indeed in all languages has been discovered by a correspondent of the London Lancet. "Why," asks M. J. Williams, "is there no way of describing smells? You have not described or classified a smell when you have said that it is horrid, and you are just as wide of the mark when you have said another smell is lovely. Consider the parallel of the classification of colors. When you describe a sunset you need not merely say that it is beautiful. You can go further and say that it is red or yellow or purple, as the case may be. But supposing you have been face to face with musk for a few minutes and want to describe it to your friends. You will find that, outside the province of expletives, you are helpless."

The Origin of Numbers.

The use of visible signs to denote numbers can be traced to remote times, but our present decimal system in its complete form with the zero is of Indian or sincoo origin. From the Hindoos it passed to the Arabians about 750 A. D. In Europe the complete system was devised from the Arabs in the twelfth century. The use of numerals in India can be traced back to the Mana Ghat inscriptions, supposed to date from the early part of the third century B. C. The earliest known example of a date written on the modern system is of 738 A. D.—Chicago Examiner.

A Large Part.

Thespis—What are you doing now?

Bluejowls—Acting a part I created in the new play that is now running in the Thunderblood theater.

Thespis—What is the nature of your part?

Bluejowls (deep bass voice)—I am the mob that roars outside when the unmasked villain is being hunted down.—London Scraps.

HARD TO PLEASE.

No Use Trying to Be Neighborly With Some People.

When Mrs. Calloway met Mrs. Deeson in the market one morning and inquired for the news of the people in her block it came to light that the Carolsons, who used to be neighbors of the Calloways, now held that relationship to the Deesons. Naturally the character of the Carolsons as a family and as individuals was shortly under discussion. Mrs. Deeson, who admitted somewhat grudgingly that she supposed that the Carolsons were "pleasant enough," then turned confidential and recited a story, which the Chicago News prints:

"Mrs. Carlson is at Shadow Lake now, isn't she?" Mrs. Calloway had asked.

"Yes," said the other woman, "and she never said a word to me about it before she went. I saw Mr. Carlson weeding the pansies the other morning, and I called out, just to be neighborly, 'Your wife gone away?'"

"He grunted something that might have meant either 'yes' or 'no.' I went on:

"You'd better go away, too, and stay over Sunday with her. I'll look after your house.' He gave another grunt.

"Why not stay until the following Monday?" I asked.

"Thank you," he growled. "I wish my firm was as generous as you are." Then he went into the house.

"A little while after that my daughter met him on the street carrying a suit case, so I knew he had taken my advice.

"I suppose he won't be home for ten days. He must have gone in a hurry, for he didn't tell me a thing about his going," I said to my daughter.

"I had so much work to do that I could give little time to their place. Still, I like to be neighborly, so early the next morning I went over and picked all their pansies. Then, seeing that Mr. Carlson hadn't stopped the milk or his paper, I helped myself to both. Afterward I telephoned to the milkman not to leave any more milk.

"I ran to the door every time I heard their bell ring and explained to the caller that the family had gone away for ten days. It was a lot of trouble, for I had to keep watching all the time."

"You always have such a sense of responsibility when your neighbors are away, Mrs. Deeson," said Mrs. Calloway.

"Well, I try to do my duty by everybody. Late in the afternoon a boy came with a suit case. I called to him that there was no use ringing the Carolsons' bell, as they wouldn't be at home for ten days.

"I had special orders to bring these clothes today," said the boy. "Won't you take them in—dollar to collect?"

"I don't meddle with Mr. Carlson's clothes," I said. "Bring 'em back in ten days." Then I shut the door. You have to be firm with boys like that. They'd argue all day if you'd let 'em, and I had my dinner to get.

"We had just sat down to the table when my daughter said, 'Who's that picking the Carolsons' pansies?'"

"Here, you!" I called. And if it wasn't Mr. Carlson himself, looking madder than a hatter.

"Some one has picked them all!" he snorted.

"I thought you were away," I said.

"That accounts for the milk and the papers, I suppose. Perhaps you've the clothes that I am waiting for?"

"I sent them back"—I began, but didn't get a chance to finish the sentence. If I told you what he said—I could hardly believe my ears! Some people are hard to please, aren't they, Mrs. Calloway?"

An Honest Man.

A man well known in New York and the possessor of much dignity of the impressive sort was strolling through a Long Island village recently when a well dressed, prepossessing little girl of perhaps seven years halted him.

"Are you an honest man?" the child queried.

The dignified man gasped.

"Yes, I—I think so," he replied.

"But are you quite sure?"

"Yes, I am quite sure. Why?"

"Because you can hold my dolly while I tie my shoe."

And it came out that way.—New York Globe.

He Was Too Slow.

Magistrate—Your husband makes a charge of assault against you.

Madam—Yes, your honor. I asked him if he would always love me, and he was so slow in answering that I hit him with a mop. I'm only a woman, judge, and a woman's life without love is a mere blight.—Illustrated Bits.

The Big Job.

While studying her Sabbath school lesson nine-year-old Elizabeth was much puzzled by the statement that Solomon "repaired the breaches of the city of David, his father." This was to her mind a remarkable statement and quite incomprehensible. After pondering it deeply she asked one of the older members of the family for an explanation, saying that she did not think any man could "mend the breaches of a whole city."—Lippincott's.

Dictionary Lore.

"Poison" and "poison" are doublets, the former being an older form of the latter. Both are derived from the Latin "potare," to drink, and "poison" in its original sense signified merely something to drink.

While the word "human" used as meaning "a human being" is now only colloquial or humorous, Lowell in the introduction to the "Biglow Papers" chided Bartlett for including it in his "Dictionary of Americanisms" and remarked that it was Chapman's habitual phrase in his translation of Homer and that it is found also in the old play of "The Hog Hath Lost His Pearl."—Rochester Democrat and

His Portrait.
One of the members of a certain suburban photographic society recently delivered a lecture, illustrated by lantern views. Another member, thinking to have a joke at the expense of the lecturer, slipped in among the slides a lantern portrait of himself. The joke would come in, of course, by the portrait appearing on the screen immediately after the lecturer had announced the appearing of something quite different. Fate and chance were unluckily against the humorist, for when his portrait was presented the lecturer, without knowing what was on the screen, gravely read from his list:
"The next slide, ladies and gentlemen, is the picture of a refractory donkey!"

The Other Way About.
A benevolent looking old gentleman was walking along the street when he came upon an irate parent lecturing his offspring.
"Now, you young rascal," said the angry father, "cut off home, and before you go to bed tonight I'll give you a good whipping!"
The old gentleman mildly remonstrated. "My dear sir, perhaps I have no right to interfere, but remember the wise old saying, 'Let not the sun go down upon your wrath.'"
"Don't you trouble yourself about that," was the reply. "I won't do anything of the sort. Oh, no! What I'm going to do is to let the wrath descend upon the son."—Judge.

Uplifting Father.
The men here of late have another fight on their hands, and it is with daughter's music teacher. Men, having low tastes, like ragtime music, buy a piano and hire a teacher; that daughter, in the evening, may make them forget the day's worries with ragtime pounded out with enthusiasm. But daughter isn't allowed to play ragtime. Her teacher, if she is anybody at all, would not let her touch a ragtime sheet, and father has to hear music in which there is a whole lot of hand gymnastics and not a jingle. This is in accord with the plot in which all women are implicated to uplift father in spite of his screams.—Atchison Globe.

Unknown to the Lawyers.
Judge —, one of the great lawyers of the last generation, charged a client a retainer of $1,000 in an important case, but the parties got together next morning and settled the suit before the judge had opened a book or written a line concerning it. His client called to see if he would not refund part of the money. The lawyer seemed surprised at the suggestion. "Refund!" he exclaimed. "Refund, did you say? My friend, that is a kind of fund unknown to the legal profession!"
He that is ill to himself will be good to nobody.—Scotch Proverb.
